Dear Doris: I met my first cousin a girl, after 13 years. We used to play together until I was seven and then we moved to the States. Now we are back here again.

She is wonderful and now we have to admit that there is more than just cousinly love between us. Both our parents approve of us getting married although there seems to be some little doubt as my mother and father are first cousins and so are my parents.

They think another first cousin marriage in the family might be too close a relationship.

There is no inheritable disease in our families.

Real Love, Real Love: My medical consultant has repeatedly assured me that the only time for concern

Top Grade Effort

A group of Grade 7 Saskatchewan schoolchildren raised $60 for the USC and $60 for the Cancer Society, by collecting litter in green garbage bags. They received 25 cents for each bag from a local anti-pollution project. USC Headquarters is located at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa K1P 5B1.

Old Folks Live Best at Home

OTTAWA(CP) — Old folks should have better facilities for living at home instead of being packed off unhappily to institutions, says a Montreal doctor.

Despite the best efforts of its staff, an institution is not an ideal substitute for one's own home, says Dr. Gilbert Rosenberg, physician-in-chief at the Maimonides hospital and home for the aged.

Writing in the Canadian Family Physician, Dr. Rosenberg says many elderly people can continue to live in their homes and communities with some minor changes to help them manage.

They may only require a different type of bed, modification of the furniture, changes in the bathroom or other adjustments. However, these changes should be avoided.

Offer counselling or consulting occupational therapy services to help the handicapped elderly remain independent, he writes.

For some, the services of a visiting homemaker might make the difference between living at home or in an institution.

Homemakers also provided a social encounter that brightens the day for elderly persons.

Housing for the aged must provide security, says Dr. Rosenberg. The elderly fear becoming ill and being unable to call for help.

They needed "a housing mix" of large apartment buildings, smaller buildings, flats and so on near shopping facilities, churches and transportation, he says.

Isolation for the aged should be avoided.

Among 18 Year Olds

Alcohol Consumption Going Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Rising alcohol consumption in the 15-to-24 age group is worrying parents, social agencies and police.

A country-wide survey by the Addiction Research Foundation of Toronto shows serious drinking problems among ever-younger people and an increase in drinking-driver offences and injuries among the young.

In part this trend is related to the action of six provinces and the two territories in reducing the legal minimum drinking age to 18 or 19 from 21 during the last four years.

But experts suspect that illegal drug use, particularly marijuana, hashish and the psychedelics, may also be a factor.

Ronald Doerr of the Alcoholism Foundation of Manitoba says youngsters in Grades 11 and 12 have moved away from other drugs to alcohol.

"Drugs are damned hard to get when you're sitting on the b a l d-headed prairie, and they're also illegal. The 18- and 19-year-olds look old enough to get alcohol."

Dr. Power of the Nova Scotia commission on drug dependency says only two persons under 20 were admitted to the provincial hospital's short-term treatment program for alcohol problems in 1970.

The drinking age was lowered to 19 in April, 1971, and nine patients under 20 were admitted that year. In 1972 it was 20.

Mr. Power says young people are "naive about booze and the damage it might cause them."

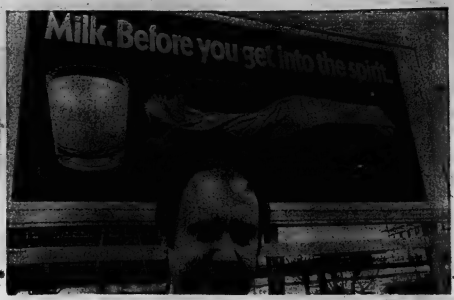
Dr. André Boudreau of the Prevention and Treatment of Alcoholism Centre in Quebec says there is drinking at an earlier age since the age limit was reduced to 18. Many 16-year-olds were getting into pubs and taverns.

Spokesmen in some other provinces said information about drinking habits is sketchy and unreliable. However, there was general agreement that consumption is higher.

A survey of Toronto high-school students in 1973, a year after the drinking age was lowered, showed a radical shift in the drug-use pattern.

Marijuana and hashish use increased about 10 per cent from 1970 while the use of LSD was down. But twice as many students were drinking.

In Toronto in 1970, fewer than 50 charges of impaired driving were laid against drivers 18 to 20 years old. In the second half of 1971 alone, charges soared to 258, although the increase is partly attributed to the breath-analysis machine which came into wide use.



Alcohol is the worst drug curse affecting society today, says Torchia law professor Gerald Le Dain, chairman of the commission of inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs.

The commission's final report, published Dec. 14, says that as long as alcohol and tobacco use "continues to spread in all age groups ... there is little hope of being able to develop a general climate of restraint with respect to non-medical drugs."

An editorial in the January issue of the Addiction Research Foundation's journal says, the endless regurgitation of beer commercials featuring modish kids in forests, boats and balloons ridicules how vital a market the young have become for merchandising interests."

The Le Dain commission says a total ban on alcohol advertising is advisable. Failing this, the ads should be restricted to "truthful, matter-of-fact description."

The research foundation says the federal government's non-medical drug use directorate promised a study on alcohol's effects in 1972, but did nothing.

A country-wide survey by the Addiction Research Foundation of Toronto shows serious drinking problems among ever-younger people and an increase in drinking-driver offences and injuries among the young. Dr. Eugene LeBlanc, a pharmacologist at Toronto's Addiction Research Foundation, stands in front of a sign in Toronto. Not even milk helps. He suggests that you limit yourself to one drink an hour instead.

LOYALIST COLLEGE 10 YEARS JAN. 11 1974

Secondary School Productions Set

By AL TARAS
Staff Reporter

It's the year when the clocks will be turned back decades to Yonkers, New York, and the 1890s.

Centennial Secondary School again takes the cake among Belleville high schools for staging the biggest and costliest theatrical production of the year.

"I think this is going to be, without a doubt, the best production we've done," says director Bill Culp.

Hello, Dolly, the smash Broadway hit musical that nel Carol Channing on New York's St. James Theatre stage in 1964 as the lovable, conniving marriage broker will be here in February.

A cast of near 50 will stage Michael Stewart's adaption of Thornton Wilder's play, The Matchmaker, Wednesday, Feb. 26-27. Music and lyrics were written by Jerry Herman.

Student involvement in the biennial extravaganza is high, says Culp. Rehearsals, have begun and he has the search for an female turn-of-the-century cash register.

Ticket prices for the musical have not yet been established.

It may not be quite as big-budgeted, but Belleville Collegiate Institute's Kampus Kapers variety show is probably one of the oldest events on the city's social calendar, according to co-producer David Handley. The show celebrates it's 28th anniversary in '74.

Coming back for a return engagement during the three-hour show is the ballet, Swan Lake, and the BCI Chamber Music Kazoo Sextet will also be back — with the second movement of Mozart's Eine Kleine Nachtmusik. The first movement was performed last year.

And the cast of some 125 staff and students will round it all off by rendering Bob Hope's theme song Thanks for the Memory.

But what's Molnr, in the far east, doing this year. Carrying on with another variety show institution, Molrantics.

Set for late May, a cast of 100 will work on the theme of Past, Present, Future, with a Guy called Man. Student Steve Bene directs with the help of theatre August experience and John Steadman produces.

Steve Forrester, staff advisor, says material, skits, songs, dances, and what not — is now being collected for the two-hour show. Ticket cost — students 50 cents, adults $1.

And in the north, at Quinte Secondary, as in other schools, students have taken over the annual stage production.

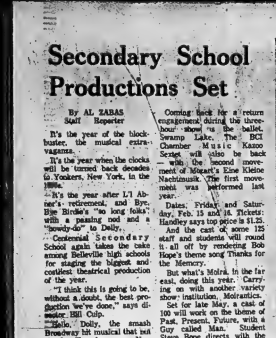
At Quinte, there's a change says Peter Shortall, staff advisor. "The past two years, the third act plays were more of an ego trip for me, than a help to the students. Now, we're trying to make sure that somewhere in the school we have directors."

Students selected the plays, will direct them, act in them, and rise to glory or fall in defeat in them. But students will get the experience this way, says Shortall.

Ticket prices haven't yet been set.

Pylon Will Mark Loyalist Location



Loyalist College will soon be marked with a pylon visible from both Highways 2 and 401.

The 30-foot pylon, triangular in cross section, will be erected at the main entrance to the college on Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd. and will have a finish of the same pink agate as the other buildings at the college. A curved wall will be constructed behind it.

Two 8-foot pylons will be placed at the entrance to the original, prefabricated Loyalist building. They will be of brown metal with white lettering.

The pylons, designed by architect Ed Barnett, will cost about $1,500.

The board of governors turned down a proposal to put a bronze plaque in the College's main entrance, inscribing on it the names of board members. They chose instead to have a "super graphic" mural on an entrance wall. Cost of the bronze plaque would have been $600.

Opposes Policy

D. M. Lockwood, first vice-president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, doesn't like the approach the government seems to be taking for feed grains in the 1974-75 crop year, "When you get away from all the verbiage it really means that the users of feed grains, wherever they may be in Canada will have the freedom to come directly to the producers in any given region — or companies or whatever — and purchase direct." (CP Photo)

Tyendinaga Gets Poet in Residence

Another Hastings county school will have an artist in residence through the Ontario Arts Council's Creative Artists-in-Schools program.

This time, the school is Tyendinaga and the artist is a poet who will teach audio-visual poetry to grade 7 and 8 students.

David UU, a resident of Read for the last year, will teach once a week at the school for about 25 weeks.

His surname, changed from Jackson, is pronounced "double-you."

First artist in residence under the program begun this year was Audrey Davies, Belleville potter, who demonstrated her art at Centennial Secondary School in the fall.

Mr. UU who has nine books of poetry published, says he hopes to expose pupils to contemporary Canadian poetry, and involve them in creating audio and visual poems. His wife, Ingrid, has been teaching creative dance at the Tyendinaga school on a voluntary basis and may collaborate with him on some productions.

The Ontario Arts Council has given grants totalling $90,000 this year for 160 projects. The council pays 50 per cent of an artist's charges, up to a maximum of $900, and the school pays the remaining 10 percent.

Unhappy with Waste Site

MARMORA — Marmora-Lake township council this spring will review a waste disposal site at a tourist park near Crows Lake.

Council fears the site, owned by tourist operator Vern Caverley, could be of a chain's reaction of dumping grounds near the area. It has been given a provisional licence by the provincial government's Waste Management Branch.

'73 City Building Tops $7 Million

A building permit issued during December for the new four-storey, 81-unit senior citizens' apartment structure on West Bridge Street, has boosted the city's 1973 construction total to a record $7,110,000.

The new senior citizens' Complex to be built by Frank Zupet Construction of Mustasauga, will be constructed just west of the present West Bridge Street senior citizens' apartment and directly across from the Belleville fairgrounds.

Permit value for the structure was $853,000.

The Bridge Street senior citizens' complex is one of two to be built in Belleville this year by Ontario Housing Corporation. The second apartment structure will be built on former playground property at the end of Wellington Crescent.

City Hall officials said that while some services may be installed this winter, general construction is not expected to get underway until about March.

Construction value in the city to the end of November was just short of $6,000,000, but the new senior citizens' apartment, along with an 11-unit apartment on North Park Street, and permits for nine new single family dwellings in December boosted last year's building total to $7,110,000.

Egg Producer Defends Price

Ontario egg producers have reacted strongly to the sharply worded statements contained in a report released yesterday by the federal government's Food Prices Review Board that criticized their industry.

The Review Board, headed by Beryl Plumptre, criticized the egg producers saying that egg prices are being maintained at an artificially high level and that rapid price increases in the last year have been exceedingly in excess of production cost rises.

Eric Kaiser, the vice-chairman and the director of Zone Eight of the Ontario Egg Producers' Marketing Board, told The Intelligencer this morning that he felt the price increases outlined by Mrs. Plumptre were not quite as extreme as the report seemed to suggest.

"The Food Prices Review Board has justified its statements," he said, "but the terms used aren't correct — the egg producers — have been hosing the consumer and that just's the case. The Japanese-area farmer said. "We have, in fact, boosted prices slightly in the past to try and make up for the losses we sustained in 1970 and 1971. But, the Review Board has ignored that fact. And this past week we lowered our price of eggs by six cents a dozen. We were selling a dozen eggs for 69 cents 'at the farm gate' and that has been reduced by 63 cents a dozen. While the Marketing Board does set prices, those prices are subject to price trends in the North American egg market and the American price has not weakened yet, while we have.

"The Marketing Board serves 1,500 individual commercial producers in Ontario," Mr. Kaiser continued, "and those producers were forced to do without the protection and help of the Marketing Board, they would be left to the wolves.

"We can't go on supporting debts of the type we acquired in 1970 and 1971 when the market was grossly oversupplied by eggs and in the United States. In 1970 the market was so bad that eggs were selling for as low as $1. for three dozen. That was well below the costs of production.

"As long as I can remember the cost of production was between 30 and 35 cents a dozen and we were able to maintain that price level until the mid 60s by introducing innovations in genetics, management, and nutrition. In 1973, however, our costs and our prices suddenly increased. Our feed costs alone more than doubled and production costs rose to as much as 58 cents for a dozen eggs. Now production costs are approximately 53 cents for a dozen eggs."

Mr. Kaiser then went on to explain that the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board is a young organization and is still deeply involved in trying to organize its members.

"We are still getting organized and we just aren't in a position to manipulate the market in the manner the Review Board says we have or would like us to do," he said.

"We still aren't able to control, completely, the supply to markets, even though we try to take surplus eggs and pulverize them into the broken egg market. As things progress, however, we hope to improve our position in that respect. But, for the same time we haven't any guarantees from the government that we will be protected from lowered American prices that are expected in the spring. The Chicago future market has indicated that American egg prices will fall below our current costs of production this spring and that poses a threat to the Canadian egg producer."

Series Continues At Library

The second of four public seminars examining drug use will take place at Corpy Library tonight at 8.

Benjamin Williams of Belleville General Hospital will speak after two films are shown. The films are Man Isn't Dying of Thirst and Us.

On Tuesday of next week Reverend Laurie Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will speak.

Those wishing to attend the free sessions are reminded to use the Campbell Street entrance if the main entrance on Pinnacle Street is closed.

Belleville General Hospital is installing an image intensifier — x-ray scanner which casts constant image on television monitor during surgery. Apparatus installed yesterday was given demonstration, test with technician Celine Weese playing patient for Patricia Meidrum, operating unit co-ordinator and orthopedic surgeon Dr. Harold Williamson. Unit will be used mainly for orthopedic procedures.

BGH Installing X-ray Monitor

A new x-ray facility being installed at Belleville General Hospital will sharply reduce the time needed for certain surgical procedures.

The apparatus, an image intensifier, will be used in bone and heart surgery.

The machine scans the body area on which surgery is being performed, projecting a constant, clearcut image onto a television monitor while the operation is in progress. It replaces conventional—x-ray technique whereby a surgeon must await processing of film.

Besides advantages to the operating surgeon, the more sophisticated facility will also benefit the patient.

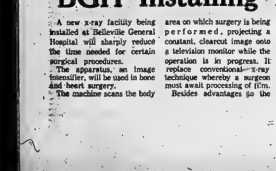
Its use could reduce the time span of many operations to which it is used by half, BGH medical technologists estimate.

It will be mainly used in orthopedic surgery. For cardiology operations it will also assist in procedures involving the placement of heart pacemakers, say hospital officials.

Installation of the apparatus, which cost $25,000, began Wednesday in the hospital's operating unit.

Two Named To Board Of Loyalist

Two new governors took positions on Loyalist College's board last week.



They are Grant Ketcheson, a dairy farmer from RR 1, Madoc and Duncan Campbell, 39, manager of production planning and material control at Trent Valley Paperboard Mills in Glen Miller.

Mr. Ketcheson, who farms in partnership with his father, Allan Ketcheson, holds a bachelor's degree in agriculture from MacDonald College, McGill University. He has been a leader in 4-H Club work for many years and in 1971 was one of two Canadians awarded a Nuffield scholarship for 5½ months' study of dairy farming in England. He is a graduate of Madoc High School, is married and has a son and daughter. Mr. Ketcheson has taught at Loyalist in the agricultural course given for Manpower retraining students.

Mr. Campbell is a graduate of Loyalist, a member of the first three-year course in business administration. He is second in command of A company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and is married, with four children.

Mr. Campbell said he is "tremendously enthusiastic" about the opportunity to serve on the college board, a statement echoed by Mr. Ketcheson.

No Help for the Needy

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The troubled Pittsburgh Penguins got no help from Toronto Maple Leafs and goalie Dan Bouchard wasn't any friendlier with Buffalo Sabres.

The Penguins, in seventh place in the West Division with 25 points and next battled Atlanta Flames and a possible playoff berth, lost 6-4 to the Leafs in a National Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Bouchard, meanwhile, stopped 32 shots to lead the Flames to a 3-0 win over the Sabres. For Bouchard, who made 16 saves in the second period while Atlanta managed four shots, it was his fourth shutout of the season.

The Penguins, having trouble attracting a crowd at home because of their 10-24-5 record, didn't do much better Wednesday. Attendance was 8,188, below the average of 8,710 for previous home games and well behind last year's average of 10,369.

Of course, the Penguins' dismal record—they have five wins, 11 losses and three ties at home—has sparked rumors concerning the replacement of general manager Jack Riley and coach Ken Schinkel.

Ted Polgar, boss of the Penguins, says reports that Schinkel or Riley may go are "pure speculation."

In other games, Ivan Boldirev scored four goals to lead California Golden Seals to an 8-6 win over St. Louis Blues; Minnesota North Stars tied Detroit Red Wings 2-2; and Los Angeles Kings battled to a 4-4 draw with Chicago Black Hawks.

Maple Leafs 6 Penguins 4

Bob Neogh tied Kelly of the Leafs and Schinkel admitted the Penguins outplayed the Leafs in the first period, but Toronto came out of it with a 3-1 lead.

"I have never been so frustrated in my life as I was during that period," Schinkel said. "We had at least three shots on the goal posts at one point and still couldn't score."

Kelly said goalie Doug Favell was the difference.

Mike Pelyk scored twice and Jim McKenny, Bob Neogh, Dan Maloney, Brad Selwood and Lanny McDonald added one goal apiece to help the Leafs take over sole possession of third in the East Division, Toronto is three points behind second-place Montreal Canadiens and two ahead of New York Rangers.

The Leafs, who outshot the Penguins 31-27, led 6-1 in the second period before Pittsburgh rallied. It was the Penguins' ninth defeat against one win and a tie in their last 12 games.

Flames 3 Sabres 0

The Flames won their fourth straight on home ice behind Bouchard's strong goaltending and the help of a first-period goal by Jacques Richard, his 11th of the season.

Curt Bennett and Bob Leiter scored for Atlanta goals, giving the Flames their third win in four games this season with the Sabres.

Seals 8 Blues 6

Boldirev scored a goal in the first, two in the second and another in the third to raise his season's total to 14.

The Seals, last in the West Division, trailed 3-2 after the first period but outscored the Blues 6-4 in the second to move within two points of the Penguins. The Penguins have 25 points in the West Division.

The Blues, trailing 7-5, pulled their goalie in the last minute and Don Awrey scored to narrow the deficit. However, Rick Kessell increased the margin to 8-6 when he fired the puck into the empty net with four seconds remaining.

Red Wings 6 North Stars 2

Fred Stanfield's eighth goal of the year at 11:14 of the third period gave the Stars the tie.

Detroit led 1-0 in the first period on a goal by Nick Libett, his 11th, but Tom Reid tied it with his second goal less than two minutes later.

Pit Martin scored three goals for Chicago, giving him 17 this season. John Wilding got two goals for Los Angles.

QMJHL Stars On Top 8-5

MONTREAL (CP) — The Lemieux brothers, Junior, A Hockey League all-stars scored three times in the final three minutes of the third period to defeat the Quebec University Athletic Association all-stars 8-5 in an exhibition game Wednesday night.

A crowd of 2,687 saw the QUAA team take a 3-3 lead only to have the Juniors come back and score their second straight win in the series between the two leagues.

Michel Deslet's second goal of the game at 17:36 snapped a 5-5 tie and proved to be the winner for the juniors. Pierre Larouche, Robert Sirois, Mario Tremblay, Real Cloutier, Pierre Mondou and Guy MacGregor got the other jun or goals.

Hull Leads Jets Past Blazers

Saints Sag at Home

As this stage of the World Hockey Association schedule, Minnesota Fighting Saints can be without home games.

They've won their share in St. Paul—12 victories and nine defeats—but their record was a little more impressive late last month.

Edmonton Oilers handed them defeat No. 9 and fifth in a row at home with a 6-4 triumph Wednesday night, knocking the Saints into fourth place in the West Division.

Before a home game Dec. 29 with Toronto Toros, the Saints were first with 30 points—one ahead of Houston Aeros and the Minnesotans appeared on their way to improving the total. But Minnesota lost that night 9-3, and since then have dropped three more at home, including two to the Oilers, while winning one in Chicago.

The Saints with five straight wins on the road, haven't won at home since Dec. 21, a 4-3 verdict over Los Angeles Sharks.

The second-place Oilers now have 44 points, two behind the Aeros, who still Saturday night.

In another game Wednesday, Winnipeg Jets took over third place in the West, one point ahead of Minnesota and two ahead of Edmonton, with a 6-5 decision over Vancouver Blazers.

Danny Lawson scored once for the Blazers to tie the WHA record for consecutive goal scoring. He now has scored one goal or more in his last eight games—his total is 13, in that span.

Alain Caron of Quebec Nordiques set the eight-game scoring record last season. He collected 18 during the streak.

Oilers 6 Saints 4

The Oilers, who defeated the Saints 6-4 last Sunday, lost a 4-3 lead Wednesday when George Morrison, his 31st, and Wayne Connelly, his 25th, scored for Minnesota early in the third period.

However, Al Hamilton's fifth goal of the year at 6:27 put the Oilers ahead 5-4 and Les Lunde's ninth goal—a 40-foot drive past goalie Mike Curran—clinched the victory.

Centre Jim Harrison scored a goal, his 19th, and added two assists for the Oilers. Ron Climie got his 25th goal of the season for Edmonton late in the second period before 3,324 fans.

The Saints led 2-0 in the first period when Jimmy Johnson scored at 5:18 and Keith Christiansen beat goalie Jack Norris on a 12:32. Blair McDonald and Harrison tied it before the period ended.

Brian McKenzie scored the other Edmonton goal, an unassisted effort at 10:38 of the second period.

Jets 8 Blazers 6

Bobby Hull picked up two goals—giving him 26 this year—and added one assist to lead the Jets before 10,213 fans in Vancouver.

Providence Rebounds To Tie New Haven 2-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds kept pace with the leaders of the North Division of the American Hockey League Wednesday when they came from behind to tie New Haven Nighthawks 2-2.

In other games, Nova Scotia Voyageurs defeated Baltimore Clippers 4-1, Cincinnati Swords topped Richmond Robins 4-2 and Hershey Bears battled to a 6-6 stalemate with Virginia Red Wings.

Norm Dennis burst from behind the net midway through the second period and tipped the puck across the line to create the tie at New Haven. Jerry Teeple and Providence's first goal.

The Voyageurs' victory shot them into a two-way tie for third place in the North with Rochester Americans. Both clubs are eight points back of the leaders.

Larry Pullan got Nova Scotia off to a good start with the only goal of the first period, but Bob Cook tied the score early in the second. The Voyageurs then scored three consecutive goals—by Sean Shanahan, John Van Boxmeer and Ed Gilbert.

The Swords snapped a four-game losing streak and regained second place in the South Division with their victory over the Robins. Veteran Billy Inglis scored twice for the winners.

Don Luce Green scored two goals to pace the Red Wings, who saw victory snatched from their grasp when Fred Harvey connected for the Bears at the 19:38 mark of the third period.

The Bears lead the South Division, while the Wings are in fifth place.

Chatham Wins Four Straight

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Chatham Maroons ran their unbeaten streak to four games with a 4-1 victory over Windsor Spitfires in Ontario Junior Hockey League game Wednesday.

A pair of former Spitfires played a major role in the victory. Goaltender Tony Piccolo joined Maroons last week after being released in October by Windsor and stopped 34 shots.

Defenceman Rick Evans scored a power-play goal at 9:02 of the second period to clinch the victory. Evans was traded by Windsor to Buffalo in December but refused to report and subsequently was dealt to the Maroons.

Bob Yachuk, Doug Simpson and Dave De'glai got the other Chatham goals. Dave Hamilton got Windsor's only goal.

A total of 110 minutes in penalties was called, including five majors.

Shakeup in Eagles' Nest

By ALAN TEEWORTH
Sports Staff

The Belleville Eagles last night announced a major shakeup in the club's operation, with the franchise changing hands, as well as a new coach being named.

Stating that Dick Borrowes, a local business man, is the new franchise holder, club president Gary Rock said "It was just too much pressure from running the team and raising the funds to keep going. It was nearly impossible for the executive to handle it smoothly."

The executive that had been involved with the team's operation will cease to handle those responsibilities.

The group will be forming an Eagles' Booster Club and Rock commented "we think we will be better able to keep senior hockey alive in Belleville this way."

A new coach was also named to replace Larry Hughes, who has been relieved of his duties.

The new man behind the bench will be Walt Gerow. Gerow, from Napanee, will begin his coaching duties Tuesday night, when the Eagles meet the Welland Merchants in a game at the Memorial Arena.

Gerow will also be scout for Kingston Aces, of the Senior A loop, had been mentioned as a candidate for the position of coach before the season opened but did not take the job.

Hughes was then hired, and had guided the team to a six won, 11 lost record in 23-games this season and fifth place in the six team league, 23 points behind the first place-Cambridge Hornets and Barrie Flyers.

The Eagles have suffered from poor attendance at their games this season, averaging less than 200 per game, despite having provided some good hockey for the fans.

There will also be some player cuts made today, according to club manager Ted Soule. Cuts will be made in line with the deadline set by the Ontario Hockey Association. At least one player over the age of 23 will have to be dropped to comply with the league's new rule this season to limit the number of players over that age.

Soule could make no announcement on which player would receive the axe.

The Eagles still have two player cards as yet unsigned, leaving positions still available on the squad. One player they would like to have sign, Dick Cherry did not attend the workout last night. He was expected to be present.

Cherry a former professional with Boston and Pittsburgh, played for Kingston Aces last season, and apparently expressed an interest in playing for the Eagles.

Three Cats Selected As Metro All-stars

Three members of the Belleville Bobcats of the Metro Junior B Hockey League have been named to the league's Eastern All-star team which will play their Western counterparts in Toronto at the Markham, in goal, along with Ontario's Rob Duncan; Pickering's Tim Manley, Rocci Pagnotta, Brian Roll, and Chuck Durocher; Markham's Neil Labatte; Oshawa's Brad Newton, Bill Cook and Norm McKee, and Cats' Ridges' Jim Wood.

The three Bobcat forwards have been near the top in the list of scorers in the league, all season. Richardson has 49 points on 29 goals and 49 assists, good for second place while Coates is third with 41 points (28-23).

Acres is tied for sixth place at the 52-point level, sharing the position with Peterborough's Steve Casey. Norm has 18 goals and 34 assists.

The trio will be out to increase their totals when the Cats play at home twice this weekend. Friday night, they host Wexford Warriors in an important game for both teams.

Belleville is fighting for first place with Pickering while the Warriors hold a slight one-point lead over Brandies Blues in the battle for fourth spot.

Sunday night at Memorial Arena, the Cats face Oak Ridges will be the visitor.

Cats' coach Ted Lineup is Wally Dainard who had been out since the first week in December. Cats' Norm Jones was named to the second team.

Dainard played last Sunday night against Markham Royals as he began the task of returning to top playing condition after a month's layoff.

Cats have lost two players.

Vern Amey, a defenceman, has decided to pack it in after an impressive one-month stay with the club. According to reports from the club, the regular Cuba is and Prom Napanee were interfering with Amey's work and he decided to give up junior hockey.

Forward Al Garrison who suffered a serious eye injury during a league game with St. Michael's December 8, will not be returning to the club, in six games as a Bobcat, Garrison had 13 goals and seven assists.

This year the age has been set from six to 13 years, strictly for the purpose of limiting numbers.

Some of the instructors aiding O'Neill in the sessions are Eric Johnston, Peter Koutroubis, and Peter Koening, of the Parsons' Soccer Club, Colin Bailey of the Belleville United team, and Kevin Kirby and Bobby Watson, both from the QEH Rovers.

In the gyms, the boys are drilled in the basics of the game of soccer, shooting, passing, dribbling, trapping, and heading, as well as team instruction in the artof ball-keeping.

In the classroom, they view such films as highlights from past World Cup competitions, as well as training films.

O'Neill says "we try to teach them the green rools of the game, rather than the fine points. Some of these boys never played the game before they started to come to the sessions."

"The boy between the ages of six and 12 can come out to the sessions," says John, "all they need is their shorts and running shoes. We welcome anyone who is interested."

And that brings him to another point. The Belleville Minor Soccer Association (BMSA) is looking for coaches for the upcoming season.

More than 500 boys are expected to register for the 1974 season. They need leadership. O'Neill says one does not necessarily have to know the game, but merely provide the organization of the players.

Anyone interested in coaching for the upcoming season should contact John, or the BMSA registrar, Tobin Bowman.

Trojans Take Three

Moira took three games from Bayside in Bay of Quinte High School Basketball action last night. In the senior contest the Trojans downed the Red Devils 66-45 while in the Junior contest Moira edged Bayside 36-47. In the only wide open contest, the Moira Midgets put it to their counterparts 76-56.

Dave Hilborn led the senior Trojans with 18 points, with Roland Walton bagging 18. Wilf Lemoire of the Bayside squad was the high scorer in the game with 19 points.

Bayside's Ron Bell scored 30 of his team's 54 points but it wasn't enough in the midget game. Kent Manning had 22 points for the Moira squad, with Rob Chase collecting 18.

Bobcat Boosters Are Busy

The first item on the agenda was plans for the bus to the Pickering Panthers - Bobcat game in Pickering January 18 details of which will be announced early next week.

The "Meet the Players Night," first discussed last week, will be held at the Knight's of Columbus Hall on Monday, February 1.

The admission price and starting time for the event will be announced later.

A booth will be set up and manned by Booster Club members at the Quinte Mall on January 17-18-19 at which tickets to the Metro Junior B All Star game January 23 at St. Mikes' will be sold. Tickets to the Pickering game on the 18th will be available, and club membership will also be on sale. Members of the executive will be on hand to answer any queries anyone may have.

The next regular meeting of the Club will be held Wednesday evening, January 16 at the Arena, with the starting time slated for 8 o'clock.

TOP MARKS!

This is KENNETH F. MILLINGS who was presented with this plaque for achieving highest marks in his final apprentice course in Advanced Motor Vehicle Mechanics in 1973. Ken attended the course at Centennial College, Industrial Training Branch, Toronto and has been employed for the last 3½ years in Motorland Chrysler's Service Department. Congratulations Ken for your extra effort from Al Lopez, Bruce Lyons and your fellow employees at Motorland.

Right in On the Doorstep

Although not exactly in the same league, Kevin Dunlop has Belleville Parsons' Peter Kenning at his mercy in one indoor soccer training session at Quinte Secondary School last night. The sessions have been attracting large numbers of players out to take being provided by players such as Kenning, one of senior soccer leagues. The sessions are held from 6:30 to 9 p.m. every Wednesday night.

Basic soccer. That's what boys under the age of 12 learn each Wednesday night at the indoor soccer training sessions being held at Quinte Secondary School.

Organized by John O'Neill, right half for the Quinte Help Fund Rovers of the Kingston and District Soccer League, the program has attracted as many as 70 boys for weekly sessions.

Last year the program drew over 200 boys to some workouts, when the age for the sessions was open to boys from the age of eight up.

Eskimos Add Some Beef With Pre-draft Claims

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Opposition quarterbacks could feel even more pressure from Edmonton Eskimos' tough defence next Canadian Football League season, judging by the Eskimos' two pre-draft claims.

CFL general managers, meeting here in connection with the American Football Coaches Association annual meeting, announced Wednesday their pre-draft protected list and Edmonton came up with two 250-pound defensive tackles.

The tackles are Bill Stevenson, 6-foot-5, who played at Drake University, and Dave Fennell, 6-4, out of University of North Dakota. Both are from Edmonton.

Each CFL club is entitled to protect two players from the area who would otherwise be eligible for the annual draft of college players which will take place during annual meetings in Toronto beginning Feb. 21.

Protected players named by other clubs:

British Columbia Lions—Loren Sherbina, North Vancouver, defensive tackle, 6-5, 265, University of Idaho; Terry Bailey, Surrey, B.C., 6, 205, Simon Fraser.

Calgary Stampeders—Gord Yeoman, Calgary, running back, 6, 190, Washington State; Murray Anderson, Calgary, centre, 6-2, 225, University of Calgary.

Saskatchewan Roughriders—Lance Shotbolt, Saskatoon, tight end, 6-3, 220, North Dakota; Ken McEachern, Regina, running back, 6, 185, Weber State.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers—Gord Paterson, Winnipeg, running back, 5-11, 185, University of Manitoba; Glen Perrin, Killarney, Man., running back, 6, 190, Simon Fraser.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats—Ted Greenes, Hamilton, quarterback, 6-2, 200, Ithaca College; Gary Mackenzie, Hamilton, linebacker, 6-2, 225, Wilfrid Laurier.

Toronto Argonauts—Larry Ulack, Toronto, defensive back, 6, 190, Wilfrid Laurier; Morris Zabkowych, Toronto, defensive back, 6-4, 205, Simon Fraser.

Ottawa Rough Riders—Perry Arnold, Sarnia, defensive back, 6-2, 200, Western Ontario; Darryl Craig, Ottawa, tackle, 6-3, 270, University of North Carolina.

Lakers Look Behind After Loss to Detroit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Pistons were looking ahead and Los Angeles Lakers were looking behind, which also describes their relative positions in Wednesday night's National Basketball Association game.

"We're just looking ahead to the playoffs," said Detroit coach Ray Scott after the Pistons romped to their record 30th margin over the Lakers in winning 133-94.

"Maybe last night's game had something to do with it," said Los Angeles coach Bill Sharman, whose club lost Tuesday night to Capital Bullets, ending a five-game winning streak.

"We had a game we could have won and should have won and we let it slip away," added Sharman, referring to the game with Capital.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston Celtics crushed Chicago Bulls 105-86; Philadelphia 76ers stopped Cleveland Cavaliers 90-86; Phoenix Suns trimmed Houston Rockets 105-101; and Seattle SuperSonics downed Kansas City-Omaha Kings 106-86.

American Basketball Association scores were: New York Nets 108 Memphis Tams 94; Denver Rockets 119 Virginia Squires 102, and Utah Stars 115 San Diego Conquistadors 112.

Pistons 133 Lakers 94

Centre Bob Lanier scored 32 points and grabbed 20 rebounds to lead the Pistons to their fourth victory in five games.

Lanier got 24 first-half points as the Pistons held a 58-47 lead at intermission.

Celtics 106 Bulls 86

Only one NBA referee got to see John Havlicek and Don Nelson sink the Bulls by leading a third-quarter Boston surge.

Jerry Lorcher, delayed by travel difficulties caused by a snowstorm, replaced non-NBA referee Ken Hudson and Royce Baker when he arrived in the second period.

But three quarters is better than none which is how many the other scheduled referees Earl Strom got to see. The storm grounded Strom in New York.

76ers 90 Cavaliers 86

Steve Mix' 24 points helped Philadelphia end a dry spell against Cleveland that has stretched to almost two years.

It was the Cavaliers seventh straight loss.

Csonka Not Swayed by Statistics

HOUSTON (AP) — When the Nb. 3-ranked rushing team in the National Football League meets the 22rd-ranked team against the run, you've got a mismatch in the offing for the Super Bowl game.

Right?

"I guarantee you Minnesota won't look like the 23rd team against the rush in the Super Bowl," said the 6-foot-3, 235-pound Csonka, who gained 1,003 yards in 1973.

Csonka, who has been battling the flu this week, said the Vikings have a "tough defence."

"You can't use full season statistics as a guide because the only statistic that means anything is how they played in critical game. And that was good.

"So often Minnesota was way ahead by the second half and just let the other team run while they played prevent football, keeping the other team from beating the longe one."

A good example in support of Csonka's theory is that the Vikings allowed tough-running Dallas Cowboys only 98 yards in the National Conference title game two weeks ago.

Csonka, who scored three touchdowns against Oakland Raiders in the American Conference championship game, said Minnesota is the hardest tackling team he has faced.

Csonka said linebacker Roy Winston put the hardest tackle on him he can remember in a regular-season game against the Vikings last year.

"It was a devastating tackle," Csonka said. "I was stretched out on the ground and coach Don Shula told me 'You're not hurt.' What I told him back is something you can't print. I'm not in the point where I'm an emotional, I'll play with a broken back."

Winston said:

"I think the way to stop them is simply to have a total team defence that puts out and beats each man in front of him.

"They're very versatile in their running. They can run inside, they can run outside. Their backs are of variations.

"You go into every football game and you never know what you're playing to shut off the running game and make a team pass."

Siemon said:

"My biggest concern is with Csonka because, most of his plays will be in my area. I'm concerned with Mercury Morris in a collective way because I think he can do more things to hurt you than Csonka. He can break the big play where Csonka's gonna get his five, six, seven, 18 yards. Morris has the ability to break the big one. These three backs Csonka, Morris and Jim Kiick give them everything they need in an offensive backfield attack."

Simpson Most Valuable

NEW YORK (AP) — Buffalo Billy O. J. Simpson, who set history as a 1-1-tire National Football League rushing record with 2,003 yards this year, was named the league's Most Valuable Player in an Associated Press poll Wednesday.

Simpson, who earlier was named the Offensive Player of the Year and was a unanimous choice in the balloting for the all-pro team, compiled a huge margin in the MVP voting by three-man panels of sportswriters and broadcasters who cover the 26 NFL teams.

The only other players receiving votes in the MVP poll were Los Angeles Rams passing ballcarry, quarterback John Hadl and wide receiver Harold Jackson. Each received two votes. The rest of the ballots went to Simpson, whose rushing feats were the talk of the league all season.

O. J. started the year with a single game rushing record of 250 yards against New England Patriots and ended it with another 200-yard day against New York Jets. In between, he ground out yardage week after week and stayed on the trail of Jim Brown's NFL rushing record of 1,863 yards set a decade before.

He came into the season's final game with 1,803 yards and needed 61 to break Brown's mark. The game was meaningless except for O. J.'s bid to get into the record book.

Simpson wasted no time, shredding the Jets' line repeatedly early in the game and shattering the record before the first quarter was over.

Then the powerfully-built graduate of Southern California went after the 2,800-yard barrier, a plateau not considered unthinkable. And in his season of spectacular achievements, Simpson reached that mark too.

Now $26.67 a day up to $800.00 a month to help you get well at home or on vacation!

ACT NOW BEFORE MIDNIGHT, JANUARY 22, 1974

Our "Get-Well Cash" Plan pays cash to help you convalesce after you leave the hospital... just when your provincial insurance leaves off!

Dear Friend:

Even though I haven't played hockey for a long time, I know I'm not forgotten. Companies continue to seek my endorsement and my response is always the same...I refuse to recommend anything unless it is good enough for my family and friends.

I know you can depend on the people at Laurier Life Insurance Company. They use the latest computer methods to process applications quickly and efficiently. Believe me, when you need them, they'll be there to help you.

I'm extremely pleased with my Laurier Life Insurance plans. They provide benefits when I need them most. They represent protection and peace of mind to me.

That's why I'm happy to recommend Laurier Life Insurance Company to you. And if you know me from my hockey days, you know I never mince words when I believe in something. Take my advice...read this announcement and make up your own mind.

Sincerely,

Maurice Richard

Paid Member of the Laurier Life Advisory Board

Collect $26.67 a day... up to $800.00 a month when you may need it most!

If you or a covered member of your family is confined in a public general hospital for more than 48 hours, as a result of an accident or sickness covered under this policy, we will pay you $26.67 a day for each day you convalesce...up to the same number of days you were hospitalized...to a maximum of $800.00 a month.

The money is paid directly to you to use any way you wish! And you collect regardless of where you get well...at home or on vacation. You may want to use the cash for a holiday in the sun...a favorite resort...or maybe just for making things run more smoothly at home. The whole idea of "Get-Well Cash" is to help you get well as easily and comfortably as possible!

At age 65, even though your living expenses are normally lower and your children are old enough to support themselves, you still collect $13.33 a day, up to $400.00 a month cash from the "Get-Well Cash" Plan. The benefit for children, age 1 month through 18 years, is also $13.33 a day, up to $400.00 a month.

Collect $26.67 a day... up to $800.00 in benefits if you add maternity coverage.

You even collect "Get-Well" benefits for pregnancy! When you and your wife have been covered with maternity benefits for nine consecutive months, you collect $26.67 a day for each day your wife convalesces...up to the same number of days she is hospitalized in a public general hospital...up to $800.00. These benefits are paid following your wife's hospitalization of more than 48 hours for pregnancy, childbirth, miscarriage or other complications resulting from pregnancy—up to one full month.

Collect up to $2,000.00 for covered major accidents.

The loss of a limb or eyesight is a terrible thing. You may need cash to help you and your family over the critical period when you come out of a public general hospital. If you suffer such a loss as defined in the policy within 90 days of an accident, you collect cash like this: $1,000.00 for complete accidental loss of one hand or one foot or sight of one eye. $2,000.00 cash for loss of both hands or both feet or sight of both eyes.

Enjoy world-wide coverage!

In this day and age, we Canadians are traveling more and more...both for business and pleasure. That's why it's important for us to have the same protection under the same conditions away from home as we do at home.

If you or any covered member of your family is confined in a public general hospital for more than 48 hours, anywhere in the world, for an accident or sickness covered by this policy we will pay you $26.67 a day for each day you spend convalescing, continuing for the same number of days as you were hospitalized, to a maximum of $800.00 a month.

Your "Get-Well Cash" Plan protects you and all the enrolled family members for any accident or sickness except: those caused by pregnancy or any consequences thereof (unless you have elected maternity coverage); acts of war, military service, nervous or mental disorders, suicide or attempted suicide, alcoholism, drugs or self-inflicted injury. Pre-existing conditions—any sickness or injury for which you or any covered member received medical treatment or advice from a physician within 12 months before the Effective Date of your policy—are not covered until after the coverage has been in effect for 2 years.

We cannot cancel your protection no matter how old you become or how many claims you make.

As long as you continue to pay your premiums, we cannot cancel your "Get-Well Cash" policy unless all policies of this type are discontinued by Laurier Life throughout your entire province.

Laurier Life has built its reputation on the service it gives to over 80,000 men and women in all walks of life across Canada.

We've pioneered direct-to-you life and health insurance, offering modern insurance plans at reasonable rates. Our policyowner service bureau serve you no matter where you live.

Our leadership is made up of respected corporation presidents and highly experienced professionals from all walks of life. With over $230,000,000.00 life insurance in force, our company is a prime insurer for many prestigious national and provincial associations. We're licensed in your province and operate under the laws and regulations of Canada.

Proof of our reliability lies in our claims record... since 1965, our company paid out over $9,000,000.00 in claim benefits under our various plans!

You're protected even before you receive your policy!

You and each enrolled member of your family are covered from the moment we issue your policy—even before your policy is in your hands! When you get your policy, you'll find it's written in simple, easy-to-understand language. Study it for up to 30 days and if you want it, keep it. If you're not satisfied, return it and you won't owe us anything. And during the 30 days you have to make your decision, you're fully covered, provided you have not returned the policy, for all benefits of the "Get-Well Cash" Plan.

Enrol now- it's easy, and it's important!

All you do is complete the short Enrolment Form and mail it for your first month of free protection. Remember we will never ask you to take a medical exam or answer any health questions to enrol. No salesman' representing Laurier Life will call and there's no red tape for you to bother with.

Don't put off mailing your form. Getting well at home can be expensive—for your entire family. The "Get-Well Cash" Plan has been designed to help you handle some of the expense. Enrol in "Get-Well Cash" today!

The monthly payment of your premium is not only convenient, but it also gives you maximum opportunity for budget stretching. Today, when the price of everything seems to keep going up, you'll know that your monthly rate will remain unchanged!

7 IMPORTANT QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT "GET-WELL CASH"

1. Is it really true I cannot be turned down?
We guarantee if, regardless of your health, or occupation...your enrolment cannot be turned down. We don't ask you to take a medical exam or answer any personal questions to enrol. We take you at your word!

2. How much do I collect?
If you're under 65 you collect $26.67 a day...to a maximum of $800.00 a month cash...for every day you spend convalescing following a stay in a public general hospital for a covered sickness or injury covered under this policy up to the same number of days you were hospitalized. The cash is paid directly to you to use any way you wish! And, you collect regardless of where you get well...at home or even on vacation. You only have to spend a minimum of 48 hours in the hospital in order to collect your "Get-Well" benefits.

3. What are the benefits for people 65 and over and for children?
In order to make "Get-Well Cash" easily affordable for everyone, benefits for people 65 and over and covered dependent children are 50% of the regular benefits under the same conditions—$13.33 a day...up to $400.00 a month.

4. Can you cancel my policy?
Only if you don't pay your premiums. Otherwise, we guarantee never to individually cancel or reduce your protection, no matter how old you become or how many claims you make. Your policy can be cancelled only if all policies of the type are discontinued throughout your entire province.

5. Are there maternity benefits?
If you elect Maternity Coverage, benefits of $26.67 a day are payable for convalescence following hospitalization in a public general hospital for pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage or other complications resulting from pregnancy provided such hospitalization occurs more than nine months after the effective date of your maternity coverage. Both husband and wife must be covered by this policy during the entire nine month period. Benefits will continue for the same number of days your wife is hospitalized up to one full month.

6. How can Laurier Life give me my first month's protection free?
That's our offer and we make it because we're confident that once you've experienced a month of "Get-Well Cash" protection you'll never want to be without it!

7. Can I return the policy if I'm not completely satisfied?
If, after examining your policy, you decide it's not for you, return it to us within 30 days and you won't owe us a penny. Remember, while making your decision, you'll be protected provided you have not decided to return the policy...so enrol today!

Get your first month free, then continue at these low monthly rates:

—$26.67 A DAY— $800.00-A-MONTH PLAN!

Age at Enrolment	Monthly Premium per Adult
18-44	$ 8.80
45-49	$ 7.48
50-54	$ 8.40
55-74	$ 9.35
75-79	$10.70

Prices Board Calls For Cut in Egg Price

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board called for immediate reduction of egg prices and criticized egg producers and marketing boards in a strongly-worded report released Wednesday.

The board says egg prices are being maintained at an "artificially" high level and rapid price increases in the last year have been considerably in excess of production cost rises.

Despite low egg prices in 1971 which resulted in losses to producers, they and egg marketing agencies should not be allowed to hit consumers to make up their loss, the report says.

While it is unfortunate that individual producers sustained financial losses as a result of maintaining uneconomic production levels throughout 1970 and 1971, the board is of the opinion that consumers should not now be expected "through higher current prices, to relieve the burden created by producer or provincial efforts to extract more favorable positions from a national agency," it concludes.

Fertilizer Shortage Forecast for Spring

OTTAWA (CP) — Eastern Ontario farmers will face a serious shortage of fertilizer if they wait until the spring to buy it, says a report released by the Kemptville Agricultural College.

The report blames the energy crisis for the projected shortage of fertilizers that will affect phosphate, potash and nitrogen brands.

A government release of 40 million acres from its land bank, has increased the demand for fertilizer.

The report also says that the move by the United States to lift price ceilings on fertilizers for domestic use, and the U.S.

CUT — WRAPPED — FROZEN AND DELIVERED

Dief Is Enraged by Senate Stand on Wiretaps

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker and the New Democratic Party emerged as Commons rebels with causes concerning the Senate Wednesday.

The former Conservative prime minister is up in arms about part of the government's wiretap bill. He vowed to stand alone if his party supports the bill in its present form, which as amended by the Senate.

Equally irate, the NDP is upset because the upper chamber has veto power over the emergency energy allocation bill. Stanley Knowles, the party's House leader, said it would be preposterous for the Senate to have veto power over the Commons and cabinet while "Canadians might be freezing."

The wiretap bill, which would outlaw all private bugging and restrict police use of electronic eavesdropping devices, was passed by the Commons last month. The Senate removed a provision under which the subject of a legal wiretap would have to be informed by an attorney-general within 90 days after its removal.

This brought the bill back to the Commons where Justice Minister Otto Lang, hoping to please both Houses of Parliament, came up with a substitute clause that would let the judge authorizing the wiretap decide when and whether a subject should be informed.

"I will vote with my party on most questions," the veteran MP and lawyer said in an interview. "But when it is a question of principle, I will vote on those principles.

"There can be no justification for tapping a telephone and not informing the person being tapped. That is a safeguard for ordinary Canadians, and without it their freedoms could be interfered with.

"The Senate set that aside and I say if they want a free-for-all; let's let them have it. I will oppose this compromise and I can't understand how anyone could take another position."

Mr. Diefenbaker may be alone within his party but he has support in other parts of the House, apparently including cabinet ministers. Mr. Lang is believed running into some strong objections within cabinet.

He is supported, too, by the New Democrats. Mr. Knowles feels the Commons should not be forced to accept the bill, that it should be sent back to the Senate in the original form.

Olympic Cultural Planning to Begin

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal officials begin a series of meetings next week with their provincial counterparts to plan Canada's cultural program for the 1976 Olympics.

Officials from the secretary of state department, co-ordinating Ottawa's participation, will fly to the Atlantic provinces and the following week they will fly west.

At this stage, the discussion will not go much beyond explorations how the provinces want to participate in a cross-Canada festival during the spring and summer of 1976, built around the Games, to be held in Montreal during the last two weeks of July.

But if plans develop as federal officials anticipate, it is expected the so-called cultural Olympics will range from Indian pow-wows to grand opera performances scattered across the country, culminating in a festival of Canadian cultural events in Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto.

Helping you to a better understanding of nutrition

Joan Fielden
Dominion's Home Economist Consultant

Joan Fielden Says...
In today's busy life style it is difficult to be sure every member of the family is well-fed.
Therefore, it is important to select a varied diet; one which includes nutritionally valuable fruits and vegetables—enriched and whole grain cereal products, meats and milk and moderation in other foods.

BIRTHS

SAVAGE — Rosanne Savage of Belleville is pleased to announce the birth of her daughter, Jennifer Lee, at the Cobourg General Hospital on Thursday, January 9th, 1974. Proud parents are Jim and Claire Savage, Belleville, formerly of Bancroft.

WALKEY — Yves and Chris (nee Skinner) Walkey are happy to announce the birth of their first born son, Mark Steven, on Jan. 8, 1974, at Belleville General Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Alden Skinner of Tamworth.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. David E. Taylor wish to thank their many friends and neighbours for the lovely party they gave us for our second anniversary. Thanks for the beautiful gifts, cards, flowers and telegrams. Special thanks to Jim and Ruth, David and Margaret Taylor.

The Men's Commercial "A" Bowling League wish to extend a sincere thanks to those who made our first Family Night such a success. Bill Chaisty Christie stated recently that it was First our bosses who brought in their family. Special thanks to our promoters, Bowlerama, Bell Telephone, Belleville Hydro, Ontario Hydro, Ontario Malleable Iron Co. and Wm. Rea Ltd. for their generous support. Thanks to Bob Richardson for his fine work, and to Bill Hall for his fine party

Bangladesh Amnesty Is Calculated Risk

BOMBAY (CP) The Bangladesh government's decision to release the bulk of political prisoners is described in interested circles as a calculated risk.

The general amnesty ordered by the government covers more than 30,000 people. They include nearly 19,000 political workers and "certain elements" who have been held in custody for the last two years on charges of collaborating with the Pakistani army during the war of liberation.

In addition, the amnesty covers 20,000 people who are not in prison but have been threatened with legal action for their conduct when the Pakistanis were in power.

According to an authoritative source, those charged with murder and rape will be tried by special tribunals. But their number may not exceed 2,000.

Another amnesty is not ruled out by political circles. It appears that Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman decided to follow a policy of "forgive and forget" after he had heard core of the pro-Pakistani elements in his nation of 80 million people are concerned.

As one columnist in Dacca put it, "this has been a positive act of compassion on the part of any government. Towards those who deliberately chose a path of treachery and crime. Sheikh Mujib has emerged as a true follower of Mahatma Gandhi and Jesus Christ, the apostles of forgiveness."

But not all observers think that the Bangladesh prime minister's decision will endear him to the masses. Towards those who deliberately chose a path of treachery and crime. Sheikh Mujib has emerged as a true follower of Mahatma Gandhi and Jesus Christ, the apostles of forgiveness."

As one columnist wrote, "The shelf wisely saw that if the trials of the collaborators were drawn up, more officials could be infected into the movement's ranks."

Another reason for the big amnesty is that enough evidence could not be gathered to bring the collaborators to book. Witnesses were afraid to serve as government witnesses because of the fear of intimidation by opposition right-wing political parties.

As a government wedded to democratic practices, the government appears to have decided that the best course was to release the suspects rather than rely on insufficient evidence.

But the big question mark is: Will the former pro-Pakistani collaborators become law-abiding citizens? Or this there is some doubt.

Some of them may team up with Maulana Bashani, the 85-year-old Moslem religious and political leader and principal adversary of Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman.

Though a left-winger, Bashani has been vigorously campaigning for the "social rehabilitation" of all those involved with the atrocities of the Pakistani military regime.

Some observers have expressed the fear that Bashani's volunteer-force may get additional recruits from the ranks of the collaborators.

A Bangladesh source said: "We have taken all this into consideration and are quite confident of tackling any situation that might arise. Trouble-makers will find themselves back in jail."

Skipper Protests

BUNSWICK, Ga. (AP) — The drawbridge between this coastal Georgia community and Jekyll Island didn't close for 1¼ hours, tying up about 25 cars on each side. Finally, shrimp boat skipper Kenneth Gene Andrews, who had halted his vessel under the bridge in protest because it hadn't been raised quickly enough to suit him, moved on and was charged with public drunkenness.

Payment Overdue

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Man's conscience works in mysterious ways, Chief Charles season, S. H. Kress Co. has discovered. The store received a letter with a Roxbury, Idaho, postmark and the signature of "A Former Shoplifter." It contained payment for an article stolen in the 1930s.

Your Horoscope

Friday, Jan. 19

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-June 19) Is matters relating to the present practical aspects of your life things are moving nicely. Don't jump too far ahead. Future plans are fuzzy.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) This will be an active day for you in the social sense. Enjoy yourself. Be wary of one who would rave you into some type of intrigue.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You will be far more enterprising today regarding domestic duties, than others of your family. Only who drags his feet will perturb you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Someone is going to give you a lot of promises about how she will help you. When it comes time to perform, her effort will be negligible.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Concentrate on situations that advance your basic security and well-being. It looks like you may see one off. This would be a mistake.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have a tendency today to talk a little too much to the wrong people about plans for the future. Button up.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Show your appreciation to one who has been helpful recently. Ingratitude or disobligingness will turn him off.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A very convincing companion is going to do an impressive sales job today. Beware—you're likely to buy the stink instead of the steak.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're on the right track—something important is your attainment. Just don't kid yourself into thinking the goal is a fait accompli.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have some impressions that someone you're fond of does not think as highly of you. Relax, the liking is mutual.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be tempted to buy one of the bosten pash today to explore a new emotional involvement. If you do, complications will result.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't kid yourself that conversation and ideas you and another are considering represent the finished product. Many more steps are needed.

To Your Good Health

Severe Sunburn Harm Permanent

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son, 28, had a bad sunburn five years ago. It left him with a round mark the size of a quarter, and just as round, on his shoulder near the middle of his back.

This mark turns very white in winter, and in summer when he gets sun on it he doesn't tan and gets sore. Have you any idea what this could be?—Mrs. D-L.

I could guess, having seen cases quite similar. Let's start with what happens when you get a tan. The sun's rays incite cells in the skin to produce brown pigment (the tan) which is protective.

But with a severe burn, these tan-producing cells can be destroyed. It is quite possible your son had a blister at that spot where the skin stays white in winter.

Such a damaged area no longer has the ability to produce brown pigment, accounting for the whiteness in winter. But without this protective mechanism, the spot can burn in summer, turning red and getting pretty sore but not tanning.

The simplest solution, and perhaps the only one, is to keep that spot covered when exposed to the sun in summer. One of the sun blocks containing a "sun screen" ingredient, to filter out most of the burning rays may be adequate. Otherwise a small dressing to cover the spot could be used. Fastened with a cloth-colored adhesive patch, it would be fairly inconspicuous.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My eye doctor told me when I bought contact lenses that I would never be able to take birth control pills. Has this been medically documented?—A.F.

Did he say "would not" or "could not?" Some women can, some can't. Occasionally the pill is accompanied by accumulation of fluid in the tissues. When this occurs in the eyes, the use of contact lenses becomes difficult.

Note to Mrs. L.U.: I am not familiar with any ill effects on the liver or blood from use of a copper I.U.D.

Note to Mrs. F.C.E.: Boils are caused by common bacteria on the skin. When they start to multiply in a pore or around a hair root or even in a trivial break in the skin, then you have a boil—or a crop of boils.

Win at Bridge

High-level double intoxicating

North stuck in a negative double.

Not that we should really blame negative doubles for his action. North had barely enough for a negative double at the one level. His three-level double had to be close to suicidal.

On the other hand if he didn't have that toy to play with he would have passed. West would have played three spades and been down one after losing two clubs, two diamonds and a spade.

But it was, South bid four hearts in response to this partner's request. When it got around to East, he doubled. West removed his ace of spades and continued with the queen which East ruffed. After this East-East still made two trumps tricks and a club for a nice 800-point profit.

Some negative-double players carry it forward to cover all overcalls. Others go through a fairly sensible two or three-spade limit.

Of course, those who say they double any bid negatively, point out that the higher the bid the more likely that partner will leave it in. These high-level negative doubles certainly liven up the game, although it is doubtful which side benefits from them.

North and South were playing negative doubles through three spades so when West made his pre-emptive three spade overcall of South's opening club bid North could be used. Fastened with a cloth-colored adhesive patch, it would be fairly inconspicuous.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My eye doctor told me when I bought contact lenses that I would never be able to take birth control pills. Has this been medically documented?—A.F.

Did he say "would not" or "could not?" Some women can, some can't. Occasionally the pill is accompanied by accumulation of fluid in the tissues. When this occurs in the eyes, the use of contact lenses becomes difficult.

Note to Mrs. L.U.: I am not familiar with any ill effects on the liver or blood from use of a copper I.U.D.

Note to Mrs. F.C.E.: Boils are caused by common bacteria on the skin. When they start to multiply in a pore or around a hair root or even in a trivial break in the skin, then you have a boil—or a crop of boils.

What do you do now?

A — Just bid six spades. Your partner should still bid seven if he holds the queen of spades in addition to his suit and kings.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding four spades your partner jumps in five diamonds to show three spades. What do you do next?

Bob Dylan Packs Maple Leaf Gardens

TORONTO (CP) — The six-week tour and the first appearance here in eight years.

Backed by The Band, the highly-respected group that began in Toronto, Dylan began with Rainy Day Blues, and the crowd was on its feet again drowning out the first few lines.

The song was one of Dylan's earliest rock music hits during the mid-1960s, but the 32-year-old singer did not dwell on the past. During the 2½-hour concert, he performed seven new songs.

He has written 22 new songs for the tour which covers 31 cities, and plans to try groups of them out on different occasions. After his appearances in Toronto, Dylan plans one concert in Montreal Friday, his only other Canadian stop.

The highlight of the performance came when he opened the second set alone on stage, accompanying himself on acoustic guitar and harmonica, instruments which quickly became his trademarks when he first emerged on the Greenwich Village folk music scene in 1961.

He began to sing It's Alright Ma, another Dylan classic, and it was too much for one fan who jumped out of his seat, rushed to the front of the stadium and bowed at Dylan's feet. He was quickly escorted away by burly guards posted along the foot of the stage.

Security at the concert was tight although many fans, unable to obtain the mail order tickets which sold out within a day six weeks ago, stayed home. Police reported only a handful of gatecrashers, most of whom caught only a glimpse of Dylan before they were evicted.

Inside the stadium, the concert closed spectacularly as Dylan sang Like a Rolling Stone. During the finale, the houselights were switched on as the entire crowd rose, clapping to the beat of this classic Dylan rock song.

At the close, Dylan spoke his only words of the concert: "Thank you and goodnight."

Promoter Bill Graham of Los Angeles, estimates the tour, which closes there Feb. 4, will gross between 24 million and $5 million. More than six million requests were received for the 68,000 seats available on the tour.

Rock music critics predict this will be Dylan's final series of concert appearances as he plans to enter semi-retirement and continue to perform only on record.

U.S. Said Monitoring Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC, in an hour-long television program Wednesday night, says that a branch of the National Research Council (NRC) in Ottawa is really an intelligence agency working closely with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) of the United States.

The program said NRC's communications branch is Canada's secret intercepting and bugging agency both inside and outside Canada and works directly with the National Security Agency (NSA), its kindred body in the United States.

But it also has contacts with the CIA, whose station chief, Cleveland Cram, works out of the U.S. embassy, the program said.

The program, The Fifth Estate, quotes Victor Marchetti, a former assistant to the deputy director of the CIA, as saying that Canadian intelligence officers have free access to the CIA where an office was put aside for them.

The program also quotes Wilson Peck, a former intelligence officer for NSA, who said an agreement was made among Great Britain, Australia, Canada and the United States to divide the world in areas in which each country's intelligence agency would monitor all communications.

The Canadian government has responsibility for the polar regions and for "a certain part of Europe," Mr. Peck said.

He added, however, that much more information flows into the United States than from it and that the U.S. also monitors all communications in Canada and in its embassies abroad.

John Marks, former staff assistant to the U.S. state department director of intelligence, said on the program much of the equipment on the Distant Early Warning line in the Canadian north is not for detecting air attacks but for U.S. monitoring of communications in the northern parts of the Soviet Union.

Mr. Peck said:

"Information (from the three other countries in the agreement) all comes to the United States but the United States does not totally reciprocate in passing all information on to the other powers.

"At the same time, for security reasons . . . the United States does monitor the communications of the other parties of this treaty. Whether - or not these other powers are aware of the scope of the United States monitoring their own communications, I don't know."

William Kelly, former deputy commissioner of the RCMP and former director of security and intelligence, said on the program he does not know if Canadian authorities know they are being monitored.

The Big Draw

More than 50,000 entries were submitted in the draw for a London show tour sponsored by The Intelligencer and participating stores. Carol Walsh left, shows the pile of entries and Fred Barton, Intelligencer advertising manager assists radio station manager Frank Murray, right, who made the draw.

The Lucky Winners

Winner of the tour, that includes return air fare in London for two, two weeks in the city, four theatre tickets per person and $100 spending money, was Mrs. G. J. Gerris of Belleville.

She deposited the winning entry at Top Drug Mart. With her as she accepts the congratulations of Intelligencer general manager R. Myles Morton (right) is her husband, an OSD teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerris, who cannot leave on the tour March 1 because they are expecting a baby within two weeks of that date, will be able to sell their tickets for the tour package.

Showbiz Shorts

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Actor Richard Harris, 43, announced Wednesday plans to marry Anne Turkel, the young actress he met while they were co-starring in his latest film, 99-44-100-Per-Cent Dead.

It is the second marriage for the Irish-born actor whose former wife, Elizabeth Rees-Williams, is married to actor Rex Harrison.

The two will be married at a small private ceremony attended by relatives and friends in New York city in April and will honeymoon in the Bahamas where Harris has a house.

PARIS (Reuter) — Soviet cellist Mstislav Rostropovich played with two other world-famous musicians, pianist Wilhelm Kempff and violinist Ruggiero Ricci, in a concert Wednesday night to mark the 25th anniversary of the International Music Council.

A spokesman for the Salle Pleyel, where the concert was held, said: "We sold every one of the 2,000 seats and had to turn 200 other people away."

At the concert, arranged by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), they played Beethoven's Archduke Trio.

Rostropovich, who had not played in the West since giving a concert in Paris in March, 1971, played Bach's Prelude Suite at a recital in UNESCO headquarters here Tuesday.

The cellist, who is thought to have had difficulty in arranging foreign concerts because of his friendship with Nobel Literature Prize winner Andrei Solzhenitsyn, is due to fly to London for a concert appearance there.

He visited painter Marc Chagall in southern France Monday and accompanied him to the museum in Nice dedicated to Chagall's works.

More Snow or Rain Forecast

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario was warned to brace itself for another snowfall and possibly freezing rain today in the wake of a major storm Wednesday that whipped the province with near-blizzard conditions.

The forecaster of the Toronto International Airport weather office said the province can expect two, to four inches of fresh snow, plus freezing rain or ice pellets, to top Wednesday's six inches.

"This one could be a bit nastier because of the ice pellets," he warned.

Early today, the ministry of transportation and communications reported light snow already falling in the Niagara peninsula and central Lake Ontario regions, with most highways slippery.

Wednesday's snowfall of 4.7 inches in downtown Toronto was heavier than in many other parts of the province because of the influence of Lake Ontario. Windsor had 4½ inches, Peterborough five, and Ottawa and Montreal about eight inches.

Winds of 15 miles per hour whipped up drifts and created a wind-chill factor of below-zero temperatures in most of the province overnight.

A nine-year-old Toronto boy playing in a school yard tripped in front of a huge snowblowing machine and died when he was drawn head-first into the rotors.

Snow removal continued in Metropolitan Toronto with no problems reported from truckers, who boycotted snow haulage after a storm two weeks ago. A full force of about 300 trucks began hauling away Wednesday's snow in late evening.

Ford Sales Up

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford of Canada dealers sold a record 25,361 new cars and trucks in November, three per cent higher than the previous record for November. It was the 11th consecutive month of record sales for the company in Canada.

CP News Roundup

Snowblower Kills Boy At School

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas Urasla, 8, of Toronto was killed Wednesday when he slipped and fell head-first in front of a snowblower.

A Toronto parks department front loader, equipped with the snowblower, had just finished clearing an outdoor ice rink in a schoolyard.

The operator, Paul Gustar, was backing up to make a path toward the school. At the same time he was clearing the blower.

The youngster, who had just been let out of school, was running beside the blower when he slipped on ice and was drawn in by the rotors.

Mr. Gustar stopped the machine and ran into the school for help. About 30 minutes later, police and firemen took the snowblower apart to remove the body.

Wholesale Prices Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Wholesale prices rose one per cent in November and industry selling prices increased almost that much, Statistics Canada said Wednesday.

Wholesale prices over the previous year were up a total of 26.5 per cent and industry selling prices 15.7 per cent, it said.

Tops Rejected

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — York regional police rejected Tuesday a contract offer that would have made it the highest-paid police force in Ontario.

The police association for the region just north of Toronto, rejected an Ontario Police Commission offer that would have paid a first-class constable $13,500 a year.

Big Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office department incurred a deficit of $90.9 million in the 1972-73 fiscal year, Postmaster-General Andras Ouellet said Wednesday.

This was 13.9 million, or 18.1 per cent, more than the previous year and was mainly the result of investment in the coding and mechanization program.

Get Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Separate school teachers in Ottawa have reached tentative agreement on a new 16-month contract with their school board, the Ontario English Catholic Teachers Association (OECTA) announced here Wednesday.

The agreement, reached Tuesday night, covers 1,146 teachers and ends almost 10 months of negotiations.

Nixon 61

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (Reuter) — A smiling and relaxed President Nixon, predicting a good year ahead, received a 61st birthday cake from his staff in San Clemente Wednesday and later drove to this desert resort with his family for a private celebration.

Seek Dismissal

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Defence lawyers filed Wednesday a 100-page motion for dismissal of indictments against two leaders of the Wounded Knee occupation.

The motion was entered before United States District Judge Fred Nichol, who said he will set a date later to hear the arguments on it.

Defence lawyer Mark Lane offered the motion, which questions whether Dennis Banks and Russell Means can get a fair trial.

Block Parks

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill officially creating eight new national parks underwent deep surgery at the hands of Progressive Conservative and New Democratic MPs in the Commons northern affairs committee Wednesday. The probable result is that the bill will die on the Commons order paper when Parliament prorogues this month.

While the outnumbered Liberal committee members sat helplessly by, opposition MPs approved an amendment calling on the government to refer each of the new park sites to a parliamentary committee so witnesses could be called.

The light parliamentary schedule and the low priority the government gives to the parks bill is expected to mean the bill will not get through this session.

More Oil Talks Planned

February Parley First of Three

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has proposed unprecedented diplomatic co-operation to solve an unprecedented global energy problem and says the world's prosperity and stability is at stake.

President Nixon, in a letter to oil-producing countries released Thursday, said the world stands at a crossroads between co-operation and "increasing political and economic conflict."

In another letter, inviting the industrial, consuming countries to a meeting Feb. 11 in Washington, Nixon said, this would be "a first and essential step toward the establishment of new arrangements for international energy and related economic matters."

Nixon said a meeting between consumers and producers would be held within 90 days after the Feb. 11 meeting.

Elaborating on the plans at a news conference, State Secretary Henry Kissinger said still another meeting would be planned in between, bringing together both the industrialized and the developing oil-consuming countries.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Export-Import Bank announced it has authorized loans and loan guarantees of up to $100 million for construction of a 200-mile crude-oil pipeline in Egypt.

The bank said the pipeline will save costs of shipping oil around Africa.

The planned series of international conferences, Kissinger said, is unprecedented in diplomacy, but so is the worldwide energy problem.

Kissinger left early today for the Middle East for talks on the Egypt-Israeli ceasefire.

He did not directly link the recent increases in oil prices with his Middle East trip, but he repeated the U.S. belief that the Arab oil embargo was increasingly inappropriate in view of the U.S. role in trying to effect a just and stable settlement in the Middle East.

Kissinger said the Arab oil nations' cutoff of oil shipments to the United States and the Netherlands, to bring indirect pressure on Israel, was not the basic cause of the world's energy problem.

That was caused by two factors: excessive energy demand and drastic price increases recently imposed by foreign producers.

The price increases, he said, would hit especially hard a underdeveloped nations using oil as they try to build up their economies.

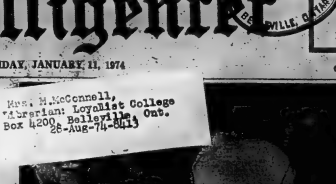
Kissinger said the United States could go it alone, developing its own energy resources and making separate deals with oil-producing nations, but this would damage the entire world economy.

Invited to the Feb. 11 meeting in Washington were the foreign ministers of Canada, Japan, West Germany, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway and Britain. Together with the United States they account for 75 to 80 per cent of the world's petroleum consumption, Kissinger said.

Meanwhile, in Seattle, Wash., Senator Henry Jackson said large international oil companies should be brought under U.S. federal regulation and chartering.

Jackson said he would introduce legislation to put federal representatives of the board of directors of each major oil company, to end the oil depletion tax allowance for American oil companies overseas and to establish his proposal for federal chartering of oil companies.

In other energy developments:



—The U.S. federal energy office reported that the country had an oil shortage of some 1.5 million barrels a day during the week ending Dec. 28, but made up for it by reducing demand.

—Government analyst William Johnson said the petroleum shortage may be less than expected and that evidence suggests we will be able to avoid gasoline rationing. He told travel industry representatives it may be necessary to cut gasoline use only half as much as the 30 per cent reduction originally feared.

—Energy chief William Simon said government agencies are beginning to audit the price, profit and supply records of every petroleum refiner in the United States, seeking to verify their reports of petroleum inventories and the justification of their price increases under anti-inflation rules.

—Within hours, Texaco, the third largest U.S. oil company, broke industry custom and published statistics on its petroleum inventories, showing increases in stocks of refined products, but a decrease of crude oil stocks compared with one year earlier.

75,000 Lung Victims

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The head of the American Cancer Society says 40,000 men and 13,000 women will die in the United States this year from lung cancer.

Mistake!

TAYLOR, Mich (AP) — The 227 City Hall employees in this Detroit suburb will not be getting free coffee any more. City Clerk John Cook explained about losing his secretary for lack of funds. Sabo told the council he did not see the logic in firing a secretary to save money while continuing to spend $6,500 a year on coffee, tea, sugar and cream. The council agreed. They cut off the coffee funds.

Marines Wear Wigs

CHICAGO (Reuter) — It was enough to make a sergeant-major weep. Twenty-three reservists in the United States Marines were granted a temporary restraining order by a court here Thursday, preventing their commander from punishing them — by marking them absent — for attending drills wearing wigs. The reservists want, to wear short hair wigs when on parade to cover their long hair. Marine corps regulations require hair to be neat and "military" in appearance.

Land Bank Planned

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Ontario will allow municipalities to assemble land for housing purposes, Housing Minister Robert Welch said today. Mr. Welch announced the land-banking program at a meeting of the provincial-municipal liaison committee here. "This plan would have to be compatible with the province's overall housing policies and production goals," Mr. Welch said.

INCO Wins

OTTAWA (CP) — The International Nickel Co. of Canada won a major victory in Federal Court Thursday when the court ruled money the company paid to Manitoba for royalties can be taken into account in computing its depletion allowances for income tax purposes.

RMC Arms Recovered In Dakota

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — A collection of antique weapons stolen from the Royal Military College of Canada museum in Kingston, Ont., and recovered this week by a United States border patrol at Drayton, N.D., has been valued at more than $100,000.

Authorities said the 34 weapons, stolen in late 1971, date from the mid-1800s.

The collection was recovered by border patrol agent Patrick Lazer in a car near a Drayton cafe while he was taking an illegal alien into custody on immigration charges Wednesday.

Bird appeared before U.S. magistrate David Kessler Thursday on charges of re-entering the U.S. illegally on or about Jan. 3. He was unable to post bond and was remanded to jail here to await higher court action.

The FBI has been called in to confer with local authorities on possible further federal violations.

Also recovered with the weapons were $21,000 in Canada Savings Bond coupons. Canadian officials said were stolen Aug. 12.

Chief Patrol Agent Marvin Irvine said Thursday the armor at the Kingston museum has identified some of the weapons recovered as part of a famous collection by James Douglas.

J. W. Spurr, chairman of the college, told Irvine that some of the weapons belonged to Gen. Porfirio Diaz, president of Mexico from 1877 to 1911.

Douglas, a vice-president of the Santa Fe Railroad and a well-known Canadian mining engineer, industrialist and philanthropist, assembled the collection after Diaz died in 1918.

U.S. Missile Targets Are Changed

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a major strategy change, the targets of some U.S. long-range missiles have been shifted from Soviet cities to missile bases, command centres and other military sites.

Kissinger Returns To Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government's Middle East shuttle returned to service Friday. State Secretary Henry Kissinger left on a trip to Egypt, then to Israel and back to Egypt.

On the way he stopped at Madrid for a two hours of military talks with Spanish leaders. He was welcomed at the airport there this morning by Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina.

The purpose of the trip is to arrange a method to put some distance between Israeli and Egyptian troops near the Suez canal as the prelude to serious political negotiations on a Middle East peace.

What we expect to do on this trip, is to see whether we can transform the general ideas that have up to now been advanced into a concrete proposal," Kissinger told a Washington news conference Thursday.

He again denied that he expects in return to Washington with an agreement. But he was optimistic that the likely outcome would be improved negotiations at Geneva.

The next scheduled destination after Spain was the southern Egyptian city of Aswan where President Anwar Sadat is recuperating from bronchitis.

After sounding out Sadat on Egypt's concepts for military disengagement, Kissinger will go to Jerusalem Saturday.

He and Prime Minister Golda Meir will go over the Egyptian reaction and then the American secretary returns to Egypt.

Even though Kissinger said he did not expect his travels to produce an Egyptian-Israeli agreement, he said "if the Israeli cabinet decides after my first visit to make a proposal, we will be prepared to take it to Egypt."

Railwaymen in Britain Terminate Slowdown

LONDON (CP) — Britain's trains ran almost normally today as engineers called off a work-by-the-book slowdown.

But they continued a ban on overtime and Sunday work, and threatened a one-day strike Tuesday unless the National Railways Board resumes wage negotiations.

There was also slender hope of progress toward ending the coal miners' slowdown that forced Prime Minister Heath to put 16 million of Britain's 23 million workers on a three-day work week Jan. 1. Reversing a previous rejection, Heath and his top economic ministers met with union leaders to discuss a proposal by the Trades Union Congress (TUC) to get the miners back to full production.

The railwaymen said they were suspending their slowdown to get the rail board back to the negotiating table. The board, which previously had said it would not negotiate under duress, said it would consider the union move today.

The rail board said most trains were back on schedule by 3 a.m. after weeks of curtailed service and a near-standstill in the London area Thursday when the board took disciplinary action against some engineers and most others walked off the job.

The walkout halted all but 38 of the 320 commuter trains normally running in the London metropolitan area. Commuters took to their cars and traffic was jammed for 50 miles out of the city.

The union congress proposal to end the coal miners' ban on overtime calls for the government to meet the miners' demand for wage increases above the ceilings set by Heath's anti-inflation program. In return, the TUC would guarantee that other unions would not use this as a lever in their own wage negotiations.

The TUC proposal was rejected Wednesday by both Heath and Anthony Barber, Chancellor of the Exchequer, but Heath called in the union chiefs on short notice Thursday for clarification of their offer.

"Our proposal was received with interest," said Sir Sidney Greene of the TUC after the two-hour session with Heath and his aides.

But political sources said Heath was doubtful that the TUC could hold the other unions in line. Several big unions, including the shipbuilders' and the engineering workers, have already said they would not feel bound by such a deal.

The miners decided formally Thursday to press on with their overtime ban, now in its third month.

A warning of further power restrictions came from Lord Carrington, the former defence minister appointed as energy chief Wednesday. He said the 15-per-cent savings demanded by the government were not being achieved, and described Britain's industrial and energy situation as "grim and forbidding."

An energy department spokesman disclosed that coal production last week was down to 800,000 tons compared with normal weekly output of 2.71 million.

470 to Keep Homes

Pickering Hamlets Pleased at Changes

TORONTO (CP) — Residents of four areas northeast of here expressed pleasure Thursday at an announcement that the provincial government will not expropriate their homes for a planned community in North Pickering Township.

Robert Welch, Ontario minister responsible for housing, said at a news conference the province is scaling down by 6,000 acres a 25,000-acre site chosen for a planned community.

He said the hamlets of Locust Hill, Whitevale, Cherrywood and a residential area known as Rufus's subdivision will not be expropriated as originally planned.

He said the areas will be kept as a buffer zone along the region's western and southern limits.

The change means that about 1,700 of the area's 1,200 persons can keep their homes—about 470 homes," Mr. Welch said.

Gordon Wilson, president of the Whitevale residents' association, said residents welcomed the change and provincial assurances that they will have a say in planning the townsite.

However, he said, expropriation of properties outside the hamlets "will very likely split the communities."

Mr. Welch said owners already expropriated in the hamlets will have until next Jan. 1 to buy back their property.

He left it open to residents near a hamlet to negotiate with the government for inclusion within the hamlet's borders, thus saving the land from expropriation.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon earlier criticized the government's plan because the urban area may become "a bedroom community without providing the transportation corridors to Metro Toronto."

Drug Suspect Kills Four Witnesses

DOVER, Del. (AP) — A man who police say murdered four persons in a shooting spree across the state Thursday was systematically killing witnesses against him in a drug case, a state official said.

Ronald Hoffecker, 30, is face a probation hearing today in a drug-related case which could have ended in a prison sentence, also died in the spree of violence.

Police said they believed he had shot himself in the head after his car spun out of control at the end of a high-speed police chase.

At the end of that chase, one woman in his car was dead and another wounded. Earlier, three persons had been shot and killed, another wounded and a woman taken hostage in violent incidents at three homes in Dover and Camden.

The spree of killings was a "systematic killing of witnesses" by Hoffecker, said Deputy Attorney-General Joseph Hurley. Hurley said his office had learned that Hoffecker bought a box of ammunition Thursday afternoon.

Earlier, state police spokesman Angelo Citro had said of Hoffecker: "He knew everyone he shot." Police had theorized the killings were drug-related.

Police said Hoffecker was convicted in 1971 of a drug-sale charge. He had been free on bail since being charged with possession of drugs and firearms and threatening a police officer in late November.

The shooting spree began Thursday afternoon when a man and a woman were shot and killed and another man was injured at one Dover home.

Mrs. Richard Katcher, 25, was taken hostage from a second Dover home, they said. Then, police said, a man was shot and killed at a home in Camden.

Police said Mrs. Katcher told them Hoffecker had shot her and Barbara Johnson, 19. The Johnson woman was found dead in the car.

Mrs. Katcher, was listed in fair condition.

A policeman who participated in the high-speed chase near Middletown were among the wounded, police said. The policeman was treated and released.

Six Resign UCS Board

United Community Services directors accepted the resignation of six of their number Thursday, thereby decreasing the size of the board to 11 members, 10 short of the full slate.

Ted Kelly, nomination committee chairman and the man who presented the board with the letters of resignation, said most of the six indicated the pressures of work forced their resignations.

They resigned entirely on their own perspective, some feeling that their term of office was ended," he said this morning.

Resigning from the board are Martin Hazenfield, personnel committee chairman, Elinor Sisson, the 1973 United Way campaign chairman, Dennis Derrington, promotion chairman, and directors Hugh Pepper, Ralph Blackford, and Frank Seemungal.

In looking for replacements, Mr. Kelly indicated his search will be for persons wanting to take an active part in board work.

Although the full board consists of 21 members, only part were active in UCS affairs during 1973. On several occasions, board business could not be conducted due to the lack of a quorum.

During the year, resignations whittled the board number down to 17.

This year, Mr. Kelly is looking to the formation of an active board. He possesses a list of names of people who have indicated an interest in community participation.

Prospective directors will be interviewed by the nomination committee heads and their names will subsequently be submitted for full board ratification.

If accepts a ratification meeting to take place before the UCS holds its annual meeting February 13.

Parks Board Inaugural Re-elects Paul Russell

Seven-year veteran of the Belleville Parks Board of Management, Alderman Paul Russell was re-elected chairman of the board at its 1974 inaugural meeting held Thursday.

Alderman Russell has been board chairman for the past four years. Robert Phillips was reelected vice-president.

This year membership on the Board of Park Management and on the Recreation-Arena Committee is the same and the two bodies will continue the practice of holding meetings on the same date. For the past several years, board membership on the two bodies has been the same but different lay members let on the two boards and meetings on separate dates have been the vogue.

This year, however, business of both bodies will be carried out at the same meeting although there will still be separate agendas.

Demands Increase On Local Council

PICTON — Town council has voted against allowing public sidewalks although some remain unshoveled.

Picton police chief George Pitt told council he has assigned an officer to go door-to-door requesting residents to shovel their walks. He said, however, that he does not have a signed copy of the existing bylaw and did not feel it would be adequate in court.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis explained that the bylaw was passed in June, 1910 and later lumped with other bylaws in 1933. There is, in fact, no signed copy of the original.

Councillor Jack Evans suggested that the town's public works department should plow the walks since it can be an expensive task for individual residents.

Deputy-reeve Ross Crookshank suggested Councillor Lon. He said if he is willing to shovel his walk, this task should not be raised to help pay for equipment to plow other residents' walks.

Councillor Evans moved that the public works department investigate the cost of new equipment but the motion was lost in a 4-4 vote broken when committee of the whole chairman John Kinney voted against the proposal.

H.J.

H. J.

The initials said it simply, sufficiently.

The man and his accomplishments could not be summed up.

So people, mostly referred to H. J. — and the spontaneous identity was as easily complete as it could be.

It meant the ebullient booster — of his adopted Picton home town and the Quinte district when he was at home, of Canada when abroad; the tireless community benefactor the mayor with a national record for length of public service; the sturdy-schooled country boy who slogged up to tycoon.

It meant a driving force in commerce or community. H.J. pursued projects with the confidence characteristic of the self-made man he was — and wouldn't forget he was.

Norris Whitney, whose 20-year term as MPP, Prince Edward - Lennox, almost coincided with H.J.'s own public service span saw both men working closely for their area, says his friend "never spared himself."

"He'd be anywhere at all. His mind was just working all the time on projects. Some of them would be done didn't. But he was always trying.

"There's no question in my mind it shortened his life. He He was among the whole area profit from his efforts."

When H.J. suffered the fatal seizure in Picton Thursday he was on his way to a business meeting. It concerned Lake Ontario Cement Co. — the town's biggest industry, its location the harvest of much personal labor.

It was also business that first brought him to Picton — and the encounter may have set the pattern of reciprocity between man and community that distinguished the H.J. career.

He shipped his equipment across on the Glenora ferry.

"When I landed here I didn't even have hardly enough money for people to unload my equipment," he once recalled.

"They didn't even think about being paid for it. I just thought: Any people who are as fine as these — this is the kind of people I want to be with."

McFarland Construction of Picton developed as a major Canadian contractor, as founder as a man of success, status and wealth.

Born near Robin in Lennox and Addington County, he had to work up from a penniless start in 1921.

"I had no education," he told a public audience. "But God gave me common sense, which is build the loyal organization I have today."

The community reaped the benefits of that.

His wealth bought a home with a swimming pool. It was thrown open for a children's swimming program — used by more than 20,000 in seven years.

It brought other property — offered for a hospital, with an alternative $15,000 if the site was unsuitable.

His contacts brought international glamour — bright if brief — to Picton. In 1961 his town was host for the Harmsworth world speedboat races.

In 1959 his Belleville McFarlands travelled to Prague — and beat Russia to bring home the world hockey championship.

These were the spectacular occasions. But there was always the H.J. international awareness in his makeup that characterized small projects of goodwill — and the booster-ism he sincerely assumed.

Gifts and endorsement went out from his municipal to foreign officials which, he held, would "make them remember Canada."

He was shown the glittering international accumulation of century-old gifts presented the august office-holder. H.J.'s quick eye paged his own country was not represented.

Back home he took it on himself to dispatch a memento to London. It was presented from the mayor of Picton — and the Dominion of Canada.

He was a shareholder first and last. But, in between, there were other projects. Like the county buildings in Belleville. And as a community booster, he was persistently influential promoter of the district's most dramatic public works scheme — the Trent Seaway linking his town to Highway 401.

For two decades he could speak in vain — until 1970 — when he suddenly refused to run. But he was elected a term — then returned to office.

Inevitably, with its achievement almost absolute, gratitude and praise came regularly from individuals and groups.

Tributes began mounting Thursday with the news from Toronto. They came from the powerful, the privileged — and just, the people.

Said one Prince - Edward farmer, long an H.J. acquaintance: "There was a great many things could be said - but you just don't believe it now. He wasn't what you'd call the current type of personality. I don't expect to see anyone like him again..."

McFarland Tributes, Reflections

A Man and His Community

The recognitions have been stimulated to new proportions by his sudden death Wednesday.

They are the reflections and recollections of a man, able to assess through varied contact, the contributions of a highly - original personality, inseparable from his community.

The include:

George Beer, MP Prince Edward-Hastings: "He made a formidable impression with his extremely full and useful life. He'll be very much missed by a host of people — not only in Picton and Prince Edward, but in all Canada. I worked with him and admired him and he will long be remembered by those privileged to know him."

Norris Whitney, 20 years MPP Prince Edward-Lennox & Frontenac: "For a man with a humble beginning to accomplish all that he did shows the calibre he was. Unlike so many who have success he was just as much concerned with serving the public and accomplishing goals for them as getting his own business going... He was a wonderful man and the whole district should profit. He gave unstintingly... He didn't spare himself."

...Keith MacDonald, Prince Edward warden, Hockey player on the world champion Belleville McFarlands: "He stands out in my opinion as one of the greatest men Prince Edward has had."

His contributions to the county were beyond evaluation, his death is a big loss to Pr. Edward, Quinte and Canada. He was a good will ambassador when we were in Europe."

...Philip Dodds, long-time county news editor: "He was among the last of the self-made men. ...he brought a flair to his job unrivalled by any other municipal official."

James Taylor, M.P.P. Prince Edward Lennox: "I thought Mr. McFarland was a man of tremendous capabilities. He was sensitive but sure and in my view and above all a very charitable man.

"I never met a more friendly open man as dedicated to public service as he was. He truly was a big man in every sense of the word. I grieve and I am sure the whole community grieves."

...Andrew Jarvis, town clerk-treasurer: "I was shocked to hear of his death. He had been a friend and associate since 1936. I was there when he the boat at the docks here.

inducted his equipment from and served as a councillor with him for 15 years and as clerk since 1958.

...Jesse Masse, police commission chairman, long-time friend: "It was a shock to the whole community to learn that this extremely success his businessman who had built his life around Picton, Prince Edward and the surrounding area was dead. He was a Canadian first and a great humanitarian, the number one citizen in our community and a great Canadian."

Who Becomes Mayor? Council Will Decide

PICTON—If town council does not appoint a new mayor from its ranks an election must be called to fill the vacancy left by the death of Harvey J. McFarland.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis Thursday said that under the Ontario Municipal Act, a mayor may be appointed from council. If there is more than one nominee an election will be required either at a special meeting or a regular session.

Since the appointment of a mayor from town council would leave a councillor's seat vacant, a new council meeting eligibility requirements would be appointed.

The alternative to selection of a mayor from the members of council is a by-law calling an election for the vacant office.

Mr. Jarvis said that council's duties would be split between the PUC and the province.

In this situation the province would pay $7,000 to a connecting highway link — a town should accept.

The province would contribute the same to underground services, the PUC would still pay another $19,000 for underground services but town hall's share would rise to $61,000. Because of this difference in costs the PUC's preferred town council spend its own money.

If the services did go underground, some 34 homes would be affected. A 2,000-foot stretch of Front Street would need electrical alterations.

To accommodate the new services, Bird would have to be spent on each home, upgrading its electrical service to 100 ampere capacity. The cost is calculated around $61,000 as Services Over Or Under?

Trenton Decision Back to Council

TRENTON — The Public Utilities Commission here has passed by the decision-making powers for servicing Front Street - - a decision they feel is better made by town council.

In a special meeting Thursday afternoon, the commission sent council a brief outlining comparative costs of overhead and underground services. There has been a recent push by town hall to bury as many overhead wires as possible, for neater municipal appearance. Underground services was already set practice for new subdivisions and as regard for major street renovations.

Despite the added improvement between overhead and underground services, there is a big difference in cost - - "making the whole matter a political decision," says Doug Manlow, PUC manager.

If services remain above ground and the poles and equipment moved it's slow road widening, the cost would be $34,000 - - of which the town would pay only half. The remainder would be split between the PUC and the province.

road widening, the cost would could pay this cost for the homeowner or it could be passed along - - another political decision says Mr. Manlow.

Mayor Bob Patrick, attending his first commission meeting as the town's top administrator delved into the decision thoroughly. It is expected he will have that question brought up at the next session of council.

PUC staff have already met with the town's administrative board, briefing them on the ramifications of the project.

PUC Is Phasing Out Water Heater Rentals

TRENTON—The town's public utilities commission is getting out of the water heater business, following a Thursday special meeting.

Commission manager Doug Manlow said the best thing to continue charging rent on water heaters for another seven years. By that time the majority of the partial cost of installation and purchase will be recouped.

The PUC will undertook providing water heaters when electricity was competing with other heating fuels. Renters would pay $58 and another $50 for installation are rented for $1.50 a month.

The commission will, phase out the service and after seven years, remove all take possession of the heaters.

Baffled By Energy Issue

TRENTON — "I'm damned if I know what the energy crisis has to do with electricity," said Trenton Public Utilities Commissioner Charles Hilton.

Referring to world wide oil shortages, he said hydro "doesn't come stored in a barrel."

Commissioner Hilton said he was at a loss for words when citizens approached him as a commissioner for an answer to the problem.

He asked PUC manager Doug Manlow to investigate what the current energy situation had to do with electrical power and report back to the commission.

"I'm at a loss why oil shortages should make for electrical shortages," he said, reflecting on the government appeals to the public to restrain electrical consumption.

H. GORDON GREEN

Farmer Personality Guest Speaker

MADOC— An outstanding farmer and educator from Ormstow, Que., will be guest speaker at the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture's annual banquet here this month.

H. Gordon Green, a professor at Montreal's Macdonald College, owner of a 333-acre farm with a herd of 80 registered Belted Galloways, will address the the banquet in the Rawaia Centre Jan. 22.

Mr. Green grew up on a 60-acre farm near Arthur, Ont. His first job was that of delivery boy in his father's dairy. By the time he was 16, he had charge of the route and was keeping the books as well.

New Judge

PICTON — Provincial Judge R. B. Baxter of Cobourg will serve Picton court sessions after Feb. 8, succeeding Judge J. L. Clendenning.

Judge Clendenning has presided in Belleville and Picton courts since April 1, 1971 when he replaced Judge T. Y. Wills.

Judge Wills will supply relief service to Judge Baxter at the Picton court.

Crime Watcher In Court

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Kenneth Rowley, 27, head of a crime watchers' committee in nearby Kingston, and two other Kingston men pleaded guilty in provincial court Thursday to theft of $75 worth of lumber.

Rowley, a barber, had previously called for the resignation of Kingston Police Chief Robert Heath because of what he called a high proportion of unsolved crime in the city.

Also admitting the theft of boards from a barn were Gary Parmeter, 33, a former professional wrestler, radio station CKLC in Kingston, and Roger Smith, 23.

Lawyer Robert Kennedy requested conditional discharges for the three men, saying they had been drinking prior to the Dec. 7 theft. Judge S. C. Jackson ordered presentence reports and remanded the trio to Jan. 28.

Mr. Kennedy said he requested the discharges because the theft was "very stupid ... a silly prank."

As a result of the charges, Parmeter "has found it necessary to cease his employment at CKLC" and Rowley has been "held up to ridicule and his business has been affected."

Disturbed

PICTON (Staff) — Town police are seeking a burglar who early Thursday forced two way into a Burns Ave. home.

The owners, Danny Greenfield, who lives alone, heard the intruder as he entered the house through a rear window, but the man escaped.

Harvey McFarland

The death of Mayor Harvey McFarland of Picton removes from the Quinte scene one of its most colorful and outstanding personalities.

Mr. McFarland's business career was in the tradition of those who begin in a small way and proceed through determination and commercial skill to the top.

As Mayor of Picton for two decades, believed to be a record in Canada, including a period after the office was held briefly by Mrs. Margaret Ackerman, and continuing until the time of his death, Mr. McFarland became known far and wide.

Among his friends was President Nixon and one of his dreams for the future was a causeway link between Prince Edward County, Amherst and Wolfe Islands, and New York state.

And who can forget Mr. McFarland's interest in hockey which led to the establishment of the Belleville McFarland's under his sponsorship and to the rink's exploits here and abroad. Belleville will always be in Mr. McFarland's debt for the part he and this team played in putting the community on the map. Indeed, many groups as well as individuals came to know Mr. McFarland's generosity.

While Picton was home and the centre of his career in municipal politics, Mr. McFarland was very much a part of the entire area. He will be missed.

Some Local History

Al Smith of Trenton is the spare-time researcher of airforce lore and especially the history of the first airbase at Deseronto to which we referred the other day.

And speaking of old publications, Mr. Smith has in his possession a number of 1918 issues of The Cadet Wing Review of the RAF Canada base at Long Branch, near Toronto. Photostat copies are being forwarded to the national publication of the RCAF Association, Wings at Home.

Newspaper and journalistic history has been in the air of late. There was The Kingston Whig-Standard celebrating its 125th anniversary as a daily and recently we saw copies of The Ontario Intelligencer dated August 1934 and January 1939, a North Hastings Review of Madoc dated November 1938, a Toronto Evening Telegram of March 1918, a Toronto Mail and Empire of August 1934, to name a few.

The papers were brought to this office by Larry Weese of Tweed who informs us they were found while clearing out an old building in Tweed. Among them was a July 1930 copy of a magazine called Comfort, published in Augusta, Maine.

Old newspapers have their own inherent fascination. That many survive the years is proven once again by this discovery in Hastings county.

The Challenge

An interesting quote on a contemporary theme: "We don't have an energy crisis. We just have a crisis of imagination."

This is Buckminster Fuller talking. Now 78, he is the man who designed the United States pavilion at Expo 67. And he has been in Toronto for an exhibition of his varied accomplishments at the Ontario Science Centre.

Mr. Fuller sees the so-called crisis as an "extraordinary moment for man." For one thing, he said in an interview, corporations and governments may now be forced to support research and production of wind and sun generated energy plants.

Already the signs are there. For example, the Americans are studying the geothermal heating plants from which Iceland gets virtually all of its power needs. Solar energy generation is also being talked about widely. In short, the whole realm of power or energy needs is being revolutionized — and ultimately, it is hoped, for man's betterment.

Trudeau on the Spot

'Red Tory' David Macdonald And Ottawa's 'Discomfort Index'

By RICHARD JACKSON
Analyst

OTTAWA — Young (only 29 when he first was elected back in 1962) David MacDonald of Prince Edward Island's riding of Egmont has come up with something that might catch on.

And he popped it across the Commons aisle the other day at Prime Minister Trudeau who, being more than somewhat discomforted himself, by his government's inability to cope with inflation, the energy crisis, bureaucratic waste and extravagance and public discontentment, caught on quick.

Like the Winter weather's "Wind Chill Index," it is seasonal, and as topical as the "Cost of Living Index."

Look at it from any political angle, and David MacDonald's "Discomfort Index" — every taxpayer and voter will have his own personal measure of it — would indicate right handy should there be a late Winter or early Spring election, as seems possible.

For the "Discomfort Index" is an inspired umbrella sort of phrase covering just about anything you'd care to name about the way things are going and for which you can blame Pierre Trudeau and Company.

When its first blast it on the Prime Minister for political sins, David MacDonald's "Discomfort Index" was pretty well confined to food and fuel costs and unemployment, all higher in the Maritimes and rural Canada generally than in the big Metro cities of the central provinces.

Topping his index was the seemingly incredible outcry that Beryl Plumptre's Prices Review Board had discovered that potatoes cost 30 cents more a bag on Prince Edward Island where they grow them than in Toronto.

What David MacDonald wanted to know, was the Prime Minister doing specifically about it in Atlantic Canada where the "Discomfort" routinely was worse than in most other parts of the country similarly afflicted by what he convinced is "incompetent government."

The Prime Minister was not able to come up with a quick, convincing off-the-top-of-his-head reply, and the way David MacDonald heard it, gave him the arrogant non-answer brushoff.

For while he bills himself as a Progressive Conservative, even his friends concede many of them nastabilly it, "he's a ball of a lot more Progressive than Conservative."

And he himself is the last to deny that.

In fact, he makes no secret — indeed, to some rather flaunts — his membership in that select little group among the Conservatives who call themselves "Red Tories."

So far, sometimes, that be and the little band of other "Red Tories" find themselves thinking and sometimes supporting the odd New Democratic position in the Commons.

On the Left or on the Right is of small consequence most of the time, and what matters is that he is out front and centre in the political scrimmage of the Daily Question Period.

He used to help and lit up at morning prep sessions that the Conservative caucus has in their lobby, and later, when it got rolling in the Commons, he tried co-ordinating it.

But co-ordination of the Conservatives, with the Far Right from Alberta, the Middle from Ontario, and the "Red Tories" from here and there, is impossible.

So now he is the Conservative leader man in the Question Period attacks and debates on the Department of Regional Economic Expansion, an extraordinarily important federal agency, especially in Atlantic and rural Canada.

"Red Tory" he not, he is a staunch "Stanfield Conservative," and has stood by his leader in the Official Opposition's attack on what it calls the "waste" of the administration's "monstrous two-Canada pricing policy for oil, the latest offering by the Liberals' sick-joke government."

There is some reason to believe that the inventive David MacDonald could have been the one who handed Robert Stanfield that "sick-joke government" phrase.

But David MacDonald does.

Consumer Interests Issue

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs
Thomson News Service

Despite the growth of consumer-protection activities by governments—some have been exploited embarrassingly—the consumer's interest still is clouded in his relations with professional bodies.

A common complaint among people who find themselves seriously dissatisfied with the quality of professional services they have received is that they don't feel that their complaint get a fair hearing.

Professional societies traditionally have been accorded the privilege of self-regulation by governments. The reasoning, apparently, is that politicians and civil servants cannot be expected to appreciate the unique nature of the relationship between a layman and the person who attends to his physical well-being, represents his interests in court, and so on.

It is also held that professionals, whose everyday activities must be guided by a sense of ethics, can be relied upon to regulate themselves ethically.

By and large, professional self-regulation works well. But that doesn't mean that there is no cause for concern on the public's behalf.

One such cause is the tendency of borderline groups to wrap themselves in the banner of professionalism, and then petition governments for the right to admit or reject others who would join their group, and to deal as they see fit with grievaments—see fit with complaints against their members.

Another is the way some complaints are handled. Is it really ethical for some professional bodies to put so many bureaucratic obstacles in the way of the layman seeking redress, to exclude him totally from their deliberations on his complaint, and to refuse to divulge the reasons for the disposition that they finally make of his complaint?

Public suspicion that professional bodies cling together a bit too much may have been strengthened by the British legal profession's reaction to a recent public criticism.

The chief of Scotland Yard suggested that some barristers might be profiting from the defence of known gangsters. Even granting that the principle that everyone is entitled to the best representation he can obtain in court, it appeared that the barristers were especially unified in their outraged defence of each other and condemnation of the man at the Yard.

Professional bodies, secure in their power of self-regulation, may feel that they constitute one of the absolutes in a changing world. But all can not forever stand above the shifting moods of the people.

If so, they are mistaken. What is loosely called the consumer movement is a pronounced and non-reversible trend in the direction of a more even balance between the rights of the individual—the customer, the layman—and the power of the organization, whether it be the commercial or professional.

Professional bodies would not be diminishing their dignity, but enhancing it if they changed with the times and demonstrated convincingly that they intended to deal fairly and openly with legitimate criticism of their members.

MP's Charges Against UIC

Editor,
The Intelligencer,
From your article in Monday's Intelligencer, "Ellis To Push for U.I.C. Probe" I note that the M.P. has been demanding an investigation since early November when he first laid charges of mismanagement against the U.I.C. in the Commons.

This, indeed, is true. Mr. Ellis also complained of delays in payments by the U.I.C., as well as payments to which claimants are not entitled to receive.

We should realize that the U.I.C. pays out benefits (a number of) mistakes that any operation of its size makes under normal conditions. Under abnormal conditions it might make more mistakes.

Abnormal conditions are, for example, when U.I.C. employees are pushed into extra service on requests from Mr. Ellis. Mr. Ellis frequently phones the U.I.C. offices to ask for priority treatment for people who contact him. This often results in "Special Pay" being given to those claimants (who submit Mr. Ellis for his assistance). Special Pay might mean the prospect of cheques manually (that is without computer) without much investigation as to entitlement.

I would, therefore, appreciate very much if Mr. Ellis will tell us:

(1) On behalf of how many claimants did he contact the U.I.C.?

(2) How many of these claimants received "Special Pay"?

(3) How many of these were (are) not entitled to Special Pay?

(4) Whether he thinks that it is ethical to ask for priority on behalf of those who contacted him?

'Sam' Missile Poses New Terrorist Threat

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The threat to organized society from terrorist attacks has escalated as a few dedicated to the time when terrorists will use not only hand weapons but miniature guided missiles.

All that was needed, the perverse application of technology to make them possible, now has come about. During the recent Yom Kippur war between Israel and the Arabs, a small Soviet missile classified as the SAM and used by one man was put into practice.

Carried on the back of a single soldier who needs only minimum instruction in its use, the SAM will zero in on a large tank, destroy it and kill the crew. The electronic package inside it is incomprehensible to the simple foot soldier carrying it. But used by better-trained and more powerful terrorists at a busy world airport, it can be aimed at an incoming airliner.

Anyone who thinks this escalation of sheer terror is unlikely, need only remember the murder of 31 innocent passengers last month in a waiting Pan American jet at Rome International Airport, blown to pieces by hand grenades casually tossed into the aircraft.

The recent British arrest in massive security carried out at Britain's Heathrow Airport is another indication of deadly serious efforts being made in several areas to prevent such tragedy than the terrorist bombings and killings to date.

The next stage beyond this now is also a reality, the manufacture and use of small tactical nuclear bombs which could destroy an entire major airport if ever used or major portions of a large city like London, New York or Montreal.

The technology for such a small nuclear tactical weapon has long been known, developed by serving and former scientists of the United States defence department for application to shells fired from conventional artillery or carried by conventional armored vehicles.

A small nuclear, tactical weapon of the kind we are talking about requires only five pounds of plutonium for its lethal purposes, an amount which could be stolen from the growing number of peaceful and warlike nuclear establishments around the world.

Our own largely undefended Chalk River establishment of the Atomic Energy Company Ltd., a federal Crown corporation, presumably has or could easily manufacture fissionable materials in these small amounts.

In searching out the new methods and determining when they might be used, we have the even tougher conundrum of who will use them, political extremists as in the recent past who lead hijacks, political blood on destruction for their own limited reasons?

One country in this dangerous world of one country alone has admitted it is financing political terror. This is Libya and its fanatically anti-Israel, Moslem, military president, Colonel Muammar al Quadafi. It is less than a year ago since he openly admitted Libya was partly financing the IRA paramilitaries and in a country which has close links with Arab terrorists who have already killed in international airports.

The present speculation is that oil-rich Libya also is behind the new kind of missile-equipped terrorist tactics we are told to expect.

Certainly the Libyans have more than enough money to finance definitely these activities not only on behalf of the Irish and Arab terrorism, but on a global level.

Development Corporation's Future

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Another shock is being taken at getting the Ontario Development Corporation off the ground.

For the first time the ODC is to have a full-time chairman.

It would be nice to feel that this will work. Do the job that is needed. But here's betting that it won't.

The ODC has always been a bit of a foundling.

It was a brash brain-child of Bob Macaulay when he was minister of economics and practically everything else.

The concept was as bold as Macaulay himself.

It was to be some gambling with government money on the unknown, the little people, the new industry in the province to whom others wouldn't lend money.

But it never got close to this concept.

And the people who have been running it have lacked either the vision or the courage to follow his thought.

They have operated it with the caution of bankers. As gamblers they have been 52 shoe bettors.

The government has acted as though it wished that somehow it could get the corporation just go away.

There have been normally a board of directors, but the real operating head has been a civil servant by the name of Bichen.

And Eichen has tended to administer with the elan of a public speaker who wonders if his zipper may be open.

In one direction, loans have largely gone to such adventurous risk as Harry Gairey Chocolate Co.

Both Premier Davis and Industry Minister Claude Bennett are hep enough to know that this has been bad and yet the ODC could be politically good. So they are attempting reform.

But for at least two reasons I feel it won't work.

One is that the appointed chairman, James H. Joyce, is a former banker (Crown Trust).

And the second is that to create a program such as this has to be handled directly by government itself.

It's handy to have a corporation to hide behind. The books can be blamed on it.

But any corporation is bound to be conservative. And the success of a venture program of this nature depends on blue-skiim.

There must be the understanding and the decisions to gamble that can be expected only of politicians.

CP News Roundup

Traffic Maze Proposed

TORONTO (CP) — A draft report by a committee of Toronto politicians and citizens recommends creation of a downtown traffic maze to limit private cars.

The suggestion is to redesign traffic routes to eliminate through roads and eventually reduce "the ability of drivers of private cars to enter the core area when they please."

The group of four city aldermen, a planner, and representatives of 21 downtown community and business groups also suggests public takeover of the taxi industry, making it part of the publicly-owned Toronto Transit Commission.

Free rides on the public transit system an hour before morning rush hour and an hour after the afternoon rush were proposed as a first step to providing free rides all the time.

Plan New Law

OTTAWA (CP) — Donald Christie, associate deputy minister of the federal justice department, said Thursday the government plans new legislation dealing with gambling chines.

The legislation, expected to be introduced in the Commons in February, will amend the Criminal Code to permit operation of the machines providing prizes are limited to free games.

PhDs Scarce

TORONTO (CP) — A study prepared for the Canadian Association of Graduate Schools says there might be a shortage of persons with PhD degrees in Canada in the next five years.

The report says recent complaints and forecasts of large scale unemployment among PhDs "are not substantiated by the actual experience of recent doctoral candidates."

Rates Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Rail freight rate increases for steel shipped from southern Ontario to the West Coast will be only three to five per cent in most cases, Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Thursday.

He told Frank Oberle (PC—Prince George-Peace River) in the Commons that there are "only a few cases in B.C." where the cost of having steel shipped in will rise by about 30 per cent.

Worst to Come

MONTREAL (CP) — It seems that the worst is yet to come in Canada in terms of inflation, W. Earle McLaughlin, president and chairman of the Royal Bank of Canada, told the bank's annual meeting Thursday.

First Cargo

COMEBY-CHANCE, Nfld. (CP) — The 31,000-ton tanker Frank D. Moores left here Thursday for Quebec City with the first cargo of heating fuel from a new refinery.

Close Dump

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Peel regional council, besieged by protests from environmentalists, agreed Thursday to close a 100-acre landfill garbage dump in the north end of the region.

Air Fares Will Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Air travellers must expect air fares to rise as rapidly as the cost-of-living in coming years, says R. A. (Sandy) Morrison, chairman of the Air Transport Association of Canada (ATAC).

Mr. Morrison said in an interview that technical advances will no longer increase productivity enough to keep costs down. He was in Ottawa for an ATAC regional meeting.

Fuel and labor costs are increasing rapidly and will probably prompt another round of domestic fare increases within two months, he said. The fare boost would likely be 10 per cent.

The 33-year-old executive vice-president of Transair Ltd., a Winnipeg-based regional airline, said that fuel prices for his airline have jumped 17 per cent in the last two months alone.

The general indications are that we can look for approximately a 100-per-cent increase in the price of petroleum as it finds its own level."

Dairy Industry Told To Seek More Markets

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian dairy industry should campaign to capture larger markets for all of its products, S. B. Williams, federal deputy minister of agriculture said Thursday.

He told the annual convention of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board the role producers have taken for the last eight years "leads to greater reliance on high-priced products—the main one being, of course, fluid milk."

He said in the last few years producers of milk byproducts have shifted to the fluid milk market, and if the trend continues, the point may be reached where the processing industry for byproducts is essentially an outlet for surplus fluid milk.

"If you follow that route you will limit your share of the total

Bribes for Contracts Wasted

TORONTO (CP) — An oral surgeon said Thursday he talked off an operation to remove a woman's teeth and replace them with dentures minutes before the operation was scheduled to take place when he found the dentures were made by a dentist.

Dr. Gerald Baker said he told the woman, who already had been given a preoperative sedative, that he would remove her teeth but refused to handle the dentist-made false teeth.

"I would be completely abrogating my responsibilities to the patient if I went ahead with the work in this regard," he said.

He said his task involved restoring that the dentures fit and added that he had no way of knowing to whom the woman would complain if something went wrong as a result of ill-fitting dentures.

"I really feel very bad for the patient but I just feel strongly about the issue. . . . I'm not prepared to accept what is not legal in the province."

James Lorsh, husband of the patient, said they came from Vancouver seven or eight months ago and did not know of the disagreement in Ontario between denturists and dentists.

Mrs. Lorsh said she entered Northwestern General Hospital Wednesday, received shots of penicillin and a preoperative narcotic and was waiting for the anesthetic when Dr. Baker informed her of his objection.

Meanwhile, police raided another denture clinic in Toronto Thursday and confiscated business evidence. It is the sixth denture clinic to be raided in eight days.

Surgeon Cancels Operation Because of Denturist's Role

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian builders who spend thousands of dollars a year trying to buy political influence to obtain government contracts get nothing for it, a Toronto industrial consultant says.

In a report prepared for clients of his construction industry relations service, Michael Dennis says payoffs from engineers, architects and contractors are wasted because politicians are influenced only by votes and civil servants are too afraid of losing their jobs to show favoritism.

He said in an interview Thursday the payoffs will continue because builders refuse to believe they can't buy influence.

He added personal friendships and such criteria as company size, location and publicity will have more influence than bribery alleged.

Mr. Dennis said he has never been involved directly in payments to government persons but he has referred his clients to specialists in that field when they wanted to make such payments.

He said his task involved restoring that the dentures fit and added that he had no way of knowing to whom the woman would complain if something went wrong as a result of ill-fitting dentures.

"I really feel very bad for the patient but I just feel strongly about the issue. . . . I'm not prepared to accept what is not legal in the province."

Parole Service to Get New Look This Spring

OTTAWA (CP) — Parole service in Canada is to get a new look this spring as the government seeks to provide a smoother conviction-through-release system for convicted persons.

About April 1 the national parole board will be expanded and regionalized and at the same time will lose its parole service—the administration of parole officers.

The 200 parole officers in the service either will become a new agency of the solicitor-general's department or be integrated with the penitentiaries service.

It is possible that eventually there will be a new corrections division in Solicitor-General Warren Allmand's department which will have over-all control of the penitentiaries and parole service.

Mr. Allmand, noting that spilitting the service from the parole board has been recommended by many—than one authority, said Thursday the change should help rehabilitation of convicts.

He said that under the present system the penitentiaries service has charge of a prisoner's rehabilitation program from the moment he enters prison until he comes under jurisdiction of the parole board, when he is handed over to another group.

Under the new system there may be greater liaison between parole officers and those who have dealt with the prisoner in penitentiary.

By bringing the parole service under direct control of his department the minister will be following through on his often-expressed view that there should be more co-ordination in criminal justice.

The parole board still will decide whether a prisoner is to get parole, when he is to get it and, to a degree, what kind of treatment he should receive when on parole. And it will decide whether a parole should be revoked.

But the 200 parole officers now employed by the board will be administered in the new way as will the parole supervision of such private agencies as the John Howard Society.

The expanded parole board, freed of administration cares, will have time for needed research, Mr. Allmand said.

The change does not have the full support of parole authorities. At least some say that the change is unnecessary and will achieve nothing that could not be achieved under the present system.

The service will be split from the board at the same time as two-person regional boards are established in the five regions of Canada—British Columbia, the Prairies, Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

Legislation approving expansion of the board to 19 from nine members to permit this regionalization was passed by Parliament late last year.

Mr. Allmand said he hopes to make the 19 new appointments soon but has had more than 100 names suggested to him, making selection difficult.

Air Pollution Files Allegedly Destroyed

TORONTO (CP) — A former air-pollution inspector with the Ontario environment ministry said Thursday that files on major air polluters in Toronto were ordered destroyed by provincial officials.

Ross Mackenzie, 33, said in an interview that five ministry inspectors were ordered to Jerseyburg the files "several months" after the ministry assumed responsibility for air-pollution control in Toronto Jan. 1, 1971.

J. W. Wardle, Mr. Mackenzie's former superior, and C. J. MacFarlane, director of the air management branch, denied the charge.

Mr. Wardle said:

"No files were destroyed to my knowledge. None was discarded except those relating to buildings which had been torn down."

He also offered to show a reporter files compiled in Toronto that date back to the 1950s.

Mr. MacFarlane said all old files are stored in a central depository in Brampton, Ont.

However, Mr. Mackenzie said the destroyed files contained data on companies with lengthy records of high pollution. He said he was told to take part in the destruction.

"I objected because these were public documents and the only record of previous violators," he said.

Mr. Mackenzie was fired as an air-pollution inspector in Sudbury last November following a 5½-day hearing before the deputy environment minister, Everett Biggs.

On the council's advice, Mr. Mackenzie walked out of the hearing. His lawyer, Clayton Ruby, said the inquiry did not give Mr. Mackenzie a fair chance to defend himself.

Mr. Mackenzie had charged that members of the ministry received bribes from polluting companies to cover up pollution cases.

Mr. Mackenzie has appealed his case to the public service grievance board, which will hear evidence Feb. 18.

Less Time Lost

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Labor Minister Fern Guindon said Thursday there was a significant decrease in the number of man-days lost due to work stoppages in 1973 compared with the previous year.

Feeding Our Fine Feathered Friends

So you want to feed the birds.

More and more families are finding bird-feeding one of winter's most pleasant pursuits. Of course, besides being fun, it also assists wild bird conservation.

One important point that bird-lovers stress to beginners is that, once the feeding is begun, it must be continued until all the snow has gone and wild food is available. Otherwise, birds that have grown dependent upon your source of supply may starve in the early spring.

It doesn't take much time or money to feed birds. Once you've been visited by a family of grosbeaks or a bright red cardinal on an otherwise dull February day, the small effort you've made will be amply repaid.

First of all, be polite enough to provide a table for your dinner guests. Spreading seed on the ground is only inviting the birds to be somebody else's dinner. Besides crafty cats, there are enemies such as squirrels who will polish off a banquet of bird seed in short order.

Remember too that a snowfall can cover the seeds and make your efforts useless.

There are several styles of feeders, and many techniques to make them out-proof. Putting the feeding tray on top of a slippery pole is one solution. Even better protection are inverted metal cones, strips of this metal nailed to a pole in such a way that they fan out and prevent climbing.

The feeder should be at least five feet above the ground on a two by four or four by four post which has been set into the ground.

If weather conditions prevent you from digging a hole now, there are other methods. One of the best is the trolley feeder.

The trolley feeder should be about 12 inches high, 12 inches wide and 18 inches long. Cut end pieces so that roof slopes about two inches downward. Fasten metal trolleys to the roof, or to uprights at the end of the feeder if it is to be open. Use longer trolley on uphill side to level the feeder. Note the wire suet holder inside.

This is simply a feeder with two metal pulleys fastened in the roof which is set about 12 inches above the feeding tray. To the feeder is fastened a metal wire, by which the feeding station can be "drawn along a clothes line or other suitable support.

The disadvantage of this feeder for city people is that it is roofed. Many beginners fail to attract birds because they use a covered feeder at the start. Birds either do not see the free boy which they may be too cautious and timid to venture under the roof.

Therefore, you may be wise to first set out an uncovered tray where the birds will see it and become familiar with the food you put out.

One of the best types of feeding trays is an old muffin tin. It allows you to set out various types of food in the individual cups.

The Corby library has handyman books which give instructions for making several types of bird feeding stations, requiring very little material or equipment.

As the birds learn to trust you, you may find that a feeder set on a second-story window sill may be enough. But don't expect them to come to your house right away.

You may be worried that all you'll get is the invasion of sparrows and pigeons.

A muffin tin set into a wooden tray placed on a pole is an excellent bird feeding station to start with. After they've become regular visitors, you may want to put a roof over the tray for protection. Here, he needs cat-guard nailed to the pole.

Well, don't be too choosy and don't shoo any birds away. Eventually word will get round that you're providing free food, simply by the presence of the first hungry birds.

Besides, you may find that sparrows are delightful little creatures with subtle feather markings that elude the eye at first glance.

One way you can determine, who your visitors will be is by the type of food you put out.

Birds who are insect-eaters ordinarily are happy with suet as a substitute in the winter. Woodpeckers like suet, as do many other birds like blue jays, nuthatches and chickadees. Suet can be placed in a wire mesh onion bag and tied to a branch.

Sunflower seeds alone will attract a number of birds, such as the lovely cedar waxwing if he's in the neighborhood, plus the usual sparrows, chickadees, blue jays and grackles. If you're in the country, quail will come to eat your sunflower seeds.

You might also try millet and hemp seeds, for small birds, and whole corn for larger varieties like jays and grouse.

Fruit of any kind, from raisins and apples to oranges and cherries will appeal to small birds.

The best thing to do is to put out what you have available, and watch to see who eats what. You'll discover that you can use plate scrapings quite successfully. Fried potatoes, pie crusts, ground egg-shells (for the bird's gritty supply of martin), rice, oats, rolled oats and ground dog biscuits are all suitable for at least a few of the possible birds you'll see.

As the weeks pass, you may want to try to feed the birds by hand.

The only advice here is to take the project slowly by stages. Any sudden jerk frightens the birds. Don't expect too much bravery from them too soon, and your patience should be rewarded by chickadees sitting on your cap by spring, and cardinals flying round your window.

Here is a list of birds identified by one family who set up their first feeding station last winter on the edge of the city from January to May.

This bird feeder is extremely easy to make, and features several "troughs" for different types of food for the various birds. This will help you determine which seeds are the most popular with the birds. Sketch.

Birds Big Business

If Belleville birds aren't bird seed. Let it get cold, then slip it out of the can. Push a wire through and hang it up for the birds to nibble. Mrs. Mobley also suggest hanging a mesh-type onion bag filled with suet.

Fuzboro's Unified Co-Op also sells its own bird seed at $1.98 for 25 pounds. It contains corn, barley, sunflower seeds, millet, oats and wheat.

At Thrasher Feeds too, selling wild bird seed is "our big winter business" and the company makes it out here, wheat, millet and sunflower seeds by the ton at every week. Sunflower seeds are sold there for 19.95 for 50 pounds; 25 pounds of their own bird seed mix is $3.75.

Boozers Embarrassed, Teetotaler Taped Party

Dear Ann Landers: Some nutty couple wrote to say you had ruined what might have been a great party by declaring that people who need booze in order to have a good time were either stupid or flaky. They decided to see if you were right, and at their next party they served only soft drinks. It was a real bomb. Everyone left early. Ben hustled me home and by himself.

Well, I don't drink—ever. And I'm sure I have a better time than most people I've observed in varying stages of intoxication.

One evening, in order to prove my point, I took my tape recorder to a party of several longtime friends. I picked up some of the most damned-fool bits of conversation you can imagine. It surprised even me when I played the stuff back.

I invited the same crowd to my place a couple of weeks later and played the tapes for them. A few of the guests didn't like it and said so. They left in a huff. (The wrong they scared the madder they got. But I left the tapes at home and four couples on the wagon, and it's been over a year, so it was worth it.) Now, whenever I think he sounds the same after a third drink is mistaken and I don't care how well he holds his liquor.—Proof Positive.

Dear P.P.: First of all, bugging a private conversation without the victims' knowledge is a rotten trick, if not a legal violation. I agree that a drinker is not a very good judge of anything, especially his own behavior, but your behavior and your methods of proving the point are reprehensible.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 23-year-old virgin. Shocked? Most people are, but it doesn't bother me. I'm in no hurry to get married. The right man hasn't come along yet and I don't believe in giving free samples.

I've dated dozens of men, some interesting, others bores. Nearly all of them have tried to get me to go to bed. The variety of approaches would make a fascinating study, but I'm no writer. The oldest line (and it's amazing how many men still use it) is this one: "But honey, you don't know what you're missing if you don't try it." I have a good answer: "Yeah, but if I don't try it I won't miss it."

Maybe my letter will help some other girl keep it all together. Another girl's letter helped me two years ago when I nearly lost control of the situation. Any more advice? —C.C.

Dear C.C.: You don't need any. Thanks for a good answer to the oldest question in the world.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't want to sound like I'm snuck on myself but I'm a 19-year-old redhead with green eyes. I've been runner-up in three beauty contests and have been told I am beautiful by several men who have been around.

The guy I am loony over stands me up at least once a week. He always has some great excuse and I find myself taking him back time and time again. We've been going together for over a year and he is still kicking me goodnight on the cheek. How can I tell if he's alive? He reads your column every day. Your answer could make a lot of difference.—Della

Dear Della: You need answers to more questions than the one you've asked, but try this, dear. Hold a mirror up to his mouth. If it fogs up, he's alive.

Expression of Love Needed in Marriage

By DORIS CLARK

One of the things I mentioned as important in making a good marriage was the expression of love. And it is ever.

Being aware of each other's needs, which we discussed last week, is a part of it. But it could be much more.

An expression of love could be a deliberate and continuing effort to meet and satisfy sexually each other's needs. Not a false modesty or a hesitancy to explore new relationships.

When we were children we delighted in the affection we received from our parents. They helped us to learn how to love, by giving it to us. You'd know the difference, if you could see a youngster who is deprived in the early years to be unable to give or learn the meaning of affection.

Once we are all grown up our expression of love is usually more sophisticated. Affectionate demonstrations and physical contact with those towards whom we feel warmly, should be a part of every life.

I'm talking about such things as a hug and kiss on meeting, holding hands, or patting. Physical contact.

Then when the mate comes along who is chosen for life, the ultimate in love expression is a delight to achieve. But it takes time. Sometimes it may eventually take a marriage counsellor.

Dear Doris: I'm 13. I was going with a boy 17, until rumors started and everyone told me he was a rat and just using me. I thought he was the greatest guy in the world.

Now I know he took me because but I didn't know it was my sister he was going with!

My sister says she can't help it if he likes her, can she? I say I hate her because it is. I know I don't. It has been two weeks since we broke up and I still can't forget him.

He has every right to go out with anyone he chooses but I find it hard when it is my older sister.

Can't Take It.

Dear Can't: Rough isn't it? When "like another woman" is your own sister, that adds insult to injury.

I believe I do not, you are lucky to be rid of him. Thirteen is too young for 17, and a lasting Seventeen, at that. Choose a boy not more than one and a half years older than you are, and take your time about choosing him.

Two weeks is a short time in which to forget anything — but give yourself another month and I'll bet another star will be rising on your horizon.

Second Glance

By Vira Richmond Graham
OUR CITY ON THE BAY, 1909
"Then to the spicy nut-brown ale." — Milton.

The Dalton Directory's 1909 special industrial souvenir number reveals:

"From the earliest days the use of malt liquors has been closely identified with the human race, and as a beverage, stimulating tonic, pure ale, beer and porter are endorsed by leading physicians of every country.

In the products of Roy's Brewery, only the purest barley, choicest malt and the best hops are used, and the proper age is given before the goods are allowed to leave the storage house.

"Roy's Brewery was established in Belleville in 1822 in a small way and the business has been built up to its present large proportions by the careful attention given to the details of brewing, to the absolute cleanliness insisted upon throughout every department, and the fair and honest business principles on which the concern has been conducted.

"The brewery is a substantial building, one of the finest buildings, and is fully fitted and equipped with modern machinery and appliances necessary in an up-to-date plant. The plant includes the office, brewery, stock house, malt house, bottling work, ice house, storage house and stables. Each department is a model of neatness.

"In all the 77 years which have elapsed since the establishment of this business, the greatest care has been taken never to permit an inferior class of goods to go out, and consequently, the reputation held by Roy's Brewery among dealers, hotels, families and the general public, is at the highest possible point, and the business has been steadily increasing year by year.

"The proprietor and manager of the business, Mr. James A. Roy, is well qualified for the position he holds. He is a man of great experience and gives his personal attention to every detail. He is a large property owner in the city and takes an active interest in the progress and prosperity of Belleville. He is one of the most popular business men of the City and is well known in all circles."

Mr. James Roy, we are told, was born in Belleville at the family homestead — the grounds extended from Queen Street to Victoria Avenue and from MacDonald Avenue to Dufferin Avenue, and through which a small stream coursed its way.

James Roy after his marriages lived with his wife on John Street. But, after his wife's death, he returned to the family home where he lived with his daughter, Annie, who is remembered by many for her generous offering of delicious sweets.

The suggested plans to convert the home, after the decease of the members of the family into a convalescing hospital never materialized, and later it was lost by fire.

The brewery was located by the river-side, a site which today is a marking-lot just behind Hinchey Radio and Television Store. Yet the site bears no evidence such an establishment existed. So completely has it vanished, Mr. Hitchon exclaimed:

"No, I never knew a brewery was there."

In our research, we are indebted to the kind Belleville citizen who gave their time and consideration to bring the above facts to light. Our thanks.

FAUST, Alta. (CP) — Rose Auger, a 35-year-old Cree Indian, is trying to break a long cycle of poverty, perpetuated by what she calls an unjust welfare administration on the Driftpile reserve and in her nearby hometown of Faust, 150 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The cycle encompasses four suicides in the city, families tripling up in shacks with one wood-burning stove, melting snow for washing and long trips to a freezing outhouse, she says.

But when you protest "you have to have a back of steel because everyone's on it."

Alex Jenkins, superintendent of social services for the Indian affairs department at High Prairie, Alta., said in an interview:

"They have no official representation. . . . The Driftpile band council has a dissociated mind about them.

John Faulkner, an Edmonton lawyer and legal adviser to student legal services retained by Mrs. Auger in December to investigate welfare grievances, said: "welfare is not being administered humanely."

"There is a tremendous disparity in payments."

But few people protest because most of them "are convinced there's nothing they can do," he said. "If they make waves they think they'll get less."

Mr. Jenkins said he realizes welfare payments are "not adequate," but would be increased Feb. 1 when adults will receive $84 a month for food, rent is allocated a credit of $14, and $14 for clothing, an increase of $4 for women and $6 for men.

However, Mrs. Auger said she believes most welfare receivables from the Indian affairs department than the official rates, which are the same on the federal and provincial levels.

"Social workers are on a power trip, playing God and perpetuating hardship," said Mrs. Auger, adding that one method they use is to "go into the schools and ask children questions about their parents."

Bob Maxwell, director of regional offices for the provincial social services department, said some complaints had been directed against government social workers when, in fact, the native people "were concerned about the program itself, rather than the individual."

Mr. Maxwell said government representatives have talked to the local people, explaining that they can file appeals if they feel welfare payments are inadequate.

But Mrs. Auger said bureaucratic procedures such as appeals are foreign to the Indian people.

Instead, she is trying to put pressure on government officials to negotiate the poverty in the area on the southern shore of Lesser Slave Lake, inhabited by a mixture of Indians, Metis and whites.

She registered a short-term victory last month with Grant Notley, provincial NDP leader, asked Neil Crawford, health and social development minister, in the legislature about a tense meeting held in November between natives and welfare officials at High Prairie.

During the November meeting, Mrs. Auger and representatives of the Edmonton chapter of the American Indian Movement (A.I.M.) presented Mr. Jenkins with a list of demands.

"We wanted the removal of the federal social workers for the one from the native community from the reserve, the dismissal of those who knows our problems," said Mrs. Auger. "We wanted immediate housing, such as trailers, for families who had to triple up in small houses, and an unbalance."

The ambulance was for the 35-mile trip to hospitals either in High Prairie or Slave Lake.

"But they weren't even hearing what we were saying," she said. "They were just sitting there wondering when to call the police."

"We were going to go in and take one of the officials if they wouldn't do anything" but the A.I.M. people, who have since left the area, "didn't give the signal to 30 or 30 people outside."

Mr. Jenkins said later he couldn't "remember anything significant" about the demands.

Both Mrs. Auger and Mr. Faulkner believe the problem is more far-reaching than welfare grievances.

"If someone happens to get a part-time job selling hay or wood, welfare starts hassling you," said Mrs. Auger.

Mr. Faulkner cited the case of Peter Wabasca, who took a number of men fishing and earned $600. After paying for gasoline, renting the necessary equipment, he netted between $118 and $120, said Mr. Faulkner.

When the money was not reported to welfare, Mr. Wabasca was taken to court and although the case was dismissed, welfare officials are taking the entire $600 out of Mr. Wabasca's cheque, said Mr. Faulkner.

But the current chief of the reserve, Eugene Laboucan, 27, said he thought "everyone was being treated fair."

"Welfare is not intended for steady income," he said, adding that "most everyone on the reserve is working."

House Rejects Wiretap Change, Denies Senate Energy Veto

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons frustration with the Senate exploded on two fronts Thursday, forcing Liberal senators into a special caucus today to reconsider their position on the controversial wiretap bill.

Opposition MPs rallied Thursday around a New Democratic Party motion to reject a Senate amendment to the wiretap bill and shortly after all parties refused the upper house the power to veto energy emergencies declared by the government.

Progressive Conservatives joined the NDP to reject the wiretap amendment, explaining they did not trust the government to withstand a threatened NDP filibuster in the controversial clause. Suspecting the government might drop the bill entirely, they decided to join the NDP in sending the original Commons bill back to the Senate.

An NDP motion to return the bill to the upper house was carried 114 to 94 with Liberals and Conservative support.

The quick one-two punch against the Senate came after a plea for the upper house to express a formal opinion on its position.

The 74 Liberals in the Senate were to meet some time this morning their next move on the wiretap bill, but indications were they would bend before the will of the elected Commons.

Senator Carl Goldenberg (L—Quebec) said it was likely the senators would pull in their horns on the wiretap bill and his view was echoed by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

Mr. Stanfield told reporters that if the upper chamber in the Senate would go against the view expressed twice by the Commons, Justice Minister Otto Lang said he did not know what the government would do. He expected no major dispute over the role of the upper house.

The Senate insists on the wiretap change, a so-called free conference of representatives of two Houses could be called to try to reach a compromise. Past conferences have reached agreement in most cases.

A Senate retreat on the wiretap bill might clear the way for an adjournment of Parliament, perhaps as soon as tonight. The emergency energy bill, with the power supporting the government, likely will be passed today under a timetable imposed before Christmas.

People Mr. Lang's and Mr. Stanfield's desire to have the wiretap bill passed quickly there were bursts of opposition from the Senate Thursday.

Senator Goldenberg, (L—Quebec) predicted a bestby over the wiretap Commons and Senate views on the disputed clause which deals with notification of wiretap victims.

Senators opposing the clause are in a minority, he said.

"The provincial attorneys-general support us. . . . The chiefs of police are for it as well."

Mr. Lang said no pressure would be applied by the cabinet on the Senate and Mr. Choquette agreed.

"We're as free as the Commons . . . and just as responsible."

The conflict resulted from the Commons rejection of the Senate's withdrawal of a section in the bill that would have required in persons subjected to police wiretaps being notified by an attorney-general within 90 days of removal of the bug.

The vote on the compromise amendment, to allow judges authorizing a wiretap to decide when bugging subjects should be notified, led to charges and counter-charges among Liberal and Conservative MPs.

Mr. Lang said the Conservatives backed out of a previous arranged agreement when they voted against the government.

"It looks like a case of political expediency to me," he told reporters.

Mr. Stanfield denied that his party had broken any agreement. Earlier indications of Conservative approval for the compromise were contingent on the government proceeding with the amendment expeditiously.

No Spies Sent Abroad Trudeau Tells House

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada collects intelligence information to protect national security and sometimes shares secrets with allies, but no agents are sent abroad to spy on other countries, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday.

"We have never in my knowledge, certainly not under my government, engaged in any espionage activity in the sense we have been looking for information in an undercover way," he told the Commons.

His remarks were prompted by opposition questions about a CBC television program on intelligence gathering.

The program, shown Wednesday, was branded "mischievous and misleading" by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp. Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said it might harm Canada-United States relations.

Mr. Trudeau said he knew some of the allegations in the program were false, but no government department dismissed it as entirely inaccurate.

The program said the continental defence system of the National Research Council functions as an intelligence agency and has close ties with the United States National Security Agency (NSA). NSA has contact ons with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

One NSA officer said during the program that there is an agreement between Canada, Australia, Britain and the United States to monitor communications in all parts of the world. And a former state department spokesman alleged that the Distant Early Warning (DEW) line of radar stations across northern Canada also is used for this purpose.

Defence Minister James Richardson declared that the U.S. uses the DEW line to collect information, but he would not elaborate on the nature or makeup of it. He would say only that the government has a responsibility to know of any threat to national security.

A spokesman for the research council said he does not know whether the group is involved in communications interception.

A CBC official said the force keeps two men in Washington to work with police and intelligence agencies, and the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation keeps a man at the U.S. embassy here for the same purpose.

Mr. Sharp said he would respond to precise questions in the Commons, but off-the-cuff answers might lead to "trouble with our friends and others who depend on us for their security."

In Washington, a senior CIA official denied that any foreigners have ever been highly-guarded CIA headquarters near the U.S. capital. He said he is acquainted with two men interviewed on the broadcast, Victor Marchetti and John Marks, but would say little about their comments.

Both are involved in a court action against the CIA and U.S. government to force release for publication of a book called The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence.

Mr. Trudeau told Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) that Canada always has gathered information available in its territory but said it would not be in the public interest to elaborate.

He said the government has admitted that such operations take place and that Canada's information is exchanged with friends and allies.

Mr. Nielsen asked a series of questions last year on a research establishment at nearby Shirley's Bay. The government, citing national security as the reason, declined to reply at the time.

Mr. Nielsen asked Thursday whether the government would reply in light of "revelations" about four members of the CBC program.

"My answer is that we do not answer that kind of question and we do not intend to," Mr. Trudeau said.

Joseph Clark (PC—Rocky Mountain) asked whether Canada has an intelligence treaty with the U.S., Britain and Australia. If the reference was to a treaty called U.K.U.S.A., Mr. Trudeau replied, "the answer is that we are not a party to such a treaty."

Meanwhile, former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton disclosed that the Diefenbaker government, in office from 1957 to 1963, gave the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations details on all Canadian wheat sales abroad.

The information was given on the agreement that the U.S. would not dump cheap or free wheat in countries where Canada was target in negotiating commercial sales, the Sk'Appelle-Moose Mountain MP said in an interview.

He was commenting on a report that the U.S. had contacts in the Canadian government during the early 1960s to relay information on wheat sales to the People's Republic of China.

If this were the case, Mr. Hamilton said, the effort was a waste of money.

The report was a Washington interview with Mr. Machetti, the same individual quoted in the CBC telecast.

SUBARMINE MINING

Fertilizer Shortage Won't Affect Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — A fertilizer shortage in the United States should have no effect on Canada, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Thursday.

Information from meetings with fertilizer manufacturers indicates enough supplies will be available to meet demand, he told Harold Danforth (PC—Kent—Essex) in the Commons.

Mr. Danforth asked for a detailed statement on stocks and anticipated prices. Mr. Whelan said he plans to make one after further meetings with industry officials.

A report released by the Kemptville, Ont., agricultural college says the U.S. decision to lift the price ceiling on domestically-used fertilizers, and the release 40 million acres from land banks has increased the demand for fertilizer.

Recession Could Follow Boom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Afer a year of booming inflation and shortages of many key commodities, the United States economy heads into 1974 facing more of the same—and the real threat of a recession a swell.

Even the Nixon administration, not known for pessimism in economic matters, says the economy could dip dangerously close to recession in the first half of 1974 with unemployment possibly rising to around six per cent.

Just how bad 1974's economic woes will be, however, depended on how long the oil-producing Arab nations continue their cutoff of oil exports to the United States.

Another major uncertainty was whether the government could handle the fuel shortage well enough to keep industry running without major disruptions while reducing the consumption of gasoline and other fuels.

There appeared to be no end to the shortages plaguing the economy, from fuel to food to basic materials. Prices were up 10% — so far.

Despite the 1974 prospects, it appeared Americans were looking at their economic situation more realistically than they had in years. It was in 1973 that they learned the nation no longer had things in abundance.

It was just under a year ago that President Nixon, in his annual economic message to Congress, saw potentially great things for the economy in 1973 if federal spending was held under control.

It was, and inflation still went through the roof.

Despite all its troubles, the 1973 ended after most major nations agreed to abandon most fixed exchange rates for their currencies.

The calmer atmosphere caused leading industrial nations to postpone for another year reform of the international monetary system and a return to fixed exchange rates.

Domestically, the Nixon administration faced some major decisions as the New Year arrived.

The Economic Stabilization Act, under which wage-price controls were established, expires at the end of April.

With the gasoline shortage expected to get worse, there were tough decisions ahead on how to manage without rationing.

Pilot Honored

YORKTON, Sask. (CP) — Tom Inglis, 75, of Yorkton, has been presented with a plaque by the federal government honoring him as the oldest qualified pilot in Canada still active.

Mr. Inglis started flying in 1943, mainly crop spraying, and still owns his Piper Cub for vacation trips.

Gunsmoke Episode Series Inspiration

NEW YORK (AP) — A new Western series has arrived on television. Its title song goes: "There was an old woman known as Dirty Sally, found an outlaw wounded in the valley."

It stars Jeanette Nolan as an unkempt, lovable old baltleaxe and Dack Rambo as a reformed young gunfighter who is accompanying her as far as the gold fields of California.

The first show ends with Cyrus Pike (Rambo) advising Dirty Sally he is leaving her when they reach California because he doesn't want to be mother-bemoned forever.

It opens with the duo travelling by wagon through the desert. They see a beautiful fair maiden sitting on a rock.

Her husband, an incurable gambler, had tarried in a shack a few miles outside town for a game of poker with five cut-throats. He won handsomely at first, but . . .

Ah yes, it's the old film-flam ploy. Her husband has been picked clean. He has left her in the desert and headed to town to buy a new horse and wagon with their remaining cash.

All very well, except for the film-flam five.

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — Mexican mural painter David Alfaro Siqueiros has requested his works to the people of Mexico in his last testament announced here Thursday.

Siqueiros, the last of Mexico's three great muralists and a revolutionary who was jailed and exiled at various times, died of cancer last Sunday at the age of 77.

He left the gallery and his workshop in the summer resort of Cuernavaca, including his paintings, books and archives there, to the Mexican people.

Mrs. Siqueiros was appointed executor.

Asked how much money Siqueiros had left, his widow said: "He left limited financial resources. Money is not important."

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Actor Steve McQueen sued CBS and five Japanese firms Thursday for $2 million for allegedly using his name and photograph for commercial purposes without his consent.

Court papers say CBS hired McQueen in June, 1968, to star in the movie Le Mans which it produced. He charged that, in violation of his rights, CBS allegedly licensed Towa Co. Ltd. to distribute the film in Japan and gave other Japanese defendants permission to use his name and photo in advertising their various products.

The defendants have 20 days to answer the charges.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Junior Samples, star of the TV's Hee Haw show, has been acquitted of battery charges brought by a woman who claimed she was hit while trying to introduce a friend to Samples.

Samples told Criminal Court Judge Woodrow Tucker that he did not slap or hit Joyce Flanagan Almond in the incident at an American Legion Club last Feb. 25.

"I'm a lover, not a fighter," the 285-pound Samples told the judge.

Samples testified Mrs. Almond had been trying to get him to dance with her and had been interrupting him to introduce friends.

He said she followed him outside.

"She came up behind me and pulled my necktie," Samples said.

In ruling in Samples' favor, Judge Tucker told Mrs. Almond she should not have followed Samples out of the dance.

The 50-year-old entertainer was cheerful despite a fever of about 100 degrees and moderate chest pains.

Public To See Official Plan

After frequent delays to formulating, Belleville's official plan over the past two years, the public will soon be getting a look at the proposed shape and form the city will take in the years to come.

Under the urging of Quinte Planning Board director Bert Kenny, the board and the wheels in motion for public meetings to start by the end of January.

"We've got to get the public involved," said Mr. Kenny during Thursday's QPB meeting. "Then we can get the plan back, finish it and make recommendations to city council."

Since early 1972, the board has been working with planning consultants Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates Ltd. to prepare a draft official plan. The lengthy document sets forth the policies that will shape the physical growth of Belleville.

At its meeting Thursday, the board reviewed a third and final revision of the draft official plan with planning consultant John Weeks, Montreal. No objections were raised by board members.

Now, says Mr. Kenny, a brief, highlighting the document will be written. This will be made available to members of each of the four task forces created in the spring of 1972 to feed public reaction to the plan to the QPB.

Four initial meetings will be held in each of Belleville's high schools. However, the task forces areas will not longer be designated by letter, but by planning district —Quinte, Centennial, Moira and Central. These correspond roughly to the former designations.

Planning staff will be available at the meetings as will visual material for perusal.

Service Station Robbed

About 11.15 p.m. last night, Nightman at Hamilton Texaco Station, 145 Dundas Street East, Frank Allin, was closing up for the night.

He told police he had taken the money from the till, put it into two envelopes and went to the service part of the station. Hearing noises, he headed back to the office.

Mr. Allin said he gave the intruder the money and was told to go to the service part of the station and lie down.

City police are investigating and provincial police have also been called in.

Showing Off the City

Illustrating the point that pictures are, on occasion, much more easily comprehended than words, planning consultant Jean Wells Monteith explained the future direction of Belleville to Quinte Planning Board directors with maps Thursday. Using charts showing planning districts, demand and land use, park and road allocations, and the municipal services structure, the planner represented directors with a final overview of the draft official plan before it is taken to the public later this month.

Motivation Said Key In Dealing with 'Users'

Motivation is the key in dealing with drug abuse. A person has to want to be helped before he can be.

This was the message of Benjamin Williams, unit coordinator of the psychiatric unit at Belleville General Hospital, at last night's group attending the second of a four-part session on drug use held at Graham Library.

Although associated with the hospital, Mr. Williams made it clear that his views were his own and not those of the hospital where he has worked since 1968.

"We are concerned with motivation." Mr. Williams continued "We have to motivate people in reality. If social behavior is not right we have to do something about it," he said. "If a person can't accept his problem, there's not much we can do about it.

"It's your life. It's your head. But it's our environment," he said, explaining that by environment he didn't mean just lakes and rivers but the people around us and their behavior.

Referring to the title of the Czech film that was shown beforehand to the group, Man Isn't Dying of Thirst, Mr. Williams added that Man is dying of love (or the lack of it).

Answering questions from the audience relating directly to the medical profession and their attitude toward drug use, Mr. Williams told a questioner that when the drug problem was at its peak, say in 1967, 68 and 69, Belleville General Hospital could not handle it adequately.

"But since that time, we've come a long way. There's a lot more information available now about drugs we didn't have then," he said holding up various pamphlets and booklets that help explain the problem although a lot is too scientifically, he admitted.

The part that stress in modern society plays in people turning to drugs was also raised. A woman in the audience remarked that before, a person was when feeling a bit low, would wait a few hours to see how her condition would be then instead of immediately trying to remedy it.

"Now a person has to just pop a few pills for whatever ails them," she said.

Mr. Williams said that in modern society our tolerance to stress is becoming lower and lower. "There are so many stresses today in so many demonstrations, fights, rushing to work in the morning.

"This has resulted in our developing a stronger intolerance to stress," he said, explaining why people become dependent on drugs and pills.

Prior to the discussion at last night's session, two films were shown. The first one, produced in Czechoslovakia, gave an insight into the world of the psychotic and the world of psychosis induced by a chemical such as LSD.

Through the means of unusual photographic and color techniques, viewers were made to feel as one woman in the audience remarked later "that they were actually on a drug trip."

The film mentions the beneficial use of the drug LSD which, because of its ability to create a psychotic state in a person is used by doctors to treat mental problems.

Seventeen of the society and the part drum take in it were also touched on in the film. "In the last 50 years too many drastic changes have occurred in society that it is hard to adjust to them," it is mentioned in the film.

"Society creates inconsistencies among people and also within the person and this leads to conflict. Neurosis and psychosis are just as much a part of modern society as a fast disease," said the film.

The other film, a Canadian production called Us deals with the inconsistencies of the drug problem in which parents complain about their children, taking drugs while they themselves are making wrong with smoking, drinking or taking tranquilizers.

Said Mr. Williams in closing: "We have to look at the dependence we have no chemistry. Chemistry (pills, drugs) is a temporary fix for a time. What we should worry about is the control of it."

Motorist Charged

Belleville police charged a motorist with impaired driving after he was involved in a single car accident on Highway 401 near Belleville at 1.30 a.m. today.

He was released on a promise to appear in court on January 21.

The symbols were transferred to Mr. Chaplin by C. W. Payette, immediate past master, during the annual installation and investiture ceremony Wednesday at the Masonic Temple.

Winter May Be Good Time for Driving Lessons

Winter may be a good time of the year for skiers and snowmobilers but it can be sheer havoc for motorists.

The Industrial Accident Prevention Association offers a few tips on how to get through the winter safely and trouble-free.

—Be able to see and be seen. Clean all the snow and ice off your windshield, rear window, outside mirrors, lights and reflectors. Make sure your vehicle has good wiper blades and that wiper arms are exerting enough pressure on the blades to ensure a clean sweep. If moisture or ice builds up on the inside or outside of your windshield, stop and clean it off.

—Tires with good deep treads are essential for cornering and handling on slippery roads. Check the air pressure often to maintain the manufacturer's recommended pressure.

—Get the feel of the road. Occasionally try your brakes or gently depress your accelerator while driving to see if you have found out just how slippery the road is and adjust your speed accordingly. Rising temperatures greatly increase the slipperiness of ice and snow.

—Stretch your "following" distances. Knowing that winter surfaces increase stopping distance three to five times, the smart driver increases his normal dry-road following distance. Heavy trucks require a longer stopping distance on slippery roads than passenger cars. And don't tailgate in winter or any time.

—Brake before curves. All vehicles are particularly sensitive to over-powering, over-steering and overbraking on curves. Unseen hazards around the bend may require an evasive action, so turn your steering wheel slowly and smoothly, keep a constant speed in the turn, and pump your brakes carefully if you have to slow down or stop.

— Use proper lights. Never drive with parking lights instead of headlights in winter's early dusk when visibility is poor. Parking lights can cause an oncoming driver to think you are farther away than you are. Keep headlights clean dirty ones can greatly reduce your own seeing distance at night.

— Some drivers talk too much. They get so involved in conversation that they forget to maintain a safe following distance or are slow to spot a changing signals. Clever drivers stop too quickly. They are in too big a hurry to pick up or let off a passenger, and in doing so, block traffic and invite rear-end collisions.

— Some drivers on be thoughtless. They stop in the car and obstruct traffic when discharging passengers.

— Drivers should not park illegally while waiting for riders. They should instal passengers enter and leave without delay along quiet streets and should pick up and discharge on side streets if possible.

— Riders should be on time. They should not rush the driver to break laws to save time or engage the driver in distracting conversation.

— Never set your emergency brake after you've been driving in freezing slush. The cable may freeze. Instead; leave your gear in the park position.

— In bad weather, listen as well as look before crossing a railroad. Many motorists are killed by passing trains each year.

Small Municipalities Seek Planning Help

By ROBERT WHITELAW
Senior Bureau of Tax.
The Intelligencer

NIAGARA FALLS —The 400 rural and small municipalities of Ontario want government assistance to provide experts in planning easily affordable by larger cities, Donald Rodgers of Stirling, president of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities and, John Cochran of Almonte, vice-president, ideally want a system based on the ministry of agriculture's Agri Reps Program.

The system provides representatives of ministry throughout Ontario who answer farmers questions or can red tape to get an answer from Queen's Park.

Mr. Cochran said he easily foresees each ministry appointing representatives in restructured counties or present counties to provide expertise.

Particular areas of concern he said involve housing planning and industry and commerce.

Mr. Cochran and Mrs. Rodgers were delegates today at the meeting in Niagara Falls.

The meeting is the first time the two urban fifths, a Canadian Production called Us deals with the inconsistencies of the drug problem in which parents complain about their children, taking drugs while they themselves are making wrong with smoking, drinking or taking tranquilizers.

Said Mr. Williams in closing: "We have to look at the dependence we have no chemistry. Chemistry (pills, drugs) is a temporary fix for a time. What we should worry about is the control of it."

Mr. Cochran said there are areas in Renfrew County that cannot even afford a road superintendent.

He said under the present county system, rural and small municipalities cannot afford to hire experts. He said there has been some change in the last year due to the provincial grant rebate structure based on the increased sales tax.

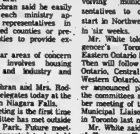
He said further support has to come through restructured counties or directly in the form of provincial government assistance as in the experts of the agriculture service through other ministries. He said the Belleville and Trenton areas along with Hastings is an example where restructuring could take place to amalgamate communities.

Mr. Cochran referred to the difference of success and failure between Arnprior and Almonte in long term planning. He said Arnprior has a strong industrial base because the community opened an industrial park which is today filled. Almonte didn't provide such a park and has become a residential community while Arnprior has forged ahead with a strong industrial assessment base.

Rodgers Proposed For Committee

NIAGARA FALLS — John Wilke, Ontario Treasurer considers Eastern Ontario as the second of five areas for a regional advisory committee.

The first, a pilot project involving municipal representatives to consider new start in Northwestern Ontario in six weeks.



Mr. Wilke told The Intelligencer's Toronto Bureau Eastern Ontario is next in line. Then will follow Northeastern Ontario, Central Ontario and Western Ontario. The treasurer announced plans to form the committees at the December meeting of the Provincial Municipal Liaison Committee in Toronto last month.

Mr. Wilke said his Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Inter Governmental Affairs was starting the advisory system as an opportunity for local people to present views. The minister was optimistic the meeting today would approve the advisory board project.

The Intelligencer's Toronto Bureau learned last night the municipal committee will support an experiment in Northwestern Ontario, provided three members are permitted on the study committee to view the operation.

The three appointees proposed by the municipal group include Donald Rodgers of Stirling, Joseph Fabbro, mayor of Sudbury and Donald Meston, mayor of Waterloo.

Desmond Newman, chairman of the municipal committee said the key to the success of the advisory board is that all ministries fall within the boundaries of the five regional economic areas.

City Store Wins Prize

A Belleville retailer is one of the recipients of a major fashion industry award it was announced in Toronto Thursday night.

McIntosh Brothers Stores, Ltd., was awarded a Judy by the Garment Salesmen Ontario Market, for its promotion of Canadian fashion.

Sheila Nash, of McIntosh Brothers, said today she had been notified and that the award was a finalist in competition for the awards but was still surprised to find they had won.

"We're very pleased they thought our promotion work is worth the award," she said.

Miss Nash said the annual award is given not only for fashion promotion but for special customer service and honesty in advertising.

Besides the store's two major fashion shows each year, Miss Nash said they prepared special catalogues for customers including fashion information and conducted a shopper service for older or handicapted customers.

Other recipients of the award were Fairview Mall, Toronto; Sherway Gardens, Toronto; Canadian Magazine, Hamilton; Spectator Right House, Hamilton; P. H. for the Inner Woman, Burlington; Jennie's Fashions, Oakville; Lady Galt, Cambridge; Sheer Jan Boutique, Oakville; Medrigal of Leamington and Chatham; and C. Wallace Co. Ltd., St. Catharines.

United Way Agencies Cut Back

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

United Way participating agencies will be tightening their collective belts this fiscal year as all have received less than they requested, and less than they got in 1973.

At their monthly board meeting Thursday, United Community Services directors accepted the allocation of funds to the 12 agencies as recommended by Ted Kelly, agency review committee chairman.

All will be receiving less than last year. The YMCA experiences the largest drop — from $480 from 1973's allocation of $24,000.

United Way dollars, collected primarily in the fund drive's campaign in October, are used to defray agency operating expenses.

In 1972, as in the previous year, the campaign has fallen beneath its stated goal. In this year's report to the board last night, campaign chairman Blake Sloan, stated the drive's potential total is $116,000, 92 per cent of the $140,000 goal and 87 per cent of funds collected for 1973.

Of these monies, $101,585 has been allotted to the agencies. The remainder of the funds go toward administration of the campaign and office costs, advertising and an allowance for uncollectable pledges.

In mid - December, Mr. Kelly stated the collected funds would have to be portioned out to the agencies with early reductions inevitably less than the previous year.

He indicated, collectively, the 12 agencies had requested $174,000 to meet their 1974 operating budgets.

The following are the allotments each agency will receive this year. The first figure indicates an agency's allotment in 1974, the second its allotment this year, and the final figure indicates the percentage of the total allotment.

— Belleville Family YMCA — $23,000, will get $23,330, at 23.2 per cent.

— Canadian Red Cross Society: $18,008, $17,640, 17.4 per cent.

— Canadian National Institute for the Blind: $13,577, $13, 305, 13.1 per cent.

— Belleville Minor Sports Association: $9,000, 28,820, 8.7 per cent.

— Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children: $8,500, $8,330, 8.2 per cent.

— United Community Services: $7,189, $7,045, 6.9 per cent.

— Victorian Order of Nurses: $6,758, $6,623, 6.5 per cent.

— St. John Ambulance Association: $4,686, $4,602, 4.5 per cent.

— Navy League of Canada: $4,000, $3,920, 3.9 per cent.

— Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society: $3,500, $2,901, 2.8 per cent.

— Civic Action Committee: $2,700, $2,646, 2.6 per cent.

— Central Volunteer Bureau: $2,315, $6,171, 2.1 per cent.

Under Wraps

Anyone who has been walking down town in the Front and Victoria Avenue area may have wondered what was underneath the plastic wrap on the corner there. A sign reveals that it's to be the site of the Bank of Nova Scotia but other than that the rest is hidden to view under a large sheet of plastic. Under the plastic, right now bricklayers are busy laying the walls of the building.

Dave Gardner Gets His Chance

By GLENN OBLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Dave Gardner appears to be much happier today than he was about a month ago.

The reason is Gardner is starting to see some action with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Gardner scored his first goal of the 1973-74 season Thursday night as the Canadian Nationals' New York Islanders 8-3 in one of four games.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Flyers clipped Minnesota North Stars 7-6, Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks battled to a 3-3 tie and Buffalo Sabres crushed New York Rangers 7-2.

Gardner, who scored 109 goals in his final two years of junior hockey with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association, saw only limited service in five games before the new year.

He had become frustrated, but coach Scotty Bowman decided to use him after Montreal lost 8-4 to St. Louis Blues Jan. 2.

Bowman had a message for Gardner when he finally started him against Vancouver last Saturday night.

"He told me just to hustle and said if I made a bad mistake and was not hustling, I would be right back where I was," Gardner said.

His goal at 5:39 of the second period and the accompanying ovation made the 21-year-old son of former HUL star Cal Gardner "glad to be back in action."

Guy Lafleur with two, Guy Lapointe, Peter Mahovlich, Steve Shutt, Yvon Lambert and Frank Mahovlich got the other Montreal goals. Germain Gagnon with two and Bob Nystrom scored for the Islanders.

The Bruins, 19-9-2 at Boston Garden, fell behind 5-0 by 2:40 of the third period before Bobby Orr broke Tony Esposito's shutout at 8:36.

Sabres 7 Rangers 2

Buffalo Sabres' 3-0 loss to Atlanta Flames Wednesday night may have sparked their lopsided win over the Rangers.

"All I know is someone sent me a dozen roses calling us pansies and I brought them to the dressing room," said Sabres coach Joe Crozier, whose club now trails fourth-place New York by one point in the East Division.

In games tonight, the Flyers visit the Flames and California Golden Seals entertain Vancouver Canucks.

Spitfires Nipped 6-5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tim Holder scored twice for Guelph Biltmores Thursday to lead them to a 6-5 victory in Windsor over the Spitfires in the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League game.

In Detroit, the Junior Red Wings scored in every period to defeat the Buffalo Tondas 7-3 in the only other league game.

Windsor outshot Guelph 35-28.

Detroit outshot Buffalo 36-29.

Toros Squander Five-goal Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Toronto Toros followed horoscopes, it's a sure bet the stars would tell them to stay away from Ottawa.

The Toros may wish they could abandon the city after Thursday night when they blew a 5-0 second-period lead and had to be satisfied with a 6-6 overtime tie in a World Hockey Association game against New England Whalers.

The deadlock gave the second-place Toros 46 points, but kept them two behind the Whalers in the East Division race. The Toros, who scheduled nine home games for Ottawa this season because their regular arena wasn't available, have played three more games than the Whalers.

In other games, Quebec Nordiques moved into a tie for third place in the East Division, two points through over Los Angeles Sharks, Rejean Houle paced the Nordiques with two goals while the same at Cleveland Crusaders—with three goals and two assists.

The Toros, formerly the Naoldiers, started into a tie for

Quinte Wrestlers Are Tops

Host Quinte Secondary School showed the way in a Wednesday wrestling meet, finishing the competition with a point total of 116½.

Second place went to Trenton High School with 58½ points. Centre Hastings Secondary School had 38 and Prince Edward Collegiate, 37.

Both Dave Brant and Dario D'Anna of Quinte won all three of their matches by pins. Jim Taylor, Steve Whitney and Gerry Whitney were two for three.

Leading Trenton was Dave Nichols with two wins in three tries. Jim Fraser of Centre Hastings pinned all three of his opponents and Prince Edward's Bruce Carter had two pins in three matches.

Quinte will host the next wrestling meet Wednesday January 16 with visiting teams from Moira Secondary School and Centre Hastings.

Yardmen Win 3-1

KINGSTON (Special) — Goals by Paul Hayman, Sandy Waterson and Tony Meagher carried Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund minor midgets to a 3-1 win over Kingston at Elmer Areas here Thursday.

Hayman's counter matched a Kingston goal by Jan Ayton to send the team into the third period tied 1-1.

Waterson shot the winner and Meagher supplied the insurance goal for the visitors. Excellent assist each for the winners were Dave Giddings, Bob Thompson and Waterson.

'Toughest of the Tough' to Games

A special Canadian Forces Boeing 707 was arranged for the team and will make stops in Vancouver for another 56 members and in Honolulu for 25.

The team will rest overnight in Honolulu and after stopping at Pago Pago is expected to arrive in New Zealand at 4 a.m. Saturday.

There was one notable absentee. Belleville's Gary Wall, who suffered a serious leg injury during training sessions recently, will not be on hand to bolster the Canadian weightlifting team.

The team, looking very tired this morning following an early rise to reach the airport, lounged around the terminal with tough paper back books and magazines to stay occupied on the flight.

In between suggestions on what books were the best and what authors were choice picks, diving coach Don Webb said, "only the toughest of the tough Canadian athletes are making the trip."

He expects six eight divers to bring back six of the 12 diving medals.

Apart from team members, there is only a small back up force travelling to the games. The largest accessory contingent is the five-member medical staff—three doctors and two physiotherapists.

According to a team manager, it is not certain at this time how the team will return to Canada following the competitions. The special Canadian Armed Forces arrangement is only for one way. "We'll have to wait and see ... maybe we'll return on a commercial airline."

He said the trip would cost around $75,000 in transportation both ways if the armed forces took care of the whole deal.

"It's hidden money, going from one department to another," the manager said.

Blues Help Cats

Bramalea Blues prevented Pickering Panthers from marking four points up on Bobcats in the Metro Junior B League battle for first place by recording an 8-3 win.

Blues rode to sole possession of fourth place on the strength of the important win. Bramalea now has 41 points.

Pickering, at home to 10th place Toronto Nationals tonight, leads the league with 48 points, two more than the runnerup Bobcats who entertain Wexford Warriors at Memorial Arena.

Markham Royals are in third spot with 44 points and Warriors are in the thick of things perched in fifth place with 40 points.

Bobcats get two chances to add to their point total this weekend. After tonight's game with Wexford, Moe Hunter's Belleville skaters are at home to Oak Ridges in an 8 o'clock Sunday night contest at Memorial Arena.

New Zealand Bound

Canadian drivers Beverly Boys and Lada Cuthbert scan the magazines at CFB Trenton for books to keep them occupied on the 28-hour flight to the British Commonwealth Games to begin in New Zealand Jan. 24. Canada's team of more than 100 members left this mourning and is expected in Christchurch, N.Z. at 4 a.m. Saturday.

'Strongest Field Ever' For BCI Tournament

By DOUG WALSH,
Sports Editor

High school basketball, a top form of sports entertainment almost any time one has the opportunity to take in the action, is even more enjoyable when first rate teams hook up in a tournament.

High school basketball ..... first rate teams..... tournaments. They all come together Saturday at Belleville Collegiate Institute when the third annual Junior-Senior Tournament gets the spotlight.

BCI's Bill Miller is convening the event and he has some talented teams lined up for the day-long competition.

In the senior division, Bill didn't have to look far afield for the cream of the crop. Jim Murray's Quinte Secondary School Saints have to be rated one of the better clubs in the province.

Murray's men are defending a pair of titles this year. All-Ontario champions in 1972, Saints also took the BCI tourney honors last year. At the recent Peter and White Tournament at University of Western Ontario, London, Saints captured the consolation title and Quinte who Mark Gardiner had the distinction of being chosen the tourney's most valuable player.

No one is about to concede Saturday's championship to Saints, however. They'll get an argument. The convenor has lifted up what he terms "the strongest field ever" for the popular event.

Leading the charge of teams aiming to knock off Saints will be the host BCI. When the schools hook up in the tourney opener at 9 a.m. Saturday, it should be a natural.

Among the other senior entries are North Albion Collegiate Institute of Toronto and Hamilton's Sir Winston Churchill Secondary School. Each is rated near the top of the list in BCI City.

Trenton High School, R.S. McLaughlin Collegiate of Oshawa, Kingston Collegiate and Bayview High School, Whitby are the other senior teams entered. Henry St. was the semi-finalists in the York University Christmas Tournament.

Four of the teams, BCI, Quinte, Nicholson Catholic College and Grilla District Collegiate are regarded as the better squads in the province.

Belleville's Nicholson won the annual Moira Secondary School Tournament, disposing of some excellent opposition in the process. BCI finished on top in a tournament held at Trenton High School.

Quinte is the defending Central Ontario Secondary School Association champion. Orillia owns the consolation title in a tourney staged at North Bay. And that event was for senior teams.

The juniors get the day started at 8 a.m. when BCI hooks up with Nicholson. Finals are tentatively scheduled for 7:30 p.m. (junior) and 9 p.m. (senior).

Each member of the championship teams will receive a trophy and there will be most valuable player awards for each division.

See today's calendar for first round schedules.

Stinson Construction Increases League Lead

Stinson Construction opened up a five-point lead at the top of the Quinte Hockey League standings last night and Cornerstone gained a share of second place as the result of wins posted in the loop's regular twin bill.

The Construction skaters now have 19 points after 14 games, that's five more than Belvedere and Cornerstone, deadlocked in the No. 2 spot. Reid's have nine points.

Six players shared the Stinson goals in the important win over Belvedere. Andy Prudden, Dwight Rathwell, Grant Sage, Kevin Allen, Dave Jones and Al Walker were the marksmen.

Prudden and Allen rounded out their point production with three assists each while Jones had a pair of helpers.

Replying for Belvedere were Paul Macklam, Larry Marshall, John Baker and Frank Pinder. Macklam, Marshall and Baker drew two assists apiece.

Only three minor penalties were handed out with the losers taking two of them.

Cornerstone also spread its scoring around to offset two goals each by Reid's Ted Waite and John Chalmers.

Tallying for the winners were Bruce Racicot, John Valvasori, Doug Jodoin, Bruce Cameron, Barry Pyear and Al Mott. Jodoin and Phil Meeks helped themselves to three assists each.

The losers drew six of the 10 minor penalties assessed.

Regional Meet For Judo Clubs

Hosting the host CFB Club for the event will be young judo hopefuls from Oshawa, Peterborough and Belleville. Picton may also be represented.

CFB Club instructors Sgt. Harold Quinn, Bill Sullivan and Sgt. Jerry Cote who dabbles in coaching, expect approximately 175 participants for the five-hour program.

The boys are classified according to age and weight for the competitions. Junior judo takes in the 8-15 age bracket.

While the North Side Recreation Centre will be the scene of intense activity for the participants, there will be plenty for the large group of officials to hang themselves with as well. Each event is presided over by a referee and two judges.

The competition gets under way at 11 a.m. and it is expected the action will close at about 4 p.m. Prior to the tournament there will be a referee's clinic.

Eskimos-Riders In a Rematch

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — The Canadian Football League announced Thursday an 18-game pre-season schedule to begin July 3 and including a July 5 rematch between Grey Cup finalists Ottawa Rough Riders and Edmonton Eskimos.

The schedule was released by CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur following meetings of the league general managers, held in conjunction with the annual American Football Coaches Association convention.

The schedule:

July 2—Hamilton at Montreal, Edmonton at B.C.

July 3—Ottawa at Calgary, Saskatchewan at Toronto.

July 4—Montreal at Winnipeg.

July 5 —Ottawa at Edmonton

July 8—B.C. at Hamilton.

July 9—Saskatchewan at Calgary.

July 10—B.C. at Ottawa, Winnipeg at Toronto.

July 13—Saskatchewan at Winnipeg.

July 16—Toronto at B.C.

McNickel And Hayes Co-leaders

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Artie McNickel had a surprise share of the top spot in the $150,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament, but he has no illusions about winning the title.

"I just hope I do a little better than I did the last time I was in this spot," said the obscure, curly-haired sophomore on the pro tour after a four under-par 67 Thursday gave him a tie for the first-round lead with rookie Mark Hayes.

The last time—and only previous occasion—the 26 year-old McNickle had been in this position was in the Southern Open last season.

He had an opening 67, blew to a 76 in the second round and finished 68th in a 69-man field.

He and Hayes, a shy, soft-spoken youngster from Chihuahua City, Mexico, is playing in only his fourth tour event, have a one-stroke edge over a closely bunched field that included eight of last year's top nine money-winners.

Tied with Sis were veteran Texans Miller Barber and Fred Marti, along with Paul Purtzer, Bob Wynn and Larry Wood.

Billy Casper and Tommy Aaron were at 70, and defending champion Bruce Crampton of Australia matched par 71 on the 6,709-yard Phoenix Country Club layout.

Ben Kern of London, Ont., had a 71 and Tom Weiskopf a 72.

Lee Trevino, making his first start of the year, didn't have a birdie in firing a four-over-par 75. Trevino must improve if he is to survive the cut to the top 70 scorers after today's round.

"No excuses," Trevino said. "I just played bad. I knew I was playing bad when I came here. But you have to start somewhere, don't you?"

Gloucester Routs Rockland

OTTAWA (CP) — Gloucester Rangers had a field day at the expense of Rockland Nationals Thursday, registering a 12-2 Central Junior Hockey League victory.

Gilbert Lecavalier, the league's leading scorer with 41 goals, was the only Rockland player to score in the game while Mike McDuffe, with three goals, scored four times to lead himself or Gloucester.

But he got top-goal assistance from Bryan Lamb, Dave Dicks and Marc Aubry and one-goal help from Jean Regan, Bob Hansen, Dan Anderson and John MacDougall.

The Nationals used two goalies to try and stem the tide with newcomer Gord Sack letting in the first six goals and Chris Kilcoyne the last seven as the Rangers outshot the Nationals 39-38.

Period scores in the rough game that featured three fights and a coach's misconduct were 2-1 and 9-3.

Next league action is tonight with Gloucester in Brockville against the Warriors and Pembroke Lumber Kings playing the Bears in Smith Falls.

Dick Williams' Farewell May Be Only Temporary

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dick Williams, manager of the two-time World Series champion Oakland Athletics, said at least a temporary farewell to baseball Thursday. He accepted a job as a top aide to Florida millionaire John D. MacArthur, financier and landowner.

Blocked by Oakland owner Charles O. Finley from taking over as field boss of New York Yankees, Williams vowed again he would not return to the Athletics to finish the remaining two years of his contract.

"I have been stymied," Williams said, appearing at a news conference with MacArthur. "Naturally I hate to get out of baseball for any time."

Williams said he would con-

Ivan Says Flyers May Have Arrived

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawks are in the unfamiliar role of pursuer instead of being chased in the West Division of the National Hockey League, but general manager Tommy Ivan says he thinks the club is doing well under the circumstances.

The silver-haired Ivan, soon to be 63, is quite proud of another phase with the Hawks, the team he took over nearly 30 years ago.

Most of the season the Hawks have been chasing Philadelphia Flyers, who not only have a two-point lead over Chicago but also have two games in hand.

That's not an alarming margin, but at this time of the season the Hawks usually are showing their heels to the rest of the division.

"I'd say we're as strong as we were a year ago," said Ivan. "Sure we're in second place but maybe Philadelphia is a lot stronger. How long does an expansion club receive expansion club? Forever?

"These teams have to catch up. As a result of our success we haven't had anything near a top draft choice for years and we've lost more, or as much, to the other league as they have to us.

"Everybody immediately thinks of guys like Bobby Hull, Pat Stapleton, Ralph Backstrom, Andre Lacroix, Dennis Campbell and Chris Bordeleau when they talk about our losses to the other league.

"But look here," said Ivan, picking up roster sheets, "there are 13 guys that left our

Jim Kiick Becomes A Dolphin Specialist

HOUSTON (AP) — It could come down to Larry Csonka versus Paul Warfield.

Csonka typifies Miami Dolphins, one-touchdown choice in Sunday's Super Bowl football game against Tarkenton's Minnesota Vikings.

The Dolphins are a basketish-like team, methodically wearing down the opposition, finding a play and sticking with it until somebody comes up with a way to stop it.

Nobody found a way to really stop Csonka in the 1972 National Football League schedule, rolling straight into the Dec. 16 clinching off the tackles, he gained 1,003 yards on 219 carries.

When the enemy decided to concentrate on Csonka, Mercury Morris went to work. With his waterbug speed and moves, he weaved his way for 954 yards on 149 runs.

To add to the running strength, the Dolphins have Jim Kiick.

In 1971, when Csonka gained 1,041 yards, Kiick had 766 and Morris 216. In 1973, Csonka had 1,003 yards; Morris flashed into the scene with 1,000 and Kiick shunted aside a bit, had 521.

This season, though, Kiick became more of a specialist—used in when the Dolphins faced a third-down and long situation or when they were within the vicinity of a touchdown.

Kiick was used not only as a runner—he finished with 327 yards—but also was a fine blocker and a dangerous short-yardage receiver. At the team's No. 3 receiver behind Morris and Csonka was Paul Warfield. Kiick caught 37 passes for 306 yards.

The Dolphins can put the ball in the air with the best of teams. Quarterback Bob Griese threw the ball 313 times this season, completing 116 for 1,422 yards and 17 touchdowns while having only eight intercepted.

"Warfield has an excellent chance at Sunday . . . we're not concerned about it," said Miami trainer Larry Gardner.

But coach Don Shula obviously is concerned.

"We can't afford to lose a player of that magnitude," he said.

If Warfield is unable to play, Howard Twilley, who usually is the fourth receiver, would start. Twilley caught two passes this season.

Griese was rated the No. 2 passer in the American Football Conference behind Ken Stabler of Oakland Raiders, whom the Dolphins beat for the AFC title while Tarkenton was No. 2 in the National Football Conference behind Roger Staubach of Dallas Cowboys, whom the Vikings beat for the NFC title.

Tarkenton was master of a thrower than Griese, connecting on 168 of 274 passes—61.7 per cent—for 2,113 yards and 15 touchdowns with seven interceptions.

Tarkenton is a scrambler, throwing opposing pass-rushers and defensive secondaries into a panic by darting around behind the line of scrimmage, then either unloading a timely pass at the last instant or breaking loose for a big gain and leaving a trail of weary would-be tacklers in his wake.

The Vikings spread their running attack around. Behind rookie Chuck Foreman, 801 yards, came Oscar Reed, 491, followed by Ed Marinaro, 362, Dave Osborn, 318, Bill Brown, 309, Tarkenton, with 232.

Tarkenton is mercilessly to fill the air with passes than Griese. His primary target is wide receiver John Gilliam, who caught 42 passes for 807 yards. But Tarkenton also goes to his backs a lot. Foreman and Marinaro combined for 66 receptions.

Bulls Are Ready If Bucks Slip

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The problem is old hat for Chicago, but if there's a vacancy in the leadership of the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division, the Bulls are ready to toss their hats in the ring.

"If Milwaukee stumbles and falters their last, we'll be there to pick it up," said Chicago coach Dick Motta, whose Bulls humbled Atlanta Hawks 118-104 Thursday night, but slip until the Bucks by three games.

In the American Basketball Association, New York Nets bounced San Antonio Spurs 105-94; Kentucky Colonels stunned Carolina Cougars 101-96; and San Diego Conquistadors edged Utah Stars 109-107.

Motta was happy with the way the Bulls played, especially centre Cliff Ray, but the fiery Chicago boss said he hoped if the city of Chicago was located somewhere else on the map.

Ray scored 18 points and had 17 rebounds.

LIONS MAUL MALMOE

MALMOE, Sweden (CP) — London Lions, a professional team made up of players from Canada, Sweden and the United States, easily handled Malmoe 7-2 in an exhibition hockey game played Thursday night.

Your Horoscope

Saturday, Jan. 12

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) Anything you are now doing whereby you're putting forth your best efforts will not go unrewarded. Be as productive as possible.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Planning a fun activity for today? Do it with friends who share your interests. Something worth exploring will later develop from this.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Something is afoot that will benefit your family as a unit. It may take a while for its full values to surface.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This is a good day for you to shore up a relationship of importance. An understanding arrived at now has far-reaching effects.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be called upon today to perform some extra work or service. Do it cheerfully—you'll profit from your willingness.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Contacts you make in social surroundings contain fringe benefits. Follow through on material propositions extended to you at this time.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You're more effective today in dealing with family problems if you allow another to think the suggestion you make are his ideas.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your words will carry a great deal of weight with friends today. You'll later learn your suggestions were valuable and appreciated.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions continue to look promising regarding an important goal. You're on firm ground, so build upon present foundations.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can begin to look a little ahead at this time. Give some thought to future planning. Think in optimistic terms.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Others tend to treat you favorably today. They're likely to grant you material aid if you need it most.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Your person-to-person relationships offer special advantages today. Partnerships or similar ties call for teamwork and cooperation are especially promising.

Business Facts Need To Be Told

REGINA (CP) — Businessmen must educate the public to understand the needs of business and the place to start is in the schools, says Ralph Purdy, executive director of the Employers' Association of Saskatchewan.

He says many people are critical of business without understanding how many costs a company must bear or how much profit it needs to be healthy.

"We've got to start working with the educators in the school systems so they have these subjects present in their classes."

In the United States, he says, businessmen have found that visits to the classroom have enhanced public understanding of the business viewpoint. Canadians should do the same.

"They should start to get into the schools, talk to the teachers, talk to the students, whoever they get an opportunity."

LISE CLERGY

American businessmen have also found value in hoisting seminars for clergymen, he said in an interview.

"There have thought leaders and if they understand the thing they wouldn't be preaching the same sort of nonsense from their pulpit."

Mr. Purdy said union leaders should also be in the classrooms to give students the labor viewpoint.

Mr. Purdy said it "primarily is government that is causing the rise in prices."

He quotes statistics which assert that the share of national income taken by governments has jumped from 17.9 per cent in 1926 to 45.75 per cent in 1970.

Business, he said, must make the public aware of such facts.

Lapps Fit On Reindeer Reflectors

SODANKYLA, Finland (Reuter) — Lapp herdsmen have started to fit their reindeer with reflectors in an attempt to cut down growing slock losses through road accidents.

Reindeer in five grazing districts near here—62 miles north of the Arctic Circle—are being fitted with traffic reflectors attached by a leather thong around their necks. The cost per animal is about $1.

Here in Europe's far north, daylight is down to a brief midday twilight in the winter months. The reverse—the midnight sun—comes only in the summer months.

In the long, dark winter the half-domesticated reindeer that traditionally draw Santa Claus's sleigh are being run down in thousands and causing serious economic loss to the none-too-wealthy Lapp owners.

The managing director of the Reindeer Growers' Association, Veikko Hotti-Hiltunen, said the reflector experiment is being carried out initially in the worst area for road deaths—along the main north-south artery, Highway 4.

Last winter some Lapps testpainted the horns of their animals with fluorescent paint. None of the painted reindeer died in road accidents, but the experiment was abandoned as the animals shed their horns once a year and this would call for annual repainting.

An agriculture and forestry ministry spokesman, Heikki Soomra, said he was pessimistic about reflectors being able to stop reindeer being hit by trains—another major hazard for the wandering herds.

"Several hundred head are killed by trains every year," he said. "This is more by far than are killed by bears."

Wolves, bear and wolverine are still found in the vast wastelands of Lapland, where the gentle reindeer roam in search of the Arctic lichens on which they feed.

It has also been proposed that Finland's elk—found wild throughout the country, except in the far north—should have reflectors fitted for traffic safety reasons.

Fatal crashes with suddenly emerging elk on the country's fast roads through dense pine forests are a common occurence. The 7-foot-tall animal, though not aggressive, is deadly when striking a passenger car.

But game experts say the elk, unlike the semi-tame reindeer, are unlikely to allow themselves to be marked or made easily visible for the wake of traffic safety.

Pape Restricted

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — School officials here fear a paper shortage is in the offing and have asked pupils to write on both sides of their paper and teachers to make more use of blackboards.

House Is Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons adjourned Friday until Feb. 25 but the Senate sits today, pondering its battle with the lower house over the controversial wiretap bill.

Adjournment of the elected house came after its approval of the emergency energy bill, and effectively ends the session which began Jan. 4, 1973. For technical reasons, the government decided to adjourn, rather than prorogue.

The adjournment motion allows a quick recall of MPs in case of an emergency and provides for a routine recall for a royal assent ceremony expected next week. Official prorogation likely will be Feb. 28, followed by a throne speech the next day beginning a new session with an outline of the government's new legislative plans.

The energy bill, with sweeping powers to cope with fuel shortages, was the last item the government insisted on dealing with before the end of the session.

Once it received final Commons approval, parliamentary attention shifted to the appointed senators who debated what to do with the wiretap bill, returned to them by the lower house after rejection of a Senate amendment.

Liberal senators indicated they are willing to pass the bill in the form the Commons insists on, but they joined other senators in saying the upper house has the right and responsibility to amend bills passed by the Commons.

A special Senate sitting was scheduled for today to give senators a chance to debate their position. The house then is removed earlier provides for notification of the subjects of wiretaps within 90 days of removal of the bug.

The bill bans private bugging and restricts police use of taps. Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the upper house, said Friday the bill is too important to be scuttled by Senate insistence on its amendment.

His comments came in a rare Friday night Senate session, long after the Commons adjourned following passage of the energy bill, the last major bill considered during the unusually long Commons session.

Five Remanded

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Five persons charged in connection with the seizure of 2,000 pounds of hashish at Toronto International Airport earlier this week appeared in provincial court Friday.

All five are charged with conspiracy to import cannabis.

Linda Hope Martyniuk, 23, and Stephen Charles Assaff, 29, both of Toronto were remanded in custody to Jan. 16—for bail hearing.

Robert Wilson Rowbotham, 24, of Beaton, Ont., David Maitner Crispo, 28, of Mississauga, Ont., and Carl Fredrick Minor, 21, of Toronto were released on a total of $15,000 bail. They are also to appear in court Jan. 16.

The five were arrested Jan. 8, following a three-week surveillance of a "number of arrangements" which arrived by air from Lebanon.

Good Year for Phonies

OTTAWA (CP) — Counterfeiters had a big year in 1973 and the $50 and $100 denominations became their stock in trade, RCMP figures show. Statistics compiled by a special RCMP section show that almost $2 million in phoney Canadian and United States currency was passed and seized last year.

Spanish Only

ACAPULCO, Mexico (Reuter) — Ismael Hernandez, mayor of this holiday resort, has ordered shops to remove signs in English and replace them with ones in Spanish. He told reporters the widespread use of English in the resort is alienating Mexican holiday-makers who do not speak the language. Nightclub entertainers also were told to start speaking to their audience in Spanish.

USC Over the Top

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unitarian Service Committee USC overshot its 1973 fund-raising target and raised $2,250,974 last year, executive director Lotta Hitschmanova reports. The 1973 target of $1,975,000 was the largest target ever set since the organization was formed more than 28 years ago, Dr. Hitschmanova said.

Gales Batter Britain

LONDON (AP) — Britain's western and southern coasts were battered for the second straight day today by freak storms with winds of up to 90 miles an hour. The Coast Guard said the gales raged along the English and Welsh west coasts all through the night, causing roads to be blocked by rocks and uprooted trees.

Honeymoon in Jail

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — Two men, married Friday in a double ceremony in this community 20 miles north of Toronto, spent their wedding nights in jail. As the two couples emerged from the church, a squad of detectives from the York regional police department arrested them. Wayne Patrick Taylor, 21, and John Arthur Burdin, 20, were charged with breaking, entering and theft.

Sextuplets Fine

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (CP) — Doctors have predicted a good chance of survival for three boys and three girls born Friday to a 25-year-old woman. The sextuplets are spending the critical first 60 hours of life in incubators, handfed as little as possible and fed intravenously.

Islamic Republic Will Form

BULLETIN

TUNIS (AP) — Presidents Moammar Khadafy of Libya and Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia decided today to unite their countries into one republic with a single president, it was announced here.

The announcement said the new republic will be called the Arab Islamic Republic and will have only one government and one constitution.

A referendum to approve the decision was set for Jan. 18, the announcement added.

Fuel Tanks Empty Quickly

DETROIT (AP) — An abnormally cold Michigan winter is emptying oil dealers' tanks faster than anticipated, the Michigan Petroleum Association says.

The association said Friday dealers could begin feeling the pinch as early as next week.

If a shortage hits, the state would have to put into effect the federal government's mandatory heating oil and diesel fuel allocation regulations.

The regulations allow the state to assign fuel from the three per cent of fuel dealers must set aside monthly for such cases.

Pipeline Route Request Made

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The Sudbury regional council has sent a telegram urging the federal cabinet to give top priority to an oil pipeline from the west through northeastern Ontario.

The telegram, addressed to Prime Minister Trudeau, said a pipeline through this area would provide an excellent economic stimulus.

Regional chairman Don Collins said a route through northwestern Ontario, to Sault Ste. Marie, might result in processing facilities being constructed in this area.

Waste Heats Vegetables

EDMONTON (CP) — Provincial horticulturists hope to turn waste heat into vegetables. The heat, from a coal-fired generating station on the northeast shore of Lake Wabamun, 30 miles west of here, will be blown into a greenhouse for growing trials on cucumbers, tomatoes, lettuce, onions and other vegetables, flowers and bedding plants.

U.S. Problems Cross Border
Distribution Key To Oil 'Crisis'

Three men representing both industry and government in Canada agreed Friday in separate statements that there is no real energy shortage in this country.

David Collier, president of General Motors of Canada Ltd., told a Halifax news conference there is no energy crisis and the problem is one of logistics, not of shortages.

In Ottawa, F. R. Fenton, president of the Canadian Automobile Association (CAA), said there is no gasoline shortage, just higher prices.

And in Winnipeg, Sidney Spivak, leader of Manitoba's Progressive Conservative Opposition, said his first thought in preparing his party's energy policy is there is no energy shortage in Canada.

At the Halifax news conference, Mr. Collier said GM and the rest of the Canadian automobile industry will recover from the slump caused by United States energy problems as soon as Canada overcomes the problem of distributing energy supplies equally in this country.

The market for new cars in Canada is still good and current shutdowns by Canadian plants should end when the Canadian energy picture is adjusted, the GM president said.

Mr. Fenton said in his statement that a recent survey of 235 service station owners across Canada showed no shortages, but revealed price differences as much as 15 cents a gallon between the eastern and western provinces.

"It has become apparent that the energy crisis in Canada is not affecting our gas pumps anywhere near as much as our pocket-books," he said.

Part of the reason for the disparity between eastern and western gasoline prices is higher provincial taxes in the east, he added.

In Winnipeg, Mr. Spivak said Canada should help its southern neighbor. Last Canada "should not be subject to the vagaries imposed on the marketplace by other governments."

He said Manitoba PCs are working on an energy policy statement to be issued prior to the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa later this month.

In British Columbia, Premier Dave Barrett met with Washington state officials in the wake of a ruling from the National Energy Board in Ottawa that B.C. has the right to raise by $1 per cent, the price of natural gas exported to that state.

B.C. raised is price last October to 61 cents per thousand cubic feet from 33 cents for gas sold to El Paso Natural Gas Co., for distribution in Washington, but El Paso refuted to pay the higher price and now is $8 million in arrears.

B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said El Paso now has no choice but to pay its arrears.

In other developments:

—Nova Scotia Premier Gerald Regan said construction of an oil pipeline to the East Coast is urgently needed for a national energy policy;

—Premier Richard Hatfield New Brunswick said his government wants to establish a major East Coast petroleum storage point at Saint John in conjunction with an eastern extension of Canadian pipelines. He said he intends to press the issue for an early start to pipeline construction at the federal-provincial conference;

—In Edmonton, Glen Chambers, chief organizer of the 1974 World Fair in Spokane, Wash., told a news conference Americans are being advised to drive through Canada en route to the fair to avoid gasoline supply problems in the U.S.;

—Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney's office announced the premier will speak in Toronto Monday morning concerning energy before he goes to the federal-provincial conference.

Holland Begins To Ration Gas

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The Netherlands, the only European country under an Arab oil embargo, began to ration gasoline today in an attempt to conserve fuel.

Sweden initiated a mild form of rationing earlier in the week, and Norway will begin a four-tier rationing system Jan. 25.

Most Western European countries continue to rely on reduced speed limits and Sunday driving bans to cut gas consumption, but Britain and Switzerland are known to have contingency rationing plans ready.

Dutch motorists will get 16 gallons of gasoline each month for private use, with business driving allotments based on 75 per cent of 1972 mileage totals. Motorcycles with engines bigger than 50cc can draw up to 8.4 gallons per month, while those under 50cc will be allowed unlimited gas.

Gasoline Not Short Says CAA Report

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no gasoline shortage in Canada, according to a recent survey, but the price motorists pay per gallon can vary as much as 15 cents between the eastern and western provinces.

"It has become apparent that the energy crisis in Canada is not affecting our gas pumps anywhere nearly as much as our pocket-books'," F. R. Fenton, president of the Canadian Automobile Association (CAA), said Friday.

After contacting 225 service station owners across the country the CAA found Alberta has the lowest prices—a gallon of regular gas costs 52 cents there, but in eastern Quebec the same amount costs over 67 cents.

Part of the reason for this disparity, said Mr. Fenton, is higher provincial taxes in the east.

Generally motorists east of the Ottawa Valley line pay at least 10 cents more a gallon than those on the Prairies.

B.C. and western Ontario are about the same at 57.9 and 58.3 cents respectively while a regular gallon in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia is up to 65.and 66 cents. The figures were regaged for Newfoundland. The CAA has no branches in that province.

The CAA report also found that service station owners in Canada do not anticipate any gasoline shortages in the near future.

Ontario Viceroy A Woman?

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Ontario's next lieutenant-governor will probably be a woman, the first to occupy a viceregal post in Canada.

In an Ottawa dispatch, the newspaper quotes Liberal sources as saying Prime Minister Trudeau's office is conducting a search and compiling a list of candidates for the position.

The successful candidate would succeed Ross Macdonald, 82, who has served as lieutenant-governor since July 4, 1968.

Kissinger Says Speed Essential

From AP-REUTER

U.S. officials travelling with Henry Kissinger say he thinks only quick progress in negotiations will preserve the Middle East ceasefire, and they are hopeful his latest diplomatic assault will get results.

The U.S. state secretary arrived in Egypt Friday and met for an hour at the resort city of Aswan with President Anwar Sadat. He is to meet with Israeli officials tonight in Jerusalem following his working lunch with Sadat today.

Those travelling with Kissinger said he is prepared to shuttle between Egypt and Israel to work out a settlement. He will return to Washington after his talks with Israeli leaders.

U.S. officials said he wanted to be back in Washington Wednesday but might make short visits to the Syrian and Jordanian capitals before returning home.

A high U.S. official said Friday the United States regards Syria's retention of Israeli war prisoners a major impediment to a permanent settlement, and has appealed to the Soviet Union to help convince Syria to release them. He said Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev had promised such an effort earlier.

Opener Stands Up

Belleville Bobcats' top scorer, Jim Richardson, opened the scoring in last night's Metro Junior B game against the Wexford Warriors, as he skated in on a breakaway to beat Wexford's goalie, Darrel McNeil. The goal put Belleville ahead and from that point on that's where they stayed. Belleville won the contest 8-4 and the victory kept them just two points behind first place Pickering Panthers in the league standings. For story, see Page 11.

Oil Tanks Ablaze

PORT NECHES, Tex. (AP) — Three huge oil storage tanks still were blazing early today, but firemen said they had contained the inferno and that it had threatened to consume a large petrochemical complex.

Earthen levees built around the fire zone by firemen and rainy weather were credited with preventing a major catastrophe.

Only one person was injured in Friday's blaze, started when lightning sparked a fire in one of the tanks early Friday. Heat generated by the fire ruptured a second tank and bubbling crude oil spread, carrying the fire to other tanks.

There are forty-six tanks at the farm.

The burning tanks are about a mile from the Neches River, which brings ocean-going tankers to this petroleum processing area.

Mobil officials said no estimate of damage can be made until the fire is extinguished.

Belleville WINTER CARNIVAL

Oops! It Won't Last That Long

Anyone eyeing this trainer over Belleville's Lower Bridge might think BIBLE CONFERENCE the city's upcoming winter carnival lasts longer than a year. Not so, says Jaycee organizer George White. Banners at both city bridges are dated Jan. 30-Feb. 3. Carnival lasts Jan. 30-Feb. 2. Error wasn't discovered till signs were flown. Getting them changed means calling out fire department ladder crew - - even if new banners could be ready on time.

Control Going To the Dogs?

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — Staunch defenders of the taxpayer's dollar in many a debate, town councillors seem to have a blind spot when the issue is animal control.

When dogs running at large became a problem in Picton, council voted to hire Stirling resident Donald Tucker as poundkeeper and dogcatcher. Mr. Tucker was to receive $2,000 for a year's service to patrol the town regularly collecting strays.

The animal control officer has received $2,000 for his work in 1973. But dogs continue to roam town streets singly and in packs, tearing garbage bags and toasting green house shrubs planted on front lawns.

Because Mr. Tucker lives in Stirling his response to complaints relayed by town police cannot be immediate. Therefore, a delinquent canine that must be impounded at once is taken to the Picton Animal Hospital. The taxpayer must also pay the hospital's charge for boarding the stray until he is picked up by the dog catcher, or otherwise disposed of.

Mr. Tucker's failure to noticeably reduce the roving dog population is scarcely his fault.

He is handicapped by living far out of town.

If town council is to solve, or at least improve, the problem of pets at large, realism is step one.

A man who resides in Stirling cannot give the regular patrol and immediate response to complaints required. Many Picton residents when questioned say that they have never seen the patrol wagon. Other say they have seen it "once or twice."

Picton is receiving such a subtle dog catching service that even the canines at large cannot feel its presence.

If taxpayers are to contribute to a $2,000 salary for an animal control officer it seems unfair to also tax them to pay for the services of a local animal hospital.

When Mr. Tucker's contract with the town comes up for review this year, hopefully, councillors will consider the extravagance of paying for what is almost a non-existent service in Picton.

One of council's major problems has been a difficulty in finding a local person interested in the job of animal control officer. Since Mr. Tucker was hired at least two Prince Edward residents have expressed interest.

Council should take a closer look at the need for animal control in Picton by over-all assessment of the problem.

On certain streets where there are few pet owners perhaps there are no dogs at large. On other streets, where some families own one or more dogs, there may be packs on the loose.

If council has detected a decrease in the number of complaints about dogs at large this year it is probably because residents when questioned say that they have never seen the patrol wagon. Other say they have seen it "once or twice."

Snowmobiles On the Streets

By COLIN BRUCE

I'm not the kind of person that complains much. I like snow when it's not on the roads. And I can grin and bear the kids that run through my apartment building as a short cut on the away to school. But I hate snowmobiles.

Trenton seems to take a little more liberal attitude towards the snowmobiler. Aside from the "major arteries" the rider may aim his machine along any number of the town's residential streets.

They're noisy, smelly and disturbing vehicles that to me are reminiscent of Ben Hur's chariot and the kid next door's hotrod.

Like small children and bicycle riders there's a time and a place. Dashing down the middle of the street in the middle of the night is neither.

I'm not in my recriminations of the snow machine. Forty minutes after the first snowfall, Trenton police department received its first complaint and it didn't come from me.

Even some free-thinking snowmobilers have confided in a whisper that their friends are loose upstairs driving on the streets.

Everyone has the right to do his "thing", but not when it ruins the comfort of others.

While buying a Christmas tree I found myself in a sporting goods shop which at the time was specializing in the snowmobile accessories. Firstly, I couldn't talk the dealer into three dollars by a five dollar tree. Secondly I lost my verbal battle with a snowmobile.

Two men ganged up on me. They agreed the streets were the wrong place for the machines, then they told me how to see Quinte country like its never been seen before.

The story goes that snowmobilers buy aerial maps of the Quinte north country and go out and explore it. All this takes place far away from the maddening crowds of the urban areas.

A great idea. Now let's get the rest of the machines off the streets. We have enough problems with cars without adding the ingredient of the unprotected.

As a couple of final notes, frustrated drivers in the United States have pulled guns on gas station attendants, begged for more than the $2 allocation and hitchhiked home to fuel the family car.

A few year ago police departments across the province tested motorcycles with hand meters. If the muffler was too noisy, off came the license plate.

If the police haven't lost the meters, let's get them out of the packing crates and test a few snow machines. I'd be interested in knowing how dad's snow machine stacks up against Junior's motorcycles.

Masons Get New Officers

Some 120 lodge members and visitors were present for the installation and investiture of the officers of Ventnor Masonic Lodge last week.

The ceremony was conducted by George Flower, assisted by a number of past masters, who installed Ronald Buskard as grand master.

Other officers installed were past master, George Mountain; senior warden, George McQueen; junior warden, Gerald Cherry; chaplain, Murray Coles; treasurer, Dick De Boer; secretary, Earl G. Price; senior deacon, Harold Bankier; junior deacon, Rick Verrall; inner guard, Dennis Dorrington; ceremonies director, Harry G. Birkenshaw; senior steward, Earl McConnell; junior steward, Henry Van; organist, Thomas Fraser; tyler, Fred Carrealine; assistant secretary, Charles Huffman; auditors, Harold Bankier, R. Dalmage; historian, M. R. Davidson.

SMITH — Suddenly at the Trenton Memorial Hospital on Friday, January 4th, 1974, Lorne Wesley Smith, 43 Queen St., Trenton. Beloved husband of Mrs. Ruth Smith. Dear father of Pamela Ann, at home. Dear son of Thomas Smith, Brighton, and Mrs. Reginald Ireland, Ivanhoe. Also survived by his sister.

Friends are invited to call at the Ketcham Funeral Home, Trenton. Service in the Funeral Home, Monday, Jan. 14 at 2 p.m. Major C. F. Sylvester officiating. 2-1-37

Lakes Safer

Entombment at Trenton Evergreen Cemetery.

Snowfalls this week have made for good-to-excellent snowmobiling and skiing conditions.

Rev. David Hawkins with Anniversary Plate

Carrying Place Church Marking 150th Birthday

It's only one detail of the program the busy Anglican priest has been plotting in the past year celebrating the 150th anniversary of St. John's church here.

Pittsburg, the church with a fascinating past and active present, it's a calendar event been confirmed by participation of high church dignitaries.

Bishop J. B. Creeggan of Kingston leads the first service this Sunday. He will be followed through the year by various bishops, including Archbishop E. W. Scott, Anglican primate of Canada and Archbishop William Wright, Metropolitan of Toronto.

It's the kind of attention Mr. Hawkings and his congregation have been hoping for since they went to work on anniversary plans. They also feel it's merited.

"After 139 years, I think people should know of such an event," says Mr. Hawkins, the church's 30th pastor.

Physically and spiritually, St. John's is a Quinte landmark. As a pioneer mission on the strategic Indian Carrying Place passage, linking the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario, it fostered congregations in later district settlements.

It's more of history than rural churches have been disappearing, it still remains an active centre of community worship.

It's future promises to be even more energetic, believes its rector.

Mr. Hawkins — particularly in this anniversary year — is proof that a country pastorate is not necessarily a placid charge. His parish of Keene also includes Wellington and Ameliasburgh, organized since his appointment in 1971.

Churches like St. John's have still valid community roles, he says. And they have survived into a time when the switch to country living is increasing rural populations and opening new perspectives for small community churches.

A native Briton and member of the Royal Air Force before coming to Canada and taking holy orders, Mr. Hawkins admits being "saddened" at the decreased number of country churches. In recent times, declining congregations of various denominations saw the sale, even demolition, of country churches.

Such moves he feels could prove premature as the trend to country life continues.

Keene parish counts about 140 families; approximately one third are centred on St. John's.

St. John's, he says, has "a lot of potential for the future — to match its past."

Credit for its historic start goes to an Irish cleric, John Grier, who travelled throughout Prince Edward County, to meet the religious needs of early settlers. As the only clergyman once he had the melancholy task of conducting his infant daughter's funeral.

The present St. John's was built in 1865. What happened to the first edifice is a mystery since there are no records. Fire is accepted as the likliest answer.

Former Parishioners Invited to Return

CARRYING PLACE— One-time parishioners of historic St. John's Anglican church here are being invited to return for participation in its 150th anniversary.

Rev. David Hawkins, who served at Belleville's Christ Church before becoming St. John's 30th rector, says many natives of this area have been widely scattered during the years.

Queensboro

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Franklin spent New Year's evening with Mr. and Mrs. William Franklin and family in Hevsclock.

Mrs. John Wright and Margaret and Mrs. Fred Holmes of Madoc visited with Mrs. William Lynn on the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Mc-Choicock of Marmora visited Mr. and Mrs. C.A. McMullen on the weekend.

Mrs. John Alexander Sr., Has spent some time with her daughter Mrs. Harry Fry in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson visited Mr. and Mrs. John Moore on the weekend.

But some likely still live elsewhere in the Quinte district.

"We've no way of finding out who or where they are. But they're most welcome to join us for various special events during the year."

Among these:

Congregational anniversary party, Canterbury Hall, Trenton, Jan. 12, 8 p.m.

Opening anniversary service with Ontario Bishop J.B. Creeggan, Kingston, Jan. 13, 11 a.m.

Folk Mass, April 28, 3:15 p.m.

Archbishop E. W. Scott, Anglican Primate, will attend a harvest service Oct. 6.

QUINTE COUNTRY

Sought Solitude, Founded Village

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

WELLINGTON — Prince Edward's "story book" village, Wellington, reportedly claims the oldest house in the county.

Built by fur trader Daniel Reynolds around 1795, the stone home stands on Main Street opposite the Wellington Consolidated School. The tranquil and scen'c community nestled by Lake Ontario provides the ideal setting for this pioneer building.

One account of the history of the Reynolds home states that its owner was the first white settler in the Wellington area. He was a trapper and fur-trader who had lived in Albany, New York, and came to Canada because he felt population growth in his community was driving game away. It is reported that Reynolds eventually decided to settle in permanent headquarters on the shores of Lake Ontario where Wellington today is located.

The fur trader's first dwelling was a log cabin constructed in an area where Indians hunted.

Although the Indians initially resented his presence, his knowledge of the woods and trapping won respect. When Reynolds later decided to build a stone house the tribe's chief enlisted his followers to help the white man.

The fur trader directed the Indians as they carried stone from the lakeshore. Limestone rock was piled with driftwood and burned to make mortar for the walls.

It is speculated that the glass used for the windows was the first in Ontario. It was brought direct from Albany.

When Reynolds had completed his house he returned wife 15-year-old Nancy Watt. Back in their Canadian forest home they raised six sons and two daughters during a long marriage.

One report has Reynolds fighting in the American Revolution, serving as an officer with the American forces. When the war ended he returned to his home on British soil.

In 1792 the Simcoes were travelling from Kingston on the Danforth Road enroute to Newark, then the seat of government for the new Upper Canada. Bad weather forced the Simcoes to shelter at Reynolds' home.

For Lady Simcoe what was planned as an overnight stop became a six-weeks visit. She fell ill with "fever and ague" and was forced to stay behind under the care of the Reynolds family.

Yet, Daniel Reynolds, again grew restless even in his new home.

After the second family of settlers arrived in the vicinity he said that the area was becoming too crowded and felt he should move on.

Gradually, more settlers built homes in the community pioneered by Reynolds who had been dubbed "Old Smoke" because of his friendship with the Indian Chief Smoke.

The nickname given the Indians by their white friend prompted the christening of the settlers as a "Smokeville". The name stuck until the Wellington post office was opened.

Dan'el Reynolds died in 1826 but the stone house he so proudly built remains a county landmark.

Its walls are two feet thick and a basement extends under the whole floor area of the house. Originally, it is assumed that this basement was divided into three rooms.

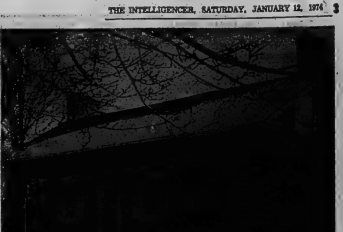
Eighteen inch square timbers embedded in the walls were used to support the floor. Floor boards were fastened with wooden pins.

Through the years the Reynolds house has changed hands many times. Its present owners, Mrs. Harry Robinson, has occupied it for almost 30 years and says that she is very proud of owning it."

A retired school teacher, Mrs. Robinson was living in Welland when she first saw the Reynolds house. She has come to view real estate properties in Prince Edward when, by chance, she noticed the historic settler's homestead.

Mrs. Robinson is interested in the history of the house and eager to preserve it as it was built. The building was covered with yellow stucco when she first saw it. But she was sure the original stone could be revealed.

The stucco was removed. Today the exterior looks much as it must have when Daniel Reynolds arrived there with his bride.



Inside, there are still three fireplaces, one in the basement and two on the first floor.

Wellington, a village of approximately 1,000 residents today might seem too crowded for Daniel, who apparently enjoyed the solitude of the forests.

For many retired persons, such as Mrs. Robinson, it is an ideal community featuring attractions such as a lake side park, graceful old homes, historic public buildings and a modern business section.

Younger residents also enjoy the quiet streets and the view of the lake.

"Smokeville", now Wellington, seems to have progressed without outgrowing a past that lives in pioneer homes such as Daniel Reynolds home.

City's Future

Rome, as we all know, was not built in a day and while Belleville (admitedly in a very different sort of league) has shown tangible growth within quarter it is still in the midst of the slow process of evolution which is the lot of communities everywhere.

Looking ahead to what Belleville will be like in say 1984 we can but only guess, for while there are signs and portents, and there is Mayor Robin Jeffrey for one envisaging the broad concept of a larger Belleville merged with other surrounding municipalities, the actual shape of things to come, and specifically the exact nature of what lies ahead is far from having achieved concrete form.

Mayor Jeffrey, in her address to the first council meeting of the year, and speaking to Rotary earlier, had some warnings and suggestions.

The technalities of progress for instance are formidable, wrapped as they are in native caution and red tape. As Mrs. Jeffrey put it, "we have to depend on the other two levels of government to endorse our priorities and take up the slack . ." She went on to express agreement with a statement in the current issue of Maclean's Magazine: "The cities face the crisis, the province has the jurisdiction and Ottawa has the money."

Another problem, she said, is the pattern of urban development outside city limits. And here perhaps is the crux of her message: "What we are seeing is a piecemeal approach to development — strip development which can only be serviced at a tremendous cost to the future taxpayers. While our city is trying to plan growth and match housing assesment with industrial and commercial assesment we are being surrounded by urban single family units with no balance in housing types or matching industrial and commercial assesment. According to predictions for the future people will continue to be attracted to urban settings. The future depends on how successful we are in changing and adapting the fragmented political approach of today to the task ahead. . ."

* * *

As to the immediate future and the role of citizens, Mayor Jeffrey suggested service clubs might get together in a project for the city's centennial celebrations in 1978. We have seen what Kingston has done for its 300th anniversary, with among other presentations a re-enactment of the arrival of Count Frontenac, and while our local history is of more recent vintage it is of no less significance in terms of community pride.

A historic pageant based on Belleville's early years, with Captain John Meyers as the principal figure, is something that should be considered. Perhaps there is scope here for the Theatre Guild, as well as citizens at large.

Four years though is a comparatively short time and planning is something that cannot be long delayed. This is a matter for the Chamber of Commerce, the planning and co-ordinating body.

* * *

But to return to the future of this and other urban communities, Ald. Arthur Keegan had a useful idea when he told Rotarians that scientific and technical people should be sitting down now and considering what limits should be placed upon city growth. How big, he asked, is the ideal community. Is it a place of 100,000 population or 200,000?

As Ald. Keegan points out, with this information determined, the task of planners could be made so much easier, where schools, hospitals and so on are concerned.

Another aspect of city growth — and it is one that has been the subject of some controversy here — is high-rise apartment complexes. We have heard the arguments as to their location, the conflict with traditional architecture, as well as the sense of alienation and long-term potential for crime and traffic difficulties. The other day we heard of another hazard, and it had to do with a rise in tuberculosis in Toronto. A doctor was quoted as saying that when people were placed in "mausoleums in the sky" and did not eat or live right then this kind of thing could be expected.

* * *

So there are many factors to be considered in the growth of the city and these are but a few. Belleville has experienced progress, but it has not all been as well thought out as might be expected. If we can benefit from the mistakes of the past the city's future should be bright.

Country's Economy At Low Ebb

Heath In Battle To The Finish With British Unions

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Services
Britain's tough-minded Prime Minister Edward Heath is determined to see out his policy of no pay hikes for the coal miners even if it takes until the end of the year, or longer.

By then, the way events are moving, Britain, seat of successive economic crises since the end of the war, will really be on its last legs. Horrendous estimates of as many as three million unemployed to equal the early 1930s are now being made.

And Britain is the only nation in modern industrial history which has resorted to the three-day week to conserve energy resources. The energy shortage in Britain is not as much the one caused by reductions in British oil imports from Arab suppliers as it is from the coal miners' refusal to work overtime.

About 70 per cent of Britain's industrial and consumer power comes from coal. This is a staggering absolute bearing in mind the last lega. Horrendous estimates of as many as three million unemployed to equal the early 1930s are now being made.

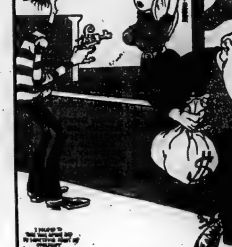
And Britain is the only nation in modern industrial history

nothing to solve the present crisis. According to Prime Minister Heath and his followers only sticking to their policy of no wage increases will do it. According to the prime minister's political opponents and critics within the party, only an election or a Heath backing down will do it.

This column has previously supported and praised Ted Heath as a positive and tough leader, the kind the British all too often needed in their recent past but rarely elected.

In facing up to the miners, about the worst paid industrial workers in Britain, and in the context of other mounting crises, chiefly the Arab oil boycotts, Ted Heath's necessary hard line is facing the supreme test.

When he says it's either the British government or the miners who will be running Britain he is right. The coal miners' wage increases must come and such essentials as new declarations of job financials in the coal industry must be made, but not in the framework of trying to unseat the Tories.



In all the gloom and doom reporting about the British—which must be made because the country is in deep trouble—it should also be recorded that Mr. Heath's wages and price control policies have been successful to date.

They put the necessary clamps on inflation, which though it hasn't diminished radically, was destroying Britain's vital export markets. Much of the positive results have gone with the 'work slowdown and the reduced export production.

Where Ted Heath may have to bridge-build rather quickly is with the resident and expatriate management of British branch plants of United States multinationals. Some of them are thinking out loud about pulling out of Britain altogether.

Metric System Password Of New Generation

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Talk about today's generation gap—by 1985, adolescents leaving school will know no other measuring system than metrics, while a good many oldsters will still be trying to tell a litre from a degree celsius.

Children now moving to the secondary level will have to become competence in handling both measurement systems."

Canadians whose formal education is behind them can do as they please. There is nothing compulsory about the switch to metrics.

But if you are in business, you don't have much choice but to come to terms with the metric system of measurement—the system based on multiples of ten that is used in the majority of countries outside North America.

Some Canadians have already come to terms. Toothpaste and other pharmaceuticals have been sold in metric sizes since 1972, and hospital dispensaries are well along in their internal conversion.

Gossage, who rose through the ranks of the Canadian Pacific Railway's bureaucracy before launching his second career, recruited representatives of a wide range of industries and other fields of human activity to serve as his metric commission.

Then he set his commissioners to work, drawing up plans to persuade those in their particular field to accept metrication and to prepare the necessary groundwork for conversion.

This has necessarily involved close co-ordination with similar efforts in the United States, where a bill providing for a non-mandatory conversion over a 10-year period is making favorable progress through Congress.

The Canadian government's course has been to issue a policy statement supporting metrification in January, 1970, and to establish the metric commission later, 1971. Its assigned task: To plan and co-ordinate the conversion.

With the support of "sector committees" from major companies and industrial associations, the commissioners are getting down to the nuts and bolts (which, like other small hardware items, will be designated in mill metres rather than in fractions of an inch).

The objective will be to achieve industry-wide agreements on conversion units, and establish a timetable for conversion (so that individual firms, suppliers and customers may keep in step).

Some plans at large—as opposed to those who shop for it—have already got the confronted with metrics in their daily lives in April, 1975. That's when—the metric commission hopes—the media will start to report temperatures in degrees celsius. (On that scale, water freezes at 0 degrees and will vaporize, or 32 degrees fahrenheit).

A few months later, they are to start reporting precipitation and snowfall in millimetres, visibility in kilometres, and wind speeds in kilometres per hour.

Speed limits will be similarly designated on street and highway signs beginning in September, 1977.

Gossage concedes that there will be problems, but prefers to stress opportunities—"a chance in a lifetime to rationalize and stimulate deadwood."

LIP... OFY Programs Under Fire

Work Ethic Has Been Jeopardized According To NDP's Max Saltsman

By JOHN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Local Initiatives Program (LIP), Opportunities for Youth (OFY) and unemployment insurance all are failures because they are based on imported ideas foreign to Canadian traditions, says New Democrat Max Saltsman.

Mr. Saltsman (Waterloo Cambridge) says the three programs do not achieve their goals of improving social well-being.

They are based, he says, on the concept of an individualistic, no-work society, or in other words, "extreme liberlarization in sharp contrast to Canadian traditions." And, they all contributed to a loss of social responsibility.

LIP and OFY used government grants to provide local projects of all kinds. The youth projects provide mainly summer projects, while LIP operates chiefly in the winter months.

Mr. Saltsman says many of the projects are of no use and some that are of value duplicate the work of existing institutions.

He cites an OFY project which produced talking books for the blind. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind had been trying for years to obtain funds in the same purpose.

"The CNIB probably could have done it for one-tenth the cost," says Mr. Saltsman.

Often, the OFY grants are middle-class giveaways that allow university students to "make up their own jobs."

"How many of us wouldn't like the opportunity to develop our own job?"

He would scrap the L.I.P. and OFY programs and give the money to existing institutions. He also favors an overhaul of the unemployment insurance program.

He says the existing unemployment plan is not an insurance plan, but rather a case of steady workers and efficient industries subsidizing inefficient industry and seasonal workers. He suggested the program be run on the same lines as workmen's compensation plans under which high-risk industries pay high premiums.

He does not blame people for cheating on unemployment insurance benefits, but he does blame the plan for making cheating possible and sometimes necessary. Many people used it as a supplementary income because they worked in seasonal jobs.

He also suggests that maternity benefits should be removed from the plan. Pregnancy was not a sickness and rarely was an accident.

Maternity benefits should be made universal, like the old-age pension or family allowances, he said. It was unfair to pay them only to women able to complete the minimum eight weeks work necessary to allow them to draw unemployment or maternity benefits.

"We've got to get away from this no-work concept. There's going to be lots of work around forever and technology won't do away with it.

Bridge Street United Church had its beginning early in the 19th century. In 1818, a Society was organized out of which came Pinnacle Street Methodist Church, in 1817. Belleville circuit was organized, Rev. Israel Chamberlain being its first minister. In 1818 the first church was built on the west side of Pinnacle Street, a small frame building. In 1831 this church was removed and a new one erected by Benjamin Holcheson J. P. In 1847 the building was enlarged and belfry and spire were added. In 1861 Senator Honorable B l l l y Flint gave the lot at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets, to the congregation and the cornerstone of the new church (Bridge Street Church) was laid May 24, 1864. The church was dedicated the next year. It was destroyed by fire in January 1886. It was rebuilt and dedicated in May 1887, Rev. Dr. A. Carman officiating and Rev. John Potts preached the dedicatory sermon.

40 YEARS AGO

January 12, 1934.

Mayor Geo. D. Tice and Police Magistrate W.C. Mikel, K.C., were guest speakers at the opening of the Kinsmen Club yesterday.

50 YEARS AGO

January 12, 1924.

Music held sway at the Rotary Club luncheon today when an orchestra led by Belleville talent delighted the members with a fine program. Dr. Haffner, Sandy Burrows, Fred Burke, James Bonner, and Harold Barrett sang, with Prof. Hunt as accompanist. Chairman Scott thanked the artists.

Ontario's Debt

Deficit Financing: Is This A Disaster Course?

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Services

Bob Nixon made a speech in Brantford. And he brought out something most of us are unlikely to remember.

This is that in the fiscal year 1969-70 Ontario had a surplus of $150 million. The next year there was a deficit of $136 million. Then this year there was the $500 million.

And in the three years since that last wonderful surplus the total deficits have been $1.6 billion.

The ball of wax, of course, the fact of life we are apt not to remember, is that the year we transferred from large surplus to large and growing deficit was the year Bill Davis took over from John Robarts.

It doesn't need a swami to foretell that the trend of our recent financing is a disaster course.

The cost of financing the present debt this year will be better than $1 billion or close to 10 per cent of the total budget.

Let the pace increase continue and the cost of debt interest alone will grab as big a bite of the taxpayer's pay cheque as not so long ago we used to grab to run the whole province.

Apologists can give many explanations for this head-first sortie into debt. A favorite one is that we have to spend extra money in fight unemployment.

But still you have to believe that if either John Robarts or Leslie Frost had been doing the shelling out it would have been different.

Both had reputations for very crusty parsimony, for stinginess, but the truth was they both had a very healthy respect for the value of the public dollar.

Bill Davis had never really been suspected of this. Rather the suspicion is that he doesn't have much idea of money at all.

Slack in his education days it was a well-known scuttle-butt that when he married he never carried enough cash and that his subordinates would be dealing out the meals and incidentals.

Then there was the instance of community colleges. There were a good idea but prophets predicted that under the wing of the department of education and his minister they would grow like a weed.

And grow like a weed they did. Soon the province was plastered with them. And some developed into edifices worthy of an old Dellie movie set. And the duplication of courses became a tangle that still perplexes the line minds designated to try and straighten it out.

The waste and unnecessary spending must run to a tremendous total.

Bill Davis in many ways is a fine leader. He has vision, drive, sympathy and the courage of his principles.

But all might be better off if we could take away his key to the bank.

Influence Of Advertising

Montreal Matin: Advertising has not escaped the Watergate. We can hand it all the responsibility for almost everything that has gone wrong in our society.

In the last while, for example, we wanted to hold it responsible for the fact that our children were violent. We blamed it for the rise in the cost of living, part of the reason for inflation and now we want to hold it responsible for the fact that French-Canadians drink alcohol and beer.

Inspired by Vance Packard's Hidden Persuaders by Vance Packard, we can claim that advertising does not appeal to our intelligence but to our subconscious. Thus, it exercises an influence the individual is evidently the system of measurement—the system based on multiples of ten that is used in the majority of countries outside North America.

Some Canadians have already come to terms. Toothpaste and other pharmaceuticals have been sold in metric sizes since 1972, and hospital dispensaries are well along in their internal conversion.

Gossage, who rose through the ranks of the Canadian Pacific Railway's bureaucracy before launching his second career, recruited representatives of a wide range of industries and other fields of human activity to serve as his metric commission.

Then he set his commissioners to work, drawing up plans to persuade those in their particular field to accept metrication and to prepare the necessary groundwork for conversion.

This has necessarily involved close co-ordination with similar efforts in the United States, where a bill providing for a non-mandatory conversion over a 10-year period is making favorable progress through Congress.

The Canadian government's course has been to issue a policy statement supporting metrification in January, 1970, and to establish the metric commission later, 1971. Its assigned task: To plan and co-ordinate the conversion.

With the support of "sector committees" from major companies and industrial associations, the commissioners are getting down to the nuts and bolts (which, like other small hardware items, will be designated in mill metres rather than in fractions of an inch).

The objective will be to achieve industry-wide agreements on conversion units, and establish a timetable for conversion (so that individual firms, suppliers and customers may keep in step).

Some plans at large—as opposed to those who shop for it—have already got the confronted with metrics in their daily lives in April, 1975. That's when—the metric commission hopes—the media will start to report temperatures in degrees celsius. (On that scale, water freezes at 0 degrees and will vaporize, or 32 degrees fahrenheit).

A few months later, they are to start reporting precipitation and snowfall in millimetres, visibility in kilometres, and wind speeds in kilometres per hour.

Speed limits will be similarly designated on street and highway signs beginning in September, 1977.

Gossage concedes that there will be problems, but prefers to stress opportunities—"a chance in a lifetime to rationalize and stimulate deadwood."

dent. But it does not do this to a point that it would be necessary to limit, restrain or abolish advertising.

Advertising allows us a choice. . . It lowers prices because of the competition it sets off.

Advertising allows newspapers, radio and television to serve the public better. Without it, media would not undergo the expansion of recent years.

It is true the supporters of "statism" would like to suppress advertising so that newspapers, radio and television fall into the hands of government bureaucracies. The state can then have public opinion to its liking. . .

Freed From Slavery of Cars

Quebec Le Soleil: The fuel crisis, still far from having reached its peak, critical stage, may well be the chance for public transport systems to reclaim the larger number of customers that have stayed away for many years.

The rise in fuel prices, and even scarcity, will force most people, willing or not, to reconsider their daily use of cars. . . If this is to be the result, then one must say that the energy crisis will at least have one good side because it will have freed a number of people from the slavery of cars.

Studies have proven that public transport is more economical than the use of private cars. But it must become larger with each new increase in the price of a gallon of gas. A fact that may not give a choice between the two forms of transportation.

Our public transport systems and the railways are two deficit-creating sectors that could, in the months ahead, re-establish their profitability and find themselves obliged to offer a more efficient and rapid service to reply to public demands.

Charitable Appeals

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Recent reports in The Intelligencer of the difficulty people have in knowing charitable solicitations indicate there are still many who are not aware of the existence of the Financial Appeals Review Board.

The Belleville City Council set up this board several years ago to provide advice on this very sort of question. Appeals are only endorsed when it can be demonstrated that they most proper recipients, on accountability, and overhead and collection cost.

I would suggest that anyone who wishes to be sure their money will be used as they would wish should ask the canvasser "Has your appeal been approved by the Financial Appeals Review Board?"

Bible Digest

By E. S. DEAN

"And we know that all things work together for good them to love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." Romans 8:28

Christ has an answer to every problem of life. He also has His own way of answering. Believe only that He cares, knows, and knows best.

Bible Is Library of Books Of Poetry, History, Biography

This second story of a five-part series about the Bible deals with its nature.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Various names have been applied to the old tome—the Book of Books, the Sourcebook of Life, the Supreme Monument of Human Literature, the Great Story, the Good Book, Holy Writ, Sacred Scripture, the Word of God, the Bible.

It is a strange compendium of profundity and simplicity, of universal meanings couched in specific events, of splashes in time flashed against a screen of eternity. Unique among writings of the world religious, it esteems history as the conduit of truth and as fundamental to mankind's destiny.

The contents offer rich and graphic reading, even to skeptics.

Actually It is not just one book but a library of books, which is the meaning of the Greek word, "biblia."

It includes books of history and poetry, dramas of human psychology, tragedies and triumphs, biographies of the noble and the decadent, practical everyday counsel, short stories, romances, military chronicles, songs of aspiration and courage, mystical oracles, bristling exhortations, legal codes, legends, laws and letters.

Yet, with all its diversity, a cohesive thread runs through it—that all creation is a gift, that life is freely bestowed to be appreciated and nurtured in harmony with its Giver. That is the keynote, that motifs exist through a greater Being.

Like an orchestra, it draws on many instruments. But like the structure of a symphony, it revolves around a central theme, the "why" of life.

This is the Scriptural heartbeat, a call to love and its corollaries of justice and harmonious inter-enrichment.

To appreciate the significances and message of the Bible, however, demands some recognition of its nature, what it is and what it isn't.

Although it throbs with chronicles of men and nations, indispensable to students of universal history, its objective is not simply to recite history but to interpret the implications for humanity's wellbeing.

Although it glows with passages of some of the most sublime literature of all time, their purpose is to illuminate basic realities of life.

Although it is a treasurehouse of ethical wisdom and practical guides to living, it sees these virtues not just in terms of individual expediency but as affecting the entire web of existence.

Although it crackles with gripping narratives, its point is not simply to absorb attention but to bring out unchanging aspects of human behavior.

It is not a textbook analyzing the how of physical processes but an exposition of who is behind them.

Bible scholar William Barclay says to approach it as technical science is to "miss the very soul of the Bible."

It is a religious document, an affirmation of a necessarily surpassing source of life's meaning, of purposefulness and loving logic put into it by humanity's growth in character and awareness.

Yet, despite frequent assertions in the contrary, it is not basically an account of "man's quest for God."

Its prime intent is "to show that no quest on man's part is possible except under God's prompting," says noted Scripture scholar George A. Buttrick. "Our search for Him is quickened by His prior finding of us."

In that sense, it adds, the Bible "is a record of the self-revelation of God."

Unlike Greek and Oriental thought which sees everything as circular, an ever-recurring cycle on itself, the Bible views existence as linear, with a beginning, a middle, a consummation.

Scripture, however, is not all crisp and clear. Parts are baffling and difficult, reflecting the cultures and concepts of remote times. There are obscure references and monotonous chronologies.

Some Christians regard the Bible as verbally infallible, as divinely dictated. Yet its contains seeming inconsistencies and its authors reflect their individual personalities and cultures.

Nevertheless, they felt so driven by God's will that they often paused for Him, "The Lord says. . . ." Their vision and their aspirations obviously were inspired.

Some Christians insist on the literal factuality of various accounts which others see as symbolic, such as those of Adam and Eve and Jonah being swallowed by a big fish. But it is the meanings that are of paramount importance.

Many people boggle at miraculous occurrences reported, but only a narrow rationalism would insist that such departures from the natural order are impossible. Furthermore, the Bible does not deal mainly with the spectacular, but with inner proddings that awaken human consciences.

It uses allegories and parables to convey truths otherwise hardly confined to flat journalistic prose.

The Bible consists of two major parts, the 39 books of Jewish Scriptures and seven other Jewish writings included by Catholics—and 27 books of additional Scripture about Jesus.

The two sections commonly are called the Old Testament, a pejorative designation by Christians, and the New. Judaism, which does not regard its Scriptures as old or superseded, and the New Testament, espoused by Christians as the culminating revelation to human beings through One of them, Jesus.

"And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us."

The term "Testament," as applied to Scripture, means not a "covenant" or agreed working relationship between two parties.

In Jewish Scriptures, the covenant is between God and the Jewish people to whom the promise of a national homeland is linked with their responsibility to be "chosen people" to be light-bearers on earth of one God of all creation.

In the New Testament, the covenant is broadened through the word of Jesus, extending the promised blessings to those of every race who respond in trust. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life."

The Jewish Scriptures begin with the Torah, the first five books. These lay down the basic laws of creation and its divine origin, Israel's first glimpse of divine unity and concern in human affairs, the giving of the Ten Commandments after deliverance from Egyptian slavery.

Afterward come books of statutes and history, chronicles of kings and wars, the questioning of Job, the hymnbook book of Psalms, the wise sayings of Proverbs, the cynical realism of Ecclesiastes, the voluptious love poem of Solomon, the trenchant insights of the prophets and various stories with a point.

The New Testament begins with the four gospels, meaning "good news," the narratives of the life of Jesus by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, which are followed by the Book of Acts, recounting experiences of the apostles. Then come the epistles, letters by disciples of Jesus and, at the end, the visionary Book of Revelation.

The odd quality of the Bible is that it is not just a book but an experience for the reader who approaches it as a book of faith, authoritative in that field.

Its secret is in its effect on people, from the uneducated to the keenest intellectuals, all sorts of them—even professors, primitive tribesmen, war prisoners, businessmen, leaders—have recounted its dynamic operating power on them.

Next: The Origins.

Magistrate Pays Fine

EDINBURGH (CP) — Magistrate Walter Hamilton didn't know what to do with Rachel, a 69-year-old vagabond making her 77th appearance in court during 1973. So he fined her £1 ($2.40) for being drunk and disorderly—and then paid the fine himself. In return, Rachel, who lives in the city's Salvation Army centre, promised no more court appearances until after the New Year.

Listing Premature

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Tom Trudell is the only man alive whose name is carved on the town's cenotaph. But the selectmen Donald spotted it recently while visiting the monument to Canadians killed in France during the First World War, in which Mr. Trudell was one of two survivors when a German shell killed four men in a trench at Ypres.

History Is Tonic We Need For Bitterness or Despair

By REV. DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

Multitudes are cynical or bitter. Others are giving in to futility or despair. History is the tonic we need. We could use a large dose.

Centuries before the birth of Christ, the land of Judah was in serious trouble. Its moral structure trembled. "If the foundations are destroyed, what can the righteous do?"

The Psalmist had an answer to his deepening and oft-repeated question. The eleventh Psalm was an utterance of deep faith inspired by subsequent events.

I find no difficulty in believing that young people in the fourteenth century faced a more teeter-totter or terrifying future than their present counterparts. The Black Death" wiped out from a quarter to three quarters of the entire population of Europe.

Somewhere, indeed, for every generation there has been the threat of war, disease, famine, despotism, or the breakdown of religious belief. Tune in on any period of history and you will hear people asking, "If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?"

One answer that has stood the test of time is that your life here on earth is but a fragment of your potential life. You were made for eternity. Confronting the nuclear age with this convict on is not only a powerful weapon against fear, but has other positive aspects.

For instance, when William Faulkner was awarded the Nobel prize for literature, he said that he renounced the pessimistic estimate of man. "I refuse to accept it. I believe man will not merely endure; he will prevail. He is immortal because he has a soul, a spirit capable of compassion, sacifice and endurance."

Thus another answer that has stood the test of time is that we are made for your fellow man. "Gentlemen", Lord Shaftesbury used to say to his political colleagues, "you must study bigger maps". "For God so loved the world. . ."(John 3:16-17). That is our map!

Some years ago in Brooklyn, Dr. Richard Sailer Shorts of the Church of the Pilgrims was asked by a little boy to go to his home where his sister was ill. He found the place called "home" a wretched one-room basement in a tenement house. The mother had died. The father had disappeared. The fifteen-year-old sister, who had been bread-winner and mother, lay in the last stages of illness.

Dr. Shorts gave her the comfort of a pastor's words. But that is not asking, "How will God know that I belong to Him?" Finally the inspiration of the moment answer struck the minister.

He looked down at the tiny, crucified creature, saw on the ragged blanket the work-worn hands that had done the cooking and brought life to that family. He said, "Show God your hands. He'll know you belong to Him."

The community needs church members who live their creed. The world is waiting for a generation that knows its map and responds in love. Long ago the Psalmist refused to take to his heels during the crisis in Judah. He knew that he could not run away from h s conscience. No more can we.

The foundations are trembling, but they cannot be destroyed. We have work to do. So let us get at it. Then, at last, we will not be ashamed to show God our hands.

Such acts of mercy as made the crucified and risen Lord known and triumphant.

Playing Crokinole with Grandpa

A game of crokinole, a television show chat about World War I are some of the things Danny Hill and his "grandfather" Sherwood Shewfelt share during an afternoon visit. Danny isn't really Mr. Shewfelt's grandson. He "adopted" the Montgomery Lodge resident in a project designed to bring the nursing home residents and the children together.

Kids, Grandparents Find Each Other

By SHARON AIRHART

Danny Hill, who is in the seventh grade, went to visit his grandfather at Montgomery Lodge, a nursing home, Thursday.

Danny and his grandfather played crokinole and watched tv'ev'sion and did all the things grandfathers and grandchildren usually do together.

Danny - - along with 24 other students at Queen Elizabeth Public School — adopted a "grandparent" at the nursing home in November as a sort of class project.

Since that time, the children have returned en masse and individually to visit their adopted grandparents.

The brainchild of their teacher Connie Williams and nursing home activity director Lillian Hill, the project is a roaring success both with the children and "grandparents."

"It's a new experience every time. I get excited to catch up on the news since my last visit."

Patti Thornton says she decided to adopt a grandparent because it would be "really exciting". It's turned out that way, too.

"She's really a good talker," Patti says.

"My grandmother used to have a garden full of flowers and she talks about them. She really loves them."

So sometimes when Patti visits on Saturday, she brings her grandmother flowers.

Most of the kids who participate in the program say they started out thinking that people at Montgomery Lodge might be lonely and enjoy visitors.

Now they unanimously agree that they're having as much fun as the residents.

Many say their own grandparents are hundreds of miles away and they love having a grandparent nearby. Others just love hearing about the past.

Scott Hore says he enjoys his grandfather's reminiscing. As Joan Kingston says "They know so much you don't know."

The program began when Mrs. Hill, Danny's mother, talked about the nursing home with his teacher, Mrs. Williams.

"We visited at Christmas a year ago," Mrs. Williams said, "and Mrs. Hill painted people love young children," Mrs. Hill says.

"After a visit for days they say 'my child said this' or my child made that," she adds.

"The children are learning, in a practical way, about different segments of the community," he says.

Lodge resident Gordon Shewfelt agrees.

A retired Toronto school principal, Mr. Shewfelt says that education has changed since he was in the classroom.

We closed our doors and taught, he says. "Now there's open concept schools and kids get out into the community to learn."

Mr. Shewfelt thinks its good for children to become acquainted with older persons.

"I think they grow up faster.

Does he enjoy Danny Hill's visits?

"Well, he tries to get on the good side of me so I'll tell him First World War stories," Mr. Shewfelt says.

"I guess I haven't had to cane him yet," he says affectionately.

Successful Living

Teenager Advises Concerned Parents

Dear Doris: I am writing with regard to the letter written to you by a "Concerned Parent".

I am 17 years old and have a fairly broad outlook on life.

Although I can see the concern of the parent on issues such as sex and contraceptives, I agree that avoiding the issues and keeping youth in ignorance will only make matters worse. Many parents such as my own, consider the use of contraceptives evil and against Christian morals.

I'm not saying they're wrong in their beliefs, but I think if parents would examine the situations and pressures youth have and the expectations they are frequently required to live up to their attitude toward premarital sex might be less severe.

Youth are required to live up to so many adult standards that it is almost natural that they assume sexual relations to boy friends etc., are adult standards as well as participating in the entire adult society.

As far as contraceptives are concerned I think many parents feel that if their children are not introduced to contraceptives they will not participate in sexual activities. This may be true for a few, but (I think) for the majority this does not discourage intimate relations.

Kids aren't stupid! Although their parents may not be candid with them, their experienced peers usually are.

Many young people must discover things such as timing, and contraceptives through books rather than from their family.

I think if parents feel their children are having relations with the opposite sex, they should discuss morals and effects and introduce contraceptives if need be necessary.

The attitude, "Well, if she gets pregnant, it's her own fault" does not have any valuable sense to it at all. Furthermore, this knowledge is not only important for females but I feel far too many guys do not understand the female anatomy or the function and times for sex.

Finally, I think the parents should take a long look at the establishment and see that the home is no longer the centre of excitement or activity. Youth are constantly on the go and act more readily on their own morals whether they be right or wrong. (I've talked more with my boy friend on sex than I ever have with my parents, who should be closer to me.) I also think youth should examine themselves to see if their actions are irresponsible or if they will be sorry in the future, for their actions today.

I am not saying that sex or the use of contraceptives is right or wrong, but I do believe that if some of the frequently asked questions had some solid truthful answers we might be one step further to closing the generation gap.

Dear Opinion: Bravo!

(Doris invites comments on correspondence in care of this newspaper. If you read about a problem similar to the one you have solved, let's hear about it.)

People And Events

Cobourg's New Year's baby this year is a Tibetan, the daughter of one of the first two Tibetans to come to Belleville.

The daughter of James Drongostang and his wife, the former Langre Samchok, will receive an array of gifts, including a, high chair and a silver spoon embossed with a picture of a Cobourg landmark, Victoria Hall.

The Drongostands moved to Cobourg from Belleville in October. The new baby is as yet unnamed.

Ann Landers

Thoughtless Say Stupid Things

Dear Ann Landers: I cannot recall having read a letter in your column concerning the loss of a child. I hope you will print this one because we have just gone through it.

People mean well, but they do say some incredibly thoughtless and stupid things. For example: "Thank heavens it wasn't your husband. You'll get over this soon and live as you did before. Your life won't be very different." Or, "Children grow up and leave you eventually. Don't be too unhappy."

This next bit of philosophy we heard from people: "The way so many teen-agers are turning out today, perhaps you have spared something worse."

The "consoling words" we heard most frequently were these: "You are young yet. You'll have another child to take this one's place."

Don't people know that no matter how many children there are, no child can ever take the place of another.

Please Ann, help educate your millions of readers to these facts. So many well-meaning friends need to be told.—Bereaved Parents

Dear Parents: It's too bad that well-intentioned people feel the need to say something. Actually, their presence speaks for them. Simple silence, and a touch is all the hard, says it all.

Dear Ann Landers: I was intrigued by "Grandma's" fail-safe cure for snoring. She said she taped her mouth shut with clear plastic tape which she brought home from the hospital after surgery. It was probably that expensive, non-allergenic tape she was talking about. I hope she purchased it. Ann, but my hunch is that she "helped herself."

Everyone bemoans the rising cost of hospital care. As an employed for the last 15 years I can tell you that bandages, swabs, dishes, utensils, pillows, bath mats—just about everything you see in a hospital room—even religious pictures and crucifixes—disappear with astonishing frequency. Hospital equipment is usually the best money can buy, purchased for quality and durability. Replacement is extremely costly.

Dear Member: What people don't seem to understand is that all types of lifting, whether it's from the hospital, the supermarket or a public building, cost them something in terms of higher prices. Rising costs are always passed on to the consumer. And that's you and me, Bub.

Confidential to Georgian Fiance in Serious Trouble: Sounds like the seeds were sinfully. Avoid pills and fad diets. See your doctor and let him advise you. Many physicians recommend Weight Watchers and T.O.P.S. They've done the job for thousands.

Each hospital bed accommodates approximately 50 patients annually. Let us assume there are 700 beds in the hospital. If every patient helps himself to one roll of adhesive tape, that's 10,000 rolls a year.

Please, Ann, tell people who decry the high cost of living that it wouldn't be so high if people (and their children)

The Consumer

Buy Grade A, Pay A Premium

If you believe everything on your table ought to be "Grade A" you may be paying a premium for looks. The higher the quality — hence the grade — the higher the price but many graded foods which don't meet "Grade A" standards are just as nutritious as their less expensive and less attractive counterparts.

The word "Canada" in a grade mark indicates that the item bearing the mark, has been graded according to federal standards which are enforced by inspectors from Agriculture Canada.

Grade marking applies to butter, cheddar cheese, skim milk powder, meat, poultry, eggs, fresh and processed fruits and vegetables, honey and maple syrup.

Some of the standards used to grade foods are:

BUTTER — Flavor, color and texture are the main characteristics on which this product is graded. Usually, only Canada First Grade is available in retail stores.

CHEESE — Flavor, developed by aging, and texture are the important features checked in cheeses. Practically all cheddar cheese is Canada First Grade at the retail level and, net weight must be shown.

SKIM MILK POWDER — When sold at retail, skim milk powder must be Canada First Grade. It may be sold in packages of 1 lb., 5lb. or multiples of 1 lb.

MEAT — Before grading, all meat must pass health inspection. A round "Canada" or "Canada Approved" stamp assures the consumer that meat so marked is wholesome and has been dressed under sanitary conditions.

Beef grading indicates quality and fat level. Ribbon-stamped Canada A in red ink, Canada B in blue ink, or Canada C in brown ink, indicate decreasing quality and appear on each wholesale and most retail cuts of beef. Veal and Lamb can also be grade-stamped as beef. Pork grading is for producer payment only.

POULTRY — Chickens, capons fowl, turkeys, ducks and geese must be graded for sale in retail stores in most major cities and for interprovincial and export trade. Poultry grades are usually printed on a metal breast tag, transparent bag or label insert. In addition to grade, turkeys, ducks and geese must also be marked "young" or "mature".

EGGS — All grades must be free from discolored yolks and blood spots. Canada Grade A eggs, most usually available in retail stores, are practically clean, practically normal in shape, with sound shells. Yolks must be fairly well rounded and surrounded with thick albumen.

FRESH FRUITS AND VEGETABLES — These are generally graded according to uniformity of size, shape, color, maturity, cleanliness, freedom from disease and other injury.

If packed in containers bearing a "Canada" grade mark, the container must be standardized as to size or weight. Wording on the container must indicate the name and address of the packer; the variety of produce (apples and pears); number in box or carton (apples, peaches and pears); net weight; and also the size range in the case of certain vegetables.

PROCESSED FRUIT AND VEGETABLES — Most of these sold in Canada are graded. Canada Fancy on the label of a can indicates it is packed with sound, clean fruits or vegetables at a stage of perfect maturity with good color, uniformity of size and clear liquid. Canada Fancy grade means the fruits and vegetables will vary slightly in size, color and maturity, but are sound, clean and free from blemish. Canada Standard grade means the contents are good quality products but, not necessarily uniform in size.

HONEY — This product is sold in three different forms: comb, granulated (creamed) and liquid. Comb honey is not graded but, honey in retail containers must be graded and classified as to color in most provinces and when shipped interprovincially. Graded honey in retail stores is usually Canada No. 1, which indicates is has good flavor, is free from foreign material and has good keeping qualities.

MAPLE SYRUP — Only in the province of Quebec is it compulsory that this product be sold by grade. Across the country, federal legislation prohibits adulteration of maple products. such products may only be marked "maple syrup" if, in fact, they are pure maple products. The name and address of the packer and the net weight must also appear on the label and the container respectively. Maple syrup must weigh a minimum of 13 lb. 2 oz. per gallon and can be graded as Canada Fancy, Canada Light, Canada Medium and Canada Dark.

For additional information on food grades write to: Agriculture Canada, Information Division, Ottawa K1A OC7 and ask for the publication "Food grading in Canada" or "Guide to Food grades."

More Than Memories

LONDON (CP) — Ali Carl Mulvaney left in his will for his widow was "the memories of her unfaithful and deceitful way of living." Joyce Mulvaney was baffled, telling a court she had been happily married for 23 years. A judge said Mulvaney was under obligation to provide for his widow and granted her the bulk of the £11,000 ($26,500) estate.

Der Bingle Has Become Legend As Old Honcho, The Groaner

By AL COLLETTI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Old Honcho sprawls inside in his hammock, leaning over slightly to stir a pitcher of frozen orange juice.

Over and over, millions of television viewers each day watch Bing Crosby make his family pitch for Minute Maid orange juice, for which he has a five-state distributorship.

In the TV commercials, the sun is bright, the countryside beautiful and the young Crosby family growing up on their ranch.

In the commercials at least, Crosby is the senior citizen who grows old gracefully. But in real life, the lines grow deeper and the skin tighter in the face that was still boyish when Bing was in his 50s.

Now 69, Crosby is in a California hospital with a long dis ease, diagnosed as non-cancerous, doctors say. They found a lesion in his left lung that might be the result of pneumonia.

For years, Crosby suffered from bursitis and in his late 50s underwent surgery to remove a of kidney stones.

Crosby was both father and mother to his four sons, whom he helped raise after his first wife, Dixie Lee, died of cancer in 1952.

Bing remarried in 1957 and started raising a second family. He wed actress Kathy Grant, a brown-eyed Texan. He was 53, she 23—five months younger than his oldest son Gary.

Kathy and Bing now have two teen-age sons and a daughter. They all appear in the TV commercials.

During his long movie career, Crosby appeared in more than 50 films. He was the No. 1 draw at the box office in 1944-45, and one of the 10 top money-making stars in 1934, 1937, 1940, 1943 and 1951.

A Gallup poll showed he ranked as the country's favorite singer as late as 1950.

Crosby's ad-lib movie dialogue with Hope became famous. His relaxed, breezy manner and needling friendship with Hope helped the comedy scripts perfectly.

But Bing also established himself as a serious actor.

As Roman Catholic, he played the part of a Catholic priest in Going My Way, one of his most successful movies. His performance won him an Academy Award as best actor in 1944.

After a quarter-century of movie-making, Crosby said:

"I'll take the serious stuff any day. It's a breeze compared to making comedy."

His old-time fans still can feel a tingle when they hear his throbbing recording of I Surrender Dear. The big song that catapulted him into bigtime radio in 1932.

Crosby's career has been one of the most successful in entertainment history. It has often been said that his rich, mellow baritone could be heard at any time somewhere in the world—day or night.

He made so much money that he needed a corporation to handle his affairs.

Twenty years ago, Bing was earning $1 million a year and his net worth was placed at $15 million. It is many times that amount now.

His investments include oil wells and gold and uranium interests. The far-flung Bing Crosby Enterprises markets everything from TV films to toys.

Crosby owned a 22,500-acre cattle ranch near Elko, Nev., and sold off 19,000 acres for $1 million in 1958. He also owns a luxurious trailer village near Palm Springs, Calif.

Bing's records from his records have brought him millions of dollars. He recorded 38 million-plus discs. His No. 1 record in sales remains Silent Night with White Christmas second.

In his autobiography, Call Me Lucky, published in 1953, he modestly assessed his singing popularity to the ease with which his fans could identify their singing ability with his.

"I think that every man . . . who hears me believes firmly that he sings as well as I do, especially when he is in the bathroom shower."

As an avid sportsman, he owned half a race track and stable, and still has a piece of the Pittsburgh Pirates' baseball franchise. Until bursitis slowed him down, he was an expert golfer.

Crosby hunts and fishes all over the world. He loves to go to Canada. As a conservationist, he lent strong support to groups trying to save the Atlantic salmon.

"I figured out I work about 90 days out of 365 . . . I used to sneak the fishing in when I was working. Now I sneak the work in when I'm fishing."

Bing recalls he was in Alaska a few years ago looking for a spot to hunt partridge. But there was "no hunting" signs all over the place.

A friend went to a stranger's farm and asked permission of the owner who said no emphatically.

"Oh, if Bing Crosby asked me, I might it," the owner said.

"I just happen to have Bing Crosby in my car waiting," said the friend. Bing got the partridge.

When Crosby was going strong in horse racing before the Second World War, he liked nothing better than trying to turn a fiver into fifty.

The first race horse he purchased was called Zombie. He put up $2,000 for the thoroughbred in 1936. "It was a lot of races for us," Crosby said.

Crosby had a share of 21 horses in partnership with Lindsay Howard. Bing helped form the Del Mar racetrack in the 1930s, and sold his early holdings there in 1946.

When one of Bing's horses burned to the ground in 1943, he poked around the ashes and found $2,000 in valuables from the races in the toe of a boot.

Bing's personal luck sometimes ebbed and flowed. He was a heavy gambler.

He sponsored golf tournaments and gave away huge purses to charity. His exhibition matches with Hope netted thousands of dollars.

Last week, his illness forced him to miss the 32nd annual Pro-Am Golf Tournament at Pebble Beach, for the sponsor, paying all expenses including airfare.

In his more than 50 years in show business, Bing always made things look easy. He was the self-styled Groaner, or Der Bingle.

In Hollywood, they called him the Caliph of the Careless.

He hated publicity ad orientation and was a master at giving the brushoff to somebody he didn't want to see.

Many of his intimates admitted that they really didn't know Bing, he was so unpredictable.

One lifetime friend said: "There are times when Bing almost seems to live in a world all his own. "When he does, no one can get through to him."

Crosby was one of the last big stars to swallow radio and television But he refused to do weekly shows for fear of overexposure.

Big sums were offered to him by Lou Vegas nightclubs. He frowned on them. "I'll never be a shill for anyone to lose money."

Crosby always gave the impression of being lazy. Hope once remarked: "If Bing makes his own picture, he'll show himself looking through a knothole in the first scene. The rest of the picture would be what he saw."

But the pose was deceptive. Actually, he was a hard worker whose success was due only to his being himself.

Crosby often credited his first wife, Dixie Lee, with pushing him "on top of the music world."

When they married in 1930, she was a star of Broadway musical comedy and the screen. He was a little-known singer with Gus Arnheim's band at the Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles.

After a few more movies, she quit show business to marry Bing and settled down.

When he was two, Bing's parents moved to Spokane. As a youth, Crosby had a newspaper route, worked as a janitor in a loggers' club, drove a grocery truck, ushered at boxing matches, worked in the post office and for a time was a lumberjack.

He became a drummer in the high school band and then professionally, learned to singing. But he couldn't read music and had early success by ear alone in his life.

Barris composed some of Crosby's biggest hits including I Surrender Dear, Wrap Up Your Troubles in Dreams and It Must Be True.

During that period, Crosby was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and manslaughter of drinking. Bing was sentenced to 60 days, serving 40 of them, by a judge he swore was a "militant prohibitionist."

Crosby then began singing and acting in a series of 30-minute, slapstick movie shorts for Canadian-born producer Mack Sennett. Each paid $6,000.

Early in 1932, his brother Everett, who took over Bing's business affairs, sent to CBS a recording of I Surrender Dear.

He got his first real start in the films world at Paramount studios, appearing in the Big Broadcast of 1932.

In a couple of years, Crosby's fan mail reached 7,000 letters a month.

But he worked so hard, he developed nodes on his vocal cords. His voice thereafter was a tone or so lower.

In 1936, he filmed Pennies from Heaven, when the Depression was at its height.

Other "Roads" took Crosby, Hope and Miss Lamour on hair-raising adventures to Zanzibar, Morocco, Utopia, Bali and Rio.

When he was 50, Crosby began thinking about becoming a serious non-singing actor.

In 1954, he played a drunken actor tryied to make a comeback in The Country Girl. Grace Kelly won an Oscar for her part as the disillusioned wife.

He also played dramatic roles in Stagecoach and Little Boy Lost.

Some of the flashy clothes Crosby's actors have been blamed partly on his color blindness. But some observers felt Crosby's clothes were merely a put-on to embarrass one of Hollywood's fashion dictators.

"I am color blind in some areas like pastels and shades of green. Put a red golf tee on the green and I can't see it at all."

As a youngster, he would point his finger or a toy gun and shout, "Bing! Bing! but Bing recalls that when he was now on eight he followed a comic strip which had a character named Bingo. The s later was dropped.

Trenton Airman Cited

TRENTON — Master Cpl. Marcel Demers of Canadian Forces Base Trenton will be awarded the Military Order of Merit for "outstanding bravery."

In 1967, while stationed at CFB Uplands, Ottawa, Cpl. Demers was working on a Hercules transport aircraft which caught on fire.

A citation, which will accompany a certificate to be presented him, reads: "With complete disregard to his personal safety, Cpl. Demers raced to bring a fire hose back onto the wing of the aircraft and direct foam down into the blazing fuel tank."

In total, 250 other people were in the hangar along with four aircraft. The citation credits the corporal for saving the property and lives involved through his "spontaneous and professional" actions.

Cpl. Demers soon will go to Ottawa to receive the award. At present he is working with the Non-Destructive testing unit at CFB Trenton.

'Outstanding Bravery'

Master Cpl. Marcel Demers of CFB Trenton, soon will be presented the Military Order of Merit. He won the order through outstanding bravery for fighting a fire in an aircraft in a busy work hangar.

Belleville Blood Donations

We Give--but Take Much More

Bellevillians are donating far less blood than their city hospital uses.

The discrepancy is such the Red Cross which organizes hospital transfusion supply services in the province regards the community as a poor source of donor material, indicates a Belleville General Hospital blood bank official.

In the same period BGH dispensed 3,211 units. (Plasma and other blood byproducts for treating various disorders totalled another 4,000 units).

Admittedly, statistical comparisons can't be clearcut.

BGH treats patients from a wide area outside the city. But donor clinics also draw district dwellers who work in the city. Then there are the treatment — and transfusions — at larger specializing centres.

Nonetheless, she deficit between blood donated and dispensed locally, should be remedied, agree hospital and local Red Cross officials.

"I think it should be a source of civic pride that this discrepancy be reduced," says Dr. Robert Smith, director of BGH's pathology department which includes the hospital's blood bank.

Blood-supply needs continue to increase with the hospital, now one of the best-equipped community medical centres in the province.

BGH stores a "fair supply" of blood and plasmas because of distance from the central Red Cross distributing bank in Toronto, says Mrs. Lenl Annann, transfusion laboratory charge technologist. Requirements are always met.

But officials from the central transfusion service, remarked in the city, "have not supplied enough donors" and, occasionally, that Belleville is "a poor source of donations."

Dr. Smith notes that larger, specializing centres which receive blood referrals from areas like Belleville also rely, to an extent, on smaller communities for much of the transfusion service's supplies.

This year there will be four clinics in Belleville — the first next Thursday at the Canadian Legion hall, at 1:45 - 4.30 p.m., 6.30 p.m.

"We're using far, far more than we're collecting," said an executive member. "And it's imperative the area be conscious of this.

County Plan: View Need For Yet More Response

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Members of Hastings County planning board are satisfied with the results of 19 public meetings throughout the area to acquaint residents with the aims of the new county official plan.

Niall Carney, county planning director, said Friday the meetings have served to re-inforce opinions of county planning committee members on what the plan attempts to achieve.

The long-awaited official plan was presented county council at a special meeting in November, at that time it was given two readings.

Then, the series of public meetings was held throughout the county during December and early this month, the last held at Deseronto Thursday night.

Friday, planning committee members met all day to assess results of the public meetings and to decide what more should now be taken.

Mr. Carney said that attendance at the 19 public meetings ranged all the way from about 45 to more than 175, with from 60 to 100 being the average turnout.

The attendance realized was "very good" according to Mr. Carney who said that some "good points" were raised by the public.

"There was a general acceptance of the need for a county plan - - and there was no real objection to what the plan is attempting to do," he said.

Now the board is attempting to assess whether people have been sufficiently informed on whether more meetings should be held.

One problem however, is to inform absentee owners of summer properties who might live in Toronto or even hundreds of miles from the county.

To this end the planning board is discussing the advisability of directly mailing information to all property owners and also having news releases published in county papers.

One of the ideas behind the direct mailing and news releases would be to get further public response and thus determine what has to be done.

But planning board members will not make up their minds immediately on the action to be taken and two to three months will pass as the minimum period before the official plan could be back to council for third reading.

Last year's members of the Hastings county planning board include Dungannon Reeve Calvin White as chairman. Other members were reeves Robert John S. Hatiin, T.C. Barton, Felix Brown, Graham Bell and Ivan Fowler - along with Warden Horace Casey of Thurlow township and William S. Rose of Frankford, whose municipalities are also in the Quinte Planning Board.

Trucks in Sideswipe

MARMORA — Two Marmora-area men escaped injury Friday when their pickup trucks sideswiped on a township road north of here. Damage to the vehicles was estimated at approximately $1,000.

Madoc Provincial police said Kenneth Burr, 20, Marmora, was southbound on the boundary road between Belmont and Marmora township when his truck collided with one driven by Carl McMillan, 60, of R.R. 1 Havelock.

Education Beat

Mounties Got More Than Man

By Lenny Williamsen

In the process the RCMP accomplished three things: its collective face emerged as scarlet as its dress tunics, serious irregularities or worse in the post office department were questioned in the House of Commons, and Loyalist College, a small and superb community in Eastern Ontario trade school, gained a national reputation as a stronghold of the literary avant garde.

It all began more than two years ago when Wally Keeler, a Cobourg resident then enrolled in communication arts at Loyalist, organized the Peoples' Republic of Poetry, the students' band had serious overtones. The organizers hoped to keep budding bards in contact with one another and with established poets (Al Purdy for one) and to promote Canadian poetry.

They hit on a gimmick — writing poetry, including a version of the Lord's Prayer, in the jargon of the 20th century, computer language. Only collected discarded computer printouts and wrote on the back of the paper.

In a take-off on George Orwell's novel, Nineteen Eighty-Four, a Sudbury member wrote to Wally Keeler on a printout, using only his social security number and postal code as an address.

The card got to Cobourg, where it was intercepted by a post office employee because of the peculiar address and lack of a stamp. Some how, the card got into the hands of the RCMP.

Eventually, the RCMP cracked the code — the social security number — and interrogated the Sudbury writer. Asked if Wally Keeler was a "loyal Canadian", he asserted that Mr. Keeler was loyal to the People's Republic of Poetry. The "subversive" message on the card was an elaborate poetical joke.

All this points up the need for a strict anti-subversion for Canada's secret police. If the Mounties had read George Orwell's book they could have "cracked the code" and found out the implications of the message of 1984 minutes instead of three months.

On second thought, perhaps Mad Kenneth Burr, 20, Marmora, was southbound on the boundary road between Belmont and Marmora township when his truck collided with one driven by Carl McMillan, 60, of R.R. 1 Havelock.

Sidney, Thurlow Home Lots Total 1,200 Report Finds

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Confusion as to the number of residential building lots available in Sidney and Thurlow townships has ended with a report brought to the Quinte Planning Board.

The report, prepared by research planner Stewart Murray, estimated the maximum number of vacant lots available for residential construction in both townships at 1,220.

Township clerks and the regional assessment department in Trenton were the primary sources of information for the study. Computer analysis of the assessment rolls, made final in February, 1973, were based upon land eight acres or less in size.

In Thurlow, 220 lots were estimated as still available. In Sidney, the report estimated 1,000 although indicated that an unknown factor existed. Prior to a December change in Planning Act, a developer had been creating residential lots on the 5th-Hilaire side road. The extent of the development could not be gauged, said the report.

In Thurlow although lots are scattered throughout the township, most are roughly centred along highways 14 and 37. In Sidney the potential building lots are concentrated south of the third concession road and southeast of Frankford.

The report was directly presented by confusion board members indicated the planning board meeting in December. Director reported having heard estimates ranging from 600 to 2,000 lots in both the rural municipalities.

600 Will Blitz for Disabled

How does a disabled person get a step stairs?

In a wheelchair climb a set.

Generally, he or she doesn't unless the builder includes a ramp easily negotiable by a wheelchair. It may appear to be a small problem to most, but for the physically disabled individual, it's one that is encountered fairly regularly.

In an effort to overcome such obstacles, Rehabilitation Foundation for the Disabled attempts to educate the public, including builders, to the problems of the handicapped.

Also, through the Ability Fund - - once the March of Dimes - money is collected to help provide artificial limbs, swimming classes, summer camps, job training and placement for the disabled.

In Belleville the fund raising Branch of the foundation will swing into action Jan. 21-28.

Weather permitting, some 600 volunteers will begin canvassing city homes Jan. 21, on what Vera Morphy, the Foundation's Belleville chairman, calls Blitz Night.

The volunteers will be canvassing door - to - door - says Mrs. Morphy, stressing the need for fund soliciting will be done in the cities various industrial and commercial establishments. "We don't solicit people at work."

Last year, the week - long drive produced $7,800. $700 less than the total collected in 1972 Mrs. Morphy, the foundation's representative, hopes the campaign will better 1973 figure.

She expects the majority of the canvassers volunteering will be out Monday in Belleville. In Trenton, the door - to - door canvass will take place the same week.

The campaign will correspond to those in approximately 665 other Ontario communities in January.

Originally founded in 19 to help fight polio, the Ability Fund — March of Dime has aided disabled adults r that the cause of handicaps.

Over 13,000 individuals p currently registered with t Foundation which incorporational as well as vocational programs for disabled adults.

Rollins On Government Panel

Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, will be among Ontario government representatives participating in discussions on provincial policies in Kingston next week.

Mr. Rollins chairman of the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, will be among a group of government spokesmen headed by Premier William Davis.

The event, scheduled for Kingston city hall Jan. 19, is one of a series of regional discussions organized by the Conservative party. The sessions are aimed at increasing communication between government and the public.

Mr. Rollins will discuss land uses.

Speakers on the 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. program also include Agriculture Minister William Stewart, Environment Minister James Auld and Hastings Minister Robert Social Development and Welch.

Snowmobiler In Crash

MADOC — A teenage snowmobiler escaped injury when, police said, his machine collided with a parked car on St. Lawrence St. West here Thursday night.

Damage to the snowmobile, driven by Robert MacKenzie was $75. Damage to the car was $75. Unchanged.

Marmora Not Satisfied With OHS Dog Control

MARMORA — A Stirling area dogcatcher will be asked to meet with village council here Jan. 17 to outline his services.

The move follows dissatisfaction expressed in council with services of the Quinte Humane Society, which has its shelter near Belleville.

The municipality pays the OHS $1,400 a year for its services. But, at a recent meeting, there was discussion indicating councillors felt the village wasn't receiving sufficient service for its money.

Donald Tucker, who holds a number of municipal animal control contracts in the Quinte area, has been asked to meet with council.

After copies were sent contributors, local schools and libraries, BBF went on sale here and in area communities - just before Christmas.

All have now been snapped up.

"I think one reason was they made it just right. We didn't time publication for Christmas - - but it turned out perfectly, says Pat. "It was $1 - and a bargain as a gift, I think."

What made it a hit not only was its timeliness but its historical curiosity, but its lively conversational style.

Phrasing and turns of expression impart a folklorish overtone - - recalling a time when a less complicated world could indulge closer human relationships.

"I think," says Pat, "visiting once was almost an art form. And when we went out to see the people we were there for a visit. It seemed as if many enjoyed almost reliving the kind of visiting there used to be."

In the book one contributor backs this up: "There is difference between now and old times — nobody has time to go and visit anybody."

Pat's sister, Margaret Rashotte, who with young local resident Bader Vance, made up the team, said the compilers had received some criticism for not polishing phrasing.

There's also been the reverse reaction.

"We've had many say that reading what our people related was just like listening to them," she says. "It seems to prove the point!"

Pat also sees the book as a "permanent record" of aged conversational styles now being lost as a new era breaks with the past.

It was the recollections of one contributor that finally ended the fruitless search for a fitting title:

"Them Were the Days."

It's A Book That Talks

TWEED—The art of colorful conversation is still alive and well in the Quinte district — thanks to two sisters.

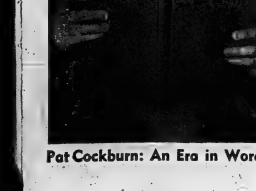
That seems the impression from a best-selling book — sold out this week — that bubbles as brightly with local flavor as doubt many people still know a plain, good old-fashioned chat.

In fact, that became a publication problem.

Originally, it was to be a mere 56-page booklet, the inspiration of Pat Cockburn. She organized it as a Local Initiatives Program project - for three workers, collecting recollections of elderly, local natives.

It's originality was its style. The little tome was also aimed at capturing idiom--publishing verbatim spoken reminiscences.

But, by the time the trio got through interviewing, the natives had charmingly chatted into nearly 200 pages — with material to spare.



As a result, the project was still being worked when the LIP deadline ran out last May with the original $7,000 grant for wages and costs exhausted.

To do the end product justice required another $3,000 publishing costs.

There was no option but to go commercial, publish hardcover and hope for sales to make up the difference.

Maurice Godah, Madoc weekly newspaper publisher, printed about 3,000 copies — his first venture in book production.

Pat Cockburn: An Era in Words

Going for Five Super Bowl Rings

Marv Fleming, the veteran Miami Dolphins tight end, flashes his four Super Bowl rings. He's going for his fifth ring Sunday as the Dolphins meet the Minnesota Vikings in the 1974 Super Bowl. He gained two rings while he was with Green Bay Packers in 1967 and 1968. He obtained a third ring in 1972 with Dolphins and added a fourth last year when the Miami team won the championship.

Dolphins Hope Warfield Ready

HOUSTON (AP) — Miami's mechanical Dolphins, hoping for strong legs for receiver Paul Warfield, are six-point favorites over Minnesota Vikings in the eighth Super Bowl football game Sunday.

Kickoff time is 2:30 p.m. EST, at Rice Stadium, where the Astrturf surface may be damp from week-long rain.

The Dolphins, who depend on Warfield's long-range catching ability to open the opposing defence for runners Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris, expect to see their flashy receiver in action despite what was called a hamstring pull suffered in practice Wednesday.

The injury was kept secret for a day before coach Don Shula revealed it. The Dolphins' stock dived until team trainer Larry Gardner noted there was no swelling and said Warfield would be ready Sunday.

The Vikings, more of a passing team, sailed into the Super Bowl on the throwing of Francis Tarkenton. They must stop the violent running game of the Dolphins and make receivers free to get Tarkenton a target.

Their chore borders on the impossible — Miami has won 21 of 23 games in the last two seasons with a professional, cool, calculating approach to Shula's demands.

"We expected to win," Csonka said after the Dolphins' 27-10 playoff victory over Oakland Raiders in which quarterback Bob Griese threw six passes.

It could be a dull game as most Super Bowls have been because no one likes to take a chance in the big one.

The defences could make it a virtual draw were it not for the unstoppable Csonka who has gained more than 1,000 yards three straight seasons.

Miami defensive tackle Manny Fernandez, one of the stars of the Dolphins' 14-7 Super Bowl victory over Washington Redskins last year, had what was termed a high fever Friday and did not practice.

But flu bugs have flirted with several players this week, including Csonka, and there was little doubt in the Dolphin camp that Fernandez would perform.

The game will be televised to an audience of possibly 75 million in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Puerto Rico, Germany, Austria, England and American servicemen.

Pat the broadcast rights, CBS because of the unpredictable paid $2.75 million. The network will charge up to $10,000 a minute for commercials from 1,500 writers and radio and television reporters will cover the game.

Super Bowl week in Houston has turned out to be Mardi Gras and New Years Eve rolled into one. Te total dollar flow was expected to exceed the $16 million Los Angeles realized last year.

The game is being held in somewhat antiquated Rice Stadium instead of the Astrodome because it seats 20,000 more people.

The stadium was a sellout at 72,000 seats. There were reports of scalpers asking $150 for a $15 ticket.

Both teams scheduled hour workouts today. The players were to retire to their wifeless hotel rooms after they were to meet with their coaches briefly tonight.

Wives were quartered in separate hotels.

Oddsmaker Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder favored the Dolphins by six points. He was putting his money on Dolphin kicker Garo Yepremian who has hooted all 28 converts and 25 to 37 field goals for 113 points this season.

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant said his kicker, Fred Cox, should get 10 more yards distance because of the sure artificial turf in Rice Stadium. He said Cox's distance had suffered in the latter part of the season

Francis Replaces Popein

VANCOUVER (CP) — Emile Francis, New York Rangers' general manager, will be coaching again tonight as the Rangers meet Vancouver Canucks in a National Hockey League game here.

The Rangers announced Friday that Francis will replace Larry Popein as coach.

Francis, Rangers general manager since 1964, has served two previous coaching terms with the club, accumulating 283 wins, 170 losses and 84 ties.

He said in an interview here Friday he has no special plans for the club, which has dropped the last five of eight games to lead fifth-place Buffalo Sabres by one point in the East Division standings.

"I'll not do anything different from what I've done before," he said Francis, when asked if his players can expect extra practices and work-outs and more control from behind the bench.

Popein was known as a tough disciplinarian. He asserted himself early by benching Rod Gilbert for a game; Gilbert is Rangers' all-time scoring leader was late for a team meeting.

Popein, a Yorkton, Sask. native, said here Friday: "I've been a pro long enough to know that the Rangers are not responding the way they should and it's part of the coach's job to see to that.

"For the betterment of the team, we felt this move was necessary," he said.

Francis said he had hoped to be in a more secure position for a playoff spot.

"We are far from being secure of making the playoffs at the moment. We sure as hell have to change things around fast," Francis said.

"We're hitting our toughest stretch over with 12 of our next 17 games on the road.

"It seems to me the minute this club hits some adversity it goes to pieces. Hell, that's the time the club has to be at its best.

Popein became head coach last summer when Francis stepped down after taking the Rangers to seven straight playoffs.

The team got off to its slowest start in six years and rumoring control had Popein's days as coach numbered. The change, however, came earlier than most expected.

Disaster finally broke Thursday in a horrible third period at Buffalo when the Sabres scored five goals en route to a 7-2 win.

After the game, Popein offered no excuses for the club's mediocre play.

"We're not giving stand pat much longer the way things

Flames Cure Flett and Schultz

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goalie Phil Myre cured Bill Flett's scoring slump and rookie Tom Lysiak helped Dave Schultz overcome a habit of slurping on the ice.

It happened Friday night as Flett scored two goals—giving him seven this season—and Schultz picked up a major and 10-minute misconduct as Philadelphia Flyers' 7-6 National Hockey League win over Atlanta Flames.

In the other game, Vancouver Canucks nipped California Golden Seals 3-2 for their sixth win in 40 starts.

Flett, without a goal in his last 13 games, gave the Flyers the win when he beat Myre at 17:52 of the third period after taking a pass from Bobby Clarke. The score was 6-6 at the time, thanks to Gary Dornhoefer's goal at 2:28 of the period.

Schultz, meanwhile, strengthened his league-leading total in penalty minutes when he tangled with Lysiak in the first period. Lysiak picked up a major, while Schultz increased his total minutes this season to 186.

Before meeting Atlanta, Schultz had been an infrequent visitor to the penalty box in recent games, while averaging two performances—one Thursday night and the other Jan. 3.

After his Thursday's performance, Schultz said: "I can't let it affect me. I haven't been very aggressive lately."

The Canucks still remain eighth and last in the East Division with 25 points, two behind New York Islanders. Philadelphia's triumph increased the Flyers' first-place lead in West Division to three points over Chicago Black Hawks.

FLYERS 7 FLAMES 6

The Flyers spotted the Flames a 2-0 first-period lead before Flett narrowed the deficit with his sixth goal of the season—and first since Dec. 2 with a goal at 2:15 of the second period.

When the period ended, the Flames held a 6-5 lead as the teams scored six goals within three minutes and 43 seconds. The six-goal scoring splurge wasn't a record, however, as Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs did it in 3:18 during a game in 1944.

Flett, 30-year-old Vermillion, Alta., native who scored 43 goals last year, got the winning goal when he beat Myre from 10 feet out in the final period.

Terry Crisp, Rick MacLeish, Joe Watson, and Clarke scored the other Philadelphia goals. Keith McCreary paced Atlanta with two goals, while Leon Rochefort, Larry Romanchyk, John Stewart and John Bennett shared the others. Lysiak had three assists.

For the first time this season, Bernie Parent didn't start in goal for the Flyers. He was replaced by Bobby Taylor who made 33 saves compared with 41 by Myre.

Taylor played in goal earlier this season, but only after Parent was given a game-misconduct penalty at 8:14 of the first period in a Nov. 22 game against Boston Bruins.

The losers had 2-1 after the first period and Vevenegart got the winner at 1:25 of the second after taking a pass from John Gould.

Larry Pratt added the other goal for Vancouver, his first of the year, while Dennis Hextall, his first, and Walt McKechnie replied for California.

The Canucks had three new players in the lineup—centre Dan Clode, right winger Steve Stone and left winger Larry Gould—who were called up from Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League for a two-game stretch.

Today's schedule has Montreal at Boston for a late afternoon game. Tonight, it's: St. Louis at Toronto, New York Rangers at Vancouver, the Islanders at Minnesota, Los Angeles at Detroit and Buffalo at Pittsburgh.

Petes Blanked By Kitchener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes, returning to play in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series for the second time since their recent trip to Leningrad for the World junior tournament, were shut out 4-0 Friday by Kitchener Rangers.

Thursday, Peterborough and Kitchener played a 3-3 tie in the first game of a home-and-home series.

The Petes are tied for first place in the circuit with London Knights and St. Catharines Black Hawks, all with 50 points. However, they have played fewer games.

The victory was secured early in the first period when Rick Bourbonnais gave Kitchener a 1-0 lead.

Joe Fortunato's tip in at 3:22 and Mike St. Cyr's deflected point shot at 7:28 put the Rangers ahead 3-0 in the second period. Pete Sturgeon added the final Kitchener goal in the third period.

In other games in the series Friday, Toronto Marlboros beat a 6-1 victory over Sudbury Wolves, London topped Kingston Canadians 5-3, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds edged St. Catharines 4-3 and Oshawa Generals beat Ottawa 97s 4-2.

Marlboros 6 Wolves 1

Bob Russell scored the Sudbury goal.

Toronto received five of nine minor penalties called.

Knights 5 Canadians 3

London took its fourth win in four games between the two clubs.

Tom Rowe, Max Carter, John Held, Don Wheldon and Vern Stenlund scored the London goals.

London outshot Kingston 48-

Greyhounds 4 Black Hawks 3.

Jack Valiquette scored at 15:40 of the third period to give Sault Ste. Marie the edge over St. Catharines.

Ron Jarett and Greg Keating opened the scoring for the Greyhounds in the second period. Dave German then scored a power-play goal for St. Catharines to cut the Greyhounds to a 2-1 lead going into the period.

Will Paisement and Salvian sent St. Catharines' goals in the third period and Charlie Simmer scored for Sault Ste. Marie.

Generals 4 'Ots 2

Tom Price opened the scoring for Oshawa at 1:17 of the second period. Vandemark tied the game just five minutes later and Oshawa's Andy Whitby gave the Generals the lead at 11:07.

Vandemark and Brian Klopoushak scored the third period Oshawa goals, the latter's into an empty net. Ottawa got a third-period goal from Brian Harrington.

There are no games set for tonight in the 11-team series, today. Hamilton Red Wings travel to Sudbury, Kingston to Toronto, Black Hawks in St. Catharines. Toronto plays host to the Peies, Kitchener plays the Generals in Oshawa and Ottawa travels to London.

Barton Looking For Work

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts announced Friday that Greg Barton is resigning his position as director of Canadian player personnel with the Canadian Football League club to seek a quarterbacking position in the United States.

Jim Argo spokesman said Barton was apparently looking for a job with one of the new World Football League teams which expect to start play this year.

Barton, 27, joined the club in 1971 from the National Football League signing a 1972 contract, no cut contract with the CFL club. He was dropped from the roster in January in 1972 season, but later accepted the position of player personnel director.

Barton started his professional football career in 1968 with the NFL Detroit Lions but saw little action with the Lions and played out his option in 1970.

Spiegel Holds The Franchise

The case of the reluctant benefactor.

Well, it fits the circumstances.

Not that the benefactor in question shows any reluctance when it comes to gestures of a philanthropic nature. Just the opposite is true. He has already demonstrated his willingness to help.

Anonymity. That's his bangup, to use the terminology of the younger generation.

It is more correct to use the past tense when referring to the gentleman who desires to remain anonymous.

Late yesterday, it was learned he has agreed to step forward and be recognized ... —if not personally.

Sidney Spiegel, Ltd. has added another entry to a list of varied interests which includes Crawford Metal Corporation in Belleville, Peterborough, real estate and other investments.

This corner remembers Sid Spiegel as a member of a Belleville Intermediate basketball team (more than a year or so ago). He seemed to enjoy the sport to a larger degree than most participants.

Without dwelling on those "old days", suffice it to say that it is evident Sid has retained his interest in sports. And he is in a position to lend a helping hand where it is needed.

It was Sid Spiegel who came to the rescue when it appeared Belleville would lose Senior A hockey with the collapse of the Eagles. His arrival on the scene with fresh capital to revive the club's sagging fortunes breathed life into the franchise.

And it is, to-fact. Sid Spiegel who is now the franchise holder.

When the news of the franchise switch was first reported, Dick Burrowes was said to be the man who had taken over the club.

Of course, that was in keeping with Spiegel's wish to remain anonymous.

Dick Burrowes was complying with Sid's wishes. It was at Dick's insistence that Sidwell gave in and allowed his name to be used.

Burrowes serves as a liaison for Sidney Spiegel Investments. So now has another title. Dick will be the general manager of the Eagles.

Did Spiegel and Burrowes bust suddenly dec de to get in the business of senior hockey? It didn't happen that way.

It turns out senior hockey is the first to benefit from a corporate buy which is in the planning stages.

Plans for this "corporate body" have not been finalized as yet. It is the brainchild of Spiegel and Burrowes.

Says Burrowes: "The Senior A hockey problem came along and we were into it."

"When things are finalized, we hope to assist sports in general. The plan is really only in the fetus stage."

It should not be construed that the body will exist with the sole purpose of handing out funds. Such is not the case.

What it does mean, simply, is that these men hope to be able to assist in putting sports projects in a position where the programs are self supporting.

"Too many people involved in sports are so enthusiastic, they fail to look at the possibilities at the gate," observes Burrowes.

A mistake like that can be fatal.

And so it is that the assistance available will not be of a financial nature alone.

What's in it for the corporation?

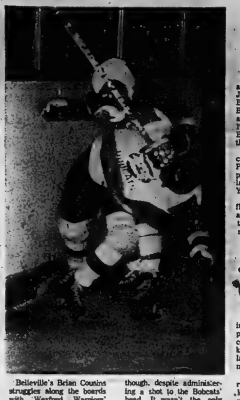
Organizers say it will be a non-profit organization with any monies realized being turned back into the individual projects, once debts are wiped out.

Returning to the Senior A situation, Burrowes explains:

"We realized what a great job the club's executive had done and were well aware of the hard work they put into the cause.

"In our opinion, they deserved some help.

"We were looking for a vehicle to get us started and it looks as if we chose a Rolls Royce," chuckled Burrowes.



Rolls Royce or go-cart, it all seems too good to be true.

May the wheels keep turning!

SLICES—Playoffs? Yes, they're under way already. Two Belleville Minor Hockey Association all-star squads begin league playoffs this weekend.

Saturday, the Western Tire Jewellers hook up with Peterborough at Memorial Arena in the opener of their set at 7 p.m. The return game is in Peterborough, Friday, January 18.

At the peewee level, Rollins Construction majors meet Oshawa, Sunday at 3:15 p.m. at Memorial Arena with the series shifting to Oshawa for Game 2, Wednesday, January 16.

Belleville's Brian Cousins struggles along the boards with Wexford Warriors' Cam McDougall in his efforts to reach the puck. McDougall, one of the Warriors' standout defencemen, couldn't hold Cousins back though, despite administering a check in the game's head. It wasn't the only rough play in the game however, as 34 penalties were handed out in the Cats' 8-4 Metro Junior B victory.

Bobcats Whip Warriors 8-4

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

A total of 34 penalties were assessed in last nights' Metro Junior B battle at the Belleville Memorial Arena, both the Belleville Bobcats and the Wexford Warriors got 17 penalties, enroute to Bellee lle's 8-4 victory over their Metro counterparts.

The victory kept the Bobcats just two points behind Pickering in the race for first place as the Panthers also won last night, defeating Toronto Young Nationals 5-0.

Belleville spent most of the first period monopolizing the action, despite the fact that they only outshot the Warriors 13-12.

Up to the last five minutes of the opening 20, it was a fairly close game, as the locals jumped into a 3-0 lead.

Jim Richardson opened the game's scoring at 1:08 with assists going to Dave Taylor and Bobbie Foster. Brian Cousins gave the Cats their second marker at 11:23 when he combined with Kevin Joubva.

By the end of the first however, Wexford had evened things up on an unassisted goal by Brian Quinn and another tally by Brian Cleaver both with less than four minutes to go in first.

The Warriors lived up to their name throughout the game, consistently attempting to intimidate the Cats with heavy bodychecks. On several occasions the Wexford team carried their intimidating ideas to the limit, trying to bang on to three different Bobcats.

As it turned out, the Belleville unit had no intentions of being pushed around by anyone. In the first period, Trevor Turnbull, of the Warriors, made the mistake of shoving local defenceman Tim Yohn. Yohn retaliated with a cross-check and Turnbull decided the two should finish things right there and then so the rambunctious Warrior challenged Yohn with a mild spear. The challenge did not go unnoticed and Yohn very quickly hammered Turnbull.

The second period was Belleville all the way. Cats jumped the score to 5-1 less than six minutes after the period started.

Kevin Joubva opened the four-goal second at 1:07 and Andy Richards, the games' first star, potted another at 1:42. Richards and Cousins assisted on the Joubva marker while Joubva assisted on the Richards' goal.

At 5:38 Richardson and Norm Jones, two Bobcats on the Metro all-star team, combined to make the score 5-2 Belleville with Richardson's second of the night.

Belleville appeared to play the necessary style of hockey in the second to keep the Warriors off balance. Wexford continued to press the locals but unfortunately they forgot to play any defence in the in zone.

On the other hand, Dave Taylor and Barney Holmes came up with outstanding games on the Belleville blue line. Tim Yohn also played well on defence for the Cats.

The third period was marked by two fights, brought on by overzealous and desperate attempts by the Warriors.

A minor outburst between Jason Clark and Wexford's Cam McDougall saw the Bobcats score at least a TKO because of the referee, by the officials.

The third fight of the night came half way through the final period when Jason Clark somehow got matched up with the visitors' policeman, team enforcer Trevor Turner, one of the biggest players in the Metro league.

Jones and Mark Coates, who is also a Metro All-Star picked up third period tallies for Belleville. Paul King, Richardson, Mike Watt and Foster got the assists on those goals.

Keith Acton, unassisted, and Matt Leslie, assisted by Ken Taylor and Brian Rose, were the final two Wexford scorers.

About 900 fans watched the game and all were kept busy either cheering or booing all the way through the exciting contest.

In other Metro Junior B games last night, Markham downed Oshawa 4-3 and Peterborough edged Bramalea 6 - 5.

The Cats next home game is Sunday when they take on Oak Ridges at the Memorial Arena at 8 pm.

Jets Top 'Oilers

WINNIPEG — Led by playing coach Bobby Hull, Winnipeg Jets earned a tie for second place in the World Hockey Association West Division last night by turning back Edmonton Oilers 7-4.

Hull brought his goal total to 27 for the season with a pair of counters. Other Jets to find the scoring range were Carl Swenson, Norm Beaudin, Ron Snell, Danny Johnson and Duke Asmundson.

Weller One Eagle Who Is Flying

2.63 average. Next in line is Hockey Association Seiffert 2.82 series, one factor has had a somewhat disappointing season so far in the Ontario If the Belleville Eagles have remained in contention, it is the ability of right-winger Wayne Weller to collect points.

Weller has been a bright spot in a rather dismal dirpiay.

After 23 games, he had a point total of 23, 10 for second place in te league scoring race, according to statistics release Friday by league statistician Carl Fletcher.

Wayne was second only to Bob Cunningham of Brantford Foresters who had a slim one-point lead.

The Belleville forward who solit his time between Oakville and Owen Sound last season and finished up with 23 goals and 23 assists in the process, is well on his way to surpassing his 1972-73 production.

Loyalist Teams Back in Action

Loyalist College got back into action in Eastern Ontario College Athletic Association play last night after their two week Christmas layoff.

The holiday didn't appear to hurt either of the two men's teams, basketball and hockey, as neither lost.

In basketball, the Loyalist squad travelled to Lindsay where they defeated Sir Sandford Fleming 72-61, while in hockey the Lancers were at home to the Dick Ellis Arena and battled to a 4-4 tie with the visiting Brockville team.

The basketball team was led by their captains, Bill Kyle and Harvey Sharpe.

Kyle hooped 20 points in the contest, 16 of which were in the second half. Sharpe was next to Kyle in the scoring department with 18.

Jim Sutton and Dave Culmer each had 12 points, third highest for Loyalist.

In the losing cause, it was Keith Ebba with 20 and Ron Blackwell and Rick Wilkie with 12.

For the Lancers hockey team, it was Reid Mallory leading the way with two goals and an assist. John Follett and Geof Johnston each scored one.

Centennial Seniors Off to Good Start

In high school volleyball action at North Addington Educational Centre (Cloyne) Thursday, the Centennial seniors chalked up four wins in as many matches.

According to coach Brearley, her team is shaping into a top contender for Bay of Quinte honors. And of the girls' showing Thursday at Cloyne, the coach is not apt to get any argument.

In his first match, Centennial got by Ontario School for the Deaf, 15-3, 15-6, aced by Kim Whitely whose strong serving accounted for 11 straight points in the second game.

Sue Wright was an outstanding attacker in the team's defeat of Nicholson Catholic College by scores of 15-8, 15-5.

Centennial followed up with wins over Bayside Secondary School (15-8, 15-5) and the host CDC (15-4, 15-10).

Centennial Juniors also turned in a first rate performance.

After dropping its opening game to Bayside 15-12, the team came back to gain the decision on scores of 15-10 and 15-5. The next match went to Centennial over NASC 15-11, 15-8.

Nicholson prevented Centennial from completing a sweep of its matches by recording the win in straight games, 15-12, 15-13.

Your Horoscope

Sunday, Jan. 13

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Aries (March 21-April 19) Harmonious conditions prevail for you today in over-all relationships with others. Friends are a source of pleasure.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Tasks you set your hand to will turn out to be labors of love. Be active in the productive sense for a worthwhile day.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) This is your day to sparkle in a social atmosphere. Members of the opposite sex will find you especially charming.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Your cherished intuitive instincts will be very evident today. You'll be at your best if you have someone to love, fuss over and spoil a little.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Answers will come easy to you now regarding something you've had a problem deciding on. Stick to today's decisions.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions that relate to your work or career are offering large promise. This will reflect itself in your bank balance.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Over the next few days, be more cautious than usual regarding matters that could reflect poorly on your reputation and standing.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Someone is going to poke his nose into situations where your work is concerned. He'll offer suggestions you are better off disregarding.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) This is not a good time to count too heavily on things that aren't absolute certainty. If you do, the odds are against you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Be sure you have your mate's full approval regarding important domestic changes today. If you act alone, a disagreement will result.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be afraid to ask questions today if you tackle something you are not sure of. A mistake that could have been averted would embarrass you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Watch your pennies the next few days. You can build up a little surplus provided you spend only for urgent needs.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It is important to stick to the course you've set. Something will occur today whereby you will want to change direction. Don't.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Let charitable impulses motivate you rather than cold logic. Only then will you have the right reasons not to help where you should.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be a friend to one you'll be in contact with today, but not her "angel." She is a nice person, but a poor financial risk.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't confuse your goals at this time. Go for that which is practical, rather than something you can't put in the bank.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Give your plans ample time to jell. You're going to be impatient today. Instead of speeding things up, you will just complicate matters.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) An arrangement you have with another is working out fine. It's not time to involve a third party.

GLOVES GIVEN

TORONTO (CP) — Cab driver Ted Nash will not be stuck for a pair of gloves this winter. He picked up a customer recently who admitted at his destination he didn't have any money. "Do the guy gave me his gloves," Ted said. "It was a nice gesture."

Store Closing Laws To Be Tougher: Kerr

HAMILTON (CP) — George Kerr, Ontario's secretary of justice, told audiences here in Burlington Friday that legislation affecting Sunday store closings "will be tougher, if anything."

He said formal submissions he has received "have been unanimously in support for Sunday as a restricted shopping day."

Mr. Kerr, who started a tour of 15 Ontario cities and towns Friday to gather reaction to longer shopping hours and Sunday retailing, says he hopes the meetings will help the government make up its mind about the issue and the legislation governing it.

He said he was disappointed but not discouraged by the small number of people who turned up to discuss the controversial question at the meetings.

Although some merchants and their staff showed up at the two meetings, there were few consumers. As a result, Mr. Kerr said he may have to change the format of future meetings during the tour which ends Feb. 5.

During both meetings, the bulk of opinion was in favor of the existing municipal bylaws which limit night shopping to Thursday and Friday and prohibit Sunday shopping except in variety and convenience stores.

Mr. Kerr agreed with the criticism expressed several times that fines levied for illegal Sunday shop opening are too small.

He said fines should be increased to discourage store owners from opening Sundays.

Mr. Cuthbertson said problems arise when one area has restricted shopping hours and another has not, resulting in a loss of business because the different areas were unable to compete.

Many store employees said that longer hours force them to work shifts on weekends which disrupt their lives. They said stores must increase the price of goods because longer hours mean more staff must be hired.

An official of a firm which runs a group of variety stores in Burlington, opposed any restriction on the number of hours such stores could operate on Sundays.

When asked whether eight hours of operation on Sunday would allow the stores to make money, the store official was jeered by members of the crowd when he said that would not be possible.

Mr. Kerr will hold meetings in Niagara Falls Monday and in Peterborough Tuesday.

Late Sitting Senators Back

OTTAWA (CP)— A rare Saturday session of the Senate was scheduled at 11 a.m. EST today after the upper house worked until nearly midnight Friday without resolving a dispute with the Commons over controversial wiretap legislation.

The 102-seat House sat until 11:53 p.m. in search of a solution that would let it save face but avoid a major confrontation over Commons rejection of a Senate amendment to bill.

At issue was a clause requiring attorneys-general to notify persons subjected to police wiretaps that they had been the targets of electronic surveillance. Notification would have to be made within 90 days of the removal of a bugging device.

The action was overruled by the Commons Thursday and the bill was returned to the Senate in its original form.

Senator Paul Martin, government leader of the upper house, recommended that the appointed senators bow to the will of the elected Commons.

"I don't apologize for what I said. But a further battle could only end in a quick rebuff from we've done. It's our right, our conviction and our duty," he said in a quick rebuff from elected MPs.

Two motions were expected to be dealt with today, one by Senator Carl Goldenberg (L—Grenville) asking that a major confrontation be avoided.

Nixon Sets Up Liberal Council

The council, which will consist of the 117 provincial riding presidents, will hold its first meeting here Feb. 2.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Toronto and District Liberal Association, Mr. Nixon said an aim of the council is to set out more clearly the distinction between federal and provincial Liberals.

"I am committed to winning the next election in this province," the Liberal leader said. "I believe that in order to achieve that goal the independent organizational needs of our provincial party must be clearly recognized."

He added:

"I hope that the 27 ridings which now have joint federal-provincial executives will seriously consider separate organizations."

Mounties Refused TV Film on UIC

TORONTO (CP) — CTV television has refused to hand over film to RCMP officers in investigating leaks of documents from the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC), Tom Goold, vice-president in charge of news and information program for CTV, said Friday.

He said RCMP officers asked for copies of a film interview with Jack Ellis, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Hastings, who recently made wide - ranging attacks against UIC based on UIC documents.

The documents, which appeared to span nearly two years, indicated there was extensive mismanagement, financial waste and computer chaos in UIC, Mr. Ellis says.

Commission officials say the leaked documents were outdated and misleading in the way they were presented to public.

"They (the RCMP) were very nice about it, but I said no," Mr. Goold said.

"If someone said we had a film which would help in a murder investigation, we would be willing to release it," he said. "But I could not see how the public interest would be served in this case."

Mr. Goold said the officers told him they had a search warrant but did not produce it.

He said the film the RCMP wanted had been screened last November in an interview with Mr. Ellis in his Commons office. During the interview, Mr. Ellis produced the leaked documents and flicked through them on camera to support his denial that the documents were out of date.

UIC chairman Guy Cousineau said in a telephone interview from Ottawa Friday he was aware the investigation was going on, but he had not ordered it personally.

He said the UIC had a small security division and they did use the services of the RCMP when necessary.

Ombudsman Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of University Teachers (CAUT) voted here Friday to oppose a proposal to appoint a provincial ombudsman for universities.

Also an appointment could mean government interference in universities' affairs, the association said.

"The CAUT favored instead individual ombudsmen for each university.

Olympic TV Kickback Denied By Bourassa

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said Friday allegations that his government received a financial kickback in exchange for U.S. television rights to the 1976 summer Olympic Games were ridiculous.

Mr. Bourassa's comment was one of a host of denials resulting from a request made in the Commons Friday by Otto Jelinek, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto High Park-Humber Valley, for a federal inquiry into how the American Broadcasting Corp. (ABC) got exclusive rights to broadcast the games.

Mr. Jelinek said another U.S. network, CBS, was asked to give the Quebec government $5 million in bidding for the contract, but that CBS refused.

He also said a third U.S. network, NBC, had offered $23.9 million, about $7 million more than ABC, "with no strings attached."

Prime Minister Trudeau immediately refuffed the request for an investigation, telling the Commons it is not his government's policy to intervene in matters under provincial authority. He said he had not discussed the matter with Quebec officials.

The prime minister's statement was called "very misleading" by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who said the allegations involved a federal government-supported project.

An ABC spokesman in Los Angeles denied that the network had participated in "an under-the-table deal" with the Olympic organizing committee.

"These charges have apparently been circulated by some other network that had hoped to secure the television rights but failed," the spokesman said.

"The Canadian Olympic organizing committee also has stated that the U.S. television rights were awarded to ABC sports because of its demonstrated expertise in covering four previous Olympics," said the spokesman. "ABC network's proposal was without its two competitors."

Gerry Snyder, vice-president of the Olympic organizing committee, said Friday in Montreal he considers Mr. Jelinek's statement "irresponsible . . . for a member of Parliament to make unless he has documented proof to back it up."

"As a member of the negotiating team for television rights, I categorically deny that anything of that nature was ever discussed," Mr. Snyder said in an interview.

Selection should be made by faculty, students and administrative bodies, the association hopes the reaction will encourage the government to undertake its own initiatives.

"People are calling from all over the country at their own expense to tell me how enthusiastic they are. The intensity of the reaction has really surprised me. I had no idea."

He figures it is something that appeals to the emotions of Canadians, just as John Diefenbaker's "northern vision" grabbed the population in the elections of 1957 and 1958.

"Now its the middle of winter and people are excited about a southern vision." One cabinet minister has given Mr. Saltsman his support and some sources say Prime Minister Trudeau is intrigued.

Saltsman's Caribbean Proposal Gets Support

OTTAWA (CP) — Max Saltsman expected favorable public reaction when he introduced a bill in the Commons to make some Caribbean islands part of Canada, but he never expected the cascade of correspondence that followed.

"It's just phenomenal," he said. Letters were piled high on his desk, his telephone rang constantly and his secretary was busy in another office trying to straighten out appointments for radio and television interviews.

"Stick with it, and good luck," said one letter.

"It's the best idea of the century," said another.

"God knows, there is little enough introduced into Parliament by the NDP that I can agree with, but . . ."

Mr. Saltsman, New Democratic MP for Waterloo-Cambridge in Ontario, seemed overstruck by the response.

"Frankly," he said, "I am exhausted." But he was grinning.

His bill, introduced Thursday, would establish a committee to study his proposal that the Grand Turk and Caicos Islands become part of Canada, specifically part of Nova Scotia. He is confident their 8,000 inhabitants are anxious to become Canadians and remain part of the Commonwealth.

"And Canada would finally have a place in the sun."

The NDP member has no illusions about his bill being passed by Parliament—private members' bills seldom are—but he

Atomic Plants Found Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Atomic Energy Commission official says the preliminary results of a study suggest there never will be a major accident in a nuclear power plant.

Dr. Herbert Kouts, the commission director of reactor safety research, said the odds on a major catastrophe at a nuclear plant were given in the study as "once in a 1 billion to once in 10 billion years" for a given reactor.

The study's figures show that "even with the 1,000 reactors expected to be operating by the year 2000, it would be 1,000 to 10,000 years before any given reactor might be expected to have an accident," Kouts said in an interview.

Thus "for the 100 to 200 years we expect to be using fissionable uranium before supplies run out . . . we would expect never to have a catastrophic accident by an overwhelming probability factor."

Kouts described a catastrophic accident as one in which large quantities of radioactive materials would be released, killing "thousands of people, possibly 3,000 to 10,000 although the figures are very shaky."

The study, by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, also projected the possibility of a less severe accident as once in a million to once in 10 million years for any given reactor.

Kouts described this type accident as "comparable in its consequences to the crash of a jumbo-jet aircraft that might kill 200 people or so."

Skepticism Greets Plan For Libya-Tunisia Union

TUNIS (AP) — After five unsuccessful attempts in 16 years to unite various Arab countries, the new merger of Libya and Tunisia is being greeted with skepticism.

Lebanese newspapers suggest that Col. Moammar Khadafy, the militant Libyan leader, had turned to Tunisia's moderate President Habib Bourguiba out of pique at the failure of his attempt last year to merge with Egypt.

Observers say Bourguiba, who rejected a similar proposal in 1972, hopes his poor country, with twice the population and one-tenth the area, will benefit from Libya's enormous oil revenue.

There was caution in Tunisia on the proposed merger and a group of former ministers said it was necessary to ensure respect for constitutional rights for all. There are between 15,000 and 12,000 Jews living in Tunisia.

The Tunisian weekly Tunis Hebdo, quoting reliable sources, says Bourguiba is to be president of the new republic and Khadafy vice-president.

Some reports said the Tunisian town of Kairouan, the second holy Islamic city after Mecca, could be the new capital.

Algeria's official news agency, APS, says unity of two peoples can be decided only "on concrete realities and similar options in all fields" and not on "one single decree, however grandiloquent." This appeared a rebuff to a statement from Bourguiba expressing hope that Algeria would join the union.

Khadafy and Bourguiba signed an agreement Saturday to unite their countries into a new state to be called the Arab Islamic Republic, with a single executive, legislature, army, flag and constitution. The merger will be submitted to a referendum, and approval is considered certain.

But the Libyan and Tunisian governments are dominated by their two leaders, and the two men appear to have significantly more differences than similarities.

Bourguiba, for example, has been the only Arab leader to call openly for recognition of Israel and negotiations with the Jewish state provided it withdraws from all occupied Arab territories. Khadafy continues to reject negotiations and calls for a holy war and liquidation of Israel.

Bourguiba, 70, is one of the West's best friends in the Arab world and hospitable to both Western influence and ideas in his country. Khadafy, 31, is a fiery Islamic nationalist who has tried to export foreign influence from his country and calls for the rest of the Arabs to do the same.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of some of the largest U.S. oil companies have told Congress that their industry could have produced more domestic crude oil in recent years but decided against it because it wouldn't have been profitable.

The officials said their companies were exercising sound business judgment in ignoring such oil and they blamed federal policies for the situation.

The executives from eight of the 10 biggest oil companies made their statements in separate interviews with The Associated Press. Most of the men asked not to be identified either by name or by company.

Kissinger on Move 'Peace Blitz' Is Underway

From AP-REUTER

Henry Kissinger continued his diplomatic blitz today, shuttling between Egypt and Israel trying to get agreement on a plan to separate their troops along the Suez canal.

After meeting with Israeli officials in Jerusalem Sunday, the U.S. state secretary flew to Aswan, in upper Egypt, to discuss with President Anwar Sadat Israel's proposal to withdraw its forces from the canal.

Sources said the offer was for a withdrawal of 30 miles.

However, all indications point to Egyptian rejection of a key point in the Israeli plan. It calls for a sizable thinning out of Egyptian forces on the east side of the canal in the Sinai Desert and the withdrawal back into Egypt of their tanks, missiles and artillery.

Other key elements are reported to include the manning of a buffer zone by the United Nations Emergency Force and patrols by mixed forces of Egyptians and Israelis.

Sources said the Israelis would be gauging Egypt's longrange intentions partly by whether it dredged the Suez canal.

Kissinger was scheduled to return to Jerusalem tonight after conferring with Sadat, and observers said this indicated he would have Egyptian objections to put before the Israelis. After meeting with them, he might shuttle back to Aswan to see Sadat a third time. He began his third Mideast visit since October by meeting Sadat Friday night and Saturday.

Egyptian officials said their president told Kissinger Saturday that his Egyptian forces in the Sinai Desert are there to stay with their weapons." They said Sadat "irrevocably" rejected proposals for thinning out the Egyptian forces in Sinai or defining the types of their weapons.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi issued a statement Sunday reviewing Egypt's demand for total Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory. It rejected a "unilateral peace" with Israel, one that does not include Syria and Jordan.

Despite the bristling tone, U.S. officials with Kissinger said they found Sadat's statement was designed to soothe radical Arab quarters and was not a sign of unhappiness with the disengagement proposal.

Some Israeli officials say Sadat needs the withdrawal of the Israeli army from the west bank of the canal before the Egyptian public becomes more aware of Israel's gains in that region during the October war.

During his stay in Israel Sunday Kissinger met with two groups seeking the return of soldiers held prisoner in Syria.

"He arouses faith in us," said a spokesman for one of the groups after the meeting.

Premier Golda Meir was still too ill with a painful virus infection to join in the discussions with Kissinger, but she met her two personal visits. He met with Deputy Premier Yigal Allon and other top cabinet ministers.

Allon said later that Israel is ready to negotiate a troop disengagement with the Syrians as well as the Egyptians as soon as Damascus forwards a list of the POWs and allows representatives of the International Red Cross to visit them.

But high-ranking sources in Damascus dismissed Allon's offer as "just another tricky manoeuvre" and "part of the standard treacherous policy of Israel to divert us from basic issues into discussing marginal matters."

U.S. officials said earlier that Kissinger might fly to Damascus before returning to Washington, but he later told reporters that no decision for such a trip had yet been taken.

The urgency for agreement on separation of forces was underlined Sunday by continued breaches of the ceasefire agreement. At least 17 Israeli soldiers had been killed on the northern and southern fronts since the Oct. 22 ceasefire.

One soldier was killed Sunday in a seven-hour artillery, mortar and tank-fire exchange along most of the Syrian front.

Kissinger Reportedly Spied on by Army Man

But Pentagon associates of the country's top uniformed officer say he has not lost the confidence of President Nixon, and, in fact, received notice well in advance from the White House in 1971 that he was being nominated for a second two-year term as chairman.

The Pentagon officials were commenting on a report by the Chicago Tribune that Nixon wanted to fire Moorer after the 1972 presidential campaign but known as the plumbers told the president of the spying against Kissinger, then a foreign policy adviser.

Meanwhile, the New York Times reports in today's editions that David Young, a member of the plumbers unit, submitted a lengthy report in early 1972 that concluded that Nixon had received secret documents leaking from Kissinger's staff.

The Times story, which quotes well-placed sources, says Young's report of his investigation into security leaks showed that classified materials were provided to syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

On Sundays, the Chicago Sun-Times said the plumbers group accused an unidentified U.S. military man of rifling Kissinger's briefcase during one of his visits to China. It said Saturday that Kissinger ordered a tap placed on the telephones of three defence secretary Melvin Laird in 1971 in an attempt to find the source of leaks from secret diplomatic dealings.

Kissinger, now secretary of state, rejected charges in the telephone-tapping report. Simply, "I think it is a malicious, vicious, outrageous lie," he told reporters while flying from Jerusalem to Aswan, Egypt, on a Middle East peace mission.

Impeachment Debate Likely To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — A televised debate as to whether President Nixon could be impeached for Watergate and related reasons will go on for the remaining three years of Nixon's term, Attorney-General William Saxbe predicts.

"It's an effort to blame somebody, and it's going to continue," Saxbe said Sunday.

Meanwhile, Senator Barry Goldwater said he thinks that if Nixon resign during his term, it was doubtful that Democrats would sit idly by and allow Vice-President Gerald R. Ford to succeed him.

"I think they might start an effort to get congressional amendment whereby there would be a special election," the Arizona Republican said. "If anything like this came out, there would be an orderly transition. . . . I think it could raise havoc with the whole world."

Goldwater was interviewed on the NBC's Meet the Press, Saxbe on CBS's Face the Nation.

Energy Bills Will Get Royal Assent Today

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bora Laskin, newly-appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, in his capacity of deputy governor-general, is to give royal assent today to two energy bills passed Saturday by the Senate.

The energy allocation bill, designed to conserve energy supplies in an emergency, will establish an allocation board with power to implement rationing at the wholesale and individual level.

The second bill increases for February and March the export tax on crude oil to $6.40 a barrel from the current $2.38.

The allocation bill was a potentially contentious one for the Senate. It originally gave the upper house veto power over any declaration of the allocation board.

But this was removed Thursday by the Commons under pressure from the New Democratic Party.

The export tax bill formally approves a tax that has been in effect since Oct. 1.

In Regina Saturday, Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney said a report in a Toronto newspaper that his government plans a 15-per-cent increase in the price of crude oil "creates an erroneous impression on two counts.

However, also in an interview, Elwood Cowley, Saskatchewan minister of mineral resources, said Eastern Canadians should not be surprised if the price of oil does rise 15 per cent.

Asked to comment on a Toronto Star report that when the provinces starts charging "fair world prices" the price per barrel will jump to about $10 from the present $3.70, Premier Blakeney said:

"The story suggests that the government of Saskatchewan is somehow setting prices in Ontario or seeking to set prices anywhere. We charge a royalty and undoubtedly the royalty will affect prices, but not in direct relation to the royalty. . . .

We are very firm in the position that it is not our job to set prices."

He said the story gives the impression that the government has changed its policy, but in reality, the government announced in November it would be setting the royalty Feb. 1 "based upon the fair and just value of oil which will have to be ascertained later this month."

Mr. Cowley said it appears the world price for a barrel of crude oil will be about $15.30 by then.

A spokesman for federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said in Ottawa Saturday that oil pricing will be one of the major topics at the federal-provincial energy conference later this month.

Pioneer 10 Opens Way To Space Exploration

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Pioneer 10, the tiny spacecraft that conducted the first close-up survey of the planet Jupiter, has opened the door to exploration of the little-known solar system.

The unmanned space ship has proved that engineers can design small, tough, highly intelligent probes to survive the harsh environments. It has shown such astonished machines can communicate effectively across vast distances to return a wealth of scientific data.

Pioneer 10 has illustrated how cheaply unmanned space probes can tell man as much as he may need to know for decades to come, even centuries about his solar system.

But some space scientists are worried that unmanned planetary exploration will receive shrinking attention from NASA administrators, congressmen and aerospace industries enamored of the more costly manned programs.

The NASA budget now is slightly more than $3 billion annually. The scientists fear that in coming years the budget will grow only enough to offset inflation, while development costs of the space shuttle gobble up increasing funds at the expense of unmanned space exploration.

Used Oil Recycled

The used oil comes from service stations, the metals industry, and truck and bus companies, which are happy to rid themselves of the waste.

Petroneo, which has 15 employees, filters the oil, treats it to eliminate further impurities and distills it. The firm processes 18,000 gallons of used oil a day and has the capacity to turn out 25,000 gallons.

Some of those gallons are reused as motor vehicle oil, which is sold by auto supply stores and discount gasoline stations. The remainder goes back to industrial plants for heating and operation of machinery.

director of the Association of Petroleum Re-refiners in Arlington, Va., said there are about 40 of the firms in the United States.

Cunningham sees a future for Petroneo, too, which pre-dicts energy crisis, but readily admits re-refining cannot alleviate the oil shortage.

"Too few re-refining plants are in operation, there are no quality standards for the product and it's not profitable to convert industrial or automotive oil into home-heating fuel," he said.

While sale of re-refined oil to industry might help the shortage, it would contribute only be in recycled motor oil. But the product must be imported to sell.

Cunningham said the recycled motor oil cannot capture a substantial part of the market without cooperation of major oil companies. If the major firms label the product inferior, it won't sell, he said.

The funeral of Paul Clement, Stoco, was held recently from the Cassidy Funeral Home to St. Edmund's Roman Catholic Church where the funeral mass was conducted by Rev. J.C. Greenwood. Interment was in St. Edmund's Cemetery.

The bearers were Lawrence LaSage, Thomas Kelly, Patrick Whalen, Stanley Trudeau, Felix Fobert and William Allore.

Mr. Clement died in Kingston General Hospital following a brief illness. He was 78.

Born at Rogart, northeast of Tweed, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Clement. He was a life resident of the Stoco area. He was a member of St. Edmund's Church.

He is survived by his wife,

Taught In Calgary Chinatown

Tai Chi Chuan

"Nature is always in motion. Man should also strengthen himself without interruption."

By JOSEPH MA

CALGARY (CP) — Why do they go to the United Chinese Church in Chinatown every Sunday: The sermons are not given in English.

They go there to learn Tai Chi Chuan, a school of Chinese fighting that has evolved to as Chinese shadow boxing.

However, many Chinese students don't understand him either, since most of the 1,000 Chinese Canadians speak the Toi Shan or Cantonese dialects, and Mr. Chang speaks only mandarin.

Mr. Chang's English vocabulary is restricted to "yes, two, three, four" (he doesn't go beyond four) and "watch me, relax, see you next Sunday" and a few other basic necessities for communication.

But that doesn't stop them. What he doesn't speak he does with demonstration.

The philosophy of Tai Chi Chuan is based mainly on I Ching—the Book of Change. Both for self-defence and exercise, it is important to stimulate the proper flow of chi or life energy—within the body.

Unlike most other schools of martial art—such as boxing or karate—Tai Chi Chuan often uses the opponent's force to knock him down, says Mr. Chang.

—Take advantage of impending motion and momentum and deflect the impetus of a thousand pounds with a trigger force of four ounces.

—Counter-your energy till you make contact with your opponent, then relax your strength and have him upended.

It is difficult to establish the origin of Tai Chi Chuan, says Mr. Chang, a former instructor under the Chinese military Academy. The system was held by the Li family and was founded by the Taoist priests on mainland China several hundred years ago.

Tai Chi Chuan is defensively-oriented and the aim of your opponent to strike first.

Mr. Chang's method blends his students of the philosophy behind Tai Chi Chuan—to advocate a state of inner peace and a state of harmony with the universe.

Woman Shot During Party

Barbara Dionne Deline, 23, of 119 Water St., Trenton was shot in the lower abdomen and leg around 1:30 a.m. Sunday, while she and four other persons were partying at the relative's home in RR 4 Frankford.

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police report that the Trenton women was in the basement of the home when a .22 caliber rifle was discharged into the kitchen floor. The bullet passed through the floor and struck the woman in the low abdomen, police said.

A Frankford man, Douglas Howard Newton, has been charged with criminal negligence as a result of the incident.

Help With Carnival Requested

TWEED (Special) — The Tweed Chamber of Commerce is asking full support ahead with plans for their upcoming Winter Carnival, initial scheduled for February 8, until 15.

But, according to C of C president Doug Storey, the big need is public participation in planning and special events.

The kickoff for the annual winter carnival will be an opening parade. Also scheduled for the five day event are snowmobile races and a campfire and weiner at the community centre.

Council Heads Guide Activity

TWEED (Special) — Betty Reid and Garnet Pigden, 1974 heads of the Centre Hastings Secondary School Inter-house Council at Madoc, have commenced their job of organizing school student activities. Betty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Reid of Springbrook, while Garnet is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pigden of Madoc.

The inter-house secondary school student body is divided into five "Houses" named after the signs of the Zodiac: Scorpio, Gemini, Sagittarius, Leo and Libra with each of the units having their own executive.

The Inter-house Council heads co-ordinate student activities and at council meetings decide on budget allocations and fund-raising activities.

As head boy and girl, Betty and Garnet also represent the total student body at all school functions.

Passenger Hurt In Collision

A Belleville woman, Lisa Lazenby, of 181 West College Street, was treated for minor injuries and released from Belleville General Hospital Saturday following a two-car collision on North Front Street and Donald Street.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today that the Lazenby woman was a passenger in a car driven by Daniel Wayne Neal, 36 of Frankford.

Damage arising from the accident which occured at 3:14 p.m. was estimated to be $700.

Car Runs Into Yard Engine

A Frankford man received minor cuts and bruises but did not require hospital treatment Saturday after his car ran into a CNR yard locomotive at the Byron Street railway crossing.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reported today that Neil Johnson, 18, of RR 2 Frankford was involved in a collision with the locomotive around 12.30 a.m. Saturday.

The Johnson car was eastbound on Byron Street when it collided wit the northbound freight train. Damage to the Johnson car was estimated at $300, while the train was undamaged.

Parked Cars Hit

The thefts, which occurred in the Dundas Street — Smith John Street area late Sunday afternoon, netted thieves approximately $134 worth of stereo tape decks.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reports that the thieves broke into a car that was parked outside the Calvary Temple on Dundas Street around 1.40 p.m. Sunday. They smashed a left-hand-side window but did not steal anything.

At 4.30 p.m. a $4 flashlight was stolen from a car parked outside of 34 South John Street and at 4.35 p.m. an eight-track stereo, valued at $30, was stolen from a parked car in front of 97 South John St.

A $50 stereo tape deck was also stolen from a car parked in front of 113 Dundas Street around 4.37 p.m.

Ellis Says RCMP Welcome to Look

Jack Ellis, Conservative member of Parliament for Hastings, said Saturday the RCMP is welcome to examine documents he has relating to the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC).

CTV television said Friday it had refused to turn over to the RCMP copies of a film interview with Mr. Ellis who recently made wide-ranging attacks against the UIC.

Mr. Ellis said that the RCMP investigation is intended to frighten UIC employees and stop information leaks.

The investigation also may be an attempt to link the information leaks to one person but this would be impossible, he said.

Mr. Ellis said the documents he has came from several sources and all distinguishing marks had been removed from the photostats.

CN Diesels Jump Rails

BRIGHTON — A 91-car Canadian National freight train spent last night stranded on the main line in Toronto after the two diesel engines jumped the track.

A CN spokesman said this morning there were no injuries and an investigation into the derailment continues today.

The two diesel units left the track while drawing their 91-car load onto the main line from the Brighton area siding shortly before 9 p.m. Sunday. Crews managed to right the train by 7 a.m., freeing the main line.

The CN spokesman in Belleville gave no cause for the incident, though faulty track switching mechanisms are suspected.

No Coal In City

The energy crisis has been on everyone's mind for quite a while now. We've been told that oil is in short supply, gasoline is running low and we should even turn our lights off to save on electricity.

Well, there's not too many alternatives to turn to if you want to be energy conscious, and save on fuel.

Right now, you can't use anything but gasoline as fuel in a car, electricity is something you just have to have but you really don't have to cut oil to heat your house.

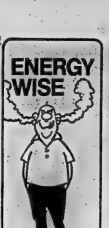
You can use coal instead! But not in Belleville. A check with local fuel companies brings out the answer that there is no coal available in Belleville. The closest place to obtain it is in Campbellford.

Oh, well, spring will be here in a few months and home heating won't matter that much. Now if they'll only get around to that solar-powered car to solve our gasoline problems.

Public School Hit by Vandals

Vandals broke into Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School, on Leland Drive, over the weekend and caused an estimated $150 damage to the front lobby and the principal's office.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reported today that the vandals broke into the school sometime between 9 p.m. Friday and 4.30 p.m. Saturday.



Nothing was reported missing and there was no sign of a forced entry, the Chief said.

The vandals threw ink about the walls and floors of the lobby and the office.

Unchanged

MARMORA — Membership on village council committees here has been left unchanged.

The reason, said Reeve Jack Reynolds is that several municipal projects are currently underway and changes would be unwise at this stage.

Work Proceeds On Apartment

TRENTON — Work continues today on Trenton's largest structure following the lifting of the stop-work order administered by the town two weeks ago.

Town hall staff, concerned over the cement used in the eighth floor of the 15 story structure, two weeks ago issued a stop-work order until an engineer's report could be submitted attesting to the quality of the cement.

Arie Hoornweg, Trenton's acting commissioner of works had the order lifted following the Toronto developer's compliance to the submission of an engineer's report.

According to the developer's engineer, the structure on Tripp Blvd. which would ultimately have more than 190 apartments, was within building standards and that work should proceed.

At last Monday's council meeting, Mr. Hoornweg said, "For our own satisfaction, we invited a Kingston engineering firm to duplicate tests on the cement and submit an independent report."

Verbal reports from the engineers indicate the building is sound and Mr. Hoornweg says work is in progress. A written report is expected this week.

Fire Taken To Fire Hall

Ever conscious of the energy crisis, Belleville's police department has started to bring their few calls to the city's firefighters.

Around 7.35 p.m. Friday, two police constables, on patrol in a cruiser, found that they had a faulty electrical wire in their car, so they drove the vehicle to the city's No. 1 Fire Hall on Dundas Street East.

Cars Collide On North Front

Mrs. Queeny Farrell, of RR 1 Tweed, a passenger in a car driven by Marylin Farrell, 23, of Toronto, received the injury when the car in which she was travelling was struck from behind by a car driven by Deborah Donovan, 18, of 126 Lemoine Street.

Police said that the Farrell car was slowing down to let another car make a left-hand turn when it was struck. Road conditions at the time of the accident were icy.

Damage estimates were placed at $130.

Changing Travel Trends

Americans — and probably Canadians too — will not be travelling far by car this year. The fuel shortage will see to that.

Instead, it is being said vacationers will tend to go to the place of their choice — and stay there.

The result: excellent opportunities for tourist resorts, including those in Quinte country.

These same resorts should be thinking now of further means to make their establishments as attractive as possible, in expectation of people wanting to stay put.

What about our own community? How up-to-date is our tourist advertising? The city has grown so much in recent years, and has so many new attractions — things to do, places to eat, better than ever and more extensive shopping facilities. Add to them the many sporting and recreational facilities and we have a lot to offer.

But we must advertise all this, send out new brochures and let people know what we have here.

We saw a travel agency advertisement the other day for a golf package week in the San Diego area in March. Very nice too, and it sets us wondering why such a vacation, involving clubs in this area, could not be provided in Quinte country in the summer months.

There is tennis too of course, and sailing, although these perhaps are not geared so much to any sudden influx of visitors. Let's not forget though that facilities at the harbor are being expanded.

All around too are attractive beaches and interesting places to visit, many of them of historic significance.

Motels this year may feel the pinch, because fewer people will be travelling, and not so far afield at that. However, if we can attract people in the manner described it could help to counteract that possibility.

In any event, since traffic and travel patterns clearly are changing the challenge must be to meet the new trend.

And remembering the spectacle of many a tired family in restaurants at the end of a summer's day, the emphasis now should be on rest and relaxation, and staying relatively close to base.

Better Educated ?

On every hand we hear the kids are better educated today. But issuing from the wings is a discordant voice which says those selfsame kids can't spell and their grammar is awful.

On the one hand we have all those expensive schools, so that in many ways the youngsters cannot help but learn something, while on the other there are increasing lamentations that the three Rs are being neglected.

But it is not only the young. All age groups fall prey to a variety of common errors. On Kingston television recently we heard a very vocal and very earnest woman defending Education Minister Wells and she was saying something that included " 'irregardless' of. . . " And there are the letters we receive which are peppered with "it's" when it should be "its." And there are the folks who talk about The Barbados instead of just plain Barbados. The Bahamas yes . . . but Barbados is Barbados.

Globe and Mail book reviewer William French came upon a real blizzard of spelling errors and incomprehensible phrasing recently in the first issue of Harrowsmith, a journal billed as the Canadian answer to Playboy and Penthouse whose pages reflect literary merit as well as the pictorial art that requires no introduction.

But in Success, columnist French found the spelling and the parsing, rather than the models, distracting. Indeed, he suggests the overall impression was in the Canadian tradition: the girl in the centrefold "demure" rather than sexy, the photos generally "discreet," while the way it was all put together, as already indicated, left much to be desired. It's for its incidentally, being only one of many errors listed.

French concludes: "No, it's unlikely that Success will spoil anyone." As for that observation of Oscar Wilde, it just can't be true that nothing succeeds like success!"

Wallace Nesbitt's Parting Thoughts

MP Saw "Crisis of Spirit" Rather Than an Energy Crisis

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Just before he made his last journey home to Ontario's Woodstock, this time in disc, Wallace Nesbitt, for 14 years Conservative MP for Oxford, took a different kind of a look at the energy crisis.

He had returned to the Capital following partial recovery from a stroke, and said there had been plenty of time for him to read and think of the energy situation.

In the top few days he remained then on Parliament Hill, before a massive heart attack killed him, there was time to chat with old friends whom Wally traditionally remembered at Christmas with small tasty bits of Woodstock's famed cheese.

Veteran of eight successive elections, a Parliamentary Secretary to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, and the External Affairs Minister Howard Green, was an MP with insights into national problems that veered from the conventional.

And so it was with the energy crisis.

Wally Nesbitt said he had "read some place" that the real energy crisis was a shortage not so much of oil but of national spirit.

And he agreed, expanding on the theme.

Sure, he agreed, there was a critical shortage of oil, but enormously inventive North American technology and a little sensible global diplomacy could take care of that.

What bothered Wally Nesbitt was what, or who, would overcome the more fundamental, far more serious energy crisis in the lack of what he saw as national commitment, inspiration and pride of achievement which had brought Canada to greatness before the New Welfare State, as he called it, "began undermining us all."

For this national malaise, this "crisis of spirit," as he viewed it, he blamed public disillusionment with political leadership at all levels of government, resulting in a declining faith in old values, virtues, truths and institutions.

Too many people, said Wally Nesbitt, believe we are trapped in a frame of insurmountable problems out of which our leaders seem incapable of taking us or of even attempting a rescue.

Such problems as mounting crime, casual killing, dishonesty in government, pollution of the environment, uncontrolled inflation, increasing food and other shortages, self-seeking politicians, over-taxation, and what he saw as "an inverted and perverted pride in beating the system."

There have always been problems, he said, the depression, war, poverty, financial panic, social unrest, and sometimes regional upheaval, plagues and other disasters.

But looking back on them, and reading of those he did not personally witness, he believes they always brought out the best in Canadians in rising to the challenge.

Now though, in this "instant age" of satellite communications, supersonic flight, space travel, and when in the generations would be regarded in awe as technological miracles, we all have come to expect instant answers to every public question with sure-and-certain solutions to every problem.

He saw "far too many Canadians listening to the gloom-sayers and buying their pessimism that society is to blame for everything, and because you can't do it for yourself, the Welfare State will have to do it for you."

The end result, said he, has been a widespread lack of faith in ourselves as individuals and collectively as a nation.

Wally Nesbitt went back to old Ontario Scotch-Irish ancestors, convinced the only way out of the "real energy crisis is a regeneration of faith and initiative in the achievement of what we once believed was the Canadian entry, and a rejuvenation of the spirit of leadership.

Wallace Bickford Nesbitt Q.C. died at 55, was a good and great MP.

Ontario Spending Spree Is Causing Deep Concern

By DON O'REARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Does Ontario need a Glasco. A super-Glasco? A super-super-super Glasco?

Thursday I talked about the headless rush we are on into disaster debt.

What wasn't mentioned is that there isn't even a whisper of hope in the sky that it will be or can be stopped.

The grab of all governments today from the gross national product (GNP) is edging on 40 per cent—which means on the average 40 per cent of everyone's pay.

Yet aside from the occasional politician talking about it, as Bob Nixon did in Brantford, not even much attention is paid to this.

Even those politicians who do talk about it don't suggest any real corrective.

There is really only one way to stop it, to call a halt, of course, and that is for the public to get so damn mad the politicians will have to listen—AND THINK.

Unhappily the chances of this happening are as remote as not even be in sight.

The public for the most part is resigned—in gripes, but pays.

Yet if it really became aroused it could topple leaders.

And this is where Glasco comes in.

Grant Glasco, through a one-man commission and a very blunt report, is the one man who forced economy in government in recent times.

His criticism and the publicity given his findings forced more efficiency in the federal government.

He was so successful that one wonders if we had a persuasive Glasco here in Offario whether he might not be able to bring public spending into line.

An elected official, say. One who was put in office by the people at large in a province-wide as part of the general election.

He would have no power except to criticize spending and waste. But he would have full power to criticize. And criticize not only the government but also the legislature.

A report from such a man could be one thing, perhaps the one thing, that would or could arouse the people.

Will we ever see such a man?

Of course not. There is no precedent and it takes practically the wrath of the gods for us to add to our system.

But is he needed?

Just one example.

I worked for the government for a year or so, I needed a dictating machine. I was provided with one. It was an IBM outfit which cost in at $2,000 or better.

I could have done quite well with a $400-$500 outfit and as I had used in my personal business.

But in the government service there's nothing but the best. Money is really only paper.

Canada Eyes Small Slice of the Caribbean

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

That's not a bad idea from the Democrat MP Max Saltsman that Canada should annex the tiny British Caribbean colony of The Turks and Caicos Islands and make it part of Nova Scotia.

The Waterloo MP is the NDP's competent finance critic and being a socialist is no imperialist. So his intentions are honorable. In fact the governing council of the tiny 30-island group south of the new nation of the Bahamas Islands, put the prospect to Mr. Saltsman during his recent visit there.

The British want to unload the tiny place with its 5,000 population and scant exports of crayfish, salt and conch shells. The obvious solution is to attach them to the much larger island group federation of the Bahamas to the northeast.

But the Turks and Caicos Islanders apparently don't want this to happen. They would prefer Canada according to Mr. Saltsman. His attempt to bring his idea forward in Parliament will be through the private member's bill that process which so often is doomed to defeat.

Presumably with tourism in mind the Nova Scotia provincial government as their future owner would have to spend a few dollars on basic improvements in the tiny islands—a regular fresh water supply to being with and assured transportation between the islands and eastern Canada.

Mr. Saltsman says official reaction to his idea is horrific. The bureaucrats who administre foreign policy would like his scheme to get lost like a bad dream. If socialist Saltsman feels it has no imperialistic overtones, the less-imaginative experts in external affairs not only think the same way as Max, do not.

Mr. Saltsman's idea recalls a good deal of past history of Canada's Caribbean relations where imperialism did play a part.

Remember Voltaire's unsolicited advice that royalist France, shattered in the Seven Years War which ended in 1763, should let the English have Canada and its "few acres of snow" if France could keep the lush, sugar-rich island of Guadeloupe. And so she has to this day.

Perhaps not too many of us remember the long-ago bigbrother admonishments from English-Canadian imperialists in Ontario and the church in Quebec that Canada should assume a colonial role in west area once the British West Indies or the French colonial possessions.

These were especially intense during the 1930s and 1940s as both British and French imperial power were on the wane in the world. The wartime revival of the French West Indies by the rightist Vichy French stirred similar right wing feelings in the Quebec Church about a Canadian role in the Caribbean verging on outright occupation.

Looking realistically at the Saltsman proposal, the annexation of the tiny Turks and Caicos Island group, Nova Scotian ownership of them might not be the happiest for the local community, given that province's declinery record with its own black population. It also happens to have Canada's largest community of blacks.

To end on a light-hearted note, the disappearance of these islands either into the Bahamas or Canada, would mean the end of a philatelist's delight. The stamps of these islands probably are their largest revenue earner.

Common Market Disunited In Face of Energy Crisis

By CY FOX

BRUSSELS (CP) — The latest stage in the world energy crisis has confronted member states of the European Common Market with an unexpected opportunity for united action in efforts to resolve their fuel problems.

But, despite resounding new declarations by the market's central commission in Brussels about concerted action, the countries are likely to follow individual national initiative die to the urgency of a crisis as pressing as this one.

The policy-planning commission is pressuring governments to formulate some scheme of united community-wide moves, but the circumstances under which such a project reaches the market's decision-making council of ministers, due to meet today, are not at all promising.

For instance, the ministers don't expect a final agreement on the problem of how much money to allocate to promoting growth of the community's underdeveloped areas — an issue which has sharply divided the British and the Germans.

The British have suggested they won't go along with a common energy policy unless a regional development agreement satisfactory to them is achieved.

Even without such complications, getting the ostensibly united nine to act jointly on the oil shortage will be difficult. Already there are indications that some countries have been inclined to act on their own to solve individual energy problems.

The French are negotiating a long-term deal involving oil and gas with Soviet bloc communications with Common Market countries. Britain has been conducting negotiations with Arab oil producers; and intensive publicity has been expended on the bargaining between Britain and Iran over the establishment here of a major petroleum refinery.

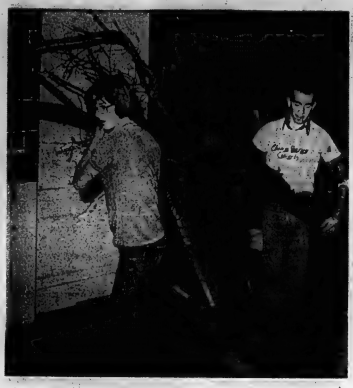
These are the signs of what the French would call a "sauve qui peut" attitude — every man for himself.

The Common Market energy commissioner, Henri Simonet, worries over the limitations of a solution to the crisis on community-wide approach to the oil problem. He is leading the campaign for a greater reliance on the community's ability to produce the price-swelling movements promoted by hectic bidding on the open-to-nation basis instead of in a more readily-controlled collective way.

Labor Council and Bill 246

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

The Ontario Government, through its Ministry of Health, is presently engaged in a professional whims of the Ontario Dental Association in passing BILL 246 — now commonly called "the Anti-Denturist Act.



The Quinte and District Labor Council is extremely concerned that the Bill is not only designed to eliminate Denturists, whose competence has not been questioned, but is also designed to create another financial arm reaching into the pockets of those who are concerned about accessibility to low cost denture service.

Denturists, as responsible, qualified dental health workers, are presently providing a most independent professional service to the public in British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba. Quebec and Nova Scotia have legislation pending. In these provinces it is practically impossible for Denturists to practice, the Ontario Dental Association has been assured of complete reign over its domain.

In the light of actions already taken or being considered by other more progressive Canadian provinces, the Quinte and District Labor Council asks for reconsideration of BILL 246, with suitable amendments or if so decided by the Ministry, its complete repeal.

D.R. SWORD, President.

Preparations are under way by the Belleville Theatre Guild for their production of The Anniversary. At the Pinnacle Playhouse, the old set is being renovated for the current production while new additions are, being made. One of the additions is a dead tree which forms back of the backdrop. With set designer, Jeffrey Sisco holding up the rear and stagehand Graham Lansgraff in front, the two carry the real dead tree to its proper place in the set. The symbolism of the tree will become apparent to those who see the play which opens at the Pinnacle Playhouse, February 13.

Set for Play a Challenge

Renovation is the key word when talking about preparations for the latest Belleville Theatre Guild presentation The Anniversary.

As the group will not receive the amount of money it had anticipated it is necessary to cut costs by recycling the sets of the last play, Midsummer Mink.

This meant changing from one time period to an entirely different one or changing the set from a mid-Victorian period to one of today.

Director Flo Yanover, said there had been minor changes from the original set plans but basically everything should go well for the February, 12 opening at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

One modification involves making use of raised platforms to "give a different perspective on the characters and to make the central character in the play, Mum, command more attention when she is on the platform.

Another modification involves adding a dead tree to the scenery. As the play concerns a family and the relationship between the smothering type-and her children who attempt to cope with the situation, the withered tree symbolizes the stifling effect of the mother on the family.

The play by English playwright Bill MacIlwraithe is a black comedy and takes its title from the anniversary party that the mother, known as Mum, holds for her husband who happened to have died sometime ago.

The play begins Feb. 13 at the Pinnacle Playhouse and runs until Feb. 16. It starts its second week Feb. 20 and runs until Feb. 23.

Heating Worries Welfare Recipient

The two have found out this winter that their income from welfare payments makes it difficult to afford, buying oil to heat their one-storey frame house at RR 4 Belleville.

To keep warm, Mr. Armstrong, 46, keeps the stove burners going and has two portable heaters operating as well. "I'm afraid to see my hydro bill when it comes in," he says.

The two receive the maximum welfare payments of $314 a month and out of that they pay $78 a month for rent. Mr. Armstrong, who has had three operations for ulcers, has been on welfare since March when he left his job as a dozer and loader operator at Rollins. He worked there for two years, having worked for McFarland Construction for 11 years before that.

Before moving to his present home about five miles east of Belleville, he lived on Frank Street but had to move when his place was one of three condemned by the health board in August.

Now he thinks he will have to move again. "Whenever anybody comes, I tell them, 'Come in out of the heat into the cold', said Mr. Armstrong.

About two weeks ago he purchased about 20 gallons of oil at the cost of $17. He estimates he has about 10 gallons left which shouldn't last him very long.

In his home, his water pipes have frozen and water drips into the house from the roof.

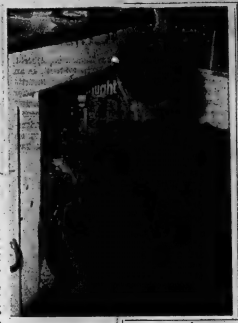
He has mousetraps placed in his kitchen cupboards where rodents have eaten into the walls.

Mr. Armstrong's car has two bald tires and as there is no busservice in his area, he says he will have to hitchhike to get to town.

As for now, the two and their dog Blackie will try to keep as warm as they can. "We're putting extra blankets on at night and keeping the portable heaters going," says Mr. Armstrong.

No Injuries In Accidents

MADOC (Special)— No injuries were reported in two accidents investigated by Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police Sunday.



A careless driving charge has been laid against Michael James Devolin, 18, of RR 2, Madoc after his car went out of control and into a ditch on Highway 7, 1½ miles west of the Black River Bridge. Damage to the car amounted to $500 The mishap occurred at 4:30 a.m. Sunday.

Two cars came into collision on the Actinolite to Flinton Rd. at 11:43 a.m. Sunday, causing a total of $750 damage. Involved in the accident were Mac Davies of Madoc whose car received $500 damage and Mrs. Leona Andrew of Stirling, whose car received $250 damage.

Back Taxes Required

MARMORA — Village council is hoping delinquent taxpayers will pay up their 1973 dues.

William Shannon, clerk-treasurer, has told council such payments would assist finances by reducing bank borrowings for village operations until 1974 income begins to build.

Cold

For Ivan Armstrong of RR 4 Belleville, this winter will be a cold one unless he can get the necessary oil to heat his home. He and his wife live on welfare and are having difficulty making ends meet this winter. Here, Mr. Armstrong attempts to warm up with water heated on the stove water pipes which have frozen because of the cold. He keeps the stove burners going and uses portable heaters when the weather gets really cold.

Quinte Cuisine

Missy Parnell wrote from Edmonton, Alberta, to recommend her mother Ruth Pollwell, as an "excellent cook. And she said her favorite dessert is Lime Swirl, a dessert she and sister Lorna and brother Rod called "Lime Squirrel" as children. Ruth Pollwell says she still keeps a can of evaporated milk chilling in the refrigerator so she can prepare the light dessert on an hour's notice. Ruth and lawyer husband Ted live on George Street.

Chocolate Lime Swirl

25 to 30 Christie's chocolate wafers
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 package (3 ounce) lime-flavored jelly powder
¼ cup sugar
½ cup boiling water
1 0 drops green food coloring
1 ½ teaspoons grated lemon rind
¼ cup lemon juice
1 cup undiluted Carnation evaporated milk, well chilled

Crush all but 12 chocolate wafers. Mix crumbs with butter and spread on bottom of 9" pie pan, saving ¼ cup for topping. Line sides with 12 whole wafers. Dissolve jelly powder and sugar in boiling water. Add food colouring, lemon rind and 2 tablespoons of lemon juice. Chill until slightly thickened. Chill Carnation in refrigerator tray until soft crystals form around edges of tray (15-20 minutes or in case several hours. Whip until stiff - about one minute. Add, remaining 2 tablespoon lemon juice; whip very stiff - about two minutes longer. Fold in jelly mixture. Spoon over cookie crumbs. Swirl remaining crumbs over top. Chill until firm (1 to 2 hours.) Makes 9" single crust pie.

The Tweed Senior Citizens Club No. 299 met in St. James' Hall for their first meeting of 1974, with 31 members present.

Minutes of the last meeting of 1973 were read and adopted as read.

A report was given on the meeting held earlier and Art McCarey, (the 1973 President) was named to head the committee for Ways and Means for 1974.

Mrs. Carman Fellearn will replace Mrs. Hazel Albert on its Ticket Committee, as Mrs. Albert assumed the chair of Vice-President this year. Most of the other members of the executive remain the same.

Ten birthdays were honoured at this meeting.

A presentation was made to both Mrs. Harold Foster, secretary, and to Mrs. Wollof, for their tireless labors over the past year.

The new Bol-O-Way Owner has said that he would welcome senior citizens on Tuesday afternoons at his automatic lanes with free shoes for bowling and free coffee for the small amount of $1.00 per-person.

Mammoth card parties were discussed, and the committees will go into this more fully in the near future.

Albert McTaggart spoke for the New Horizons Program, stating that one-half of the promised grants had been received and the remainder would be sent in March.

Mrs. Jessie Moffat reported on the visitations to the Hastings Manor.

Mrs. Irene McCarey was appointed our 1974 painist, and an alternate, Mrs. Arthur Bates, was named.

The door prizes were won by Mrs. Jennie Moffat and Mrs. Nellie Kelsey.

The meeting closed with the Benediction.

Two card games were played and a lunch of fruit bread, and beverage was served.

Belleville's Christian Women's Club will on January 9 at the Four Seasons Hotel for a fashion make-up demonstration.

A solo by Diane Leach and a humorous reading by Norma Alloway were also on the program.

Nair – Anderson

The December wedding of Tanya Helen Elizabeth Anderson and Ronald Nair took place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, conducted by Rev. Laurie Sutherland.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Anderson of RR 1, Carrying Place, and the groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Nair of Parur, India.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore an empire-waisted gown with lace bodice, sleeves and train, and satin skirt. The edge of her veil and train were trimmed with small lace flowers, as was the bodice of the gown. She carried a cascade bouquet of peach and white carnations.

Matron of honor was Louise Perrier of Hull, Quebec, in a peach satin gown with empire waist. She carried carnations.

The flower girl, Debbie Anderson, wore a peach satin dress and carried a basket of carnations. The ring bearer was Eddy Bardy.

Serving as best man was Dr. Timothy Vaz of Ottawa. The ushers were Robert McCreary, and the bride's brothers Peter and Timothy Anderson.

Local Store Lowest Surveyed

Ten common food items in six Eastern Ontario centers were priced by members of the Purchasing Management Association of Canada in that organization's monthly Food Price Comparison for January.

Belleville's Miracle Food Mart, Lobley's of Trenton, A P of Kingston, Payless of Brockville, Dominion in Napanee and Loblaws of Smith's Falls were surveyed.

Miracle Food Mart, Belleville, was found to be two percent below the average price of the goods which was $10.79.

Also two per cent below average price was Loblaw's of Smiths Falls.

J. B. Harris, president of the Eastern Ontario District of the PMAC, noted that Miracle Food Mart, Belleville, charged $10.58 for the items, the lowest price. He also noted that the spread from the lowest to highest total price is 4.4 per cent.

"Calculating the lowest and highest price for any item at all stores, a saving of 18 per cent could be realized," he said.

This is the third month the food items have been surveyed by the group.

Mr. Harris noted that since the survey began in November, a general increase of eight per cent in food prices could be noted.

No Divorces in Philippines

Common Law Marriage, Bigamy Growing

MANILA (CP) — Frieda Gutierrez has been married 11 of her 30 years. But she has been separated from her husband for eight years and has been seeking an annulment for seven while living alone with her two daughters.

Her sister went abroad to get a divorce and now lives in another country with an American husband and four children by her previous marriage.

But she is reluctant to return home. She fears her divorce will not be recognized here, making her vulnerable not only to a charge of bigamy but to claims on the custody of her children.

The sisters typify what some Filipinos face in a country which allows no divorce, except under circumstances most couples reject—usually one of them has to go to jail for adultery or concubinage.

As a result, society has developed a subculture of couples who live with with other partners without the formality of marriage.

The practice has become so common that in a feast one case a columnist of the country's most widely read woman's magazine recommended bigamy as the solution to a reader's problem. To a single woman considering the proposal of a married man whose wife had left him to live with another, the advice was wrote:

"If you love him so much you are willing to risk uncertainties, go ahead."

Even protocol stumbles over the practice, as when a high government official insisted his companion, whom he cannot marry because her husband is still living, sit at the state banquet table with the ambassador's wife.

"People are accepting No. 2 more than ever before," said Judge Leonor Ines Luciano of the neighboring Quezon City domestic relations court. No. 2 is Filipino controversial shorthand for the other woman, or man.

"In a decade, people will accept divorce," Luciano predicted. "What is hindering people now is their Catholic upbringing."

She said the custom of moving in with other partners without divorce is a growing problem.

"Broken marriages always were there. But the Philippine woman was such a weak person. She didn't complain about her husband. It always was for the sake of the children that she stayed. But now, with the liberation of women, they go out to work, they are meeting people, other men. . . ."

In her own court, cases involving broken marriages have risen from 68 in 1971 to 587 in 1973. Judge Luciano persuades about 20 per cent of the couples to reconcile their differences. The best she can grant the others is a legal separation.

But legal separation has almost come to be regarded by society in the same light as divorce, freeing the partners to select new mates, sometimes with a wedding ceremony if they can find a clergyman to marry them.

Rev. Oscar V. Cruz, 38, a cheerful, brisk priest who is with the Dutch Archdiocesan Marriage Tribunal, says divorce still causes an uproar.

His tribunal usually hears an average of a case a week involving couples seeking a church annulment, which has no force of law in Philippine jurisprudence. Father Cruz said the church is far more liberal in granting annulments than the civil courts. This 13-month old marital law regime of President Ferdinand E. Marcos has studied the possibility of giving church annulments the force of law, a move over which Father Cruz is apprehensive.

"Our annulments have only moral force," he explained. "People who come before us will tell the judge they have nothing to lose. If our annulments become legally binding, they'll start pulling marriage and ruining us."

Father Cruz said couples living together do not weaken the moral fibre of society.

"Sadly, but truly, there are marriages that cannot work. A divorce might be good for those separated. But for those who live together, with children, it is a crime."

Anniversary Celebrated

Family, friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Vivian, of Thurlow Township, visited the couple on their 45th wedding anniversary recently.

The Neighbours' Aid and the Sidesaddle Flower Arranging Women each presented the couple with plants. Other messages of congratulations were received from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Premier William Davis, Dr. R. T. Potter, J. Elwood Madill, MP, and R. Ellis, MP. Robert L. Stanfield and County Warden and Mrs. Horace Casey.

The couple retired farmers, have resided in Thurlow for all of their married life except for a brief period spent in the United States.

With tea, a layer of the couple's 50th wedding anniversary cake was served.

The Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund is NOT insurance

Last week my buddy went to renew his automobile license and was told he would have to pay $40 in addition to the licence fee if he couldn't prove he had $50,000 automobile liability insurance. Why does he have to pay this extra $40?

This $40 is a mandatory payment required by The Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Act, to be paid by an uninsured motorist or driver. Ontario law requires the motorist to have a minimum of $50,000 liability insurance or pay the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund fee before being issued a vehicle licence. If a motorist fails to provide for insurance himself he has to pay $40 into the Fund to ensure that innocent victims involved in any accident he may be responsible for, are provided with up to $50,000 in damages from the Fund, depending on the decision of the Court.

The innocent victim is therefore protected to this extent by law against the uninsured motorist.

Not insurance

How much insurance coverage does this $40 fee give?

This fee does not, in any way, provide the motorist with any kind of insurance coverage. By choosing not to carry even a minimum amount of automobile liability insurance, the motorist has stacked incredible odds against himself.

Even though a motorist has paid his $40 for the privilege of driving his motor vehicle on the roads, he is still not protected. Because of this, he is liable for the full amount of the judgment in any accident he may be responsible for. Such judgments can be disastrous. For example, Court awards are often based on the future earning potential of the victim. Even a simple family of a 25-year-old with a $15,000-a-year man can add up to a crippling lifetime debt against the uninsured motorist.

Being an owner and/or an operator of an uninsured motor vehicle, what is his position if he is involved in a motor vehicle accident?

If an uninsured motorist has caused or contributed to an accident one of two things can happen:

(1) A claim can be made by the innocent victim directly to The Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund for payment of damages. If this occurs, the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations will advise the uninsured motorist by registered mail (his last recorded address) as to what steps he might take to protect his interests.

(2) If a judgment or a claim is paid from the Fund, on the motorist's behalf, the owner's and driver's licences will be suspended until the full amount has been paid or instalment payments have commenced. At the same time, he must file a certificate of insurance to prevent the Fund being called upon to pay a second time.

One notice

How does he know that a claim has been made against him?

As soon as a claim is received by the Director of Claims, the uninsured motorist and/or driver is advised by registered mail at the last address with the Ministry of Transportation and Communications.

There will be only one notice.

It is most important for the motorist to realize that by not providing himself with adequate liability insurance and using the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund, he can find himself paying for one accident for the rest of his life.

Denim: Now It's Haute Couture

NEW WYORK (CP) — Denim, the sturdy cotton fabric in faded blue, has moved all the way from the work bench to the couturier's collection.

It began when youngsters virtually adopted jeans as a uniform. Then denim took to colors and entered the sportswear field. Now it has become a basic fabric in prig fashions.

Oscar de la Renta has a denim group in his spring collection, for both day and evening. He said they have been "treated to the tailoring usually seen in fine wools and spring linens and softened by cycle-embroidered shirts."

The Denim Council's capsule spring show included everything from a spruced-up over-all to a bareback evening dress. A long skirt by Bill Blass with diagonal yellow stripes was worn with a yellow blouse. Another by Geoffrey Beene was indigo blue with its own back-wrap top.

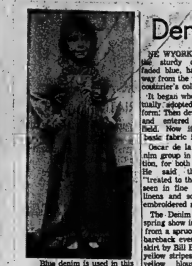
There is a blue denim bikini and ultra-short shorts decorated with diamond-shaped red patches. Bie Wace likes denim for rainwear, especially rain suits. There is even denim jewelry.



There is recycled denim for that frayed and patched look you can paint your own designs on it with acrylic paints.

Denim's sturdiness and washability makes it ideal children's wear and not just in practical playclothes. Toronto designer Ellen Henderson uses it in party dresses, prettied up with lace.

Because of denim's popularity scarcity, many manufacturers use similar fabrics and dye them denim blue. True cotton denim can be recognized by the diagonal weave and white yarn mingled with the blue on its reverse side. It is a yarn-dye fabric and sanforized.

To age the material immediately, remove the sizing with a couple of washings and a generous dose of fabric-softener. Machine-dry as wrinkles when set. The faded look comes about naturally from water, sun, heat and age.

Denim has been around since 30 AD and acquired its name when it was manufactured in Nimes, France, during the Middle Ages. Originally called serge de Nimes, it was shortened to Nimes and later Americanized to denim.

Blue denim is used in this party dress by Ellen Henderson of Toronto. It has frilled bib. Denim has become a basic fabric in spring fashions. (CP Photo)

Ann Landers

Her Guard Dog Trained to Kill

Dear Ann Landers: Please say something in your column about guard dogs. Let people know they are not pets. A guard dog is trained to kill and he will do it if he thinks his master is being threatened.

I have a baby and we live in an apartment. My husband travels so I need this dog for protection. When I take the baby out in the carriage I always have the dog at my side, on a short leash. I can't understand how people can be so dumb as to walk over and try to pet a strange dog. When I say, "Be careful, my dog isn't friendly," they answer, "All dogs like me."

My dog is trained to bark first. If the person doesn't back away he goes right for the neck. I had an unpleasant experience a few days ago and the man screamed, "Why don't you put a muzzle on that thing!" Guard dogs aren't supposed to be muzzled. It loses their training.

Another word of warning to people who are walking their pets. They should be kept on leashes and under control at all times. Even if a dog is of a different sex the guard dog will try to kill it. Thank you for giving me a chance to say something important.—Louisville

Dear Louisville: And now may I say something important?

I'm glad you don't live in my neighborhood. I'd be scared to death. Don't you realize that your dog is a potential murderer? You have no business posing such a threat to innocent people. Unless you have that beast under perfect control at all times you should not be permitted to take him on the street. I hope you are heavily insured, lady. That dog of yours could put a million under water for the rest of your life.

Dear Ann Landers: My sympathy to the woman whose stepdaughters invite their mother over whenever they feel like it and ask her to stay for meals. I also have stepdaughters who try to rearrange my life. (The oldest is 31). Their failure is much help. He asks them to report on every telephone call and visitor who comes to the house. Almost every morning he leaves notes instructing me to "make pancakes for the kids" or "clean up the girls' closets today."

He flatly refuses to do me small favors because I have a car and "errands are not a man's job." He passes the cleaners and drugstore every night but he won't stop. All I hear is what a lovely home I have and how lucky I am. No mention of the hours I am making for his six motherless children.

Please, Ann, tell this knucklehead how much it would cost him to hire a housekeeper to take care of his kids. Also tell him that he would be doing all the errands if I weren't around — Older and Wiser.

Dar O and W: That's a marriage? It sounds more like an armed camp, with your husband and children on one side and you on the other. I hope your letter was written at the end of a bad day. If it's no better than it sounds, why do you stay?

Dear Ann Landers: I started to read your column when I was 11. I didn't think it was for me until I was at least 16, but now I am, two years earlier.

I talk too much. The kids at school call me Blabbermouth. I hate the name but I can't keep quiet. Please help me.—Ashamed

"Blabbermouths" are afraid if they don't say something people will think they are stupid. Nothing could be further from the truth. Force yourself to listen. Really listen. You will be amazed at what you can learn when your mouth is shut.

Reunion

A young Indian girl who had been sponsored by the USC at the Girls' Training Institute in Madrad and who is now employed as a housekeeper in Toronto, dashed excitedly from the audience during a public meeting to embrace the speaker, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova. Erective Director of the USC. Dr. Hitschmanova, sometimes called the "mother of a thousand children", affectionately, introduced her to the audience as "one of thy daughters". USC Headquarters is located at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa. KIP 5B1.

Easy On The Scent

LONDON (CP) — Deirdre O'Meara was barred from her favorite pub when the landlord complained her perfume was so overpowering it turned the beer flat. This is ridiculous," said Deirdre. 'My boy-friend drinks beer and it's never done anything to his pint.

Court Drama

LONDON (CP) — Court usher Mrs. Sylvia Bell fled screaming when the star witness appeared. Police had charged two street entertainers with causing an obstruction, adding that the snake they used was probably artificial. "Not so," said one, pulling the four-foot snake from inside his shirt. Eventually the charges were dropped.

Canadian Society

Early in 1974 10,000 cubic feet of USC supplies will be sailing from Halifax bound for the USC Inchon Social Service Centre in Korea. Included will be 15,000 lbs. of Newfoundland codfish for use in USC Children's Homes in the area of Seoul. The Children eat it daily and love it. USC Headquarters is located at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa KIP 5B1.

The Right Qualifications

An 11-year old girl in Alberta has been so inspired by USC public service announcements on TV that she is hoping to work for the USC when she gets older. She writes that she loves children and helping people in distress. USC Headquarters is located at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa. KIP 5B1.

Quick Thinkng

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, Executive Director of the USC, regularly visits one during her annual fundraising tour. Through the year the students have organized many USC projects and have sponsored 12 children under the USC Foster Parent Scheme. This year popular agency director was literally mobbed for her autograph, as she was leaving to keep another appointment. The resourceful teacher solved the problem by having Dr. Hitschmanova sign a stencil. USC Headquarters is located at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa KIP 5B1.

Woolgathering

Because of the increased price of wool the USC can no longer afford to distribute yarn to volunteer knitters. However, a group of enthusiastic USC volunteers on the west coast make a practice of going to rummage sales and flea markets to buy old knitted goods which they then unravel, wash and re-knit for USC shipments overseas. USC Headquarters is located at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa KIP 5B1.

Readers Can Help Trace Poems

By DORIS CLARK

I wish I could work miracles. Sometimes I can - - with your help, my dear readers!

Three correspondents would dearly love certain poems, whose titles and authors are unknown to them. Just a few words linger in their memories. I know how that feels, so I am hoping somebody can help. Here are the three quests which I'm hoping you'll identify for us:

1. "Eyes that look but do not see-

Ears that hear but do not listen-

Hands that touch but do not feel-

A heart that beats but does not love."

2. "Silver and gold may tarnish away,

But a good education will never decay."

3. "Give me strength when wee hands,

Tug at me with their small demands."

It just isn't easy to trace a poem when you haven't got the exact first line or the title, or the poet's name. But somebody with a good memory for poetry may be able to come up with the rest of it — and of their memory's filing system.

Dear Doris: I would like some tips on planning an engagement party for my daughter. She is the youngest of the family, and has been so good to both her parents that I would like to do something special in appreciation.

Could I invite the parents of the groom-to-be?

Happy Parent.

Dear Happy Parent: Sure. Invite the parents of the groom-to-be and you can be proud of that girl. After all, she learned her thoughtfulness from you.

For more information about engagement parties and other pre-wedding events, send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy of my leaflet "Pre-Wedding Parties."

Dear Doris: We have a foster boy, age five. It was all right at first but suddenly everyone started bickering at him. He doesn't eat right, he doesn't talk right he doesn't answer us, and he doesn't go to sleep at night.

His social worker is no help, only came twice since he has been here, and when he did come he talks of everything but the boy.

No, maybe that isn't true. But it is because Mom is proud and doesn't want to admit we have trouble. Anyway, I don't know what makes me needle him. I can't help it.

Big Sister.

Dear Big Sister: What a pity to have a social worker right there ready to help you, and nobody asking for the help! If your mother was sick wouldn't she admit it to a doctor?

Remember that your little foster brother has had some upsetting experiences in those very early years. If he didn't have difficulties with his speech or sleeping or eating, it would be a wonder. He needs love and understanding. Show your mother this column.

(When writing in to Doris, in care of this newspaper, allow four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if an eight-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.)

Five Die At Orono

ORONO, Ont. (CP) — Five members of one family were killed Sunday when their car was hit broadside by another vehicle on Highway 35-115 near this community 25 miles northwest of Oshawa.

Police said the Heykoop vehicle apparently was entering the highway from a private lane when struck by a car.

Prison Growth Rate Is Slowed

OTTAWA (CP)—Penitentiary officials are looking with hope and some optimism at a slowing of what had been a dramatic rate of growth in Canada's federal prison population.

Commissioner Paul Faguy says the annual rate of growth, which reached 14.75-per-cent last September, now is down to about 10-per-cent and appears to be still dropping.

Virtually all federal institutions are jammed to the doors because of a sudden spurt in population that started in September, 1972.

Seek Workers

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission (TTC) will advertise in the Maritimes in the hope of the 575 new drivers it needs to handle new routes and staff turnover.

Oppose Dump

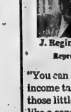
MAPLE, Ont. (CP) — Residents and council members in this community north of Toronto have expressed opposition to a proposal to turn 913 acres of old gravel pits into a garbage dump.

Back on Job

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Sixteen ambulance drivers who booked off sick Friday afternoon returned to work Sunday.

The drivers, members of Local 528, Canadian Union of Public Employees, say their work as nursing-ward orderlies at Brockville General Hospital cannot be performed properly because their driving duties kept interfering.

Murder Charged



MEAFORD, Ont. (CP) — Steven J. Rice, 17, of Meaford is to appear in provincial court in Owen Sound today charged with non-capital murder in the shooting death of a Meaford man.

The body of Dennis Allan Cameron, 19, was found Thursday night under a sheet of plywood behind a private residence in this community 15 miles east of Owen Sound.

Hut Blows Up

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — An 18-year-old Orillia youth dragged two companions about three miles to get help when an ice-fishing hut blew up on Lake Simcoe early Sunday.

Kenneth Bylow, 18, is credited by police with saving the lives of Stewart Thompson, 18, and Terry Burton, 18, both of Orillia when the explosion occurred around a.m., about three miles offshore.

Kidnapped Boy Found Dead

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — A 14-year-old boy who was kidnapped last week for $15,000 ransom was found dead Sunday.

Special Agent Richard Ash said a sheriff's deputy and an FBI man found the body of Daniel Ebersole of Lakewood, N.Y., following an anonymous telephone call from an unidentified citizen. He said the boy's father, Dr. Glen Ebersole, identified the body.

The boy, clothed in blue jeans and an orange jacket, had a ski mask pulled down over his head and a glove stuffed in his mouth, Ash said. He also was missing one shoe.

The cause of death was not immediately determined. County Coroner Frederick Hitchcock said results of an autopsy will be released today.

Three young men are being held on $100,000 cash bond each in Buffalo after their arraignment Saturday on federal kidnapping charges. Nearly all the money was recovered and the trio arrested Friday, the FBI said.

"We have not discounted the possibility of other suspects, but we are not seeking anyone else at this time," Ash said.

Grant Wade Heads EOBA for 1974

AJAX (Special)—Grant Wade of Newtonville was elected president of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association (EOBA) when the group held its annual meeting here Saturday.

Mr. Wade, who served as first vice-president for the 1973 season, succeeds John Ryan of Cobourg.

Oshawa's Art Parry was elected first vice-president, Gord Hanna, Whitby, second vice-president and George Spalding, Cobourg, third vice-president.

Secretary is Gord Johnson of Oshawa, and treasurer, Bob Whitehill, Peterborough.

Four directors were also elected. They are Jim Hawkins of Kingston; Charlie McKee, Welcome; Mort Hallowell, Kendal and Bill Johnston, Port Hope.

EOBA teams captured seven Ontario Baseball Association (OBA) titles in 1973 and six clubs advanced to the finals in their respective divisions.

OBA championships went to Whitby (Tyke A), Oshawa (Bantam A Major), Cobourg (Midget A), Frankford (Midget C), Kendal (Junior C), Port Hope (Intermediate A), and Kingston (Senior).

Runnersup from the EOBA were Oshawa (Tyke A Major), Thurlow (Tyke C), Kingston (Junior A Major), Port Hope (Junior A), Oshawa (Intermediate A Major) and Kendal (Intermediate C).

Belleville was the EOBA representative at the Peewee A Major level, defeating Peterborough for the group championship.

Trenton was represented at the meeting and will return to the EOBA this year with entries in Tyke, Peewee and Bantam sections.

Basketball Lancers Get More in '74

The Loyalist College basketball team seems to have turned over a new leaf with the turning of the new year.

The Lancers have won three our of four games in '74, their latest a 77-72 victory on Saturday in an exhibition game against Trent University of Peterborough.

"The big difference," said Loyalist coach Rob Silmon, "was the fact that in the second half we were clearing our own boards and the fast break was working effectively."

Harvey Sharpe was the big gun for the Lancers, firing 32 points. Bill Kyle was next with 19 and Dave Cleaver had 12.

The Lancers have a big regular season game coming up against Ottawa's Algonquin College on Friday, the last time the two teams met the Lancers lost by only four points.

In exhibition hockey the Lancers dropped a 6-4 decision to Trent.

Dave McGillis fired three goals for the winners, with Pete Stafford getting two and Mike Poirier, one.

Friday the Lancers' hockey team also travels to Ottawa for a regular season game against the Algonquin Cats.

Eight Straight for Bobcats

By Mike BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The Belleville Bobcats came through with their eighth win in a row last night, defeating Oak Ridges Kings at the Memorial Arena in Metro Junior B play. Belleville's 8-3 victory made it seven straight on home ice.

The victory didn't m ove Belleville any closer in first place though, as the Pickering Panthers also won their game, beating Wexford 3-0. On top of that, Markham is still right on the heels of the Cats as they defeated King City 8-2. The top three teams, Pickering, Belleville and Markham, have 52, 50 and 48 points, respectively.

Bruce Clark, Bobcat goalie, was selected as the games' first star, stopping 39 Oak Ridges shots and keeping the visiting team off the scoresheet for the first two and a half periods.

Clark displayed some incredible talent in the Cats' net, consistently frustrating Oak Ridges on scoring attacks. Several times Bruce appeared to be utilizing a little more good luck than good management, but for the most part the saves that were made were due to ability.

Belleville skated onto the ice, roaring like a house on fire in the first period, racking up four of their five goals. Some fans might have thought there was a brigade of Firemen in the Cats' dressing room during the first intermission though, as the locals goal scoring inferno appeared to have a dampner thrown on it.

Two juveniles and a midget were added to the Bobcat lineup for the contest, Pete Crawford and Grant Goegan, forwards, with Jim Weaver, five juveniles, and Pete McBride, a defenceman with the Lions Club Midgets, all played regular shifts.

Don Leach, serving a two game suspension, and Joe Edwards, with a leg injury, left the Juniors' defensive corps understaffed while the five scoreless for the first two and a half periods.

Richardson Tries for Hat Trick

Jim Richardson, Belleville Bobcat (foreground), makes the turn around Oak Ridges Kings' defenceman, Dennis Acomb, in an attempt to beat the Kings' goalie, Glenn Taylor, to the loose puck in the crease. Richardson, top scorer on the Belleville team, didn't make it to the puck before the goaltender on this occasion, but did beat Taylor later in the game to account for two of the Cats' goals in the Belleville's 8-3 victory last night at the Memorial Arena. It marked the seventh straight Metro Junior B win, at home, for the Bobcats.

Action Packed BCI Tournament

City Teams Come Up Empty

Belleville Collegiate Institute (BCI) held its' annual Jo-nior-Senior Basketball Tournament Saturday and the Championship tilts of both divisions went to out-of-town High Schools.

Bill Miller, Convener of the Tournament, committee before the day long event, "that he expected the competition to be even keener than last years's."

With the exception of one game in the semi-finals, it would have been next to impossible to produce stiffer competition in the last three games of each division.

The two senior semi-finals scores read Sir Winston Churchill, of Hamilton, 49 Quinte 45 and North Albion over BCI 47-40. In the senior final, North Albion came from behind in the fourth quarter to beat Sir Winston 57-54.

Junior wasn't much different as far as competition was concerned. Orillia, Quinte won their semi-final game against Quinte 65-38, but the other semi-final encounter saw the host school, BCI, being beaten on a last second Orillia field goal 49-48.

Luck must have been with the Orillia squad as they beat Nicholson in the final 43-42. The winning basket in that game came with just five seconds remaining in regulation time.

As it turned out, Nicholson Catholic College was the only local school in either division to reach the finals. BCI came within one point, in junior, of having their team make the Championship game.

The junior final was one of the three evenly matched affairs played. At the end of the first quarter the score was 11-11. A lead remained hingeable at the end of the second quarter as the teams were still tied, this time 19-19.

When time ran out in the third quarter, neither Nicholson nor Orillia were any further ahead than when they started, as the score remained deadlocked 30-30.

The entire game was based on the final 20 seconds. The locals missed a scoring opportunity at the 27 second mark when they were ahead 42-41. Orillia took the rebound, went down court, worked the ball around and with five seconds left found Dave Stangs under the Nicholson basket. Stangs scored and Orillia went home with a hard earned Junior Championship.

For Nicholson, it was their first taste of tournament action of the basketball season, rather unfortunate timing. Up to that game, NCC juniors had compiled an impressive 16 consecutive victories, which included three pre-season wins, seven wins in regular season action, three more en-route to their championship at the Trent Tournament and a pair of victories earlier in the day at the BCI Tournament.

After defeating the host championship in the dying seconds of the game, Nicholsons' coach, Gary Duggan, commented, "Well, I guess you can't win them all."

In a more serious tone, Duggan added, "We could quite easily have won, but we missed a couple of easy layups near the end of the game. They were a good team. They threw a mixture of offences and defences at us. Our boys stood up to all of them. I was very proud of how we played."

Orillia's Rob Town received the Most Valuable Player Award for the Junior Tournament.

Senior Action

Game One — BCI 66-Quinte 51.

BCI was led by Larry Wilson with 20 points, while Pete Larson and Russ Simmonds had 18 each. For Quinte, Mark Calhope got 16. Don Hall 12, part 15 and Terry Collins eight.

Game Two—McLaughlin 76-Trenton 46.

McLaughlin, of Oshawa, was led by Jim McHugh with 22, Larry Lalaj with 18 and Bruce Tynan with 11. Trenton got 16 points from Blaine Ritzinger and eight from Don Armstrong.

Game Three — North Albion 45-KCVI 40.

Toronto's North Albion had 18 points from Greg Martin and 15 from Carmen Biffoleti. Two scorers for the Kingston team were Terry Walsh with 13 and Steve Weber with 14.

Dennis Wyslobicky was top gunner for the Hamilton team with 23 points. Steve Raynor had 18 and Jeff Broughton got 12. In the losing game, Les Leard bopped 19 for Henry Street, while Neil Atkinson added 10.

Second Round

Game One — BCI 46-Trenton 28.

Larry Donovan hit for 18 points and Larry Wilson and Dave VanVliet had nine each. The victory advanced the Belleville squad to the semi-finals.

Game Two Quinte 68-McLaughlin 51.

Quinte advanced to the semi-final and McLaughlin was forced out of the competition. Mark Calhoun was a main top scorer for Quinte, Mark Calhoun firing 18 points. Don McTaggart had 16 and Peter Cook bopped 14. For the losers it was Larry Lalaj with 18 and Walt Kutcher with 11.

Game Three — North Albion 70-Henry Street 44.

North Albion decisively moved into the semi-finals round and sent Henry Street home after two games. Nino Paolucci fired 17 points and Greg Martin had 13 for the winners, while Les Leard's 10 points in 10 points was tops for the Wesley squad.

Game Four—Sir Winston Churchill 58-KCVI 51.

Paul Dingle racked up 21 points to lead his team into the semi-final round. Dennis Wyslobicky was next with 16 and Steve Raynor got 12. Chris Price had 14 for the Kingston crew and John Sutton and Ian Dobbin were next with 12 each.

SEMI FINALS

Game One — North Albion 47-BCI 40.

The host team just couldn't keep things together in the second half as North Albion knocked them out of play and with the victory advanced to the final. Greg Martin paved the way for the Toronto school, bopping 21 points. Larry Wilson had 10 for BCI.

Game Two — Sir Winston Churchill 49-Quinte 45.

Quinte had a four point lead at the end of the half, but they were outscored in the second half by eight, as SWC advanced to the final. Paul Hardy and Dennis Wyslobicky fired 15 points each for the winners, while Terry Collins with 15 and Mark Calhoue with 14, were tops for Quinte.

BCI Sweeps Four

Belleville Collegiate Institute basketball lassies swept to four basketball victories Thursday, vanquishing Bayside Secondary School in senior, junior and midget divisions.

Paced by Larry Wilson's 24-point production, the BCI seniors chalked up the most convincing win of the four, taking an 83-19 decision. Dave Van Vliet bopped 13 points for the winners with Peter LeBarre and Russ Simmonds each hitting for 11.

It was 24-17, BCI in the midget. A match John Green supplied 14 of the 24 points while Brent Walmsley was right in step with 11.

Deadeye Green sparked the BCI squad's 17-10 win in midget B play, bopping 10 points.

Sir Winston Churchill, after leading all the way through the game, ended up losing in the final five minutes of the fourth quarter, to North Albion by a score of 57-54.

The Hamilton squad led 31-26 at the end of the first quarter and 42-37 at the end of the half.

North Albion came on strong in the final quarter and a half though, to capture the championship.

Greg Martin, of North Albion, was awarded the Senior Tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Bill Miller said he expected keen competition and that's exactly what he got.

Miller and BCI earned plaudits on the calibre of play that was demonstrated at the tournament and for the excellent organization that so effectively made the whole competition a success.

Junior Games

FIRST ROUND

Game One—Nicholson 46-BCI 36

Game Two — Moira 57-Cobourg East 34

Moira was led by Alec Olaveson, with 17, and Mike Kirby, with 12. John Doyle hooped 19 for Cobourg.

Game Three—QECVI 63-Cobourg West 41

This contest went right down the wire with Kingston finally taking it, 63-61. They had 14 points for the winners, and Ron Steel added 12. Dwight Broughton, with 12, and Ken Davison with 19, were tops as the losing team.

Game Four—Orillia 66-Quinte 56

Dave Stanga was the winning margin for Orillia, as he hit for 24 points. Brian Long had 12 and Brian Stock 18. For the losers, Mike Hall had nine points, Rick Culkin 13, Ron Gallant 14 and Scott Gallupe 18.

SECOND ROUND

Game One — Nicholson 56-Cobourg East 13

Jeff Boyle once again led the NCC attack, this time with 15 points. Dale Wilson was next with 14 and Mike Hall had nine.

Ken Gallant had six for the Cobourg team.

Game Two — BCI 69-Moira 35

Gord Wright fired 18 points for BCI and Glenn Watson added nine. The victory advanced the BCI squad to the semi-finals and knocked Moira out of the competition.

Game Three—Quinte 66-QECVI 45

Quinte knocked out the defending champions with relative ease, as they moved into the semi-final round. Steve Hawkins paced the Quinte 11 for Quinte, while Scott Gallupe added 14 and Ron Crook 18.

Game Four—Orillia 75-Cobourg West 38

Every member of the Orillia team scored in this contest, as Dave Stanga was tops with 17. Rob Town got 14, while Geoff Carver added 11.

SEMI-FINALS

Game One—Nicholson 63-Quinte 32

Dale Wilson came through with 28 points to put Nicholson in the finals. Geoff Boyle had 17 and Bruce Collins 16.

Game Two—Orillia 49-BCI 48

A last second basket gave Orillia the victory, and put them in the final game. Rob Town hit for 16 points for the winners, while Brian Long had 13 points and Brian Stock 11.

Boyle Goes to Town

Nicholson Catholic College centre, Jeff Boyle (42), leads his skills against Orillia Disdrict High School forward, Rob Town (15), in the championship game of the BCI Junior Tournament, held Saturday. The two teams were about as evenly matched as they could be in the battle for the championships and Boyle, who averaged 15 points over the four games NCC played, and Town, who averaged 14 points over Orillia's four tournament games, were just as evenly matched. Town led his team to a 43-42 victory, over NCC, scoring 15 points in the contest. Rob was awarded the Most Valuable Player Trophy for his proficiency throughout the tournament.

Danny Lawson Sets Another WHA Record

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Danny Lawson of Vancouver Blazers has developed a habit that likely annoys his World Hockey Association opponents.

He scores goals—quite frequently.

The 26-year-old right winger picked up his fifth league record—he established four last year—when he scored in the third period, giving him at least a goal or more in nine consecutive games for a total of 12.

Tim Ecclestone of Hamilton Red Wings of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series now has 34 goals after 41 games, about the same pace as last year when he led the league's single-season goalscoring record of 61.

"I'm not too concerned about how many goals I score, or mentionen and things like that," said Lawson. "What's it worth if the team doesn't make the playoffs?".

Alain Caron of Quebec Nordiques set the original consecutive-game, goal-scoring record of eight last season. He scored 10 goals in his streak.

In other games, New England Whalers beat Los Angeles Sharks 9-4; Toronto Toros whipped Jersey Knights 7-3; Winnipeg Jets defeated Chicago Cougars 3-1; and Cleveland Crusaders topped Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-2.

Saturday's scores were: Minnesota 8, Toronto 6; Houston 5, Quebec 1; and Cleveland 3, Los Angeles 1.

The results left New England in first place in the East Division with 50 points, two more than Toronto. Cleveland has 47 points, Quebec 43, Chicago 37 and New Jersey 35.

Houston leads the West Division with 48 points, followed by Winnipeg with 45, then ahead of Edmonton. Minnesota has 43 points, Vancouver 34 and Los Angeles 30.

Habs Snap Bruins Streak

First NHL Shutout For Wings' McKenzie

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The retirement of goalie Roy Edwards earlier this National Hockey League season left Detroit Red Wings in a rather uncomfortable position.

When Edwards, who led the NHL with six shutouts in 1972-73 and posted a 2.63 goals-against average in 53 games, quit Detroit was left with three rookies and veteran Denis DeJordy.

Much of the goaltending in recent days has been handled by rookies Doug Grant and Bill McKenzie who have not always been impressive.

McKenzie of St. Thomas, Ont., posted his first NHL shutout Saturday as the Wings whitewashed Los Angeles Kings 6-0. But Grant, 26, of Corner Brook, Nfld., allowed Chicago Black Hawks to convert two rebounds into their first two goals Sunday en route to a 4-1 win over the Wings.

In other action Philadelphia Flyers nipped Atlanta Flames 1-0, Buffalo Sabres edged St. Louis Blues 3-2, Boston Bruins clipped Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3 and New York Rangers scored five times in the third period to club California Golden Seals 7-2.

Montreal Canadiens throttled Boston 7-3 Saturday as Jacques Lemaire scored a hat trick and assisted on Guy Lafleur's goal to help the Canadiens end their season at 18 with an eight-game winning streak.

Lafleur, Elsewhere, Toronto Maple Leafs outscored St. Louis 4-3, New York Islanders slipped Minnesota North Stars 4-3, the Rangers smashed Vancouver Canucks 9-1 and Pittsburgh surprised Buffalo 5-2.

Black Hawks 4 Red Wings 1

Cliff Koroll scored the first and fourth goals for the Hawks. Phi Martin and defenceman Phil Russell got the other Chicago goals. Detroit's Marcel Dionne spoiled Tony Esposito's bid for a shutout at 16:10 of the third period.

Flyers 1 Flames 0

Goaltender Bernie Parent, who played Philadelphia's first 37 games, rested Friday night and then returned to blank the Flamet. The shutout was the eighth this season for Parent who has allowed just a little more than 1½ goals a game. The lone goal was scored by Don Saleski with 4:05 minutes gone in the third period.

Sabres 3 Blues 2

Gilbert Perreault's eighth goal of the year and the 100th of his NHL career at 12:13 was the only scoring at the Sabres were outshot 18-16 by the Blues. The result, who missed eight weeks with a broken leg, popped a 40-foot shot past Wayne Stephenson. Dave Dryden posted his first shutout of the year.

Bruins 5 Penguins 3

Phil Esposito scored his 39th and 40th goals of the year as the Bruins scored their third win in as many starts over the Penguins. Dave Forbet, Wayne Cashman and Don Marcotte got the other Boston goals with Dave Burrows, Lowell MacDonald and Jean Pronovost replying for the Penguins.

Rangers 7 Seals 2

Steve Vickers, Ted Irvine and Vic Hadfield scored in the space of 3:23 minutes to ignite the Rangers' third-period rally. It was the Rangers' second straight win with Emile Francis behind the bench. Francis, who also is the club's general manager, took over the coaching Friday when Larry Pegolo was fired.

Leaders Follow Form Chart

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top two teams in the North Division opposed the two bottom teams in the Southern division of the American Hockey League Sunday and the results were inevitable.

New Haven Nighthawks, leaders of the Northern group, thumped last-place Richmond Robins 7-1, while Providence Reds, not to be outdone, defeated third place Red Wings by an identical score. The Reds are second in the North, while the Wings are next-to-last in the South.

In other games, Rochester Americans defeated Boston Braves 5-3 and Cincinnati Swords edged Jacksonville Barons 4-3.

In Saturday's action, The Braves defeated Providence 3-1, Baltimore Clippers beat Hershey Bears 5-2 and Nova Scotia Voyageurs defeated Springfield Kings 3-2.

Alan McAdam slammed in Richmond's goal at 7:16 of the first period, spoiling goalie Lyle Carter's bid for his first shutout on home ice.

Don Borgesson scored two goals and assisted on another to lead the Reds with outshot Wings 43-22. Doug Hoebel, Jerry Butler, John Bednarski, Pierre Lauzon and Andre Pelletier added single goals. Herb Boxer ruined Curt Ridley's shutout chance.

Barry Merrell, who has been scoreless in 15 games since Dec. 8, led Rochester with two goals. Rick Pagnutti scored one and assisted on three others. Murray Kuntz and Rod Graham got the others for the winners.

Bob Crawford, Jim Bedford, Doug Gibson scored for the Braves.

Cincinnal's victory kept the Swords in second place, two points ahead of Baltimore. The Barons hold down fourth place.

Hawks Continue On Win Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Apparently Sorel Black Hawks are not aware that everyone is supposed to do their best to conserve energy these days.

The Sorel club kept on rolling along at full throttle Sunday night as they stretched their unbeaten string to 20 games with a 9-3 win over Quebec Remparts in one of five Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League games.

In other play, Cornwall Royals outlasted Hull Festivals 7-4, Sherbrooke Beavers downed Chicoutimi Saguenens 5-3, Laval Nationale edged Trois-Rivieres 6-3 and Montreal Juniors and Shawinigan Dynamos played to a 6-6 draw.

In Quebec, the Black Hawks, who now hold a six-point lead over Quebec in the battle for top spot in the East Division and also have two games in hand, skated to a 5-2 lead in the first period and were never headed.

Pierre Larouche had three goals, Michel Deziel and Lucien de Blois added two each and Robert Riberdy and Jacques Cossette chipped in with singles to account for Sorel's offence.

Gary McFadyen scored four times for the Festivals in a losing cause as Cornwall chalked up its 30th win of the season.

Kevin Dreyer, Yvon Dioletti, John Naisbitt, Mike Conway, Gary MacGregor, Bob Ferguson and Rob Murray chipped for the Royals.

A goal by Marcel Dumais at 11:47 of the third period gave Sherbrooke its win over Chicoutimi. Denis Dupere, Fernand Leblanc, Jere Gillis and Sid Veysey were the other Sherbrooke scorers with Daniel Lecours, Pierre Dube and Yves Preston scoring for Chicoutimi.

Wadkins Makes Miller Work for First Prize

PHOENIX (AP) — Johnny Miller winced when he heard a roar from the 18th green of the Phoenix Country Club golf course.

"I said to myself, 'You've got to be kidding me. He couldn't have made eagle again.'"

But there was no kidding about it. Lanny Wadkins had just rolled in a 30-foot putt for eagle-three on the 18th hole and suddenly, from a four-stroke lead, Miller was one stroke behind with two holes to go.

He birdied both and was a winner.

Miller's four-under-par 67 in the final round gave him a 271 total, 13 under par on the 6,709-yard layout and a one-stroke margin over Wadkins in the $150,000 Phoenix Open tournament.

It was Miller's second victory—worth $30,000—in as many starts this year and made him the only champion the pro golf tour has seen this season. Actually, it was his third victory in a row. He won the individual title in the World Cup in Spain in his last 1973 start.

For Wadkins, who challenged with a sparkling, six-under-par 65, it marked the third year in a row that he had finished second in this tournament.

Veteran Miller Barber, who went into the warm, sunny final round in a tie for the top with Miller, fell back to a tie for third with a 70-272 total as that figure were John Schroeder and Hubert Green, each of whom posted a 67.

Ben Crenshaw of London, Ont., was 10 strokes behind with a 74—281 total. He earned $2,100 due to earlier rounds of 71-69-67, which left him three strokes behind after Saturday's play.

Australian Bruce Crampton, the defending champion, had a final 78 and was far back at 283. Lee Trevino had a 67 but started too far back and finished 13 strokes behind at 284. Tom Weiskopf failed to qualify for the final two rounds.

Miller, who won the weather-shortened Bing Crosby tournament just a week ago, paired away to a four-stroke lead with nine holes to play. However, he had double bogey on the 14th hole, then three-putted for bogey on the 16th.

"I knew I was in trouble then," Miller said. "... I put.

Lanny made that eagle and I knew I had to give some birdies."

He responded by sending a six-iron shot only a foot from the hole for the birdie that tied it on the 17th hole, then boldly drove a three-wood shot over the pond on the 18th, chipped to five feet and sank the winning

Flyers, Foresters Post Sr. A Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers scored three goals in each of the second and third periods Sunday to defeat Welland Mercchants 7-4 in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game.

The teams were tied 1-1 going into the second period but two s h o r t-handed, second-period goals by Barrie put the game out of reach for last-place Welland.

In the only other league game played at Brantford, Brantford Foresters edged Cambridge Hornets 3-3 in overtime Saturday.

Saturday, playing-coach John McMillan scored the overtime goal that gave Brantford its win over Cambridge.

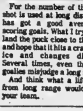
THE FLIP SHOT



The flip shot is one of the most useful and easier shots for a youngster to develop. Think, that with a little bit of practice on it every day, the flip shot might produce a few extra goals for you each season.

It is not a hard shot like the slap shot, nor does it demand all the follow through of a backhander or a wrist shot. The flip shot is used three times: 1) When you are in front of the opposing net and you have to flip the puck over the sprawled goalie to score a goal; 2) When a checker has his stick in front of you, you use a flip shot to pass to a teammate and 3) When the ice is chippy or the goalie a little shaky you use a flip shot from centre ice and hope for a goal.

Quite simply, the move requires the flipping of the puck from the ice on your stick. The only thing not to do is to fall into a habit of looking at the puck, keep your head up.

A good way of practicing the flip shot is to have a goalie lie on the ice while you flip the puck over his body. Or, place a stick on the ice and from about 10 feet, back practice shooting over the object.

I know that J.C. Tremblay had one of the best flip shots from centre ice when he was with Montreal. Recently, Carol Vadnais scored a goal for us in Vancouver from our own blueline with a flip shot.

For the number of times this shot is used at long distances it has got a good average for scoring goals. What I try to do is land the puck close to the goalie and hope that it hits a crack in the ice and changes direction. Several times, even the better goalies misjudge a long flip shot.

Csonka Rips Off 145 Yards

HOUSTON (AP) — "If we're not the greatest football team that ever was, there never was one," said centre Jim Langer. "I don't give a damn what the Green Bay did."

Miami Dolphins, especially Larry Csonka, didn't care what Minnesota Vikings did, either.

Langer and his offensive teammates provided Csonka with mammoth holes Sunday, shoved the ever-eager Vikings around at will, and took a 24-7 Super Bowl victory for the National Football League title.

On the rare occasions when the holes weren't there, Csonka made his own.

Like the Dolphins' 14-7 victory over Washington Redskins in last year's Super Bowl game, their dismantling of Minnesota was essentially a dull affair.

The Dolphins are a smooth, silent, assembly-like machine, unemotionally churning out yard after yard, touchdown after touchdown, championship after championship.

It was that way with Green Bay Packers of the 1960s. That's the team everybody was talking about when the subject of a dynasty came up.

The Packers won two Super Bowls in a row. Nobody else had done that—until Sunday.

"I think now we can consider ourselves comparable to the Pack," said Csonka. "We have to reserve our opinion before the game, but no more."

Csonka is comparable to anything the Pack might have had in the Vince Lombardi days. He was more than anything the Vikings could handle.

Thirty-three times he carried the ball for a Super Bowl record of 145 yards.

"Our biggest reward is to see Csonka gain through for a big gain," Langer said.

Csonka did that a few times. He also went through—with help or on his own—for a lot of little gains, like Miami's first touchdown, a five-yard burst up the middle, and its last, a two-yarder on a basically busted play.

Atlanta Coach Is Confused

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons of Atlanta Hawks is bewildered, frustrated, embarrassed . . . but hopeful.

"There really wasn't much to say about the game itself," Fitzsimmons said. "For we were never really in the game."

The coach's anguish was caused by a 128-105 National Basketball Association loss Sunday to Boston Celtics.

"It's hard to pinpoint what's wrong with us," said Fitzsimmons. "I've never had a team play just like this one is playing right now. It's very frustrating.

In other NBA games, Cleveland Cavaliers edged Philadelphia 76ers 98-94, Milwaukee Bucks defeated Chicago Bulls 126-94, Kansas City-Omaha Kings beat Portland Trail Blazers 103-99, Houston Rockets topped Buffalo Braves 121-115, and Seattle SuperSonics defeated Phoenix Suns 123-112.

In the American Basketball Association, Carolina Cougars beat Memphis Tams 109-108 in overtime and San Diego Conquistadors defeated Indiana Pacers 141-136.

Wings and Wolves Keep Referee Busy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings and Sudbury Wolves played to a 3-3 tie in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action Sunday, but most of the action led to the penalty box.

Two bench-emptying brawls seven seconds apart in the third period kept referee Wayne Marshall busy as he banished five players from each team in each of the brawls.

In all, twelve fighting majors, nine misconducts and three game misconducts were called for a total of 48 penalties in the 60-minute game.

Hamilton tied the game at 17:26 of the third period. The teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first with Sudbury holding a 3-2 lead going into the final session.

Greg Hickey, with two, and Dave Roscoe scored the Red Wings goals.

In other games in the circuit Sunday, Oshawa Generals and Kitchener Rangers played to a 1-1 tie, London Knights topped Ottawa 97s 4-2, St. Catharines Black Hawks defeated Kingston Canadians 6-1 and Toronto Marlboros defeated Peterborough Petes also by a 6-3 score.

Generals 3 Rangers 1

Outstanding goaltending by Oshawa's Rick St. Croix and Kitchener's Bob Blanchet highlighted the game after the teams exchanged first period goals.

St. Croix faced 41 shots while Blanchet handled 34.

Knights 4 97s 2

London Knights moved into a first-place tie with St. Catharines in the 11-team circuit with its victory over Ottawa.

Dennis Maruk scored two goals for the winners with Ron Zanussi and Rick McIntyre adding the other London goals.

On the other occasion, when it might have really mattered, the Dolphins roar'ep on mane and fractured any hope of a rally that Minnesota might have nurtured.

"They took the ball, went verts.

Quarterback Fran Tarkenton of Minnesota's only touchdown on a four-yard run, the end of a 90-yard drive.

It was about the only time he really had the Vikings going.

On the other occasion, when it down the field and got 14 points the first two times they had the ball," said Minnesota coach Bud Grant. "That kind of a lead is hard to overcome against the good teams."

Minnesota made it to Miami's six-yard line in the final minute of the first half, with the Dolphins leading 17-0.

Fourth down and a yard to go, the Vikings needed something. But they disdained the almost sure three points Fred Cox could've kicked for them. They went for the yard and the possible touchdown.

The Dolphins caught the Vikings at everything they tried to do. Minnesota managed a measly 72 rushing yards. The 186 passing yards didn't matter one bit.

"They just ran the ball down our throats and we couldn't stop them," said linebacker, Wally Hilgenberg of the Vikings.

Bob Griese, the quarterback-like quarterback who had to resort to the pass only seven times—and completed six for 73 yards—said he tensed almost immediately that Csonka was running well. I just kept dialing the number.

He even dialed it when he had no idea what he was doing. "I know. He's always forgetting the count. . . . Shoulder, 'It's one . . . no, wait . . . it's two . . .'

Well, as it turned out, it was one All of a sudden the ball was in my hands. I ran around it to Larry, and he just crashed into the end zone for the touch down on the basic play.

Maroons Rolling

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons stretched their unbeaten streak to seven games in the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League with a 7-4 victory Sunday over league-leading Welland Sabres.

The game was Chatham's sixth in eight days.

Welland goals were by Jim McCabe, John Ennarin, Ken McKenzie, Jim Tunney and Sean Sullivan.

Welland led 1-0 after the first period but trailed 3-4 going into the final frame.

Chatham outshot Welland 40-30.

In other games Sunday, Windsor Spitfires coasted to a 14-3 win over Michigan Americans and Niagara Falls Flyers edged Guelph Biltmores 5-4.

Saturday, Chatham Maroons and Buffalo Regals played to a 3-3 tie.

Spitfires 14 Americans 3

Scott Miller scored his 45th, 46th and 47th goals of the season to push Windsor to its victory over Michigan.

Ken Campbell added two goals for the winners with Bill McCreary, Mike Sowa, John Riley, Hugh Mitchell, Rick Nelson, Steve Kasch, Frank Bathe, John Tavella and Gary Armstrong adding the other Windsor goals.

Grant Judd, Daryl DiPace and Paul Reed scored for the Americans, who now have lost 14 games in a row.

Flyers 5 Biltmores 4

Peter Aleo led the winners McCabe, John Ennarin, Ken McKenzie, Jim Tunney and Sean Sullivan.

Welland led 1-0 after the first period but trailed 3-4 going into the final frame.

Chatham outshot Welland 40-30.

In other games Sunday, Windsor Spitfires coasted to a 14-3 win over Michigan Americans and Niagara Falls Flyers edged Guelph Biltmores 5-4.

Flyers 5 Biltmores 4

Peter Aleo led the winners with two goals. Craig Lohnes, Reg Lehay and Dave Gareau scored the other Niagara Falls goals.

Holder's goal was his 46th of the season.

Marconi 3 Tundas 3

Buffalo blew a three-goal lead they built up in the first period on goals by Bob Mulcahy, Jim Vanni and Dennis Brewer.

Chatham got two of the goals. Tundas tied it in the second period by Dave DeGelas and Doug Simpson.

Trophy Sparkles—Shula Too

Indian Jack Jacobs Led Bombers in 50s

GREENSBORO, N.C. (CP)—Indian Jack Jacobs, 53, one-time Canadian Football League star, died here Saturday after suffering his fifth heart attack.

The often flamboyant six-footer led Winnipeg Blue Bombers as quarterback in the early 1950s, and later served with the coaching staffs of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Edmonton Eskimos. He was an early champion for the CFL Hall of Fame and set a number of durable passing records.

The native of Muskogee, Okl., left Green Bay Packers of the National Football League in 1950 to join the Bombers as quarterback.

Football fans in Winnipeg remember "Indian" — so-named because he was a member of the Oklahoma Creek tribe — as an often-volatile sparkplug who thought nothing of screaming his opinions at the top of his lungs on the field. He was a gambler, and loved to pass, even inches away from the goalline.

He took the Blue Bombers into the Grey Cup twice, but failed to capture the trophy. One was the celebrated "mud bowl" in 1950 against Toronto Argonauts, and the other in 1953 against the Ti-Cats.

He left Winnipeg in 1954 to coach the Sarnia, Ont., team in the old Ontario Rugby Football Union, and later moved to London, Ont., in the same league.

He settled in Greensboro in 1965.

A memorial service was scheduled for 10 a.m. EST here today. Burial will be Wednesday in the National Cemetery in Muskogee.

The foregoing represent only a few of the businesses and Individuals who were thoughtful enough to give us help that was greatly needed. It would be an impossible task and space would not allow our mentioning all the groups, organizations and individuals; however our thanks to you all.

Our appreciation and thanks to the Citizens of the City of Belleville and District who supported us in our drive to raise funds for this project by purchasing a ticket on our BOND and also those who assisted in the sale of tickets.

A special note of thanks is extended to the Fire Chief and Deputy Fire Chief for their help and co-operation.

For many years it has been the feeling of the Belleville Fire Dept. that everyone enjoys Christmas a little bit more with the knowledge that children in less fortunate circumstances are not forgotten. Your help this year as in previous years made this a reality.

Thanks again to everybody. It is the hope of the members of the Belleville Fire Dept. that the citizens of the City of Belleville and area have a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous 1974.

He declined to elaborate. He told Liberal delegates the increased cost of energy imports to under-developed countries has equalled the entire amount of foreign aid given to those countries. He said later it is not clear whether Canada will have to double its foreign aid budget to maintain programs at their previous level.

SEA ALWAYS CLOSE

In Nova Scotia the sea is never more than 35 miles away.

Sinclair's Praise Found Too Fulsome

WASHINGTON (CP) — Gordon Sinclair, crusty Toronto broadcaster who penned a paean of praise to the unappreciated people of the United States, may have touched off a soul-searching among those people.

Now, a backlash seems to be building up.

Columnist Russell Baker in the New York Times writes: "Sinclair's flattery is welcome, the more so probably because it comes from across the border. . .

"Flattery, however, always produces problems. People tend either to believe it, and so to require more and more of it, or else to be suspicious of it.

Smith Hempstone, writing in the Washington Star-News, says Sinclair's criticism of other peoples for being less than grateful for American generosity may be flawed.

"Anyone who thinks that American foreign policy has been guided primarily by philanthropic considerations simply is kidding himself," Hempstone says, adding: ". . . A man is seldom grateful to be placed in another's debt."

Canada Has Become Major Oil Producer

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's broad new policies to meet threatened fuel shortages illustrate a dramatic turnaround in Canada's oil fortunes in a relatively short time.

From a country that produced virtually no oil of its own a quarter-century ago, Canada has become a major producer and exporter from its western oil wells.

Paradoxically, it has at the same time become dependent on imports from the Middle East for its eastern provinces.

Canada now produces approximately two million barrels of crude oil a day, most of it in Alberta, and exports about one million daily to the United States, while importing nearly a million a day for Quebec and the Maritimes.

Of the imports into Eastern Canada, 44 per cent comes from Venezuela, 39 per cent from Arab countries, 16 per cent from Iran, 2 per cent from Angola, four per cent from Nigeria and one per cent from Colombia.

Canadians use a little less than two million barrels of crude oil daily, and thus could more than meet all their needs out of their own production if the million barrels a day exported to the United States were sent instead to Quebec and the Maritimes.

But that is no simple task. Prime Minister Trudeau's key plan to extend the existing pipeline 500 miles from Sarnia to Montreal will deliver only 250,000 barrels a day, or one-fourth of Eastern Canada's needs, by early 1976. To pump any more than that to Montreal would require an expanded pipeline all the way back to Alberta, 2,400 miles, which would take several more years to build.

To understand why it took so long to decide on a pipeline to supply the East with oil from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, it is necessary to take a look at the past.

Before the Second World War, Canada used oil for only about 18 per cent of its total energy needs and imported most of it from the United States.

The first major oil discoveries in Alberta in 1947 put Canada into the oil production business, but a worldwide glut of crude in the late 1950s hampered government efforts to encourage the industry.

The United States, whose production was also threatened by the cut-rate prices of offshore imports, set quotas restricting foreign oil.

Canada negotiated a special "overland exception," permitting Alberta oil exports to the U.S., and in 1961 established the Ottawa Valley line to assure a domestic market for Canadian oil by barring foreign imports in the western two-thirds of the nation.

The Ottawa line policy reserved the Canadian market west of the Ottawa Valley for domestic oil, while continuing to permit cheaper foreign imports in Newfoundland, the Maritimes, Quebec and southeastern Ontario, including Ottawa.

At the time a barrel of Arabian or South American crude could be delivered in Montreal for $2.50. It would have cost at least $1 more to get Alberta oil to Quebec.

Then, as now, the major problem in getting western oil to Eastern Canada was high transportation cost in the absence of a pipeline.

A pipeline in Montreal, it is argued, did not begin to make economic sense until the last few months, when the restrictions and world shortage boosted the price of imported crude to nearly double the Canadian price, from at $4 a barrel or a little less.

First exports of Canadian oil to the United States, soon after a pipeline was opened in 1950 from Edmonton into Wisconsin, were a modest 49,000 barrels a day. They climbed sharply to 225,000 a day with construction of the Trans-Mountain pipeline to Vancouver and the northwestern United States.

But Canadian exports to the U.S. got their major boost after successive Suez crises and increasing U.S. demands caused oil shortages in the American Midwest and the Interprovincial pipeline was extended from Sarnia in 1970.

Exports more than doubled to 760,000 barrels a day that year, and rose to 1.1 million daily by 1972 as American energy demands continued climbing and that country no longer had enough oil for its own needs.

Canadian exports were 1.3 million barrels daily earlier this year, with U.S. demands topping 1.5 million a day, when Canada cut exports to ensure enough oil for domestic use. They were reduced to just a million a day in December of this year.

If the Sarnia-Montreal pipeline is extended south to the U.S. may fall sharply, perhaps to 600,000 barrels a day, and then even more as Canadian needs rise and Alberta's oil reserves start dwindling in the late 1970s, unless major new oil reserves are discovered.

Both the Trudeau government and the oil industry warn that Canada must find new oil sources by the 1980s, either in "frontier" areas of the Arctic and the Atlantic Ocean or in development of the Athabasca oil sands in Alberta. Otherwise, Canada will have to import even more oil to fill its growing needs.

So far, industry reports on exploration in the Arctic and the continental shelf off the East Coast have been disappointing, and no major new conventional oil wells are forecast. That is in comparison to better position in respect to refined oil products, producing almost all of its own needs of 1,700,000 barrels a day from 40 refineries last year. It exports some surplus petroleum products to the eastern United States, and imports a limited amount into British Columbia from the western U.S.

Refiners are generally distributed near major consumption areas as there is no major transportation problem.

Last year's refinery production was 40 per cent more than four years earlier and refineries in Edmonton and the Maritimes will increase capacity by another 700,000 barrels a day within a few years.

This will enable Canada to increase substantially its refined exports of about 130,000 barrels a day of refined products to the United States, provided enough crude oil is available to feed the refineries and there is no shortage in Canada.

The first of three new refineries being built by the Shaheen Natural Resources group is expected to produce up to 100,000 barrels a day at Come-By-Chance, Nfld.

This new production had been destined almost entirely for export to the United States and Europe. Now, John Shaheen, New York economic industrialist, has said the output will be available to Canadian buyers as long as necessary to meet shortages expected to range between 10 and 30 per cent for the East.

Shaheen critics say his offer is more self-serving than meets the eye, on three main counts. They say the Trudeau government has planned to force that diversion in any event when the production is needed.

They say further that about half the Shaheen crude originates in Kuwait, which would cut it off if the products were shipped to the U.S. and that it is in the long-term interest of Mr. Shaheen to crack the Canadian market because of American plans to become self-sufficient in oil by 1985.

The new Shaheen refinery, like all refineries east of the Ottawa Valley, is normally dependent on imported oil. Refineries from Sarnia westward to the Pacific coast use Western Canadian crude.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

The Dream Of Death

In July 1973, the Rev. Canon Willard V. Rauscher conducted the funeral service of a 13-year-old girl who had died tragically.

Canon Rauscher, rector of Christ Episcopal Church at Woodbury, N.J., learned after the funeral that six months earlier the girl had dreamed her death.

In the dream she died from "a freak accident." In reality, she died after a tractor trailer jumped the curb and crushed her while she walked with her mother near her home. (The mother suffered a broken pelvis in the accident.)

Let's call the girl (whose mother wishes anonymity) Judy. Shortly after Judy's death a friend gave her mother a letter the dead girl had written on December 6, 1972. The letter was eerily prophetic.

Judy wrote to her friend that she dreamed she had been injured in an accident and lay in hospital near death.

"The doctors said I had only a 30 per cent chance of recovery," the girl wrote.

She described a procession of high-school friends who visited her. And then, in the dream, she died.

"From somewhere above me I heard a voice," she wrote — which said, 'Judy Jones died from a freak accident at the age of 13.

"She had many friends who loved her and still love her even though she is no longer with us. They think of her often. When they think of her, they do not think of her untimely death but her short but fulfilled and happy life."

Then, in her dream, Judy said she saw and heard a friend telling a group of her classmates:

"I hope that you will not remember Judy by her death but by her simply super life. And tonight when you pray to God, remember to ask Him to help us remember Judy."

The letter concluded: "Then the dream ended. Do you think it could be true? Love, Judy...

Six months later Judy was dead.

Of this experience Canon Rauscher said: "The letter is deeply moving to read. It is hard not to believe that Judy really did, in some mysterious way, glimpse what lay ahead for her — death at such an early age, victim of a freak accident.

"Yet this incident is not depressing but inspiring. It has a spiritual quality. It reminds us that we live surrounded by mystery but the most profound and wonderful mystery of all is the human spirit which transcends time and space and even death."

Unique Canadian Crafts Show Closes in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The curtain came down Sunday on Ent'acte, a show of Canadian crafts with a theatrical theme viewed by thousands during the two-month engagement at the O'Keefe Centre.

Ent'acte (the interval between acts of a play) has sculptures, costumes, collages and masks valued at $35,000. The show now will be dismant led. $18,000 worth of specially-designed backing crates until its revival June 10 to July 8 at the McLaughlin Gallery in Oshawa.

During the Toronto exhibit, eight of the 113 art objects were purchased, although their new owners won't be able to take possession of them for 17 months.

The exhibit was co-ordinated by the Canadian Guild of Crafts (Ontario) and underwritten by a tobacco company.

Some of the items on display—fashioned from bronze, silver, wood, leather and textiles—stretch the theatrical theme a bit.

There are pieces of jewelry that have only the creation's title in link them to the performing arts.

But this wasn't so with a wool hanging entitled La Dame Blanche that won the first prize of $500 for Louise Hamel, a Longueuil, Que., secondary school teacher who has been weaving for just one year.

She uses the textures and patterns of several fibres to depict the different expressions an actor must project on the stage.

She decided not to use color so the textures of the off-white fibres "show the different faces people wear when they perform," she says.

Her creation was purchased for $500 and is probably a bargain considering that some objects which didn't win awards are priced at more than $1,200.

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — A new book of pop music statistics says Elvis Presley is the most popular recording artist over the last 18 years, outpacing the Beatles by nearly two to one.

The points were awarded on the number of weeks each artist was on the weekly chart of best-selling singles published in Billboard Magazine, a leading organ of the recording industry. Elvis had 1,790 points and the Beatles 900.

Pat Boone came in third with 602 points followed by Rick Nelson (723), Connie Francis (690), Fats Domino (671), Ray Charles (625), Supremes (606), James Brown (605) and Brenda Lee (560).

But the study, published in Top Pop Records, 1955-1972 by Joel Whitburn, says that in the competition for the most No. 1 records, the Beatles outpolled Elvis 20 to 14.

BURLINGTON, Calif. (Reuter) — Singer Bing Crosby was in satisfactory condition here today after an operation Saturday in which two-fifths of his left lung was removed.

The 69-year-old singer's personal physician, Dr. Stanley Harding, said: "We are very satisfied so far that he came out of the operation so well, and that we found no traces of cancer. We think things are well under control."

The operation at Peninsula Hospital's Medical Center was ordered after doctors discovered a large abcess in Crosby's lung. He entered the hospital New Year's Eve. Doctors were unable to determine the cause of the abcess, which "was bigger than we thought from the x-rays," Harding said.

Harding, who will not predict how long the singer will be in hospital, said he thought Crosby might have picked up the rare fungus found on the lung during a safari in Kenya last year. Slides of the fungus were being sent to experts in tropical medicine, he said.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Johnny Weissmuller, former Olympic swimming star and actor, was released Saturday from hospital here where he had undergone treatment for a heart ailment.

Weissmuller, 69, who set 57 swimming records during the 1920s and won five Olympic gold medals for the United States, was found to have heart trouble after being admitted to hospital here Dec. 19 for treatment of a fractured hip.

He starred in his first of many Tarzan films in the early 1930s and later acted in the Jungle Jim television series.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Actress Anna Kashfi, first wife of Marlon Brando, was married to a Las Angeles businessman in a civil ceremony Saturday.

Your Horoscope

Tuesday, Jan. 15

By Bernice Bede Osol

Aries (March 21-April 19). Steer clear of a situation where another is pressing for a quick commitment. If pushed too hard, a flat "no" is best.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Patience won't come easy to you the early part of the day. Some mistakes could result in your work. Do things slowly, method-ically.

Gemini (May 21-June 20). Don't let another arouse a negative opinion regarding one you are fond of. Allow him to detail solely by the way he treats you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) If you have come words with a member of your family don't let the issue drag on. A quick apology will restore harmony.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) A good part of today you'll think more about what you have to do than doing it. It will take discipline if you want an early start.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There are still a few corners you can trim off your operating budget. Present savings will help you keep eage picture.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There is a better contact than one you are considering to help you with a problem. The one you need must have more experience.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't do things for the sake of expediency today. It might satisfy present needs, but will be over-paid in regard to your overall plans.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In your present business dealings don't be too hasty in putting things down. Know just what other guy is prepared to guarantee.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will be judged today more by what you do than what you say. Let your deeds speak for you. Shirk no responsibility.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There is still a possibility your present ideas are not up to the quality you are capable of. Review plans before acting.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You may have to suddenly cancel a social engagement to meet a domestic obligation. It should have been that much fun anyway.

Nosebleed in Old Can Be Dangerous

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please give me information on nosebleeding in older people, which comes on at night. What treatment is there, instead of having a physician burn it out? Should salve or petroleum jelly spread in to soften the lining? Would it be ateasi? Is there a vitamin or food to use for it? — M.E.N.

Let's forget about sinus; that isn't usually what bleeds. But a nosebleed in an older person is a nuisance and if extensive and repeated can be dangerous sometimes.

Bleeding is usually in the forward portion of the septum, the septum being the partition between the two nostrils. If the septum is crooked, an ulcer may form and cause recurring bleeding. But there are several other causes.

Picking the nose can cause an ulcer. Or if the bleeding is at night, it may be because you bump the nose in your sleep. Excessive use of aspirin can contribute to easy bleeding. You can lack of vitamin C, which is common in oldsters who too often say: "At my age I don't need it."

Or, finally, there are—blood disorders that can make one prone to bleeding and bruising—so do you have any sign of easy bruising elsewhere? That would be indicative.

You mention having it "burned out." I assume that an ulcer has been cauterized, but if the trouble repeats itself, some of the other causes mentioned above should be investigated.

Meantime some first aid tips. Sit up not with head at all slightly forward. Otherwise the blood drips into the throat, and there is less chance of formation of a clot at the bleeding point. Liberate a bit of cotton batting packed into the side of the nose on which the bleeding occurs will promote clotting.

Do not remove this until you are sure bleeding has stopped; otherwise it might remove the clot, or form a new one, and start bleeding all over again. Do not use saliva; it can introduce germs.

A bit of petroleum jelly on the cotton may be used to prevent sticking. Any fat such as butter on the bleeding side also may help.

I'll repeat the earlier remark about vitamin C. If you are not in the habit of having some every day (citrus fruit or juice or tomato juice) I would advise making this a daily habit. But if the bleeding continues recurrently, a check of your blood can be important.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please settle an argument with my grandfather. He claims that when my dog licks my face I'm in tremendous danger. I have told him I still have to go with grandpa, in that dogs sniff and lick all so many things it's safer to forego the canine affection. Why take unnecessary risks?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will kissing a person on the mouth who has cancer be contagious? — Mrs. N.

No.

Note to Mrs. P.S.: Hyaline membrane disease can occur in premature babies, not in full-term babies. Having had one such baby is not an indication you will have another. Since the baby survived through the first critical days, you need have no fear that she will suffer lifelong weakness later from it.

Opening lead—10♣

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "One of the bids that hasn't changed much in the last 25 years is the opening notrump. The standard all over the world is 16-18 or 15-17. Those few who use other notrumps keep a two-point range between maximum and minimum."

Jim: "There are some players who like to use a wider range such as 15-18. Of course, any good player knows that 15 points plus four 10s is fully as good as 16 points and no 10s. He varies his limits in accordance with that knowledge."

Oswald: "Point count and standard no-trumps mean that anyone would reach six no-trumps with today's cards. North adds his 17 to his partner's 18 to 18 and comes up with a 13-35 total. Thirty seven is necessary for a good grand slam. They're three enough for a small slam—he bids six.

Jim: "There is nothing to the play. There are 13 top tricks and a spade finesse for seven. The fact that the finesse wins this time has nothing to do with the accuracy of North's six bid. You should not bid seven unless your chance for success is almost 70 per cent. Not only does a grand slam defeat cost you the game and slam bonus but it is particularly bad for partnership morale and you will still have the same partner for a while after an unsuccessful grand-slam bid."

Ontario Energy Aims Stated

Top Priority Given To Oil Independence

TORONTO (CP) — The dispute over domestic gas and oil prices probably will not be settled at next week's national energy conference in Ottawa, Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Monday.

"I think it's going to take a series of conferences and a lot of input by the Canadian people," he said in an interview.

Mr. McKeough said Canadian self-sufficiency tops Ontario's aims at the conference.

"That doesn't mean cutting off all exports or reducing all imports but having the capability of being self-sufficient in refining capacity and pipeline capacity and transportation capacity, that sort of commitment by the 11 governments."

Mr. McKeough said Ontario also was hoping for "a commitment to a Canadian price, which is something less than a world price so that we can insulate ourselves to some extent."

Commenting on the cost disputes among Alberta, Ontario, Saskatchewan and the federal government, he said Ontario wants on Canadian price, plus or minus transportation charges and the small differences in the market.

"I think the view of the Canadian people is that anything Ontario people is that we have a Canadian resource and we don't have to be subject to the vagaries of the world marketplace."

"If one of the Arabian sheiks wants to raise prices that doesn't necessarily mean to say that prices in Canada should automatically rise, which was happening up until the time of the (price) freeze in August."

Mr. McKeough then referred to the announced plans of Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney to increase the cost of basic oil produced in that province—possibly by as much as $5 a barrel.

"I think the Canadian people are going to rebel and are not going to buy it," Mr. McKeough said. There is a Canadian interest and the Canadian interest is going to have to be looked after," he said.

Mr. McKeough said he expected the price of oil in Ontario to go up and "you could make a good argument that the producers should get part of the increase."

"I think they probably should. How much. I'm not prepared to say at this moment."

The question of "how the pie is going to be split" is not going to be easy.

Mr. McKeough said on one hand there were provinces insisting they owned their own resources and are able to collect their own royalties. On the other hand, Ottawa says since resources leave a province they come under federal control.

"Both groups have trouble to wave their flags and we've ended up in this—not crisis atmosphere but confrontation atmosphere.

"Both sides are going to have to give and without reversing the constitution both sides are going to have to face up to the fact that both sides have a certain amount of right on their side; that simply waving the flag one way or another isn't going to solve the issue."

Alberta Plans $100 Million Study of Oil Sands Mining

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alberta took a crucial step Monday to ease Canada's energy crisis.

Premier Peter Lougheed's announcement of a five-year, $100-million program to study deep-mining technology of the Alberta oil sands drew acclaim from at least one oil industry official.

"We welcome the announcement and feel it will have a positive effect on companies which are looking at the oil sands," said John Peyre, president of the Canadian Petroleum Association.

We hope this initiative by the Alberta government will be matched by Ottawa at the other end, and something positive will be coming out of the first ministe's conference in Ottawa later this month."

Under the program, an Alberta oil sands technology and research authority will be established in Calgary and $100 will be committed to the study in the next five years.

Mr. Lougheed said full development of the oil sands is important because Canada's conventional crude oil reserves—85 per cent of them in Alberta—are declining, and industry so far has failed to find significant new reserves in the Arctic and off the East Coast.

In other energy developments Monday:

—In Ottawa, the Manitoba premiers agreed to go to next week's federal-provincial energy conference in Ottawa with a united demand for a single price for crude oil across Canada.

Egypt's Counterproposals To Israel 'Constructive'

JERUSALEM (CP) — Henry Kissinger outlined today Egypt's counterproposals for a withdrawal of military forces on the Suez front and said Israeli leaders appeared to find "constructive aspects" in the plan.

The U.S. state secretary emerged from a two-hour meeting with Deputy Premier Yigal Allon, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Defence Minister Moshe Dayan and said they had "a very warm and I think very useful discussion."

The foreign minister went from the meeting to Premier Golda Meir's home to tell her about it. Mrs. Meir is confined to her home with an attack of shingles.

The chief point under discussion is how much Egypt is willing to thin out its forces and arms on the east bank of the Suez canal in exchange for withdrawal of Israeli troops.

Kissinger brought the Egyptian counterproposals Monday night from Aswan, where he conferred once more with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The American said he believed they had "narrowed the differences substantially" and he hoped to continue the conferences this afternoon.

Egypt apparently had no objections to Israel's offer to pull its troops back to a line some 20 miles east of the canal. But Kissinger returned to Israel with a map showing the position Egypt wants to hold on the east bank as well as the buffer zone the United Nations peacekeeping force would man between the two armies.

On high-ranking American official with Kissinger said he thought the differences between the Israeli proposal and the Egyptian counter-proposal were manageable.

Police Report

Job Picture Brightens

OTTAWA (CP) — Employment rose in December for the third straight month and the unemployment rate remained unchanged, Statistics Canada said today.

Both developments were on a seasonally adjusted basis, taking into account normally-expected changes.

The actual number of persons at work dropped 44,000 to 8,786,000 and in actual total of unemployed rose 44,000, but the seasonal adjustment reversed the trud in both cases because the number of jobless normally rises more than that in December and the decline in jobs is usually much greater for the month.

"The seasonally-adjusted level of employment increased for the third consecutive month. The increase, though less pronounced than in the past two months, pushed the level to 8,777,000 in December," Statistics Canada said.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate remained at 5.6 per cent of the work force.

"Employment in December was up 25.5% increased substantially to 2,343,000 in December after remaining static last month. For married women aged 25-54 there was little change in the level of employment," the report said.

It said the job gain was shared by the Atlantic provinces, the Prairie region and British Columbia, while employment dipped slightly in Quebec and Ontario.

News Briefs

Safety Campaign

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's transportation committee approved Monday a $50,000 education program as part of a plan to improve safety standards at the estimated 700 crosswalks in the city. The program may include signs telling pedestrians to look carefully and point before using the crosswalks.

Druggists Protest

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Pharmacists Association is protesting provincial government delays in reimbursing $700,000 to druggists who have filled prescriptions for nursing-home patients. Doug McAuley, an executive of the association, said Monday the money is owed to about 450 pharmacists, most of whom receive no payment until several months after the drugs are dispensed.

Theatre Case Dismissed

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Charges for allowing an obscene performance were dismissed Monday against a theatre manager who said he intends to lay charges against police who raided the theatre. Kenneth Jensen of Kitchener, former manager of the now-defunct La Petite Theatre on the main street of Waterloo, said it is "ridiculous" that his case took more than a year to complete and required six or seven court appearances.

Pot Plane Crashes

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A twin-engined plane loaded with an estimated $1 million worth of marijuana crashed and burned at an apartment construction site Monday night, police said. The plane's three occupants were killed. Authorities were trying today to determine the identities of the three victims.

Car Stockpile Big

DETROIT (AP) — United States car dealers report first-of-the-year inventories totalling 1.6 million autos, a stockpile big enough to last most dealerships 70 days at the rate cars were sold last month.

Yaremko Owns Land

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General John Yaremko said Monday that he and his wife hold about 430 acres in the Niagara escarpment. He said he will have to refrain from taking part in cabinet discussions on the escarpment expected later this year, he said.

No Danger to Children

HAMILTON (CP) — The city's pollution control committee decided Monday night that children at Canadian Martyrs' separate school are in no danger of lead poisoning, and there is no justification for conducting blood tests on them. But the committee recommended that municipal laboratories continue to monitor lead levels in soil throughout the city.

38 Saved After 9 Days Adrift at Sea

MIAMI (AP) — Thirty-eight Haitian refugees, rescued after nine days at sea in a foundering sailboat, blindfolded themselves during the ordeal so they wouldn't see each other die.

"Many were, sick, and we were all crying. We prayed and read from the Bible and sang hymns," said Josephine Tertulien.

The 30 men, seven women and a 16-year-old boy were rescued from the 26-foot sailboat, Friday by Miami-based fishermen operating 200 miles off the south Florida coast. They were brought ashore by a U.S. Coast Guard cutter late Sunday.

Architect Of Merger Dismissed

TUNIS (CP) — President Habib Bourguiba has hurriedly called Tunisia's Council of the Republic to a meeting today that may decide the fate of the agreement Bourguiba signed Saturday with Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafy.

The council includes all members of the cabinet and the executive of Bourguiba's Neo-Destour party, Tunisia's only legal political party.

Diplomatic sources report that Premier Hedi Nouira, who had long opposed Masmoudi's maneuvering for a linkup with Libya and oil riches, is the main cause of the foreign minister's downfall.

Masmoudi said in an interview he and Nouira are "at opposite ends of the pole" on the merger. He also said Bourguiba had told him he was being removed because the United States government objected to his policies such as recognition of China, North Vietnam and Prince Norodom Sihanouk's Cambodian government-in-exile.

Mideast War Boosts Student Cruise Price

The Arab-Israel conflict has upped the cost of Hastings county's annual Mediterranean cruise.

The energy crisis has increased the fare by $48, from the originally announced $475 to $520.

The annual cruise takes students to Mediterranean countries for a 3½-week period. The cruise this year will concentrate on the Holy Land.

In an announcement of the fare increase, Lloyd Jones, Centennial Secondary School teacher and tour leader said students who find the increase a burden may be able to borrow funds through their schools.

"The Arab-Israel conflict has now cost each person $48 directly," he said. "This war, with accompanied hatred has over-driven the reason." As students, we should examine the whole question with more than academic interest."

The "holy gallop", a hajj, that is from Mayfair to Rome, is threatened by the fuel crisis. Buses cannot now be assured of fuel for the trip, but it is hoped adequate supplies will be available by March.

"Conditions for tourists do not appear to be as critical as the news reports sometimes suggest," said Mr. Jones.

London, last stop on the cruise, will continue on the itinerary. The cruise company is not experiencing difficulties now on the Mediterranean and students in the Holy Land will be evaluated, up to, and during, the cruise.

Mr. Jones has assured students and parents that Newsold, a branch of the P and O Line, will also take risks on the school cruises it has operated for many years.

Richmond Hill Mayor Sends His Best Wishes

A former Belleville boy, now a practising pharmacist in the town of Richmond Hill, has taken an active interest in the municipal affairs of his adopted town.

He is William "Bill" Lazenby, who has been member of the Richmond Hill town council for the past 11 consecutive years, the past three as mayor.

With Belleville's centenary coming up in 1978, city council is already making plans for the event and is seeking guidelines on how to prepare a suitable program.

Richmond Hill celebrated its 100th anniversary last year and city clerk Gordon Stalker was directed to write for their centenary program brochure. In forwarding the brochure, Mayor Lazenby wrote a personal note to Mr. Stalker, extending best wishes for his Home Town's 100th birthday party.

Mileage Allowance Increased

Administrators of Hastings county board of education got a three cent a mile increase in travelling expenses Monday night.

They will now get 16 cents a mile travel expenses.

"Employees should not be out-of-pocket for expenses incurred in operating their own automobiles on board business," said the recommendation presented in the light of the energy crisis and rising gas costs.

A summary, presented by the business administrators estimated the operating costs of a car, driving 15,000 miles a year, at $1,391.

Total fixed costs for the same car, described as a "family size car", driven for three years and private trade-in, was estimated at $1,000.

The total of fixed and operating costs for the car, driven on board business for 15,000 miles a year, comes to $2,391. By paying the operator at mileage allowance of 16 cents a mile, he would collect $2,400 a year, an advantage over the board of $9 annually.

A 10 per cent increase in gas price would imply a half cent increase in allowance, said the business administrators. A motion allowing the half cent increase for every 10 per cent increase in the price of a gallon of gas over 60 cents was approved by the board.

Trustees don't qualify for the increase. Their mileage rates are set by provincial legislation. A bill now before the legislature would increase trustees' expenses to 15 cents a mile, but, the increase were told, this figure would probably change in an upward direction before the bill becomes law.

Safety Teams to Compete

For some years now, schools in Prince Edward-Lennox County have taken part in the School Safety Awareness Program sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

This Wednesday at 6 p.m. at the Canadian Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street the school section championships will be combined with a safety dinner meeting.

The two schools taking part will be Trenton High School and Prince Edward Collegiate from Picton. Four members plus one stand-in from each the schools will participate.

The school safety awareness program is developed to eliminate the toll of serious accidents among temporary and permanent employees who come to industry from from school classrooms.

The program aims to create a fleet of safety minded hazards, promote safe operation and provide employers with graduating students who are alert to accident prevention as a way of life.

The section championship on Wednesday is the result of four months of work in the local schools under the coordination of IAPA section executive committee members, Ted Lavigne.

Both Trenton HS and Prince Edward Collegiate have successfully completed two written tests and three live panel competitions to be eligible for this contest.

The winner of this competition will go on to represent the section against the Napanee - Kingston - Gananoque teams on January 30. If successful, they will compete on February 14 at Peterborough for the divisional championships.

In April, the provincial championships will take place in Toronto.

For the past three years, Prince Edward Collegiate has won the safety awareness citations they have entered right up to the top spot the provincial championships.

To be eligible to compete in the contest, participants should be a Grade 11 or 12 student taking one technical course in high school.

Van Flips On Freeway

A Brighton man was treated for facial lacerations and released from Belleville General Hospital last night following a spectacular single car crash on Highway 401, between Stations Road and the Wallbridge-Loyalist Road.

Luke Wernlin, 43, of RR 3 Brighton was driving his commercial van east along the highway 401 around 7:55 p.m. yesterday when it went out of control, crossed the median and flipped over onto its roof in the westbound lane.

Ontario Provincial Police the officer who investigated the accident, said that road conditions were haza-dous at the time of the accident with strong winds throwing drifting snow across the highway.

The Wierda vehicle blocked traffic in the westbound lanes for nearly an hour after the accident and police were required to reroute cars around the roadway's shoulders.

Damage was estimated to be $1,300 to the van.

Drug Film Showings Continue

Tonight the third of the four-past series on drug use, called No Easy Answers gets under way at 8 at Corby Public Library.

The poignant BBC film Gale, is Dead will be shown and followed by Rev. Reynard Lavgie Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will be available for a question and answer period.

The film Gale is based on the true account of a 19-year-old girl who dies as a result of her heroin addiction. The film examines Gale's tragic life while the only acceptance she found was with people with one common bond: drug addiction. These people were the family Gale never knew.

The question is asked whether heroin or society was responsible for her death. The question is raised but the answer to it isn't as easy.

The film series is being coordinated by the National Film Board of Canada in cooperation with the Corby library.

The public is invited to attend tonight and all films available on drug use all this week at the library from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Friday, Friday, Jan. 18.

On Thursday night at 8, the last of the series will take place with Inspector Ralph Hutchfield of the city police the guest speaker. The films to be shown that night will be Almost Everyone Does and Us.

Dogcatcher Gets Raise

Sidney township council passed a motion Monday boosting the retainer for the municipality's animal control officer, Dan Tucker, from $10 to $30 a month.

All other fees will remain the same, council decided. Mr. Tucker, who operates a pound in Shirley, receives $2 as a commission for each dog tag issued, and $7 for boarding and the disposal of animals.

In making his report to council, Mr. Tucker disclosed the dog population of the township has decreased in 1973 over the previous year. He estimated 850 dog tags were issued in 1973 compared 190 being those issued in 1972.

Picton Pays Final Tribute To Harvey J. McFarland

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton United Church held a capacity crowd Monday afternoon as approximately 1,200 persons paid final tribute to Harvey J. McFarland, mayor here for more than two decades.

Four clergymen officiated during the service, among them Rev. Peter Reid of the Presbyterian Church, Sault Ste. Marie, Rev. Robert Jones, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Captain Les Pearce, of the Salvation Army, Toronto, and Rev. Robert Sherwin, Picton United Church.

Captain Pearce, formerly stationed at the Picton Salvation Army Citadel here, spoke of a long association with Picton's mayor and noted that he had been "a dreamer". He recognized, however, that reality must be a part of all dreams and "worked ceaselessly toward his goals."

Capt. Pearce said that he felt Mayor McFarland could best be described in the words of Kipling's poem "If".

Capt. Pearce observed that Picton's mayor had been truly a man in the best sense of the word.

At the close of the service the voices of those attending joined in The Battle Hymn of the Republic.

The mayor's body was taken to Glenwood Cemetery for interment. Members of the Picton police department, the Picton fire department, the Rotary, Kinsmen and Kiwanis Clubs formed an honor escort for the funeral procession.

Active bearers were Jack Hobson, Jack Cooper, Carl Boyd, Murray Mason, Ainsley LaChappelle and William Scott.

Hundreds of floral tributes and messages of condolence poured in prior to yesterday's service, among them a wire from President Richard Nixon.

The service was attended by Prince Edward County councillors, members of Picton town council, Prince Edward township councils and local service clubs, the Picton police and fire departments and student representatives from Bishop Edward.

Stores on Main Street were closed during the funeral service. Some carried window signs announcing an all-day holiday in tribute to the late mayor, Flags throughout the town flew at half staff in his memory.

Trenton Mall Plan Approved

TRENTON — Nine months of talks and bargaining came to a climax last night with town council giving the go-ahead for construction of a big enclosed shopping mall for the town's eastside.

The mall, slated for completion by 1975, will include an expanded version of the Loblaws store already in place, about 75 small retail outlets and an undetermined, 70,000 square-foot general department store; as yet not identified.

Dean Feltham, executive vice-president of the developer, Wenkert Realty Shopping Centres, did not divulge the name of the department store, considered the anchor and top-drawing shopping attraction of the complex.

"The company has preferred that the name be withheld until negotiations are completed," he said.

The job is expected to cost more than the $750,000 and Mr. Feltham makes four promises on its behalf.

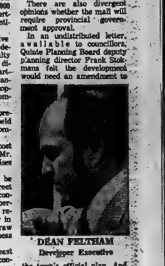
He says the mall, to be situated on Dundas Street East, will generate $4,000 in construction jobs, 200-250 permanent full-time sales and related jobs, $175,000 a year in town taxes and will draw "substantially more business into the town."

According to him, at least 50 per cent of the town's consumer buying power is exhausted in shopping areas other than Trenton.

In exhaustive studies of the area working out the feasability of a shopping centre here, it was shown that "Trenton consumers spend $11 million annually on department store commodities and the town's consumer weekly grocery bill is about $150,000.

The company hopes to substantially reverse the outflow of money," he said.

Mr. Feltham said because the mall would be so close to the downtown access, both shopping areas would complement each other.



Pending council's approval of the scheme, there are two other conditions that must be met before the project can begin.

Part of the 16 acres on which the mall is planned is now owned by the federal government.

Mr. Feltham said CFB Trenton personnel had been positive about the turning over of property. But it is still to be considered by Ottawa. If this had not yet been confirmed that the land will be released by Mr. Feltham says he is "confident."

There are also divergent opinions whether the mall will require provincial - government approval.

In an undistributed letter, available to councillors, Quinte Planning Board deputy planning director Frank Stokman's feel the development would need an amendment to the town's official plan. And, further, the development "appears to be in direct contradiction to a statement in the plan saying, that no commercial growth will take place in the established central business area."

DEAN FELTHAM
Developer Executive

Take 4

Contrary to this, the developer's attorney told council last night a small portion of the mall could be issued on the affected parcel of land.

The attorney added this could be managed because, while an official plan had been set for the area, neither the province nor town council had approved any zoning bylaws.

Council approved of the plan and once a written application is received by the town, a building permit will be issued.

Two Mishaps Cause Heavy Damage

TWEED (Special) — Two accidents early today on Highway 37 south of Tweed caused heavy property damage but no personal injuries.

A tractor-trailer, owned by National Grocers of Toronto and serving Red and White stores in Perth and Ottawa jackknifed after hitting a slippery spot on the highway a half-mile south of Thomasburg and went into the west ditch. Police estimated damage to the cab at more than $2,000. The cargo was undamaged and another truck was dispatched from Toronto to transfer the load. Driver was Frederick Marshall, 38, of Etobicoke.

A late model car driven by Ralph Recoskie, 24, of Barry's Bay went out of control three miles south of Tweed and took out 75 feet of wire fence. The driver was uninjured, but damage to the car amounted to $1,500.

School Board Remembers McFarland

BLOOMFIELD — The Prince Edward County board of education last night paid tribute to the late Harvey J. McFarland with two minutes silence as its meeting opened.

Board chairman Ruth Hart said that mayor McFarland had been "a generous supporter of education" and offered condolences to his family on behalf of trustees.

"He was a great citizen of Prince Edward County", she remarked.

The two-minute silence observed by the board was followed with the Lord's Prayer in memory of the late mayor.

Energy Saving Cut NATO Exercise Role

TRENTON — Only a skeleton Canadian Armed Forces contingent will take part in the February NATO exercises — a federal government step to cut energy consumption, according to Col. Bev Tottman.

Some 1,200 Canadian troops were diverted from Norway NATO exercises to northern Manitoba this week in winter manoeuvres.

A similar exercise which Canada was to play a major role will be staged in Norway next month. According to Col. Tottman, of Toronto, it will be "a paper exercise" for Canada.

"We're cutting way, way down, conserving the aircraft fuel," he said.

He told the Intelligencer "the same exercises can be completed in the Canadian north, and conserves gas reserves where fuel is more available."

Only about 100 Canadians will travel to the Norway manoeuvres, he said.

"Instead of going full bore, we'll be using just enough vehicles and aircraft to make the exercise in Canada realistic," he said.

He said the Norway exercise would have been much larger than the Canadian operation now in progress.

Air crews have been instructed to fly with fuel economy in mind and ground particular traffic will be kept to minimum.

Canada takes an active role in winter training having the responsibility of protecting NATO's northern flank.

About 45 per cent personnel from CFB Trenton will take part in the operation, ferrying and providing support for the 1,200 troops. In all, some 100 Canadian flights will be made.

This marks the second major move on the part of the armed forces to conserve energy.

Some weeks ago bases across Canada were asked to participate in voluntary energy conservation program.

Col. Tottman said there was no indication what savings have been realized by the energy austerity program.

The Last Salute

Harvey McFarland was the recipient of many gestures of recognition during his life. The final salute comes from his town's Police chief — George Pitt — Monday as funeral cortege forms up after memorial service in Picton's mayor.

Coastguard Sinking

Only One Attempt to Check The Whereabouts of Cutter

Coastguard Cutter 112 suffered no structural or equipment failure that could have led to its sinking off Wreck Point at 8.30 p.m. last Sept. 6 with the loss of two crewmen.

The sinking was not reported until 11 hours later, says a summary report of a federal transport department inquiry released by Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

Sole survivor was Coxswain Kenneth Campbell, 41, RR 1, Carrying Place, who was washed ashore on Prince Edward County about four hours after the vessel floundered.

All crew members were Lost, and later found drowned, were crew members Eric Breau, 37, RR 4 Stirling and Manny Power, 56, of RR 2, Trenton.

The 40-foot rescue cutter was last sighted by a returning from the aid of the ketch Blue-nose, a yacht that had reported steering difficulties about 1.40 p.m. Sept. 6 The rescue coordination centre at CFB Trenton despatched the cutter from its berth near Lovett bridge at the western end of the Murray canal in Presqu'ile Bay.

Last radio communication with the cutter was at 3.15 p.m. when the co-ordination centre told the cutter crew that the yacht was proceeding without difficulty. The coxswain continued until he sighted the yacht at about 7 p.m. five miles south of Point Petre.

Heavy 10-foot waves were encountered in the open lake and winds on shore were gusting at 20 to 30 miles an hour west-northwest.

After sighting the yacht, the coxswain ordered the cutter to turn back. The vessel headed for shore and about a mile off Point Petre altered course parallel to the shore, directly into the wind.

Heavy seas were taken over the cutter's bow, most entering the wheelhalling cockpit, but some leaking into the bilges.

The cutter was observed by several people on Wreck Point, about a mile offshore. It disappeared from view about 8.10 p.m., heading into lshal Bay.

Confused seas off Wicked Point broke over the cutter, flooding the cockpit. All equipment was working at this time and the portable high capacity fire pump was put into operation. A succession of seas put the pump out of action and it was evident the craft was sinking. The coxswain increased speed in an effort to beach the vessel, but it slowly settled at the stern and sank at 8.30 p.m. No attempt was made to use the radios, the manual inflating rubber life raft or distress flares.

At first the three crewman, wearing life jackets, stayed together, but Coxswain Campbell later missed his two companions and eventually drifted ashore. Exhausted, he crawled to the roadside and fell asleep until daylight. After waking, he walked to a nearby farmhouse and rested the alarm at 1:50 a.m. Sept. 7, it was 11 hours since last radio contact has been made with the rescue centre, and was the first indication that the cutter had been in distress. The rescue co-ordination centre had tried without success to contact the cutter at 9:30 p.m. the previous night.

A search was ordered, and the two missing men were found floating in the life jackets 2.6 miles south of Point Petre.

The cutting was later located in 70 feet of water south-south-west of Owen Point and was raised.

The rescue co-ordination centre at Trenton made no attempt to check on the cutter's movements, except for the one attempt at 9:30 Sept. 6, and no measures were taken to determine if she had returned to base.

Two New Quinte Parks Announced by Bernier

By ROBERT WHITELAW.
Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer.

TORONTO — A major new provincial park for Prince Edward county was announced today by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier.

The park, to be known as

ERAS: More Involvement Is Proposed

BLOOMFIELD — The ERAS (Education Resources Allocation System) project underway in Prince Edward requires greater community involvement, according to school trustee James Pioneer.

Mr. Pioneer, of South Marysburgh, said the project has received good response among residents but more questions, and other interested persons, should be encouraged to participate.

He suggested that trustees should submit the names of individuals that they might consider interested in the ERAS project.

Lake-on-the-Mountain Provincial Park, is an expansion of a five-acre picnic site already in operation.

The new park will contain 506 acres along the lake's shoreline, this preserving the quality of water and providing for recreational facilities in this area.

In the northern corner of Hastings county near Bancroft the ministry announced plans for a new 1,000-acre park on the shore of Papineau Lake.

Property Acquisition for the parks will begin immediately.

Snowmobile In River

TWEED (Special)—Harold Towpell, 58, Marlbank, escaped serious injury when the snowmobile he was driving went into five feet of water in the Clare River at Kinlin Bridge northeast of here about 6.30 p.m. Sunday. He was rescued by companions and treated by Dr. G. G. Hunt of Marlborough for cuts and bruises. The machine receive ed $50 damages.

Vandalism Is Persistent At Picton Public School

BLOOMFIELD — Continued vandalism at Queen Elizabeth school last night prompted Picton police to urge trustees to install and recommend more lighting around the building.

To Standard

MARMORA — Upgrading of Marmora village's electrical system to standard will soon be possible.

The Ontario Municipal Board has given permission to issue $40,000 in debentures so that the work recommended by Ontario Hydro can be carried out.

Next step will be to arrange borrowing of the money.

Healing Substance...
Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch
Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair tissue.
A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured tissue.
One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.
And most important—definite improvement was sustained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with the cooperation of competent medical specialists.

CURIOSITY SEEKERS
Mr. McKinney
A. E. McKinney Realty Ltd.
If you intend to plant a "for sale by owner" sign in your front yard, be prepared for the inevitable "Curiosity Seeker". You probably will spend more time wandering through the house with curiousity seekers than showing it to firm prospects.
Your "For Sale By Owner" sign leaves you open to all types of people and problems. For example, a visitor may request an offer to buy, on which he doesn't intend to follow through. You may make plans based on accepting it, only to learn that the "prospect" had no intention of completing the agreement.
A good Realtor has the experience to unmask the hoaxers offer and turn it away before it does any harm, in fact, the presence of a Realtor usually will discharge any attempt of that sort. He will qualify prospects in advance and allow only those who are definitely prospective buyers — not curiosity seekers — to inspect your house.

Role of the Y

This is National YMCA Week and its celebration locally has been enhanced by the presence of Gordon Cressy, president of the National Council of YMCAs in Canada.

If the stature of an organization is reflected in the calibre of its principals, then the Y is fortunate in young leaders such as Mr. Cressy.

Widely invested at 30, Mr. Cressy told Belleville Rotarians on Monday of the increasing role of the Y amid all cross-sections of society, with emphasis on the virtues of strong family life and slow but sure rather than overly swift growth in the social order.

Mr. Cressy was thinking not only of family in its usual sense, but of the Y in its local concept of a "family Y and he offered the advice: "If we can put the same kind of energy into stabilizing the family that we put into other endeavors we will be better off."

The Y in this community has its detractors, as does many an organization that tries to serve people. However, we believe its performance is worthy of praise, as it has done for some years now. But like any other such organization it needs community support. We believe the Y is worthy of it.

More on Energy

Some further sidelights on the energy crisis as it applies in particular to the United States where unaccustomed sacrifices and native ingenuity are going hand in hand.

First we have been reading about a Norwegian-born woman in Portland, Maine, who has established a profitable franchise for the sale of wood-burning stoves from her homeland. It began when she wanted something safe and functional to help heat the rambling farmhouse she and her photographer husband had bought. Next thing she was in business. And you would never guess . . . but some folk are buying the item as much because it is "in," a status symbol, as for anything else.

Then there is the Automobile Club of Southern California which is planning a "computer commuter" system that will assist would provide rides for five million workers in the Greater Los Angeles basin. More than 3,000 area businesses employing 100 or more workers will be able to tap into the master computer to get data to help match potential riders for car and van pools.

The aim of course is to cut use of gas and relieve congestion.

But what about the disadvantages? Car pools would achieve these admirable objectives, but what of the human ramifications? Would the computer, as in computer dating, ensure that everyone using the pool is compatible, punctual, a good driver when it is his time at the wheel? It will mean extraditing people to complete strangers at the outset at least.

As an official put it, success of the proposed project would depend heavily on "human attitudes."

Here in Canada, where the energy crisis is much less pressing, our cities are choked with too many cars, many containing only the driver, and all contributing massively to pollution and congestion. What the Americans are doing out of necessity, we could be doing as well out of concern for a cleaner and safer environment.

Matter of Location

There is a formidable list of approvals to be obtained before there is any possibility of a site at Port Hope being used as a dump for waste from Toronto.

But quite apart from this, the very idea of Toronto or any other large metropolis proposing to dump its garbage in the vicinity of some smaller community 100 miles away is disturbing.

CP Rail has a foot in the door of this dubious operation following its purchase from a Port Hope family farmer of 300 acres on which it held an option to lease.

The site is described as rocky land with ravines, good only for grazing cattle. Why, what's wrong with grazing cattle? Hope Township council, where the land is located, might be better permitting it to remain in this virgin state than to turn it into a dump for a far-off metropolis.

Two-Thirds of World Population Underfed

Food Production Should Treble to Meet Future Needs

The world land mass is a fixed quantity of some 35 billion square miles. Only 7 percent of this land has an environment to suggest a 'normal' agriculture. There is 1.2 cultivated acres for each person in the world today but by the year 2000 there will be 2 cultivated acres. Absolutely it could be potentially productive, given the capital and technology for development. Under present conditions, only one twelth of the world's land, or 1 billion acres, must produce food for the world.

Even with technological improvements, further land development will be limited by time.

In the tropics, where much of the potentially arable land is located, the clearing of vast areas of jungle creates the problems of soil erosion during the rainy season, and subsequent droughts during the dry season. As a result, the short growing season limits the production of crops. Irrigation of deserts requires fresh water however, and the cost of purifying polluted water—most of the production of sea water will be high.

Much of the technology now utilised and available throughout the world, is dependent upon fossil energy. So called modern agriculture is an intensive form of energy use, as it produces other forms of agriculture and all of energy produced. Energy costs: about 15 cents of energy to produce each dollar worth of food. As world energy supplies dwindle and the price increases, the cost of fertilizer, fuel, irrigation etc. to achieve food production will increase; if energy supplies become severely short, the volume of food production would be threatened even by today's standards.

To feed another four billion people in less than 26 years, it is estimated that world food production will need to triple. This estimate involves feeding of the world's people at a "decent" standard.

At the present time, nearly two thirds of the world's people are underfed. Many do not receive enough food on a daily basis to meet the energy requirements of the body; even more serious is the present world protein shortage.

Based on nutrition, the world's people can be divided into 3 groups. In group A, are the people from North America, Western Europe, Japan, Australia, and New Zealand. In these countries, on an average daily basis, consumption of both energy and protein, exceeds the body requirements. (Animal protein, the best source, normally is largely represented of our requirements.

In Group B are the countries of the U.S.S.R., Eastern Europe and China. In these countries, except China, energy supplied exceeds body requirements. Protein supplies are barely adequate, however the percentage of animal protein in their diets is drastically reduced from the standards of Group A.

In the third group, Group C, are the countries of South and Central America, Africa and Asia. Over two-thirds of the world's present population is included in this group. For them, the daily intake of energy foods is below daily requirements and the daily intake of protein is far below requirements. The protein that is available comes from plant sources. For these billions, animal protein is only a dream.

The increased world-wide demand for meat is creating two new pressures — greater resource requirements per unit of food production and problems of animal waste and pollution. In order to feed one person adequately on a grain based diet, 400 pounds of feed grain are required annually. Animal products based on grain (milk, meat, eggs, etc., require about 3000 pounds of grain, annually.

Many animals produce more than 10 times as much waste per day as a person does. As animal herds expand under modified farm conditions, this greatly magnifies the over-all pollution and waste disposal problem. The result is ever greater strain on the environment; calling for the restrictions on agricultural growth and greater resource requirements.

Much faith has been placed in the 'green revolution' as the answer to food production problems in high population income countries. Despite the social and human problems associated with this development, there are severe problems facing even a larger land mass and increasing existing yields under limited water, energy and fertilizer supplies.

It is generally agreed that, with improved resource management real gains are possible in food production, at least in those countries with a good land base. These countries that are environmentally neutral will be harder to come by. Given recent developments and the growth in the demand for meat, no country will be immune. It has been put forth: on how future food demands can be met, should be restricted to cereal diets, it is now feasible to produce meat for the world's people. The ability then to expand food production in the developing countries would vary from country to country. With adequate capital and technology, that countries in Group C will be able to feed themselves even at current levels.

It is becoming increasingly obvious that many of the world's diets are to be achieved for a world population of even 10 billion, it will only happen if countries with adequate resources can assist in a world effort to feed the world's people.

In contrast to many of the underdeveloped countries and many countries in Europe, Canada already has one of the highest yields per acre in the world. (5 acres per person). In contrast with a world average of one per person). There are large quantities of land that are suitable for cultivation. Much of the Canadian agriculture is of an extensive form and compared to many countries, output per acre can be greatly increased. Less than 5 percent of Canada's population are actively gaged in farming, suggesting an abundance of human and capital resources could be devoted to expanding food production.

Canada's potential is not limitless, however. But it is conservatively estimated that one really knows with any certainty what world food requirements will be, and what we can be achieved. We do know that if the world's people are to be fed, Canada and other prime agricultural areas must play a more important role. There is a moral and economic justification for doing so. This will only come about as a result of widespread commitment in Canadians to this end, and the full support of the Canadian agricultural and food system. Clearly, it cannot be achieved following the patterns of the past decade, where agricultural production has been oriented to meeting the demands of Canadians, and with age of one per person). Exported to countries where natural disasters have created immediate famine.

"Educational" TV

Channel 19's Excursion Into Realm of Nudity

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — No, they aren't nudists. They're just embarrassingly for an audience.

CKVR's Channel 19—that's the government's "educational" station—as it's New Year's Eve showpiece chose to screen a Toronto burlesque program, complete with nudes.

This got the gasps wanted all right, but the considerable question of the state of the mental health of the people who are running the government authority.

Actually this type of show is not an admission of failure by the authority—failure to attract an audience.

Its viewing audience in its broadcast area is miniscule. This naturally troubles it.

And so it has been stretching its interpretation of "education" to attract fanciful limits.

For example, this wasn't its first venture into bare buffery. Awhile ago it also thought a Miss Nude World contest was educational enough to screen it.

The government, it seems, should give some special attention to this outfit before it finds it has a monkey on its back (bare-back?).

The authority actually has done some very good work. It has both produced and bought some excellent programs.

But it also has been very evident that it hasn't any clear idea of just what its real purpose and scope are, should be, or are intended to be.

There apparently isn't the slightest idea of just who it is intended to educate, how and to what degree. In fact the foremost idea of what it should really is under its terms of reference.

The authority has now been given CRTC permission to go on the air with a network—with five additional stations.

In addition to other costs this will mean paying for local programing in five more areas.

By this time the Global, NBC, CBS, ABC and any other boob is CHCH-TV.

The time for curbing is now. And if government doesn't act the public must, and the bill is liable to think it is getting fed government as well as bad shows.

European Trip for PM?

Even Mr. Trudeau Is Uncertain

By VINCENT EGAN

Thomson News Service

First, the reports from Ottawa were that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau would personally visit the Brussels headquarters of the European Economic Community in early February.

Next, he was reported as throwing doubt on the trip, because of commitments here in Canada.

By now, the prime minister may have changed his mind again.

If so, it would be all to the good. While Mr. Trudeau has been in office long enough to have specific places for largely ceremonial purposes, he has shown little interest in meeting the leaders of the associated of Europe's top industrial nations on their home ground.

(A delegation of senior European parliamentarians and EEC officials, headed by Sir Christopher Soames, visited Ottawa from Oct. 31 to Nov. 2 last year, but created little stir and returned home with almost nothing to show for their trouble.)

Why should Canada, or its government, care about the European trading bloc?

Chiefly because 1974 might prove to be a difficult year for international trade, and the heart of that trade is found in the big industrial nations of Western Europe.

At the same time, the inter-national energy crisis itself might create some new export opportunities for Canadian manufacturers who take the trouble to investigate the European market.

Let's look first at the gloomy side. The energy crisis appears to be bringing on a European economic slowdown.

German industry was unable to keep up with demand for its products in recent years. Now, however, German—and other Western European—manufacturers will almost certainly have excess capacity.

That means they will be trying hard to sell to you. One way to get you to buy is to cut their prices, which is bad news for Canadian counterparts.

Result: Increased competition for Canadian manufacturers, maybe even some additional unemployment.

On the brighter side (brighter for Canada), it is quite clear that the energy crisis will so curtail the growth of industrial output that as labor strife is seriously diminishing Britain's—that Canadian industry will find itself becoming an important alternative source of supply.

Even those Canadian industries that traditionally buy from Europe, rather than export to it, stand to gain.

Example: With European automobile sales certainly headed its peak, there could well be more West German cars available for Canadian customers. That would take some of the heat off the sellers of other Canadian-made steel.

Result: A good thing to is this: The time is ripe for Canada to impress itself upon a European business community that scarcely knows we exist—and certainly not what we have been equally indifferent.

Now is the time to rank of the prime minister would have the necessary impact. Mr. Trudeau clearly ought to go to Brussels.

Turning On the Red Light

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

One hazard that can trap unwary motorists when motoring touring in Michigan or New York states is the "right turn on the red" law governing right turns against red lights. In Ontario we can legally turn right although the red light. If we first come to a complete stop and make certain that the turn will not interfere with other traffic, vehicle or pedestrian.

Michigan and New York have a similar law but with the right turn at traffic lights under any condition unless the lights show green. Their laws must be observed by many Americans, as well as for Canadians, because there are 19 states of the 50 that have laws following the same procedure as in Ontario.

It may soon get a little easier to drive in Michigan, because the state legislature there is well on its way to revoking its 34 year old ban on right turns against red, and changing its law in conformity with ours. A bill to accomplish this has passed by a vote of 96-1 in the lower house. The change could be now under consideration by the state senate.

The reason for Michigan's change of mind is tied to the energy crisis, and to short gasoline shortages. A car standing still wastes no fuel. The right turn at traffic lights under any condition saves the lights of traffic lights per year, can waste a lot of gasoline.

The energy crisis isn't be all bad if it compels some fresh thinking about obsolete laws.

Hansard Says It All For One MP's Constituents

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Literature MPs send to constituents usually outline what members are doing in Ottawa, their views on a subject, or on what the government is doing.

Not the literature of Steve Paproski, the affable heavyweight Progressive Conservative from Edmonton Centre who thinks his constituents are too intelligent to be impressed with his day-to-day achievements and committee meetings.

"The people want to know what's going on," he says. "Their interests go far beyond what I can do for them."

Every day, Mr. Paproski's secretary sends about 250 copies of Hansard, the official verbatim report of Commons proceedings, to constituents. More often than not, his name doesn't appear in the debates.

"It doesn't matter a damn whether I am reported or not," he says, flashing a wide grin. "It lets people know exactly what has happened on a given day in Parliament, and that way they can decide for or against about how Parliament functions."

After being elected by a 226-vote margin in 1968, the former professional football player devoted most of his energies to developing a rapport with his constituents. In that Parliament, he had enough time to cover every constituent twice with his mailed Hansards. He also sent out committee reports, copies of the daily order paper and other official documents.

"A lot of people have said they really appreciate knowing more about what's going on here."

Next month, the 45-year-old MP will open a constituency office in Edmonton, and a part-time worker will assist it with Hansards, other official Commons papers, copies of royal commission reports, information on unemployment insurance, pensions and other subjects that bring inquiries.

And, as usual, he will spend every other weekend or so in the riding, meeting the voters who elected him with a 12,000-vote margin in 1972.

He doesn't consider what the problem is, if the person feels it's important enough to take to his MP, then it has to be regarded as an important problem.

He handles 10 to 15 letters a day, the majority dealing with unemployment insurance and immigration laws. And, although his riding appears to be safe territory, he says there is no way he will slack off on constituency work.

"I won't be satisfied until all my opponents lose their deposits."

UCS and the Taxpayer

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Can anybody in Belleville tell me what the United Community Services is doing for this city apart from costing the taxpayer a lot of money?

I learned from the minutes of the December meeting that their budget is $31,000 was discussed. I should certainly think so — its time it was discussed publicly.

According to them, approximately 33 1-3 per cent of this amount went for the United Way campaign, which means — oh, leaves something like $20,000 — what?

The minutes infer this balance went in "Administrative costs" and "Grants-in-aid". What do they mean by "Social Planning"?

The sum of $12,000 was to be spent in the coming year, from the city, or, in plain words, a handout of the taxpayer's money.

All I recall, our benevolent city fathers put this idea of joining with the UCS when they elected to subsidize the salary and to become directors Lisbon Cooperman.

At this latter expense has now been dispensed with at no appreciable saving to the community what are we left with — Social Planning?

Just what does the UCS mean by Social Planning? Do they mean planning in a roundabout way that they are now the agency through which the job of planning of charting the course of the community's various social agencies?

Perhaps they mean to imply they are about to suggest new paths to be explored. Whichever it is, I have no conception of their being asked to embark on such an undertaking as that, and the cost to the taxpayer he expected to finance it?

The whole proposition is reminiscent of the annual lineup at the city hall of the various agencies who now, by acquired habit, receive sums of money from the city.

The YMCA and the Chamber of Commerce are not got away with this for years and now it seems that it is right in line with the old prod. I think it is time the whole process was examined closely and that all this money could be put to much better use than subsidizing the wages of overpaid professionals and well meaning housewife do-gooders.

Olympic Security Plans Well Advanced

MONTREAL (CP) — Drawing lessons from the Munich experience of 1972, the Montreal Urban Community Security Council's emergency security program for the 21st Olympiad varies from "discreet" to "rigorous and evident."

Working in close co-operation with Quebec provincial police, the RCMP and the Canadian Armed Forces, the MUC force has been studying security for the 1976 Montreal Games — July 17 to Aug. 1, 1976 — since shortly before the Munich Olympics opened in August, 1972.

Two senior MUC police officers — Chief Inspectors Philipe Young and Guy Toupin — went to Munich and with full co-operation of officials there obtained an inside view of the West German operation.

The officers spent a hectic 12 days with Dr. Manfred Schreiber, director of Munich's municipal police force, and his chief lieutenants. They returned December, 1972, for a debriefing session with German police who had analysed what went right — and wrong — at the Games, where Black September Arab terrorists penetrated the Olympic Village and assassinated Israeli team members.

The Montreal plans, to date, call for a force of about 6,000, including 4,000 policemen from the MUC, RCMP and Quebec Provincial Police and 2,000 soldiers and military-college cadets, says The Star.

The following maximum rates apply when room and board are included in calculating the minimum wage:

Room, weekly	$ 8.00
Meals,	.85 each
	OR 17.00 weekly
Room and meals	25.00 weekly

Increased Vacation Pay

All employees are entitled to vacation pay accruing at the rate of 4 per cent of all monies earned on or after January 1st, 1974. No minimum period of employment is required to entitle an employee to vacation pay. After one year of service, employees are entitled to two weeks vacation with pay. If service is for less than one year, employees must receive vacation pay on termination of employment.

EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1st, 1975

Overtime Pay

Beginning January 1st, 1975, overtime pay of 1½ times the regular rate will apply after 44 hours of work weekly. This premium rate now applies after 48 hours weekly.

Paid Statutory Holidays

This Year, qualified employees will be entitled to four statutory holidays with pay: Good Friday, Labour Day, Dominion Day, and Christmas Day.

Next Year, three additional paid statutory holidays will be added to the list: New Year's Day, Thanksgiving Day, and Victoria Day.

Qualifications

To qualify for a paid statutory holiday a worker must: Be employed for the three months immediately prior to the holiday; work on 12 of the 30 days preceding the holiday, and work on his or her regular day of employment preceding and following the holiday.

If an employee agrees, an employer may, within 30 days, substitute another working day for the holiday.

If a qualified employee, who does not have a substitute arrangement, works on a statutory holiday, payment must be at the regular rate, plus time and a half. An employee who does not qualify for a paid holiday, must be paid time and a half for each hour worked on a statutory holiday.

Exemptions

There are some exemptions to The Employment Standards Act. For example, with certain exceptions, the Act does not apply to an employee on a farm engaged in the primary production of food, seeds, grain and tobacco.

This advertisement is published as a convenient summary of the new legislation. For more information, or for a copy of the Employment Standards Act and its Regulations, contact the Employment Standards Branch, Ontario Ministry of Labour, at the following addresses.

Pensioners Will Get Tax Credit

TORONTO (CP) — Pensioners who do not have to wait for T4 or T5 slips should file now for their share of Ontario's tax credits, Revenue Minister Allan Grossman said Monday.

Mr. Grossman said that two out of three Ontario tax filers will benefit from the expanded tax credit program and many pensioners will get between $136 and $300, depending on their particular circumstances.

"We have added a sales tax credit and a pensioner tax credit to the property tax credit," Mr. Grossman said. "It is estimated that about $300 million in benefits will be paid to Ontario residents to bring greater fairness to the provincial tax system."

Eligible residents must fill in certain pages of the federal income tax return and the purple Ontario tax credit form attached inside the tax package in order to claim—even if they have no taxable income.

Cocaine Seized

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Ten charges were laid against three persons following a weekend drug raid that resulted in the first police seizure of cocaine in Brant County.

Fraud Charged

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — William Donald Parks charged with fraud involving nearly $14,000 between 1965 and 1972 while engineer for Grey County appeared in county court Monday.

Parks, 52, of Thornbury, Ont., is charged with eight counts of fraud, one of theft and one of breach of trust. He pleaded not guilty.

Troops Fire

JAKARTA (Reuter) — Troops opened fire today when Indonesian students smashed windows of a Japanese car showroom and set fire to parked cars in the streets to protest the visit of Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka.

There were no reports of casualties.

Trial Opens

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — A .22-calibre rifle was identified to Ontario Supreme Court Monday as the gun from which 10 bullets were fired into the body of Gulzipe Chilvarli, 46, last July 21.

The identification was made by ballistics expert Flinn Neilson of the centre for forensic sciences in Toronto at the opening day of the trial of Merle Smith, 43, a former Toronto police officer charged with the non-capital murder of Mr. Chilvarli and Smith's wife Agnes, 40.

Three Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — Three persons charged in connection with picket-line violence during the Artistic Woodwork Co. Ltd. strike last year were found guilty Monday of mischief or attempted mischief.

Oppose Mall

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Ald. Tom Parish charged Monday that a $3-million shopping centre proposed for Orillia Township is contrary to the official plan for the area and may have an adverse effect on the city.

The shopping centre, proposed by Multi-Malls Inc. of Toronto, has drawn opposition from the city which is considering a couple in the city by Automale Commercial Properties Ltd., also of Toronto.

Poor Show

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Retail stores zoned primarily at the tourist trade should be exempt from any provincial legislation governing store hours, Gordon Paul of the Niagara Resort and Tourist Association said Monday.

He told a public meeting under Ontario Justice Secretary George Kerr that legislation which did not exempt the tourist trade would have "a crippling effect on Niagara Falls which is the largest segment of the second largest industry (tourism) in the country."

Fox Rabid

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Mac Hyatt of nearby Norval will have to keep his family's six-year-old dog Pal penned in for six months to determine if it has rabies.

Mr. Hyatt said Pal killed a fox last week 10 yards from the house and will be quarantined in a barn until June. The fox was tested and proved rabid.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Will Stay in Toronto

OTTAWA (CP) — Most of the 170 Chilean refugees who arrived in Toronto Saturday have said they want to settle in Toronto.

An immigration department spokesman said Monday that of the 152 adults and 18 children who arrived on board an Armed Forces Boeing 707 from Santiago, 115 will settle in Toronto.

Turner Fearful Of New Boycotts

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner says the International Monetary Fund (IMF) must improve co-operation to head off "new-style protectionism"—the danger that supplying countries, like the Arab oil states, will withhold their resources from world markets.

Mr. Turner, leaving today for a Rome meeting of the IMF's committee of 20, told reporters Monday night he will press for a reorganization of the 126-country body to provide more frequent consultation in the face of continuing international economic troubles.

He said the energy problem and other fast-changing circumstances have brought other countries around to Canada's view that the monetary system should be changed by small steps, not by a major revamping of exchange-rate systems and IMF lending operations.

Because no country could say how high its oil bill will go in the coming months, none would commit itself to a rigid framework of exchange-rate adjustments.

The committee of 20 finance ministers, including Mr. Turner, has been assigned to work out a new way for trading states to exchange their currencies at tolerable values.

The task was prompted by the dollar crises of 1971 and 1973, when Washington insisted on a system that would not continue to hurt the value of its dollar.

Public Transportation Agency Is Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — A public transportation agency and new rail-bus services are among remedies suggested by a Canadian transport commission research group for the transportation ills of midwestern Ontario.

The two-volume research report, released by the transport department Monday, suggests that if public agency to co-ordinate or operate transportation might ensure that service comes before profit.

The report will provide material for federal-provincial-municipal discussions later this year. A tri-level conference on transportation in the region has been promised by Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

A survey of the transportation habits of area residents will be released later, probably in February.

The area covered by the report stretches from Toronto up to the Bruce peninsula encompassing large centres like Guelph, Stratford, Kitchener, and Owen Sound as well as many small towns.

Assent Is Given To Four Measures

OTTAWA (CP) — Royal assent was given to four pieces of legislation Monday, the first day before Parliament recessed until Feb. 26.

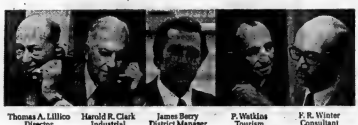
The Commons officially adjourned Friday, pending the royal assent, while the Senate continued to debate the controversial wiretapping bill. The division bells rang Monday only long enough for 56 MPs to gather in the Commons chamber and await the call to the Senate where Bora Laskin, newly-appointed Supreme Court of Canada chief justice, waited to sign the bills into law.

The bills, besides the wiretapping legislation, were the energy allocation bill, the oil export tax act, and the election expenses legislation. All had been debated at length in the Commons before being approved and the wiretapping bill actually went through the House twice.

The Senate amended the bill, but the Commons rejected the amendment.

This current session of Parliament is expected to end on Feb. 26—the day it resumes—and it will be followed immediately by a new session, and a throne speech outlining the government's latest legislation plans.

The government prefers to adjourn for a recess, rather than prorogue the session, because it is easier to recall the House if an emergency session is necessary.



The energy allocation bill gives the government broad power to cope with fuel shortages, anticipated mainly in Eastern Canada. It will lead to appointment of a special board which might, in emergency circumstances, impose wholesale-level or individual rationing measures.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said later in an interview the five members who will sit on the allocation board may be appointed this week.

Keep the Fun in Snowmobiling...Know and Obey These Cardinal Rules of

SNOWMOBILE SAFETY

Snowmobiling is Canada's newest fun-filled winter pastime. There are hazards, however, if snowmobiles are operated in an unsafe manner. The Canada Safety Council believes most accidents can be avoided if the operators of snow machines will follow a few simple rulyes of safety.

The businesses displayed on this page are concerned with snowmobile safety, and today present this page of Do's and Don'ts for snowmobile operators as a public service. They hope their efforts will help maintain snowmobiling as a safe form of winter recreation.

DON'T

- Never jump a snow bank before first finding out what may be on the other side. You may be jumping into the path of another snowmobile, onto a group of playing children, or into the middle of a highway.
- Snowmobiling brings many new winter freedoms. Damaging private property is not one of them. DON'T cut fences or trample shrubs. Get permission to use private property for snowmobiling.
- DON'T leave your key in the ignition. It's an invitation to theft and a danger to unsupervised children and adjacent property if your snowmobile is an electric-start model. The case of electric starting is simple, even for a child.
- Never operate a snowmobile at night without adequate lighting. You may collide with another snowmobile, person or fixed object. Make sure your snowmobile lighting is in top condition and carry spare bulbs in case of an emergency.

DON'T

- DON'T attempt to cross a river or lake without checking the thickness of the ice. Ask people acquainted with the area if you've never crossed before.
- DON'T use a railroad right-of-way. You can't hear a train coming above the noise of your own machine. When crossing tracks, shut off your machine so you can listen for approaching trains. Then cross at a 90-degree angle.
- DON'T be a show-off. And remember snowmobilers and skiers DON'T mix on the same slopes.
- DON'T panic if the throttle on your machine sticks. Check it before you start out. If it should become stuck, just turn off the key and let the machine come to a safe stop.

DON'T

If the back of your machine should become stuck in the deep snow, do not put your hands or feet near the track while it is driving in attempting to free your machine. Simply lift out the back end of your snowmobile and drive it out while kneeling with one leg on the seat and pushing off with your free leg. Or push the machine out by the handlebars while standing next to it and squeezing the throttle lightly.

DO

- DO obtain operating instructions.
- A DO position is sitting down with both feet inside the cab but not locked into the footboards.
- A DO for bumpy terrain is to place one knee on the seat for better balance.
- DO play safe with children aboard. Go more slowly with young passengers. And never let children snowmobile alone.
- DO use a tow bar when pulling a trailer. Rigid hitches prevent tailgate collisions on sudden stops.
- DO check your lights before night lake crossings at night and don't break new trails.
- DO make sure when driving that the snowmobile is properly secured on its trailer. Then protect it with a bright cover.
- DO travel with extreme caution in unknown areas. Watch ahead for obstacles and follow trails that have already been marked.

DON'T

DON'T tail-gate. Maintain a safe distance between your machine and the one in front of you. And here's trouble ... DON'T cut across another's right-of-way. If in doubt, throttle down or stop.

DO

Come to a complete stop before crossing any street or highway. Cross only at a 90-degree angle to the roadway, and remember that traffic alway has the right of way. Some provinces may require a driver's licence or have regulated on the age of an operator who can legally cross the roadway. Again, we suggest thorough knowledge of local regulations. If you are travelling with a companion it is always ad ded safety insurance to have one person watch for traffic while the other person crosses with the snowmobile.

Some Final Words . . .

1. Know your snowmobile. Keep it well-maintained. In thawing weather, clear the track of slush by lifting machine free of the ground and spinning track. Regular checks with your dealer are a good investment.
2. Another reminder: snowmobiling on ice can be hazardous. Never cross a lake or stream without first knowing the ice condition. Moving water thins the ice from below. Make sure it can support both you and your snowmobile.
3. On safari, always travel with others. Do not attempt a long trip that may be beyond your capacity. Always let others know your destination and expected arrival time. Carry emergency supplies: flares, snowshoes, first aid kit, a map, an axe, extra fuel, waterproof matches and rations. As in swimming safety, use the "buddy system."
4. Join your local snowmobile club. Learn everything you need to know from experts.
5. Liquor and snowmobiling are a poor mix. Leave the former alone.
6. The second biggest known cause of snowmobiling fatalities is collisions with cars, while collisions with other snowmobiles have produced many injuries. Caution common sense and courtesy can eliminate a majority of these accidents. Practice these three Cs.
7. The most common cause of snowmobiling injuries is unknown terrain. Following marked trails is the best way to avoid this problem.

Bring Your Own Bag?

Near Shortages Plague Grocery Stores

By SHARON AIRHART

Food shoppers may be taking a tip from European counterparts and carrying their own string bags if a mounting shortage of paper bags isn't alleviated.

Bob McGall, manager of Belleville's Miracle Food Mart says the store has enough paper bags "to keep us going about a month" but says that last week's order couldn't be filled by suppliers.

The store discontinued its "double bagging" service about three weeks ago.

Mr. McGall says the shortage is acute enough that the chain last week set up a committee of store managers to study alternatives to paper bags at the check-out counter.

To complicate the issue, doubled in the last three months, is the cost of paper bags. The bags cost 2¼ cents each, up from one cent.

Mr. McGall says suppliers won't commit themselves to delivery dates on shipments of paper bags.

"They say 'we'll get them there when we get them there'," he says.

"We might even go into polythylene bags in spite of the oil shortage," Mr. McGall said.

"When you have a problem you find a solution."

The shortage of paper bags isn't a local one.

Shoppers in the United States have been dealing with the problem since before Christmas. One large Eastern United States chain — Safeway — has been asking customers to bring their own bags to its 230 stores.

Another — Grand Union — is paying customers one cent for each "recycled" paper bag they bring back to their 54 stores.

At Amoboy's in Belleville, manager Tom Brownlee says a shortage is not being felt "as such" but adds that their supplier could not produce the store's regular printed paper bags.

"And the cost of paper has gone right out of sight," he adds: "We're watching our packing costs a lot more closely now."

The store had to purchase a heavier grade of bag, he said, so has ceased "double-bagging".

One reason for a shortage of less expensive paper bags, according to economists, is that producers are putting all their raw material into higher grade, more costly — and thus more profitable — paper products. Also U.S. imports of Canadian paper products have risen 60 per cent in a year.

While Dominion of Belleville and the local Simpson-Sears report no current problems smaller outlets of town markets are feeling the shortage more acutely.

Gordon Hamilton, who runs Hammond's Lucky Dollar store, says "I'm okay right now but I couldn't get any bags last week-end."

Carl Madden, of Foxboro Grocers, says that "We've always manage to have some on hand"but adds that if he orders 1,000 bags he gets 500.

Mr. Madden reports another shortage affecting the grocery business: foam trays used to display meat.

"We just can't get them," he says', adding that customers demand the attractive display of meat.

"We've trying to wrap everything we can in plastic bags, but people don't want to buy a steak that way."

Amoboy's Tom Brownlee reports the same shortage, adding that their supplier recerts a two-month backorder on the trays.

"And they cost more now, too."

Gordon Hamilton says he's had trouble getting plastic bags to sell in his store and increasingly finds there are items sporadically unavilable from grocery wholesalers.

Nearly all paper and plastic products are in relatively short supply, the grocers say.

Mrs. McGall says that currently Miracle Food Mart is not short of paper products — lotio paper and the like — offered for sale but he doesn't think it will last.

"I foresee a huge shortage."

Grocery Packaging Scarce

Paper bags and foam meat trays are two items local grocers are finding in short supply. Like most grocers Carl Madden still has limited supplies of both on hand, but non-delivery by wholesalers, aborting of orders and prices which have doubled in a few months, are plaguing grocers.

Successful Living

Have A Party To Get Acquainted

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: There are two boys in my class who always say Hi to me and act as if they like me, but that's as far as it goes. I'd like to get to know them socially.

My mother says that I can have a party for my birthday which happens to be on Valentine's day, so I am wondering if it would be all right to invite them, along with three other girls and two more boys I know.

If it would be all right, I'd like some ideas about what to do. Our livingroom is not very big for dancing.

Twelve Years Old.

Dear Twelve: Having a bash is the perfect way to get better acquainted - - a time when you are not really asking a date, but just arranging for a bunch to get together for fun.

You can dance some of the time, even in a little space. And if they are the type, you can plan some short, kooky games. Send in for my "Hearty Party For St., Valentine's Day", enclosing 15 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope and you won't lack for ideas or have any embarrassing silences.

Here's an idea: get your classmates to be responsible for the games — the ones you pick from my sheet. This will get them really involved and you'll have a ball. (This leaflet of games, decorations and lunch ideas is available for other readers too - - same price, same stamped envelope.)

Dear Doris: I read your article on alibis for smoking. As an organization greatly concerned with its ill effects we are promoting, in January, National Education Week on Smoking. This proposed program is slanted to the effect that non-smokers have rights too.

Our organization is going into all our schools showing a film on smoking and having discussion groups. Our objective is to show students what can happen if they smoke; hopefully they will not start.

We also have many pamphlets available.

Program Director, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, Kingston, Ont.

Dear Director: Good for you! I have heard of a number of fine campaigns against the noxious weed. The best way to stop the habit is not to get started!

I'll be directing readers to you for pamphlets, more facts in them speak for themselves; and the ideas about quitting would sell me. One of them says: "Even one non-smokin day is a break for your heart and lungs."

We want to keep our young people fit!

Ann Landers

Young Man Thrills 'Old Lady'

Dear Ann Landers: I have read with amusement the letters in your column from women who seem to be in perpetual search for sexual excitement. At 75 I'm an old lady who is past 60—it's all in the head.

Recently I was involved in a minor accident. While the tow truck driver, a handsome young man in his 20s, was writing out the claim, I felt a sudden surge of passion. (I had hysterectomy 10 years ago). Had I been 30 years younger I'm sure I'd have made a pass at the young man. So you see, Ann, where sex is concerned, there's a very thin line between reality and fantasy.—Gutted But Not Dead

Dear Not Dead: There's a great deal of fantasy connected with sexual desire; in fact, just about all of it! This doesn't mean you were imagining those feelings. A woman at her 60s can be far from sexually dead—"gutted" or not—and your experience proved it!

Dear Ann Landers: Why do people have such dirty minds? I refer to that mealy-mouthed gushy slob who voiced that a certain girl in the office always wears the same outfit on Thursday that she wore on Wednesday. The cat observed: "Her dress is usually pretty wrinkled—and her hair is a mess." She concluded that the girl has a steady arrangement and doesn't sleep home on Wednesday night.

That letter made me furious because last Wednesday night I went directly from work to a friend's house following a frisky goose call. Her husband is overseas and her labor pains had started. My poor kid has no relatives in town and I am her only close friend. When I arrived, the taxi had already been called to take her to the hospital. She was waiting for me with instructions on what to do for the two pre-schoolers.

Her two-year-old had a terrible cold. I slept on the couch and held that child in my arms all night. The following morning the woman next door took the kids and I went to work looking like I had lost a wrestling match with two gorillas.

Sorry I couldn't have turned up looking fresh as a daisy in order to protect my reputation, but these are the facts, ma'am.—Nuts To The Gossips

Dear N.T.G.: Let's hear it for a Good Samaritan with wrinkled clothes and dragged-up hair. Thanks for writing!

Dear Ann Landers: You advised mothers to teach their daughters to sew, cook, fix hems and make beds. You then went on to suggest that fathers teach their sons to be "fixers" of whatever might break in the house.

Where have you been these last 15 years, Ann? Don't you know that his and her duties are the same? The best men should know how to sew and cook and make beds and women should be able to fix faucets, repair appliances, change tires and repair whatever breaks.

Assigning certain jobs to certain sexes is unfair, unpleasant and impractical. We share the work in our house. But the much easier it would be for both of us if we had learned in school, home economics and woodshop had been compulsory subjects for all kids and girls as well.

Folk Art Dying?

TORONTO (CP) — Folk art has already disappeared in Europe, and has not long to live elsewhere, says Erica Billeter. She says it is being replaced by the self-conscious production of crafts by people who work as artists.

"Europe has nothing left in folk art, we're finished. We're in the industrial age, in the plastic culture."

Dr. Billeter is curator of the Museum Bellerive, which she describes as an applied arts museum in Zurich, Switzerland. She was in Canada as part of her work as one of three judges choosing exhibits for the World Crafts Council display. It will open at the Ontario Science Centre in June and will include 600 craft items from most of the council's 75 member nations.

She said she believes folk art is changing in developing countries, as life patterns change, and that it will have disappeared completely in 10 or 20 years.

"Even in the underdeveloped countries, a lot of folk art is done today only for selling to tourists. When a craftsman sees that he can sell his work, he goes into production, and his work changes.

"We have no different criteria for judging the two kinds of work. Not every work done by hand is good work, some primitive work can be very bad."

He said the jurors have looked for quality, for simplicity of form and for an aura of what she described as soul or magic, a feeling for the object.

She said she regrets the loss of true folk art, but is excited by some of the new trends.

"It's not necessary to make our own pots by hand, industry does it perfectly well.

"But we have this need in our culture, it is in man to work with his hands. Two hundred years ago he made these things for use, now the creativity is free to do other things.

"For me the most marvellous event in the last 10 years is that materials that were for functional art now are for decorative art.

"We feel that perhaps in the industrial" countries we were losing ourselves in the technical world. This revolution in applied arts is a reaction against that.

Collects Brass Rubbings

It's a Hobby

On Bended Knees In British Church

OTTAWA (CP) — Janet Shea spent a lot of time last winter on her hands and knees in British churches pursuing her hobby of brass-rubbing.

A brass-rubber transfers impressions onto paper from the metal plates used in Europe for centuries as memorials to the dead.

The plates, called monumental brasses, contain an engraving of the deceased, giving some indication of his or her occupation. They are usually not brass but an alloy of several metals.

Brass rubbing isn't easy, says Mrs. Shea. Most memorials are found on the floors of churches, marking tombs. "It's to discuss work because to get a good impression you have to rub very hard."

A few brasses are attached to church walls. Mrs. Shea located a memorial to St. Thomas of Becket on a bell tower 40 feet off the ground.

"The story has it that this one survived the vandalism after Henry VIII's break with the church because the king's men didn't have a ladder long enough to reach it," she said.

"They were mainly made for comfortable middle-class people. You won't find any kings, only a few bishops and no poor people."

The 4,000 memorials to be found in England date back to the 13th century. The custom died out by the early 18th century.

Mrs. Shea says brass-rubbing has become a popular hobby with tourists. It is almost impossible to go into a church for the purpose of brass-rubbing without an appointment.

"There is usually a fee which can range from 50 cents to $1. And if you're planning to sell your rubbing there's an additional fee."

Mrs. Shea, a research assistant in Carleton University's sociology department, started doing brass rubbings at Christmas presents. Now I'm hoping to recoup my expenses by selling them."

In addition to the fees, brass-rubbers must buy special crayons and papers.

"It's interesting to study changes in costume through the years and centuries," Mrs. Shea says, "and rubbings must have been a great help to historians.

Mary of the Royal May Go

TORONTO (CP) — Laura Sabia, chairman of the Ontario Advisory Council of the Status of Women, and Friday officials of the Royal Bank of Canada agree that the bank has discriminated against women.

She made the comment in a telephone interview from Montreal following a 90-minute meeting with bank president W. E. McLaughlin.

"They admitted there has been discrimination and I think that's the beginning of wisdom," she said.

It was their second meeting in two days. Mrs. Sabia attended the bank's annual shareholders meeting Thursday and certificated the image the bank projects of women, such as the teller Mary in its television advertising.

She said she was told Friday that "they're going to take that idiot (advertisement) . . . off the air." A career booklet perpetuating the stereotype idea that women always are tellers no longer is being distributed, she said.

During the last year the bank has been revising employee's injunction, pension and other benefits in an effort to put all employees on the same footing, regardless of sex, she said she was told.

"It seems they're moving toward an equalization in this field at last," she added.

Bank officials also agreed that some bank managers discriminate against women when giving loans, she said.

Mrs. Sabia offered as an example a woman who earned $10,000 and had a disabled husband unable to work.

She said she was told if this woman applied for a loan, the bank would have to consider whether she was of child-bearing age, because if she became pregnant, how was the bank going to get its money back?

To show the bank was upgrading the position of women, Mrs. Sabia said she was told by Mr. McLaughlin that the bank has 23 women managers, 30 women department managers, 633 women assistant bank managers and 1,487 women accountants.

'Half Adults Sexually Inadequate'

CALGARY (CP) — Up to 50 per cent of all adults may suffer from some form of sexual inadequacy, says Dr. Harry Brody, director of a sexual counselling clinic at University of Calgary medical school.

But the growing number of patients visiting doctors with sexual problems does not conclusively suggest that the capacity to make love is deteriorating, he said in an interview—interrupted twice when he had to deliver babies.

Dr. Brody, who worked with Masters and Johnson, the American specialists in the field of human sexual behavior, said increased awareness of sexual problems and changing social conditions are encouraging more people to seek medical help for sexual inadequacy.

The first thing to do toward a happier sex life was to admit you had a problem—if there was one.

There is nothing to be ashamed of and something can be done about it most of the time, said Dr. Brody, head of obstetrics and gynecology at Foothills Hospital and a professor at the medical school.

The Calgary clinic, established 18 months ago, was the first treatment-oriented sex clinic in Canada and was the first to use computers to compile patient case histories.

Dr. Brody said the use of computers — and Alberta's health care insurance program made treatment of sexual inadequacy available to everybody seeking it. In the United States and many other countries, only the rich could afford it.

A 98-item questionnaire, filled out by the patient, because a thirty-detailed case history in a matter of seconds through the computer. This freed the doctor and reduced the cost significantly. Especially important was the doctor's time. Because there was "a shocking shortage of trained therapists in this field."

Research at Dr. Brody's clinic shows a 75-per-cent success rate for all patients treated for various forms of sexual inadequacy, including 40 per cent considered completely cured.

University of Calgary offers two courses on human sexuality, one for medical students and one for students of social work, using some of the resources of the clinic on a confidential basis.

"We have to make future doctors comfortable to talk about sex. Too many completely doctors and others, lack adequate training, do not provide proper counselling and fail to do follow-up work after treatment."

Dr. Brody emphasized that sexual complaint is rarely a one-person problem. Most of the problems were psychological, rather than physical, and could be remedied by behavioral changes.

Most of the patients at the clinic were married couples, but there were others, including homosexuals and people who get a kick out of exhibiting in public.

Sex could take all forms, and "as long as it is between two consenting adults and both are happy with it" it did not present a medical problem.

Among couples, the woman most often took the initiative in seeking medical help because "women feel less threatened than men in admitting sexual problems."

Dr. Brody said that except for those with permanently damaged organs, all patients have hope in seeking treatment. Because of this belief, he tells patients who fail to show improvement after treatment that "we (the clinic staff) have failed to treat you but that doesn't mean your case is hopeless."

The treatment pattern calls for a case history to be taken, followed by a physical examination. A therapist then defines the problems and discusses with the patient and his or her partner their attitudes toward sex. A behavioral modification program is then mapped out, with evaluation usually after three months of treatment. A three-month repeat treatment period follows if necessary.

Preserving Cultural Heritage Aim of New Foundation

TORONTO (CP) — If you are proud of your cultural heritage and want to do something to present it to others or preserve it in its Canadian setting, the Carling Community Arts Foundation might be interested in helping.

Mario McCormick says: "As long as there is a value to the community, we will consider it. We will not sponsor conferences or conventions but we might help a Winnipeg dance group that wants to go to a festival in Halifax."

Mrs. McCormick is general manager of the foundation, recently set up by Carling O'Keefe.

"We don't give money for capital ventures such as a community centre, but we might fund efforts to raise the money."

A brochure on the foundation says its policy is "to actively support and encourage and appreciation and development of Canada's multi-cultural traditions and to foster deeper understanding and pride in our cultural heritage."

Mrs. McCormick said there are other sources of funds, such as the Canada Council grants, but the foundation might be available to assist who might hesitate to apply to the government.

The judges who appraise each application have been chosen in part because of their work with ethnic groups. One is Ida Scotti, judge in the Canadian Citizenship Court and former administrator of the Italian Immigrant Aid Society in Toronto. Janina Kaknevicius is business manager of a Toronto Lithuanian weekly newspaper. Elva Joba is a businesswoman associated with cultural activities and wife of the mayor of Winnipeg.

They will meet once a month to assess projects and appraise their budgets. They can decide to meet an entire bill, pay travel expenses or supply costume money or teaching materials for a language course.

Anne Murray Changing Image

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeature Writer

Anne Murray is in the process of changing from a girl next-door and singer of country and middle-of-the-road songs to something a little more hip.

The Canadian singer would like to play to the kind of college audiences that Rita Coolidge, Jefferson does and sing that kind of modern country, with freedom to mix in other styles.

The present impression listeners have of her was created by two years with Glen Campbell on TV, some duet personal appearances and a duet album with him.

"Last summer Glen asked me to go out on the road with him," she said. "I explained I can only ride on his coat-tails so long. I have to do my own thing.

"I have my own band. We have to go out and do it, play clubs that are semi-hip, colleges and small halls that seat no more than 3,000 so you can get in a good sound system and people get their money's worth."

There have been some mistakes.

"I played Greensboro, N.C., in a place that seated 17,000. They told me it would be 6,000. Only 1,700 showed up. I found out later there was a 2,500-seat auditorium right next door which would have been perfect. That's the kind of thing you go through.

"The guys in the band have stuck with me three years. The money hasn't been great. There are seven guys. They have faith that one day it is really going to happen if we continue not to compromise ourselves. Even if it doesn't, we are having a good time now, living day by day and counting our blessings."

Miss Murray has one gold singles, Snowbird. The single of Danny's Song sold 850,000.

"The important thing is to get into the top 10, which that was, I don't need any more gold records. I've got one. Some people want to line their walls with them. Who needs that?"

DENIES RUMOR

There was talk when Snowbird came out that it was a drug song.

"With the image I'm trying to portray, maybe I should say that it is. But I know it is not a drug song.

"Gene MacLellan was walking along a beach on Prince Edward Island in late fall. He saw seagulls—snow buntings, round white birds—on the beach.

"It conjured up a whole image to him. Gene had been in love a few times and thrown over. That is what the song is all about."

The P.E.I. song-writer came up with another hit, Put Your Hand in the Hand.

"It was the first to record it. It was supposed to be my follow-up to Snowbird. But the powers that be didn't think it sounded like me. They had no idea what I sounded like. We wanted it to be the next week. They didn't. Another mistake.

Born in Springhill, N.S., Miss Murray taught physical education for a year on Cape Breton Island.

"The summer of 1966, I auditioned for a TV show out of Halifax, a network show, a summer replacement. I had to make some money to buy a car. I sang mainly in the chorus. It had started in the late 1950s as a sing-along show.

"By the time I got to it, it was into the folk rock thing, country too, variety with group singing. I got to do one solo and one duet. They were calling me to come over to Halifax and do TV shows.

"The second year I had to make a decision whether to go back to Acadia or give show business a try. They had a TV show I could do all winter.

"Show business seemed very insecure; teaching, you get your cheque every two weeks. I decided to give myself a year.

"I got a little bored that year; the show was just horrible. The next summer I did the replacement show again. In the fall I decided to get out and learn something about clubs and concerts on the East Coast of Canada.

"I got packed houses; people knew I was a Maritimer. I recorded an album on budget, Canadian Talent in 1968. It sold pretty well in the Maritime provinces."

Recognition came gradually.

"I started getting the odd call from Toronto to do national TV shows and I decided to find a record company with an association in the United States.

"Brian Ahern, the original musical director of the summer TV show, had starved for two years in Toronto and tried to become a record producer. He and I went around to all the record companies.

"He told me to remember I was the best singer in the world and he was the best producer, so we weren't going to be taken advantage of. They all said they'd give us $1,000 and have complete charge of production.

"We walked into Capitol and by that time things were really getting heavy. We almost believed we were as good as we said. Paul While there told us, anything we want.

"We did the Snowbird album. It cost $18,000. When they saw how well they weren't happy but within eight months they were very happy."

She still lives in Toronto although her first manager wanted her to move to Los Angeles.

"I'm sure I'd be more of a success than I am because I'd be in the thick of things. But I'm not very much of a show business person. I refused to move and I will always refuse, I think."

She parted amicably from that manager and now has Shep Gordon, who also manages Alice Cooper.

"The first year after Snowbird I was taking care of booking, making plane and hotel reservations for the musicians and myself, keeping accounts, doing everything. I kind of enjoy business but when I walked out on a stage I was no good for anything."

So she hired Leonard Rambeau, who had organized the first college concert she had done, as her road manager and now he is general manager of the company which takes care of all business details.

Miss Murray loves to swim and her idea of an ideal vacation is on a Maritime shore, swimming, running and throwing a Frisbee.

She is unmarried. "I haven't had enough time to get that kind of thing together. Trying to get the rest of it together is taking enough of my time—and it's taking long enough."

Hope Sick of Housewife Roll

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hope Lange has just finished a TV movie in which she plays a housewife who leaves her husband and children.

It's the second time she has gone through that role. She also walked out as housewife and mother on The New Dick Van Dyke Show.

It was her remark on leaving the CBS series, after 18 years on The Dick Van Dyke Show to pour coffee, that inspired Deanne Bartley to cast her in the movie role. Miss Bartley is the vice-president in charge of the ABC Movie of the Week.

The movie, I Love You, Goodbye, will be shown on ABC, probably in February.

"She just got fed up," Miss Lange said, referring to the movie housewife. "She's a woman who got married very early and got so involved in playing wife and mother that she never had time to find out who she was or what she wanted.

"I think a lot of women who may not actually walk out do consider it at one time. To shake things up and say I have needs, too. I can understand that from the standpoint of being a woman."

Miss Lange served notice several months ago that she would not agree to a fourth season with the Van Dyke series.

Besides the limitation of her role to a sympathetic housewife, she said she is miffed over CBS' refusal to air a segment of the series.

"The segment in question has Dick's daughter enter her parents' bedroom and find them making love. Carl Reiner, the producer, defended the segment as being tastefully handled and said he would not produce the show again unless the show is aired. CBS has said it would not show it because it isn't in the "image" of Dick Van Dyke.

"They won't even air the best show he did all season," Miss Lange said. "To hell with it. That's not the reason I'm leaving, but it irks me very much."

She said: "I'm not obligated to them. I only signed for three seasons. But if they won't let us grow up, why do the same things over again?

"I'm happy married couple can't make it together have three children. Was that by immaculate conception? It distasteful that a couple is still in love after 18 years? Some of the commercials are more provocative."

Showbiz Shorts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC-TV says it has signed Sophia Loren to star in a 15-million production of Noel Coward's Brief Encounter to be shown next season.

It will be the first dramatic appearance of the Academy Award-winning actress' American TV. The program will be produced in England.

Miss Loren, who won an Oscar as best actress for Two Women in 1961, will play the part of a woman who becomes involved with a doctor during a brief meeting at a London railway station in the Second World War.

The film of Brief Encounter was released in 1945 with Celia Johnson and Trevor Howard.

LONDON (AP) — Lorna Luft, 19, made a stunning debut at London's Talk of the Town night spot Monday on the same stage where her mother, Judy Garland, gave her last performance five years ago.

Lorna's half-sister, Liza Minelli, made her London debut there in 1966.

The packed audience gave Lorna round after round of thunderous applause at the end of her hour-long act.

In the audience was her father, Sid Luft, 47, Judy Garland's third husband.

Imported Actors Draw Union Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Dan MacIver Donald, chairman of the Actors' Equity Association, said Monday the association will try to ban most of the United States stage performers imported by Canadian theatres.

Mr. MacDonald said in an interview that after April 1 the association will not allow its members to work with imported foreign performers unless they are previously approved by the association.

The Manitoba Theatre Centre was singled out by Mr. MacDonald as one of the worst importers of foreign talent. It cited one case in which nine of the 11 performers in Holoson's Choice, a British play, were American.

"Certain theatres will continually go to the country to look for actors before they look in Canada," he said.

"We've always said we don't want barriers or borders, but it is not working. So we're going to seek actors in Canada first, because it's supposed to be Canadian theatre."

Ballet Director Stepping Down

TORONTO (CP) — Celia Franca has decided to step down as artistic director of the National Ballet of Canada, the company she founded 22 years ago and built into an international reputation.

The British-born Miss Franca, 52, will remain with the company but will be succeeded as artistic director on July 1 by David Hiber, who has been co-artistic director since 1953, Ian McLeod, president of the National Ballet board, announced Friday.

Mr. McLeod said Miss Franca will remain as a teacher and coach of the company's dancers and may do some in-house choreography.

"The decision was entirely her own and was not prompted by any conflicts or problems," he said.

Mr. Haber, 43, a native of Montreal, was program director of the National Arts Centre in Ottawa for several years before joining the National Ballet in July, 1973.

He also was program director at Expo '67 in Montreal and was connected with the National Ballet as a stage manager about 21 years ago. He managed the company's European tour in 1972.

Mr. McLeod told a news conference that Mr. Haber and Gerry Eldred, the company's general manager, will assume equal responsibility for the company's 1974 fall tour of Eastern Canada, its Ontario engagements and its proposed European tour in 1975.

Miss Franca, who began studying ballet at the age of 11, was asked by the National Ballet Guild to organize a company and by November, 1951, it gave its first public performance in Toronto.

Jobless Insurance Supported

Hastings county trustees answered the Biblical question of "Who is thy brother's keeper" Monday night with a resounding vote in favor of unemployment insurance.

As Donald Williams, past board chairman, expressed it: "I have come around to the position that those of us lucky enough to have jobs should support those who have haven't."

The question was: a resolution of the Lambton county (Sarnia) board of education. It held that a board of education's share of unemployment insurance was excessive and had nothing to do with education.

The Lambton board claimed that it will pay $1,800 to unemployment insurance this year for its teachers, a sum that will do nothing to improve education.

It asked other boards in the province to oppose the increase in unemployment insurance.

Founding board chairman, James Clarke, said the Hastings board could not isolate one part of the government's tax structure for criticism.

Federal and provincial income taxes take a large share of board income, he indicated.

In 1973 the board paid its share of unemployment insurance to the tune of $65,000 said business administrator Kenneth Wormald. In 1974 the total would be $175,000, an increase of $60,000.

The board turned down the Lambton county resolution.

Music Festival Deadline Set

Deadline for entries in the Kingston Music Club's festival this year is Jan. 21.

The festival will take place March 4 to 9 if week's grace will be given latecomers, but the deadline will be set with a $5 penalty. All entries will be refused after Jan. 28. Entry forms are available from Mrs. Frank Corbett at 134 Park St. in Kingston.

Tenant Available For Sidney Arena

Tom O'Shanter Hockey School director, Larry Hughes, has indicated an interest in a proposed arena-ice surface recently under investigation by a special committee appointed by Sidney township council in November.

Committee chairman Fred Hosking told council Monday. The hockey school is interested in renting any proposed ice surface in conjunction with present facilities in use at Trenton Community Gardens.

In making that report, Mr. Hosking said the hockey school director would like to meet with council to discuss the project.

The school, in its third year in the Quinte area, would require the ice surface for the summer use, as well as leisure facilities for some 90 boys, Mr. Hosking told council.

"It wouldn't be a matter of getting out of Trenton," said Mr. Hughes this morning. "We would rent the new arena in addition to the one we're using. This way, we would have less boys on the ice at one time but over-all, more people."

Mr. Hughes explained the summer hockey school is limited with the single ice surface. "We're perfectly happy in Trenton, but they know we need more ice," he concluded.

The special committee was formed to investigate the feasibility of constructing an arena in Sidney after a request to council by a group of township residents last year.

Currently, the committee is gauging public response to the idea as well as looking for ways to underwrite the operating expenses of the community ice surface.

"We're working on the premise that it could pay for itself," Mr. Hosking said yesterday. The five-man committee will bring some recommendations to council once its study is complete.

Besides Mr. Hosking said it might recommend hiring a recreation director or committee, or the establishment of a minor hockey system in Sidney.

Today, the committee and township councilor will visit Kingston township's arena, Centre '70, to investigate its operation.

Executive Reinstated

Mac Smith, centre, was returned last night for his second term as chairman of Hastings county board of education. At right is Ralph Weaver of Trenton, returned to office as vice-chairman. At left is director of education Eric Runacres, who presided at the election of the officials.

North Sidney Street Speeding Is Common

Complaints by Sidney Street residents that their street is being used as a speedway by area motorists have to some extent been substantiated as result of a police speed check in early December.

The four-hour check showed that 36 per cent of the cars using the artery were exceeding the legal 30-miles-an-hour speed limit.

The one-hour police checks taken at different times of the day between Dec. 6 and Dec. 11, showed that of 4,185 vehicles clocked more than 1,460, were travelling above 30 miles an hour with 142 travelling at over 35 miles an hour.

During adverse road conditions on Dec. 6, however, only three per cent of the vehicles were exceeding 35 miles an hour.

The report tabled at Monday's traffic and light committee meeting by Police Chief D. T. Crosbie said that while the main purpose of the checks were a speed study, at the same time 29 persons had been charged with speeding.

As a result of the study, a high level of enforcement is being carried out on the street.

The police chief in his report said it was quite apparent that this portion of Sidney Street (between West College Street and the northern city limits) was being used as an arterial roadway and, based on projected expansion in the area, should be widened to four lanes.

The report recommended that the sidewalk planned for the west side of Sidney Street be constructed as soon as possible and that a sidewalk be included for the east side of the street when the artery is widened to four lanes.

When the west side sidewalk is constructed it was recommended that additional studies be taken and additional school crossing guards be provided.

The committee recommended the report be received and adopted.

District Farmers Will Meet Here

Farmers from the four Quinte district counties will convene in Belleville this week for their annual farm conference scheduled for Jan. 16-18 at Club Canara.

The conference, sponsored by the soil and crop improvement associations, milk committees and beef improvement associations from Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland will feature talks by specialists in the above fields, with each day's session to end with a discussion period. All sessions get under way at 10 a.m. and conclude about 3.30.

Wednesday, Jan. 16, is Dairy Day when proper feeding of dairy animals, and the handling of manure will be discussed.

Thursday the topic will swing to beef breeds, their feeding and handling, while on Friday the emphasis will be on crops.

One of the topics of discussion on the final day of the conference will be commercial fertilizer and whether or not the claimed shortage is fact or fancy.

Licences Up

Owners of male dogs in Sidney township will be paying a little more in 1974 to keep man's best friend around protecting their homes, barns and farms.

After receiving a year-end report from township dog control officer, Don Tucker Monday, council passed a motion instructing township clerk Hugh Lyons to prepare a bylaw boosting the male dog licence from $2. to $3. Council will pass the bylaw later this month.

All other licences will remain the same — for each addition male, $6., the first female, $6., each additional bitch, $8.

Cheques Phonies

First there were the counterfeit $50 and $100 bills. Now, police in eastern Ontario seem to be plagued by the appearance of bogus travellers' cheques.

Last weekend, the Kingston police department warned merchants in their area to be on the lookout for travellers' cheques drawn on a non-existent company, Pan American Travellers cheques.

The company's cheques, apparently Mexican in origin, have been passed in Eastern Ontario recently.

Belleville's Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reports that his department has not yet received any complaints or inquiries about the cheques. He does, however, recommend that area merchants be on the lookout for them.

Sidewalks Recommended

All new housing subdivisions in Belleville should have sidewalks on at least one side of the street.

That is the recommendation of the city council subdividers' liaison committee which has made the above recommendation to council.

The city traffic committee and local police some months ago took the stand, that sidewalks should be a requirement for all subdivisions but in actual fact the regulation has been that walks be constructed as required.

The subdividers' liaison committee met at city hall Monday with Alderman Joe Cox as chairman and recommended that walks on one side of the street be a requirement in all standard subdividers' agreements.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Tuesday:

Monday, Jan. 14, 2.37 p.m. gas fire, ignited by welding torch at Seaborne Enterprises, Haig Rd., no damage.

Canada in Lahr

Belleville exchange students were among the first to meet Canadian country and western singing stars Tommy Hunter and Shirley Eckhard when they visited Canadian Forces personnel based in Germany during the holidays. (L to r.) Jennifer Hamilton, Sue Rose, Jim Collum, Linda Reilley, Mike Neville, Delaine Brown, all of Belleville are in Lahr on exchange with Lahr students now in Belleville for a year of high school studies.

Inaugural Address

Board-staff Relations Priority for This Year

Mac Smith, long-time school trustee, past president of the provincial trustees' association and last year's chairman of the Hastings county board of education, was last night returned as chairman of the public board for a second year.

Ralph Weaver of Trenton, 1973 vice-chairman, was also returned to office.

"We in Hastings county have not been the types to look in the rearview mirror — we have tried always to look ahead," said Mr. Smith in his remarks at the inaugural meeting of the board.

Three areas will require board attention in the coming year, he said. They are board-teacher relations, budget and the role of the trustee.

Trustees and teachers have worked hard in the past, to build a relationship of openness and respect, said Mr. Smith. But with declining enrolments, budget ceilings, rising public expectations, and declining social concerns or values, the board will be hard pressed to maintain the relationships that will achieve maximum production.

"I would ask the trustees, the teachers and the public to seek accurate information before making judgements; that judgements be calmly presented and that common sense prevail," said Mr. Smith. He urged that "we retain an ability faith in the worthiness of people."

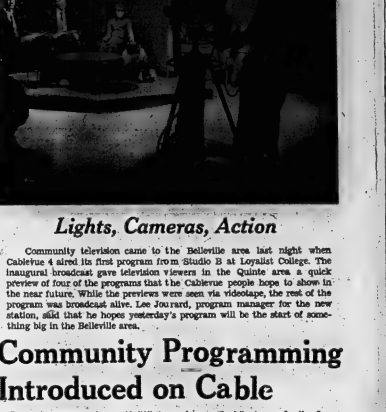
This year will present difficult budget decisions, he said. The board must give its staffs a fair settlement, despite spending restraints.

"Fortunately we have always balanced our budget. We have never had to dismiss any teachers because of financial difficulties.

Teachers' federations, principals and trustees have been asked to prepare budget priorities to help determine the 1974 budget.

"Possibly this open sharing of budget information will produce something that will keep the program in balance," said the chairman.

Mr. Smith noted that the role of the trustee in education is changing. Because most members of the county board have had at least five years' continuous experience as trustees "we are probably able to view this topic very objectively". he said. Trustees in Hastines county are now dealing with the "real issues" of education, curriculum and instruction."



Later, Mr. Smith cited Hastings county's record in board-teacher relations and said "we have a settling day record in the province."

"We can play a leadership role among other boards in this area, he said of Hastings county trustees.

Among the achievements of the past county, Mr. Smith were: the response of principals and staff to local educational reforms; the support of the people of the county who gave their voluntary services to school activities; respect and honesty in salary bargaining; the growth of pupil performance in the classroom, the result of professional development programs; the excellent work of support personnel, although the numbers have steadily declined over the years, and the role of community agencies such as the Moira Conservation Authority, police and council in contributing to education.

Finally, Mr. Smith noted his personal pleasure in the opening of the educational centre (formerly Queen Alexandra School) next spring.

"Not only am I pleased that we will decrease our day-to-day costs of operating our administration, but that we will now have our staff under one roof, thereby enabling them to function far more efficiently and effectively," he said.

Lights, Cameras, Action

Community television came to the Belleville area last night when Cablevue 4 carried its first program from Studio B at Loyalist College. The inaugural broadcast gave television viewers in the Quinte area a quick preview of four of the programs that the Cablevue people hope to show in the near future. While the previews were seen via videotape, the rest of the program was broadcast alive. Lee Jouard, program manager for the new station, said that he hopes yesterday's program will be the start of something big in the Belleville area.

Community Programming Introduced on Cable

Community programming finally cast its shadowy image across television screens throughout the Quinte area last night.

Cablevue 4, Belleville's new community television station, aired its inaugural broadcast live from a small television studio deep in the basement of Loyalist College at 8 p.m. yesterday.

With an audience of 17 invited guests and a production staff of 22 the Cablevue company previewed four of its pretaped programs and introduced Quinte-area viewers to the potentials of community television.

In his opening remarks, Lee Jouard, program manager at the new station, told the audience that involvement and community development were the basis of community programming.

"In Cable TV involvement is the name of the game" he said. "All the people you will see and hear on camera and behind the scenes are local volunteers. The only previous training for our technical personnel was a short course in TV programming at the college last fall. Because community programming is a community affair, we invite you viewers at home to tell us what you would like to see in the future. Our program output is dependent upon the community's input and our success is dependent upon your support."

The community programming idea, while new to the Belleville district, has been successfully received in other parts of the country. Through the medium of cable television, viewers are able to produce and watch programs of their own making on topics that they choose themselves.

Last night's broadcast, for instance, featured two local folk singers, Jennifer Jaynes and Martin Brain, a young girl and her dog, Bobbi Ann Peaden and Treena, and touched on topics of interest to local viewers.

The programs previewed in the inaugural broadcast dealt with such topics as: the development of children who have learning disabilities, the history of Hastings County, the activities of the Belleville and District Kennel Club, and the development of urban planning in the Belleville area.

The new community programming station is on the air four days a week, Monday through Thursday, at the cable TV channel 4 slot. Original programs will be broadcast on Mondays and Wednesdays, while Monday's programming will be repeated on Tuesday night and Wednesday's programs will be re-run on Thursday.

Car Spins, Man Killed

An Odessa man was killed in a two-car crash on Highway 2, just east of Shannonville, last night.

Allan Wayne Dillenback, 22, of RR 1 Odessa, was killed when his car went out of control on an icy section of the highway and was struck broadside by a van driven by Emile Masse, 62, of RR 3 Belleville.

Ontario Provincial Police at the Belleville detachment said that the Dillenback vehicle, which was eastbound on Highway 2, was a complete write-off.

Emile Masse received minor injuries but was not treated at hospital.

The accident occurred at 7.10 p.m.

Mainlining It

Belleville Utilities crews worked for more than four hours last night to restore water to homes along MacDonald Gardens, between Hastings Drive and Edward Street. The crews, called out at 4:30 p.m. after a water main burst in front of 100 MacDonald Gardens, had to replace a section of pipe that had been cracked by the shifting of the earth's surface in the area.

NHL and WHA Moving Toward a Settlement

NEW YORK (CP) — Long-distance lines buzzed with legal talk today as lawyers and owners of the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association viewed toward a peaceful settlement of a bitter war.

The feud could end in a few days.

The owners were under a court deadline to settle their differences, and there were rapid developments.

Lawyers for both sides, and WHA trustees, met secretly in Washington during the weekend to hammer out a plan for peace.

The WHA gave the outline of its plan to the NHL, and it included an end to all litigation between the leagues. The WHA would resign from the NHL, more than $1 million it spent for legal fees in bringing more than $460 million in lawsuits against the NHL.

Under the plan, the WHA would be assured of a place in the big time, and even get some NHL co-operation.

"It did not call for any merger. Although there was some co-operation that it might happen.

Now, the pressure is on NHL owners to accept the plan, or at least some form of it, or do battle in the courts.

"The powerful NHL will agree to virtually every demand by the WHA," the New York Times said it has learned from "an unimpeachable source."

The source said these were the major areas of agreement between the leagues in principle:

—At least 15 exhibition games will be staged between NHL and WHA teams next September;

—The WHA will drop its anti-trust actions against the NHL and will receive about $1.5 million to cover its legal costs up to now;

—Each league will recognize the other's contracts and permit inter-league trading of players who are waived out of their leagues.

"It takes a great load off everybody's mind and gets rid of a pile of paper," the source said.

A merger or possible common draft is impossible, under current United States laws, the source said. There will be no merger between the leagues."

Don Reagan, general counsel and secretary of the WHA, said NHL and WHA lawyers were aiming for an out-of-court settlement in time to meet a Friday court deadline.

In a telephone interview Monday from Los Angeles, Reagan said the deadline was set late last December by Judge Leon Higginbotham of the U.S. district court in Philadelphia.

All the pending lawsuits between the leagues—about a dozen—were transferred to Philadelphia from various areas.

Judge Higginbotham, in earlier rulings, threw out the reserves clause as it existed in an old NHL contracts, allowing the players to sign contracts with the WHA.

If an out-of-court settlement is reached, Judge Higginbotham is prepared to call a trial March 18.

In Montreal, Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, confirmed that the secret Washington meeting had been held, but said no NHL trustees were involved.

The Vancouver Sun said Bill Hicke would be dropped and the WHA would not challenge the NHL's new player contract with the one-year option clause. The Sun placed the figure of the WHA's legal costs at $1.6 million.

"There was no talk of a common draft or league merger because anti-trust action by the NHL owners," Reagan would certainly follow," the Sun said.

Bill Chiarg, Alan Eagleson, executive director of the players' association, did not see that way.

"This is another step towards the settlement we are committed to fight."

Chiarg said he thinks Eagleson "would have a pretty weak case."

New York, an NHL source said the story in the Sun "subtantially represents the terms of an offer approved by the WHA trustees for submission to the National Hockey League."

Campbell has received it, the source said, and it "is expected that the matter may be resolved within a week."

Reagan said:

"There's a whole lot of things still to be worked out. A lot of owners to be consulted. It's not done yet.

"We have 19 points of agreement but a whole lot of disagreement on other points."

The WHA, in its lawsuits, accused the NHL of violating U.S. anti-trust laws by monopolizing professional hockey.

The Sun also said the leagues agreed to play a minimum of 15 exhibition games, but said there would be negotiations for more exhibitions plus consideration of a playoff game between the league champions or some incorporation into the playoffs, allowing the WHA to compete for the Stanley Cup.

Eagleson quickly threw cold water on such a program. "The suggestion of inter-league and all-star play can only come with the consent of the players, and I expect no such consent will be forthcoming. . . ."

"Well, you can tell the team you don't want to play more 'game balls,' understand?"

Jack Button Replaces Riley at Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — At 34, on the last year of three-year contracts with the club, Riley says he has already reached a financial settlement with Potter, while a Penguin spokesman said Button's contract has been renegotiated after his current pact expires.

The Penguins have an 11-25-5 record and are 14 points back of Atlanta, which is fourth place, the last playoff spot.

Button, former assistant director for Rochester in the American Hockey League and the AHL, has never played hockey.

The Penguin's youth movement actually started after coach Ned Kelly was fired last January.

Gone since that time, among others, are veterans Keith Shack, Keith McCreary, Duane Rupp, Nick Harbaruk, Al McDonough and Bryan Hextall.

McDonough, who led the team in scoring last season with 39 goals, and Hextall, were traded within the last 10 days.

"I can't say any more wrong," Button said. "We had to make changes toward youth and we did that. Naturally, nobody is happy to be in seventh place.

"But I've always felt that when you make wholesale changes you have to expect a transition period. I think that's what we're in.

Dobrick Leads Detroit Club

UTICA, Mich. (CP) — Reese Dobrick scored four goals to pace Detroit Junior Red Wings to a 12-3 win over Michigan Americans in the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League's only game Monday.

Pat Ryan scored three goals and Gordie Roberts scored twice. Pete Webster, Gary Dorosh and Ed Zeller added the others.

Jim Hamilton, Mike Nichols and Mike Lackie scored for Michigan, which was outshot 38-22.

McCreary Out at Vancouver

Don't Expect Miracles Warns Coach Maloney

VANCOUVER (CP) — The new coach of the Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League says he'd "like to tumble into the whole place and have us all scrub ourselves with carbolic soap to get rid of this feeling of frustration."

Phil Maloney, hired Sunday to replace Bill McCreary as coach, said players were "taking their aggressions out on themselves and each other."

McCreary, meanwhile, said he plans a news conference in the next few days when he will "say a lot—I'll bring everything into the open."

His dismissal followed Vancouver's 8-1 loss to New York Rangers here Saturday, a game McCreary said was the absolute worst by the Canucks this season.

The Canucks, floundering in last place in the NHL eastern division, have managed only nine wins and seven ties in 41 games. They won their ninth game of the season, their first 1974 victory, when they edged California Golden Seals 3-2 on Friday.

Maloney, 46, who lives in Vancouver, has been coach since last season of Seattle Totems, a Western Hockey League farm team. The Totems are second in the WHL.

Hal Laycoe, Canucks general manager, said Maloney was stepping out of a very favorable position.

Maloney said he regretted leaving Seattle and didn't expect to perform any miracles with the Canucks.

"I told those guys in the room today that I can't walk on water. I also told them I hadn't tried.

"Maybe I'm naive, but I think I can do something here," he said. "These guys have got to get their heads out of their butts and their shoulders up. They've got to get respect for themselves and for guys around me."

McCreary, 39, was hired June 14 as the Canucks' third coach in four years, but was the first to be fired.

Laycoe was coach but was not retained as coach when his two-year contract expired.

Vic Stasiuk coached last season but was let go when his one-year contract ended.

"I have been offered a chance to stay with the team," said McCreary, "but they haven't offered me anything specific under a long-term contract and I don't want to be an assistant or an assistant.

"Jack has been friction on this team right from the start at training camp. The two factions on this team have made it difficult to coach and staying with the organization may be the wrong thing for me."

McCreary said he had "coaching but the highest praise for the efforts the players gave me."

Coley Hall, interim president of the team, said Monday from his Hawaiian winter vacation home that "We felt something had to be done at this time. I intended to do it before but I was talked out of it."

Hall had given McCreary a vote of confidence Dec. 10, but by the end of the month, Laycoe announced he would be replaced with McCreary in coaching the club.

Hitching A Ride?

CFB's Bill Sullivan Eyes Action

Senior Game Is Off

There will not be an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League game at Memorial Arena tonight.

The scheduled game between Belleville Eagles and Welland Marchants has been postponed.

Eagles general manager Dick Burrowes confirmed the postponement this morning.

Said Burrowes: Welland requested that the game be postponed and there wasn't much we could do but grant permission.

"However, the ice time at the arena won't go to waste since we plan on having the club practice under new coach Walt Gerow."

Gerow will use tonight's practice session to make preparations for Friday's home game with Orillia Terriers.

It is expected a full turnout of players will be present for the workout. It's the first opportunity Gerow has had to work with the members of the team.

Welland is in last place in the six-team grouping with eight points, four fewer than the Eagles who have six wins in 23 league starts.

Both clubs are well off the pace of Brantford Foresters who hold down fourth place with 22 points. Barrie Flyers are first with 36, Cambridge Hornets have 34 and Orillia, 32.

Mead Johnson Holds The Edge on Doctors

Mead Johnson and the Doctors continued their battle for first place in the Gas House Hockey League last night, with both top teams coming up with wins in the race for first place.

Meads tripped Stewart Warner 8-1, while the Doctors doubled the score on Chuckwagon Foods 8-4.

The win gave Meads 27 points, one more than the Doctors' and four up on idle Golden Mile.

In other games played, Fraser and O'Neil recorded an 8-4 win over Rosebush Fuels, while Constellation edged the Yardmen 4-3.

Defenceman Wayne Leveque paced Meads with three goals and one assist, with Ron Fuller, Russ Berrington, Ted Rowlands, Pete Quackenbush, and Dave Fox adding the other counters.

Randy Charmichael replied with the only Stewart Warner goal, with assists by Ken Treacey and Brian McQuaid.

George Jacklin fired three goals to lead the Doctors to their win, with John Chambers, Pete Keogh, Gary Gerber, Bill Minaker, and Hyalie Bryant scoring the other goals. Goyer added four assists to his marker.

Bill Dunn potted two goals for Chuckwagon in a losing cause, with Chester Thompson and Warren Rushlow bagging one each.

Fraser and O'Neil got two goal performances from Larry Pascoe enroute to their victory. Art Martin, Brent Pascoe, Wayne McGeachy and Bill Lynch each scored once.

Neil Goyer, Doug Moroughan, Bob Elliot, and Bob Grower scored one goal each for Rosebush.

In the final game of the night, goals by Ron Mitchell, Wayne Lloyd, Myles McDonnell, Keith McConnell, and Bill Yule were enough for Constellation to take the win from the Yardmen.

Replying for the Yardmen were Jim Blatchford, Steve Deveau, and Dennis Flesch.

Judo Meet Attracts 210

Trenton — Organizers of the South Eastern Ontario regional junior judo tournament staged at the Canadian Forces Base here Sunday got more than they bargained for.

Originally, those planning for the event expected some 179 youngsters to take part. The entry list grew to 210.

It was expected the event would be run off in about four hours. Nine hours after it started, the tournament was completed.

But when it was all over, instructors with the CFB Club who played host to the tourney could boast it was the largest regional meet for juniors ever held.

Sgt. Jerry Cote, president of the CFB Trenton junior judo club and one of the tournament officials, admitted to just one complaint. Some one made off with a large portion of the lengthy list of results.

Clubs from Oshawa, Peterborough, Bellevile and CFB were represented.

Belleville came up with Mark and Brian Moynes matched rivals in the 10-11 years age bracket, under 85 lbs. and under 75 lbs., respectively.

Brad Campbell was No. 3 in the 12-13 years, under 85 lbs. section.

The host club came up with three firsts, a second and two thirds.

Competing in the 12-13, under 115 lbs. division, Robert Cote scored a first. Ed McColm took a third in the 14-15 age class and Alain Huard was second in the youth division's under 165 lbs., 16 years and over category.

The girls got into the act, too. Janet Perry and Carol Laliberte scored first while Anne Belanger chalked up a second place finish in her section.

Panasiuk Golfer Of the Year

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bob Panasiuk, who won his second consecutive Canadian Professional Golfers Association title last August, was named Canadian golfer of the year Monday by members of the Golf Reporters' Association of Canada.

Panasiuk, 32, of Windsor, Ont., was selected on all but four ballots.

He compiled 102 points, almost double the total of runner-up Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., who was Canada's top golfer in 1972. Miss Bourassa, winner of La Canadienne Ladies Professional Golf Association championship in Montreal last summer, had 53 points.

Marlene Streit of Fonthill, Ont., was third with 10 points, followed by Robbie Jackson of Montreal with eight, Phil Giroux of Montreal with six, George Knudson of Toronto with five and Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., and Kelly Robarts of London, Ont., with four apiece.

Rosebush And Mior Lead Yanks

The Yankees kept us their winning ways in the Northern Electric Hockey League Sunday, as they downed the Bearcats 6-4. In the other game played the Falcons edged the rebels 5-4.

Rick Rosebush and Marco Mior each fired a pair of goals to pace the Yankees, with John Noakes and Larry Barnard adding one each.

Bill Goodfellow scored twice in a losing cause, with Jim Haggarty and Larry Lupovelle each contributing one.

Rod Salter scored twice to lead the Falcons to their win, with Mark Acquafrede, Wayne Brown, and Grant Sage scoring the others.

Landscapers Are Edged 5-4

PICTON (Special) — Belleville Mel Barrette Landscapers girls' hockey club took only its second loss of the season here Sunday, dropping a close 5-4 decision to Picton.

The winners were led by Sue Sutton who counted a pair of goals. Joan McKenna, Jolaq Brummell and Alice Callant had the others.

Connected for the Landscapers were Sandra Claus, Sue Marion Carol McFarlane, and Nina Fleiger.

Lawson, Cheevers Showing the Way

SANTA ANA, Calif. (CP) — Vancouver's Dennis Lawson is on a nine-game scoring spree and during the weekend the Blazer forward added to his second place in the World Hockey Association scoring race.

Lawson has 34 goals and 35 assists for 38 points, seven behind the leader, Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros, according to official figures announced by the WHA office Monday.

Lawson's 34 goals places him tops in that department, a position he held in the final statistics a year ago with 61 and reasons well on the way to holding that place this year. His nearest goal-scoring rival is Bobby Hull, Winnipeg Jets player-coach, with 28.

Gerry Cheevers, who led goaltenders throughout the fledgling 1972-73 season, finally claimed top spot again. The Cleveland Crusader puck stopper, after a slow start, now has a 2.62 goals-against average and four shutouts, also tops in the league.

Esposito and Parent Have Shot at Records

MONTREAL (CP) — Will centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins become the second player to score 50 goals in 50 games? Will goalie Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers tie or surpass the National Hockey League modern-era record for shutouts in one season?

Esposito had scored 40 goals in 39 games and had 83 points as the Bruins entered the second half. He needs 10 goals in his next 11 games to equal the mark set by Maurice (Rocket) Richard of the Canadiens who became the NHL's first 50-goal scorer in the 50-game, 1944-45 season.

Several players have since scored 50 or more goals in one season but none has duplicated Richard's feat.

At his current pace, Esposito has a chance to become the first player to average two points a game since the first NHL season—1917-18—when Joe Malone of the Canadiens had 41 all goals, in 20 games.

The closest man to Malone's mark was Bill Cowley of the Boston Bruins, Cowley had 71 points in 36 games during 1943-44.

As first-half leader of the scoring race, Esposito receives $500 from the league, giving him a total of $9,250 in bonus money for the Art Ross Trophy segment of individual awards in the NHL season. Last year, the Ross Trophy is awarded annually to the league's top scorer.

Parent has eight shutouts and needs seven more to tie the modern-day mark Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks had in the 78-game 1969-70 season.

The all-time record of 22 was set by the late George Hainsworth while with the Canadiens in the 44-game, 1928-29 season.

Parent played all but 111 minutes of his team's first-half season and the Flyers goals against total of 76—a 1.92 average—earned Parent and Bobby Taylor the mid-way award of $250.

NHL to Take Over California Franchise

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League has removed a thorn from its side, but it cost $6.5 million and it still has a wad of cash on its hands.

The league said Monday it has bought the California Golden Seals franchise from Charles O. Finley, an owner not admired by other NHL owners or his players.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said Finley has signed an offer to sell the club.

"I don't want to knock him," said Campbell in Montreal, "but there was one previous deal on which he reneged.

"So we didn't want to take any chances. We made him sign the document."

"I don't think a new owner here would make everybody skate faster, but I think it would boost morale and give us hope for the future," said Joey Johnston a Seals' player.

The league will operate the franchise until it can find an owner and more than likely will keep the club in Oakland, despite a lack of fan interest.

The reason: The original president of the Seals, Barry Von Gerbig filed a multi-million lawsuit against the league charging restraint of trade.

Observers say if the NHL allowed a shift now Von Gerbig might win his case.

Fred Glover, coach and general manager of the Seals, in their usual last place in the Eastern Division, had no comment on the sale. He is expected to lose one, or perhaps both, of his jobs when the club changes hands.

The Seals play their next game in Oakland on Wednesday against Toronto Maple Leafs. Their record this season is 9-28-5 and they are averaging less than 3,000 fans a game, by far the worst mark in the league.

Campbell said the new owners should be "people with local orientation—someone who can respond to local opinion."

When Finley took the Seals in 1970—for $4.5 million—he added Golden to the name, put the players in white skates, displaced the front office staff, changed coaches and failed to attract fans or produce a winner.

Refusing to recognize the arid Hockey Association as a threat and demonstrating a lack of knowledge of the club's players' problems, the Seals last year lost nine regulars to the WHA and two more left this year for the newer league.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, has called Finley "a bad apple in the barrel" and said the sooner the league was rid of him the better.

Eagleson, who acts for several of the Seals, says an explosive situation has existed this season between management and players, "literally bordering on fisticuffs."

The Seals started in the NHL in 1967 and made the playoffs in 1968-69 and 1969-70—years when only expansion teams were in the West Division. In both years the Seals lost in the Stanley Cup quarter-finals.

Prior to Finley taking over, the club had three owners. The league welcomed Finley when he first arrived, but his subsequent actions rendered him to other owners — the same owners he had encountered in baseball and basketball.

A special six man committee of the NHL will study the latest offer and, Campbell said a decision on whether to complete the sale will probably be made later this week.

But Bill Jennings, owner of the New York Rangers, a member of the committee, said "if his demand is in writing, we won't have any trouble."

In typical Finley style, he said, "what sale?" when asked if the story was true.

When told the league had offered $6.5 million—his demand—for the Golden Seals, he said:

"Let's hope so. Yeah, I guess I'll sell it."

Finley, who made his millions selling insurance in the Chicago area, has also indicated he intends to call the world champion Oakland Athletics of baseball's American League, and Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association.

Reserve Guard Takes the Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Clem Haskins, a reserve guard for Phoenix Suns in the National Basketball Association's new three-house leader.

Haskins has converted 81 of 89 free throws for 91 per cent, the NBA said Monday in its weekly statistics. That enabled him to pass Rick Barry of Golden State Warriors, who had a 90.8 per cent with 178 of 196.

Buffalo's Bob McAdoo continues to lead in scoring with a 29.6 average, followed by Atlanta's Pete Maravich at 28.5.

Your Horoscope

Wednesday, Jan. 16

By BENICE EDDE OSOL

Aries —(March 21-April 19) Individuals you'll be dealing with today will be very emotional regarding their possessions. Don't give them reason to suspect your motives.

Taurus (April 2-May 2) This is not one of your best days to bargain on a person-to-person basis. Your hostile feelings will cloud your judgment.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) You'll have to be on guard to avoid friction with coworkers today. Separate yourself from those hard to get along with.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Some days Cupid fires arrows with blunt points. This is such a day. Be extra-tolerant of the one closest to your heart.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have to be the one to make concessions if you want to maintain harmony on the home front. Don't expect much from others.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your efficiency will not be up to its usual standards today. Something will make you grumble. This self reflect in your work.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Discipline is essential to curb your wasteful impulses. You should be shoring up your foundations, not depleting them.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will require all the tact you can muster to handle a difficult associate today. Try not to show him the extent of your anger.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something you should be doing for yourself you're going to try to palm off on someone. The result won't be anything like you hoped for.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If anyone in your group has some ideas that cost money, make a fast exit or you may be talked into a losing proposition.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you're going to do today will not score a big hit. Make amends promptly so your reputation won't suffer.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 2) There are storm warnings up in areas that deal with in-laws. It would be unwise to become too involved in their affairs at this time.

The opening no-trump is a picture bid. It describes a hand with a definite point count. The standard is 16-18 but more important it describes a hand with a balanced pattern. To get best value from your no-trumped hand pattern should be 4-3-3-3, 4-4-3-2 or 5-3-3-2.

Since the notrump is a picture bid it is possible to develop very effective methods of responding to it. With a balanced hand you simply add your points to your partner's. The total determines whether you want to play a part score, game or slam.

To Your Good Health

Allergy Rarely Exists by Itself

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My little girl was always colicky from birth on. We finally found she was allergic to milk, but she was not put on soy bean milk until she was seven months old.

She now is more comfortable but still has signs of allergy (Persistent cough, sneezing, etc.). Why?—Mrs. K.L.

For the benefit of other readers, remember that sensitivity to cow's milk is not the only cause of colic, but it certainly is one.

To answer your question: You've found that cow's milk is one thing your little girl can't tolerate. But she still has some signs of allergy.

Why because, while one allergy may be dominant in a given patient, it is rather seldom that only one allergy exists. There usually are others along with it but in varying degrees of intensity.

My advice is to keep a food diary to see if your cold can cover a pattern showing other things to which she is allergic. Or it may not be food. She may be allergic to wool, feathers, dust, etc.

If you can't make any headway on your own, you may find it advisable to consult an allergist.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What makes mucous in the colon? Is it serious and is there a cure for it? Are colonics a cure?—A.G.

The problem goes under the name of mucous colitis, an ailment which tends to become chronic and a continuing problem unless it is controlled.

"Chronic" by which I presume you mean enemas or colonic irrigations, are not a cure. Far more than washing the inside of your nose one cure a cold. The mucous in there as a response to irritation, and it is the irritation, not the mucous, that needs removal.

Frankly, mucous colitis is not a simple ailment to treat and don't expect success in a hurry.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband, 59, has diabetes and takes 50 milligrams of DBI three times a day. He also follows a 1,500-calorie diet. I would like to know how to tell if he is having too much of either one, calories or medication.—Mrs. J.A.

Frequent urine tests are the usual means of making sure that the patient's balance of food and medication is maintained. If he is getting too much DBI, urine tests would be negative for sugar, along with symptoms of low blood sugar (hunger, giddiness, weakness, etc.) and possibly diarrhea.

If he is getting an inadequate DBI, it would be reserved in hunger and loss of weight. If his diet is excessive, then he would gain weight or show sugar in the urine.

Periodic blood sugar tests by his doctor would also be important. One tip: Taking only a fasting blood sugar test (before breakfast) does not always give an adequate picture of the situation. Added tests in the late morning or in the afternoon can be revealing, since the patient's balance may vary at different times of the day.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read about the success of acupuncture treatments for nerve deafness. Since I have this problem, I would like to look into it. What would like your opinion.—Mrs. A.J.C.

I can't help you, because not enough is really known about acupuncture in this country. But I am highly suspicious as to the ability to restore nerves that have degenerated. And I remain suspicious when so many far-flung claims are made for any treatment — especially since, for all that has been said about acupuncture, we are still without any explanation as to why or how it is supposed to work.

The Stayman convention allows you to find 4-4 major suit fits. North's two club is an example of this convention. The bid does not show clubs. It merely asks partner to bid a four-card major suit if he has one.

South does have one and bids two spades. North raises right to the spade game and South proceeds to make his contract with an overtrick by drawing trumps, knocking out the ace of clubs and eventually losing the heart trick.

South would also make three no-trump because the enemy hearts divide 4-4, but spades is the right spot.

IN MEMORIAM

KILPATRICK — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Percy Kilpatrick, who passed away January 13th, 1967.

Dear Dad, you had to heavenly rest,
God took you when he thought best
To part we now you sinking
But memory keeps you ever near.
You fought so hard to stay,
But when we prayed, God took you
He peacefully free from pain
And left us sad hearts to mend.
Sadly missed by Mother and family.

—Always remembered by daughter Beverley, granddaughters Lisa and Jennifer Gough.

KILPATRICK — In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Percy Kilpatrick, who passed away January 13th, 1967.

Though years in my eyes do not glisten,
Dad, you are not always out of mind.
Each time I see a young man
Who reminds me of you.
But I think of my wonderful dad,
So you you have left us,
Cherish him with care,
For he is the best dad
That you can have.
Till you see his vacant chair,
Sadly missed by daughter Ruth.

—Always remembered by son-in-law Hannah, Tennessee, Mauldin.

EVANS — In loving memory of Mary Evans who passed away January 13, 1975.

Time slowly passing, resting at last,
Memories of you are treasured fast,
Years are past,
Memories are cherished,
Loved and sadly missed by Mother and Family.

LOTT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away four years ago, January 13, 1972.

The world may change from year to year
And friends from day to day,
But never will the memory fade
Of one we loved so dear.
Always remembered by wife Florence and family.

IN MEMORIAM

KILPATRICK — In loving memory of my husband and father, Vernon Kilpatrick who passed away January 13th, 1973.

God saw you getting tired,
A cure was not to be,
So He set you free.
And whispered come with me.
Your memory is our keepsake
And we'll treasure it until we meet.
Your every heart and deed of gold
Will shine forever more.
You're in our aching hearts we have
You to remember, not one day goes
By that we don't think of you.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Donna, son-in-law Jim, granddaughter Christine.

KILPATRICK — In loving memory of a dear Dad, Vernon Junior, who passed away January 13th, 1973.

God saw you getting tired,
A cure was not to be,
So He set you free.
And He whispered come home with me.

You didn't deserve what you went through,
Dad's garden must be beautiful
Now that you are there.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Donna, son-in-law Jim, granddaughter Christine.

Port Hope Garbage Dump Said Okayed

TORONTO (CP) — CFTO says Metropolitan Toronto's application to dump garbage in Port Hope, Ont., for disposal has been approved by the environmental hearing board.

The television station says the board, a branch of the Ontario environment ministry, will formally announce its decision in the next day or two.

The decision is likely to be appealed by Hope Township long opposed to the plan, the television says.

CP Rail, which has had an option on 300 acres of land in the township, has arranged with Metro to transport the garbage there and dispose of it in a sanitary landfill operation. Its option on the land expires today.

In a speech in Barrie Monday, Opposition leader Robert Nixon said environmental hearing board should turn down an application to haul Toronto's garbage to Port Hope.

"I believe the application should be turned down—that the province should instead meet the waste problem head-on with major recycling programs and action to reduce garbage production."

Mr. Nixon said the board's decision will be an important indication of how the province plans to deal with the vast garbage disposal problems of Metropolitan Toronto.

Mr. Nixon said Ontario must also ban non-refillable soft drink cans and bottles which account for 100 tons of Toronto's garbage every day.

Gas and Fuel Oil Exports Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Gasoline exports of the United States rose to 140.1 million gallons in the first 10 months of 1973, a tenfold increase over the same period in 1972, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

Shipments of fuel oils to the U.S. increased by 30 per cent to 1,203.9 billion gallons.

And exports of crude oil rose to 302.5 million barrels from 280.5 million barrels in 1972.

In dollar terms, exports of all energy commodities—including coal, natural gas, other petroleum products and electricity—jumped 41 per cent to $1.986 billion from $1.417 billion in 1972.

Although the figures reflect growing demand for energy imports in the U.S., they apply to the period before the Arabs imposed their embargo in October.

Crude oil exports, valued at $1.193 billion, accounted for 60 per cent of energy exports, and an increase of 44 per cent in value from 1972 million in the first 10 months of 1973.

Crude oil has been under National Energy Board export controls since March 1.

Natural gas exports, which are generally under long-term sales contracts, increased only 12.5 per cent in value to $281 million.

In the same period, Canada imported 274.6 million barrels of crude, valued at $729 million, mostly from Venezuela and the Middle East. The total for the period was 236.5 million in 1972, 25 per cent lower.

Most other energy imports were nearly unchanged.

Kidnapped Boy Slain Days Before Discovery

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — A 16-year-old kidnapping victim was killed by a blow to the head four or five days before his body was discovered, bound to a tree in snow-covered woods, authorities said Monday.

District Attorney Robert Sullivan of Chautauqua County said he will seek murder indictments for the death of Daniel Eberhole, whose body was found Sunday.

Three youths accused of kidnapping the youngster were being held in Buffalo in lieu of $100,000 bond each on federal kidnapping charges.

Dr. Judith Lebotay of Buffalo, the medical examiner who performed the autopsy, said Daniel was killed by a blow with a sharp instrument that fractured his skull and lacerated his brain.

The sheriff's office said Dr. Lebotay estimated the youth had been killed last Tuesday or Wednesday after having disappeared from his home Tuesday afternoon. That would put the time of death before Daniel's father paid a $15,000 ransom.

Bill of Rights Issue In Supreme Court Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Few sessions of the Supreme Court of Canada have generated as much interest and attention as the one starting Jan. 22.

However, there are few big issues among the 75 appeals facing the court in its first session under Bora Laskin, the new and controversial chief justice, whose appointment shattered tradition and inspired reports that two judges might resign because of it.

The lack of major issues and a backlog of judgments still to come from the court as it was under retired chief Justice Gerald Fauteux means it may be months before the style of Bora Laskin court becomes evident.

Among the more interesting questions before the new court is a challenge of the Official Languages Act by Mayor Leon and Jones of Moncton, N.B., and a move by an Indian widow to have a section of the Indian Act declared invalid on grounds it discriminates against Indians.

The section of the Indian Act prohibiting Flora Canard from becoming administrator of her husband's estate is challenged on the ground it clashes with the Bill of Rights, which assures equality before the law for all Canadians.

The new chief justice is a staunch advocate of the Bill of Rights. Last August, when he disagreed with the majority in an appeal against women losing Indian status when they marry whites, he said the Bill of Rights takes precedence over any other federal statute when they are in conflict.

His writings reveal him as a staunch federalist. They also show him with liberal views on social issues.

Neil McKelvey, president of the Canadian Bar Association, said Laskin believes the law "should evolve with the times, taking note of changes in society . . . ."

An example of this is his dissent in the appeal of Ireme Murdock, an Alberian woman who sought a half-interest in a ranching business she helped her separated husband establish.

In a 4-to-1 decision the high court rejected her claim. In dissenting, the new chief justice said that in contributing a substantial amount of physical labor, Mrs. Murdock "established a right to an interest in the property which it would be inequitable to deny."

Gloomy Picture

VANCOUVER (CP) — Poor labor-management relations, a shortage of skilled labor, spiralling inflation, the energy crisis and a general drop in the North American economy all add up to paint a gloomy picture for British Columbia industry this year.

The Employers' Council of B.C. released results today of a business trends survey of major corporations in all sectors of the economy, representing 117,000 B.C. workers.

The firms polled were less optimistic about the province's business outlook than they were six months ago.

Investigate 22 Deaths

Oxygen and Nitrous Oxide Lines Crossed at Hospital

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Inquest jurors investigating 22 deaths in Sudbury General Hospital were to inspect the mechanical gas system in a new wing today. A malfunction in the system is blamed for at least some of the 1973 deaths.

The five-man jury, which opened Saturday's second-largest mass death inquiry Monday, was studying the hospital installation as a groundwork for sittings expected to continue for at least three weeks.

What the inquest hopes to determine is how lines carrying pure oxygen and an anesthetic, nitrous oxide, became mixed up in transmission to parts of the new wing.

The jury received this information on the opening day:

—Dr. Ross Bennett, deputy supervising coroner for Ontario and presiding coroner at the inquest, said investigation of one of the deaths indicated the oxygen and nitrous oxide lines had been crossed.

—Eric Heathcote, a Toronto consulting engineer and specialist in hospital gas systems, testified it can be assumed that there was a departure from the architect's drawings for the gas lines. The drawings themselves showed a "proper system."

Mr. Heathcote's testimony pointed to four rooms of the new wing—opened last May—as gas "problem areas," and it was in this section that the 22 victims were treated before their deaths between May and September.

All the problem areas, along with other sections of the hospital, were fed from central supplies of oxygen, nitrous oxide and nitrogen. Evidence indicated the lines were crossed before the gas reached outlets in the new wing.

The first death under investigation, that of 85-year-old Catherine Donahoe of nearby Dowling, occurred in one of the special-procedures room of the new wing, as she was having a broken arm reset. She had been anesthetized without ill effects three times previously in other parts of the hospital.

Dr. Bennett told the jury the girl turned blue and died shortly after having been given an inhalation of supposedly pure oxygen from a wall outlet.

The girl's mother, Gabrielle Donahoe, and her grandmother, Yvette Dupuis, said the girl had a history of suspected epilepsy in infancy but had been in good health since she was a year old.

The inquest is the most extensive in Ontario since a 1950 inquiry into the loss of 119 lives in the burning of the Great Lakes cruise ship Noronic in Toronto and is being held in a hotel ballroom seating 300.

Spectator seats were only about one-quarter filled Monday, mostly with prospective witnesses. About 150 summonses have been issued for witnesses.

Coroner Bennett excused most of the witnesses Monday until later in the hearings as it was indicated most of the evidence this afternoon and Wednesday will come from seven doctors, to be followed by testimony dealing with construction of the new wing.

Many of the doctors are represented by legal counsel and so are some of the architects, engineers and sub-contractors engaged in the wing.

Toronto lawyer C. F. Macmillan, representing an insurance firm covering Comstock International Ltd., one of the sub-contractors, told the inquest that at least five writs have been issued in civil suits arising from the case.

However, Mr. Macmillan was denied the right to question witnesses after Crown Attorney John Takach argued that inquest proceedings should not be used to defend civil suits.

Legers Will Visit Every Province

OTTAWA (CP) — After many years of skipping around the world as a diplomat, Jules Leger was sworn in as Canada's new governor-general Monday.

In his speech after the swearing in ceremony, Mr. Leger said he is is taking his wife on a visit to every provincial capital in the country. This will be followed, as time permits, by a tour of all the provinces as well as the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

But no dates have been set for this, a spokesman said Monday night.

Tonight, however, there is a reception for about 200 diplomatic friends.

At 60,—Mr. Leger is a tall, courtly man who began his diplomatic career in 1940 as a junior third secretary in external affairs. From there, it was a steady succession of postings in France, England, Chile, Mexico. His last post was ambassador to Belgium and Luxembourg, based in Brussels.

Mme. Leger, a short, cheery woman with greying hair and an infectious smile, was paid tribute by Prime Minister Trudeau in the Senate after Mr. Leger was sworn in.

"In discharging your new responsibilities," the prime minister told Mr. Leger, "you will have the support of your wife, a warm, witty and generous lady."

His speech punctuated about every 10 seconds by the thunder of a 21-gun salute that shook the very stones of Parliament Hill, Mr. Trudeau lauded Mr. Leger's "great sensitivity and thoughtfulness."

Kinsmen 'B' Champs

OMHA Teams Busy

The McIlroy-Maines minor bantams recorded their first win of the season in Ontario Minor Hockey Association Triple A play Sunday, downing Peterborough 3-2.

Danny Vance fired a pair of goals and Danny Duffy had one. Each earned an assist. Bipce Bell was sharp in the winners' goal.

In two other games on the weekend, McIlroy - Maines came out on the short end of the score. The club lost 7-4 to Peterbough Friday and dropped a 7-3 decision to Kingston Saturday.

Gary McIlroy, Gary Frederick, Mike Bryant, and Jim Skiddle clicked for Belleville goals Friday while Bill Sleeprider and Danny Vance had the only counters in Saturday's loss.

In tournament play at Kingston Saturday, Rollins Construction peewee major won their first start, topping Stirling 7-3 but bowed out of the competition when they were blanked by Markham, 4-0.

Mark Crowford had four of the Rollins goals in the win over Stirling. Other Belleville marksmen were Kevin Mosher, Steve Mallon and Shawn Mulroney.

The Kinsmen bantam majors had a good day in tournament action at Aurora. The Belleville squad captured the B championship while chalking up three wins against one defeat.

Kinsmen dropped their first match 5-0 to Sudbury but followed up with three straight 3-2 wins to take the B honors. The wins came at the expense of Oshawa, Barrie and Pulsi Claire, Quebec teams.

Dave Jones, Paul Hipkin and Bobby Crawford were the Kinsmen goal getters in the defeat of Oshawa. Crawford sparked the win over Barrie with two counters while Doug Shaw added the other tally.

In the championship game with Point Claire, Hipkin, Paul Nicholadas and Rick Sprague looked after the scoring.

In their only game of the weekend, the Lions major midgets were edged 3-2 in Bowmanville, Sunday afternoon. Rick Barbeau and Roger Chapman scored for Lions.

Towers Food City major atoms took a 7-3 exhibition win from Wellington. The Food City skaters were led by Craig Saxby and Gary Green with two goals each. Steve Thompson, Rory McLeod and Steve McCluskie has the and Tim Beattie.

After scoring a 16-0 win over a a league all-star aggregation from Napanee Saturday, Dixie Lee minor peewees were the victims of a rapid-fire third period outbreak in Kingston Sunday.

The Kingston squad struck for four late goals with three of them coming within the space of 15 seconds, to record a 10-3 win.

Danny Noxenloxv had two of the Dixie Lee goals and helped arrange the other counter, a marker by Bobby Crawford.

Danny Haslewood recorded the Saturday shingle. Tim Jaques fired three goals and Bobby Wolfe connected for a pair. The others were supplied by Greg Horwood, James Robertson, Shawn Forster, Crawford and Tony Parks.

Tiremen and Rollins Edged in Overtime

Two Belleville teams sponsored Ontario Minor Hockey Association Triple A group playoffs on the weekend and both were nipped in overtime.

The Rollins Constructies major peewees dropped a 4-3 decision to Oshawa while the wester Tire Juveniles went down to Peterborough 3-1.

Overtime goals by Greve Sutton and Trent Mead shot Oshawa past Rollins. Billy Affleck and Kevin Sinclair were the oiher scorers for the winners.

Rollins got a goal each from Clarence Broekema and Billy Rowe.

It took only 27 seconds of overtimes play for Peterborough's Mark Whelan to count what proved to be the winning tally in the Juvenile contest. Mark Vilarella's second goal of the game provided the insurance.

The Tiremen's lone goal came of the stick of Steve Cowan.

COACHES NAMED

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Heinsohn of Boston Celtics and Larry Costello of Milwaukee Bucks were named Monday to coach the East and West squads respectively for the National Basketball Association's All-Star game Jan. 15 at Seattle.

Leads Canadians

Twenty - year - old Betsy Clifford of Ottawa, had the best time among Canadians in the gruelling giant slalom at Grindelwald, Switzerland, Monday. Austria's Monika Kaserer, 22, took first place in the event, ahead of Liechtenstein ace Hanny Wenzel. 19. Springlike temperatures made it necessary to use "snow cement", to harden the snow. The chemical caused the snow to turn blue. Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, winner of the giant slalom at Pfronten, West Germany, eight days ago, wiped out on the upper half of the trail, Monday. The race results left Canada in fifth place over-all in the World Cup standings with 121 points. Runaway leader is Austria with 238 points.

GAMES EARLIER

ST. LOUIS (AP) — In an attempt to conserve energy, St. Louis Cardinals have announced that all but six of their 1974 night home baseball games will start earlier than in the past. Bing Devine, Cardinal general manager, said that all weeknight games will start at 7:30 instead of the usual 8 o'clock and all but six Saturday night home games will begin at 6 o'clock instead of 7.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Janet Lynn Star Of Ice Follies

Loaded with skating talent, the 1974 edition of the Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies will bow into Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens for 16 performances from Tuesday, January 15 thru Sunday January 27. Heading the list is special guest star, Janet Lynn. One of the greatest free style skaters of all times, she had hypnotized audiences all over the world.

Produced by Bob Shipstad with choreography and direction by Bobby and Helen Maxson, the all new Ice Follies is a mixture of the contempory and the past. Fastmoving, the show possesses the proper mixture of sensational skating, hilarious comedy, beautiful music, gorgeous costumes and expert staging to label it one of the finest Ice Follies shows of all time.

There are stars in abundance. Richard Dwyer tops the male contingent. Also Wilson is back. Jay Humphrey, Canadian champion is a classic newcomer. Susan Berens, Suzanne Rinsel of Toronto and Christy Ito add skating delight with their respective routines.

For those who like pair skating, there are Richard Dwyer and Susan Berens and Judy and Jim Sladky, National Dance Champions.

Comedy is dispensed in great quantities by Mr. Frick, the Scarecrews and the Funsters. And don't forget the return of "Snoopy", the world's greatest skater.

All of the skating experts are frazned by seven production and backed by the famed and always popular Ice Follieties skating chorus.

Billie Jean King Takes Top Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Billie Jean King, who beat Bobby Riggs in her continuing crusade to upgrade the image of women in sports, today was named 1973 female athlete of the year by the Associated Press.

Ms. King, as she prefers to be addressed, was the over-whelming choice in the voting of AP member sports writers and broadcasters. She received 467 votes, compared with 146 for Olga Korbut, the Russian gymnast who received the 1972 honor last year for her Olympic performance.

Golfer Kathy Whitworth, who was athlete of the year in 1965 and 1966, was a distant third with 34 votes, followed by Margaret Court of Australia, winner of the French, Australian and United States open tennis champ ionships, with 20; swimmer Keena Rothhammer, 11; track star Mary Decker, 9, and tennis pro Chris Evert, 7.

Ms. King, who also was named AP athlete of the year in 1967, was overshadowed by Mrs. Court on the 1973 pro tennis tournament trail.

The only major international title for Ms. King was Wimbledon, which she won for the fifth time in her career. But her straight-set triumph over the 35-year-old Riggs in one of the most highly-taxed hustles of all time left little doubt of her ability to play under pressure.

DECISION RESERVED ...

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Judge Porfirio Nieters reserved decision Monday in the case of Cesar Cedeno, Houston Astros outfielder charged with involuntary homicide. Assistant District Attorney Franklin Dias Alvarez asked the court for acquittal, saying there was not enough ev-dence to convict Cedeno in the gunshot death of a 19-year-old girl in a hotel room. Judge Nieters did not say when he would decide the fate of Cedeno, but it was expected to be within the next few days.

Riots Raging In Java

JAKARTA (AP) — Thousands of students went on a rampage in Jakarta today for the second day, embarrassing a premier, against Japanese economic penetration to include Chinese immigrants, who control much of Indonesia's commercial life.

There was no immediate word on casualties today, but officials at the Central Hospital said seven students were killed and 49 wounded in the rioting Tuesday, touched off by the visit of Premier Kakuei Tanaka of Japan.

Tanaka, scheduled to leave for home Thursday, spent a quiet morning with his daughter Makiko at the guest house on the grounds of the presidential palace. More than 1,000 armed troops ringed the palace compound, and armored cars were posted at each corner.

One mob of high-school students smashed up shops and restaurants owned by Chinese-Indonesians near the Hotel Indonesia.

"Smash anyone who exploits our country and eliminate Indonesians who protect them," one of the leaders of the mob yelled.

"We are fighting to bring down prices and make sure Indonesia's wealth belongs to Indonesians," said another.

The mobs destroyed about 100 Japanese cars and motorcycles, smashed the windows of shops that displayed Japanese advertising and hurled bricks and stones at the soldiers.

The troops hit back with bayonets and gun butts but it was not known how often they opened fire.

Reports of how many were killed five or three times were hit by stray bullets and the other two were killed by bayonets.

Student sources said nine youths were killed.

A curfew quieted the city Tuesday night.

The students resent Japan's growing economic penetration of Southeast Asia and complain that the Japanese businessmen in their commities are as arrogant and high-handed as the pre-war military colonials they had to deal with.

Warden Gets Robes

Hastings county's new warden, Reeve John McKenzie of Faraday township, is seen being helped with his robes and chain of office following swearing in ceremonies Tuesday at Shire Hall. Helping the wardens are, left, Reeve Wilbert McCraw of Huntingford and, right, Deser onto Reeve George Lyons, who both lost out in the three-way race for the warde nship.

Gap in Watergate Tape Not Due to One Mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Technical experts have eliminated the theory that a single, accidental act caused the 18.5-minute gap in a subpoenaed Watergate tape recording Tuesday, the experts were prevented by secrecy from White House lawyers from speculating whether the tape could have been erased accidentally.

Two Secret Service agents were expected to tiffy today about who had access to the tape recorder that the experts said produced the buzz heard on the obliterated segment of the tape.

It was the recorder Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, said she was using last Oct. 1, when she accidentally pushed the record button after being interrupted while trying to transcribe the tape of a June 30, 1972, conversation between the president and chief of staff.

Haldeman's notes indicated the obliterated segment included all discussion of the Watergate break-in, which had occurred three days earlier.

The six-member committee of experts chosen jointly by the White House and the special Watergate prosecutor's office, agreed unanimously that the tape showed that the record button had been pushed not once, but at least five, and possibly as many as nine, times.

"Further," they said "whether the foot pedal was used or not, the recording controls must have been operating by hand. . ."

But, one of the six testified, "We have no idea when it occurred or how it was responsible."

Both Republican and Democratic members of Congress said the new development had seriously damaged the president. And in Los Angeles former attorney-general Elliot Richardson said the findings "definitely will not help Nixon."

"The story that there just been a conscious effort to corrupt," said Representative John Anderson of Illinois, leader of the House Republican Conference.

"The burden has shifted for the president and his White House aides to explain what went on," Senator Henry Jackson (Dem.-Wash.) said in Olympia, Wash.

One member of the committee, Richard Bolt, former head of the acoustics laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and now board chairman of a private research firm, explained that the User 3000 recorder has a record head and an erase head, each of which leaves a distinct mark or signature on the tape.

The record head signature is a single line; the erase head leaves four parallel lines. The signatures are not visible to the eye unless the tape is treated with a solution containing magnetized particles which line up over the lines. Bolt said such signatures are left when the heads are deactivated after the machine has been recording or erasing.

In each case, he said, the record button must have been depressed and then released by depressing any one of four other buttons on the machine — stop, start, rewind or fast forward button.

The experts found five erase signatures within the 18-minute gap and said that as many as four others may have been erased.

Each erase signature required manual depression of the record button and then its release, they said.

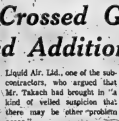
Science Body Wants Earth's Heat Tapped

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Proposals for long-term energy development were spotlighted Tuesday as federal-provincial representatives warmed up for next week's energy conference in Ottawa.

Dr. Gordon Patterson, chief of the Science Council of Canada report, said his committee will likely recommend this spring that Canada tap the heat in the earth's crust instead of investing in development of solar energy.

He said the report, more than two years in the making, views techniques for development of geothermal energy closer at hand than methods for converting sun's rays to power.



Another consideration, he said, is that the effective use of solar energy in Canada would be limited to the southern regions—where the sun is about two-thirds as strong as it is throughout the United States on average.

On the other hand, development of geothermal resources in non-volcanic areas would not be restricted to the south because new techniques will make it possible to create artificial subterranean hotspots, Dr. Patterson said.

Dr. A. M. Jessop, head of geothermal studies in the federal energy department, said a comprehensive estimate of the country's geothermal energy potential has not been made because scientists lacked the manpower and funds to conduct a complete survey.

However, it is "quite possible" that underground zones of deep-lying hot rock exist throughout most regions of the country, he said.

All-Canadian Line by 1980

Start Montreal Pipe at Sarnia

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald announced plans today for an all-Canadian, east-to-west oil pipeline by 1980 and chose Sarnia, Ont., as the starting point for the extension to Montreal.

He told a news conference that the existing Edmonton-Sarnia pipeline, which dips through the northern United States, will be expanded gradually until Western Canadian oil can be delivered to all parts of the country.

The trans-Canada system will include a line between Montreal and an East Coast superport in Quebec, New Brunswick or Nova Scotia. The East Coast will depend on negotiations with the three provinces.

The system also will include a Canadian section between Winnipeg and southern Ontario, bypassing the existing line that now cuts south from Winnipeg and east through the U.S. to Sarnia.

Alberta and the West Coast are linked already by the Trans-Mountain pipeline that runs through the Rockies to Vancouver.

Sarnia, the only starting point given serious consideration for the Montreal extension, was chosen over Sault Ste. Marie and Winnipeg. It offers a shorter route and lower construction cost.

The existing line, operated by Interprovincial Pipe Line Ltd., swings within about 60 miles of Sault Ste. Marie en route to Sarnia.

Mr. Macdonald said the Sarnia Montreal extension will cost about $175 million, up from the $130 million to $150 million estimate made earlier by Interprovincial officials.

It will have an initial capacity of 250,000 barrels a day, just under half of the 500,000 barrels used daily in the Montreal-Toronto market area. By adding additional pumping capacity west of Sarnia the extension could deliver 500,000 barrels a day, Mr. Macdonald said.

Because no pipeline extension currently exists, southwestern Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces are almost totally dependent on high-cost and scarce overseas crude oil. The extension will lessen the dependence by making large volumes of Western Canadian crude available to Montreal refineries for the first time.

In total, the five eastern provinces use about 800,000 barrels a day of crude oil daily.

The full pipeline system, including the link east from Montreal, will not meet the entire demand, Mr. Macdonald said. The need for some foreign oil will remain.

But a reversible link with an East Coast superport would offer flexibility, letting western oil move east when foreign supplies are slack, and allowing foreign oil to flow into central Canada if needed.

He said the easternmost link will connect with a superport on St. Lawrence River in Quebec, at Saint John, N.B., or in the Canso Strait area of Nova Scotia. No decision will be made without detailed provincial talks, and the line will not be built for several years, he said.

When built, the all-Canadian section will wipe out the oil glacier posed by U.S. regulatory agencies each time Canada seeks to expand or alter pipelines that run through U.S. territory.

Mr. Macdonald said construction of the 30-inch Sarnia-Montreal extension will start next fall and be completed by the government's previously announced late-1975 target date.

Kissinger Says Gap Narrows

JERUSALEM (CP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger flew back to Egypt today, reporting that differences between the Israelis and Egyptians over plans to separate their armies on the Sinai front "have been substantially narrowed."

After talks with Israeli officials that lasted until 4 a.m., Kissinger said the discussions are "making good progress." He said he will return to Israel from Egypt on Thursday with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's response to Israel's latest ideas on disengagement plans, and he hopes that on his return "the remaining difficulties will be narrowed even more and can be limited."

The differences which existed have been substantially narrowed, and I hope progress will lead to an agreement which would mark a turning point in the conflict in the Middle East," said Kissinger.

No Quick Union

TUNIS (AP) — Tunisia's new foreign minister said today his country will never unite with Libya at least as Morocco or Algeria espouse such a union. But Foreign Minister Habib Chatti said Tunisia nevertheless will continue consultations with Libya to work out the details of the merger agreement signed Saturday by President Habib Bourguiba and Col. Moammar Khadafy of Libya. He described the merger agreement as a declaration of principle rather thsn a program for concrete action.

Sudbury Hospital Crossed Gas Lines Might Have Covered Additional Area

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's inquest investigating 22 deaths over a five-month period at Sudbury General Hospital heard evidence Tuesday that an apparent medicinal-gas line problem might have extended beyond the area on which the inquest has focused.

Eric Heathcote of Toronto, an engineering consultant retained in the investigation, testified that on inspections of the hospital late last year—after the deaths—he had seen some piping connections in a then-unused area "which might have caused me some concern."

Mr. Heathcote described the piping as "cross-overs" at a point where gas lines went from a new part of the hospital to one that was being remodelled.

Ross Bennett, Ontario deputy supervising coroner who is presiding at the inquest, had used the term "cross-over" Monday to describe a suspected cause of an apparent malfunction of oxygen and anesthetic nitrous oxide lines preceding the death of Catharine Dominic, 6, in the hospital's new $6 million wing last Sept. 7.

Evidence at Monday's opening session had been confined largely to details of the first-floor area where the girl was treated for a fracture, and Mr. Heathcote's testimony dealing with the upper floors of the six-storey addition drew an outburst from Sudbury lawyer Elmer Sopha, representing the Dominics and four other families.

He accused Crown Attorney John Takach of Sudbury of conducting a "clandestine investigation" and denying other lawyers information they need for cross-examination.

He was joined by R. P. Armstrong, lawyer for Canadian Liquid Air Ltd., one of the subcontractors, who argued that Mr. Takach had brought in "a kind of veiled suspicion that there may be other problem areas."

Mr. Armstrong complained that on a tour of the hospital earlier Tuesday the jury and lawyers had not been shown the upper floors and had been led to believe the only "area of concern" was in the ceiling above the nurses' station on the main floor, where the pipes led down to where the girl was treated.

Coroner Bennett, said Mr. Takach had "gone beyond his own boundary" for this stage of the inquest and said Mr. Heathcote might be examined in detail later in the inquiry expected to last three weeks.

Later in the day, Mr. Sopha, former Liberal MPP for Sudbury, returned to the fray when Dr. Bennett told him he would not be able to see the coroner's death certificate on Miss Dominic, but that it would be brought in later.

Mr. Sopha also expressed curiosity about the statutory death certificate for the Dominic girl made out by Dr. Francis Power, who presided at the eleven-hour-plus setting preceding her death, which showed the primary cause of death as heart stoppage induced by anoxia (lack of oxygen).

He wanted to know how many other deaths dating back to when the wing opened last May listed anoxia as a cause of death.

However, Sister Bernadette Sammon, director of medical records at the General, who produced the certificate, was unable to tell him.

Coroner's Jury Views Hospital Model

The Beauty of Milk

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville usually holds its weekly meeting at the Kiwanis Centre in a male-dominated setting. But yesterday they had a pretty young visitor who was invited to speak to them on the dairy business. Eighteen-year-old Karen Kelshaw, chosen dairy princess during last year's Quinte Exhibition was invited to speak to the members and answer questions on the dairy business. And if she had any trouble with the questions, there was Kiwanis president, Armin Quickert, nearby. Mr. Quickert is president of Reid's Dairy.

Company Takes Big Profit Leap

PICTON — Lake Ontario Cement Ltd., — operator of this town's largest industry — has announced all its profits in 1973 were up 54 percent from 1972.

The company also reports that it had new highs in sales and earnings for the second consecutive year.

Consolidated sales in 1973 were $24.9 million,28 percent up from sales of $77.3 million in 1972.

Consolidated net earnings in 1973 were $2.6 million,up 54 percent from the 1972 earnings.Per share net was 66.4 cents an increase from 39.4 cents.

President W. M. Bateman said "excellent" results for 1973 are attributable to record shipments of both cement and concrete products — full utilization of its cement manufacturing facilities and "significantly improved" performances in the concrete products division.

Looked to the current strong market outlook for continued heavy demand for the company's products, Lake Ontario recently announced it was proceeding with a major plant expansion of its Picton facilities.

In addition to the $6 million recently apect for installation of two large roller grinding mills,$15 million will be invested in a $50,000 long-term year kiln system.This is designed to approximately double the clinker capacity of the existing plant, making it one of the largest cement plants in North America.

Looking to 1974, Mr. Bateman commented that although the outlook for the economy as a whole is uncertain, a strong demand for cement and concrete products is expected in the company's marketing areas.

RICHARD HALL

Recreation Director At Work

The 24 - year - old native is a graduate of a recreation program at Algonquin College, Ottawa, and has been previously employed in Stittsville and Ottawa.

Mr. Hall said Tuesday that Picton seems to have a number of summer recreation programs but fewer activities are scheduled for the winter months. He suggested that additional winter projects might be started in future if facilities are available.

This year the Picton recreation and parks department has received a Local Initiatives Program grant of more than $12,000. The money will be used to open centres for young persons and senior citizens. .

Mr. Hall said that personnel will be hired to organize activities for these groups and to enlist participation.

Take 2

The recreation director is munity facilities and suggested that the programs developed for young and old will depend on accommodations.

The LIP grant also will be used to hire an equipment manager for the minor hockey league at the County Centre. Some 75 teams play and their equipment is stored in lockers at the arena.

An equipment manager will supervise care of uniforms which must remain at the County Centre.

Prince Edward Safety Team Takes on Trenton Group

PICTON — Prince Edward Collegiate Institute's safety quiz team tonight will compete with Trenton High School in Belleville for the sectional championship.

The winning county team already has eliminated two other secondary school teams in the Quinte area.

Tonight's competition will be held at the Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street in Belleville.

Team members from PECI include Herb Pilkenton junior, Lee Foster, Donald Leslie and Eric Graham. Assistant coach is Warren McFaul and coach is Roy Gosselin, a teacher at PECI.

Mariner Museum Being Assembled

PICTON — Prince Edward County's Mariners' Park Museum will open early this summer following completion of improvements and artifact displays.

At the annual meeting of South Marysburgh township Marine Society held at Milford, members elected committees to supervise the remaking work projects at South Bay park.

Committee heads include Allan Ralley, Willis Metcalfe, James Pepper, Archer Ford, Willard Metcalfe, South Marysburgh reeve Clifford Walker and Harry Grimmon.

Last year the shell for a museum building was erected and now heating, lighting, painting and installation of display cases must be studied.

The Mariner's Park Museum features numerous outdoor displays such as a reconstructed lighthouse built in 1830 and the lifeboat from an old ship.

Willis Metcalfe of the Marine Society has offered to donate a number of artifacts for display in the new museum. With Commodore James Plower, also a society member, he has been appointed to accept and collect any other donations for the park.

The Marine Society agreed to request James Taylor, a M P P Prince-Edward-Lennox, to seek the wheelhouse of the Glenora ferry Quinte for display at the park should the boat be dundled. It is scheduled to be retired from service at Glenora this spring.

The annual service at the Mariners' Park will be held this summer as usual and other special events, such as a boat trip to Main Duck Island, are being considered. Schools may be invited to tour the museum when it is completed this year.

Chairman of the Marine Society for 1974 is Philip Dodds of Cherry Valley, who succeeds Allan Ralley of Milford. New vice-chairman is Mr. Plomer of Black Creek. Mrs. Fred VanDusen has been named secretary-treasurer.

Chairman Dodds noted, the museum "is the only one of its kind in Prince Edward County and helps perpetuate the role sailors and fishermen have played in the development of the area.

"Though incomplete, it is already proving a great attraction to tourists and visitors. This museum is one of five in Prince Edward and a member of the County Museums' Association which will hold its annual meeting in February at Wesipeck," said Mr. Dodds.

Duff Roblin To Go Federal?

TORONTO (CP) Duff Roblin, former Manitoba premier, whose family came from Prince Edward County has been asked unofficially to consider running in Ontario riding in the next federal election.

Progressive Conservative spokesman in the riding said Tuesday.

The riding is held by Liberal Norm Cafik.

Douglas Hogg, president of the Progressive Conservative Association in the riding just east of Metropolitan Toronto, said in an interview that "someone who knew him (Roblin) told him he'd be welcome as a candidate." He did not elaborate.

Mr. Roblin, 56, now lives in Montreal and is president of Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd.

He was Conservative premier of Manitoba from 1958 to 1967.

Trenton Council Choices

Town Committees Named

TRENTON — Town council Monday night rejected an administrative board recommendation to empower snow removal crews to hand out parking tickets.

The administrative board in its report urged that when snow removal crews came upon vehicles parked on the road that they be able to ticket them as a future deterrent.

Councillors queried why the police department wasn't doing this. It was explained by Arie Hoornweg (acting commissioner of works) "the police can't be everywhere at the same time."

Council refused to grant permission on the grounds that snow crews would have to begin attending court sessions,"just in case anyone decided to fight the ticket."

It was thought crews could have vehicles towed away but once the by-law was researched it was found snow removal crews have no alternative but cars. Police had advised earlier that cars should not be towed away because there is no adequate facility to hold vehicles.

Councillor Greer will represent Trenton on the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Region and Councillor Peter De Groot was named as council's spokesman to the Chamber of Commerce.

Councillor Greer will also be Mayor Patrick's representative on Trenton's Memorial Hospital's Board of Governors.

Extra Levy Suggested For Land Splits

MARORA—A levy of five percent of the land value or a minimum of $25 on land splits, in addition to $50 already levied, has been suggested by the Hastings County Land Division Board.

The municipality where the land split originated would receive the extra money for its own use on parks, recreation and service, Colden of the subdivision board told village council here.

Reeve Jack Reynolds pointed out that in a small community like Marmora, with only small lots to split, the levy would not provide much income for the municipality. It would probably be a burden imposed on people, especially when they already are assessed $50 for each land severance application, whether it is approved or not by the Land Division Board, said the reeve.

The $50 fee was introduced some time ago to recover the operating costs of the board.

Lodge Officers Elected

MADOC — Hastings County Black Chapter elected its officers for 1974 with Bernard Hollinger presiding over the election in the Orange Hall, Madoc. Lynn Jones was in charge of the installation.

Members of the executive are Allan Thompson, Good, Dalton Yilsell, Stanley Moorcroft, Durland ... William Glover, George Gordon, Don Miller, Charles Clancey, Murney Bateman, Don Freeborn, Harry Mc-Adam, Allan McCoy, ... Hagerman, Gordon Jones, Fred Fleming, Harry ... Adam, Douglas Pack and Jos Ashe.

Clerk on Task Force

TRENTON — Town clerk O.W. Larry has been named to a special provincial task force,designed to investigate the ' delemma of working for two masters."

Council gave Mr. Larry permission to participate in the study which will seek to outline the duties of the municipal clerk with respect to his responsibilities to his community and the province.Mr. Larry said he would require about 10 days during the next 18 months to work on the task force which will also be investigating the formation of an agency that would provide municipal councils and clerks with data relating to the clerk's responsibilities.

Mr. Larry will be the member of the task force representing Ontario towns.

Post Office Back To Normal

PICTON — Postmaster Robert Carter has announced that effective today the Picton Post Office locked its lobby will re-open on a 24-hour basis.

Lobby hours were restricted last February following incidents of vandalism, loitering and theft. A number of complaints have been received periodically from bonafiders concerning the daily closing hours and it has been decided to again offer round-the-clock service.

DATED FEBRUARY 1, 1974

Bank of Canada is authorized by the Minister of Finance to receive subscriptions for a loan, to be issued for cash as follows:

—2 year 10 month 7% bonds due December 1, 1976
Issue price: 100.00% yielding 7.00% to maturity
Interest payable June 1 and December 1
Four months' interest payable June 1, 1974
Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000

and

—6 year 10 month 7½% bonds due December 1, 1980
Issue price: 100.50% yielding about 7.40% for 6 years 10 months

Exchangeable

at the option of the holder into an equal par value of 7 year 8% bonds to be dated December 1, 1980 and due December 1, 1987 yielding about 7.63% for the full 13 year 10 month period commencing February 1, 1974

Interest payable June 1 and December 1
Four months' interest payable June 1, 1974
Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000.

Bank of Canada has agreed to acquire a minimum of $400 million of the new bonds, open as to maturity.

Proceeds of the offering will be used to redeem $200 million of Government of Canada 5½% bonds maturing February 1, 1974 and will be applied to advances to the Canadian National Railway Company in connection with the retirement of $200 million of the Company's 5½% bonds maturing February 1, 1974. The remaining proceeds will be used for general purposes of the Government of Canada.

The new 7% bonds due December 1, 1976 are an addition to $125 million of 7% bonds due December 1, 1976 and dated December 1, 1973. The new 7½% bonds due December 1, 1980 are an addition to $475 million of 7½% bonds due December 1, 1980 and dated December 1, 1973.

The new 7% bonds due December 1, 1976 and the new 7½% bonds due December 1, 1980 will be dated February 1, 1974 and will bear interest from that date. Principal and interest are payable in lawful money of Canada. Principal is payable at any Agency of Bank of Canada. Interest is payable at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank without charge. Definitive bonds will be available on February 1, 1974 and thereafter in two forms: bearer form with coupons attached and fully registered form with interest payable by cheque. Bonds of both forms will be in the same denominations and fully interchangeable as to denomination and/or form without charge (subject to Government transfer requirements where applicable).

To enable the Government of Canada to establish six months in advance the amount to be redeemed for cash on December 1, 1980 and thus plan any required refunding, the option permitting holders to exchange their 6 year 10 month 7½% bonds due December 1, 1980 into an equal par value of 7 year 8% bonds due December 1, 1987 may be exercised only during the six month period commencing December 1, 1979 and ending May 31, 1980.

The new bonds are authorized pursuant to an Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest are a charge on the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Applications for the new bonds may be made, subject to allotment, through any investment dealer eligible to act as a primary distributor or through any bank in Canada.

Political Cliches

In political there are whipping boys and scapegoats, there are the political football. All neat little clichés to be sure, but whoever dreamed them up knew what he was talking about. And in these days of "participatory democracy" — that's another one — we are familiar with them all.

Democracy is as once so stimulating — and oh so incredibly boring — because when the cards had finally been dealt, no doubt, the truth of the matter, the way it is, or was, alas, may remain elusive.

We don't have to look far for our political football. There is the melancholy case of the Unemployment Insurance Commission for one and we are not sure whether to feel sorry for the Commission and its employees, or for the bureaucracy to which they belong, or for the rest of us, a long suffering public which now is paying more for the miscalculations and inefficiency and Parkinson's Law-proving operations of the Commission.

Now the RCMP has got into the act, and Hastings MP Jack Ellis is talking of affording them access to documents he has relating to the Commission.

Is this, as Mr. Ellis suggests, to frighten UIC employees and stop information leaks? If so, then George Orwell's Big Brother society of 1984 is that much closer.

We may ask is the intervention of the RCMP really necessary? It has already been noted how the force got itself into an embarrassing situation, being had by a college spoof with spiritual overtones or whether this, or the students' acting as students sometimes do, is the more lamentable is debatable. But no matter, we should think the RCMP has better things to do, like keeping an eye on the activities of our most recently arrived political refugees from Latin America. As it is, there are enough people of radical leaning in this country to keep them busy indefinitely. However we are not persuaded that the leaking of documents from a body as far removed from national security as the UIC merits such a reaction.

Meanwhile, without going into any of the nasty details, or dragging up the past we would hope that those in charge of the UIC, wherever its offices are to be found, including Belleville, and the ministerial brass in Ottawa, will in this year of 1974 seek to run a tighter ship. Cut out the waste and the fooling around with the taxpayers' money and let's see what common sense — and so help us, the computers, can do.

Let this be one government organization at least that can show by new-found efficiency and public confidence it is no longer a political football or whipping boy.

Paradise No More

The winds of change which former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan spoke about in relation to emerging nations has hit the Caribbean in more ways than one.

Many of the islands which have beckoned to the traveller for so long are not the attractive places they once were. They are not particularly safe any more either, as witness the wave of murders and crime that plagued the U.S. Virgin Islands, and the fact that tourists in the area generally are warned not to wander too far afield, especially after dark.

The attitude of the people can be one of arrogance. An example is afforded by a visitor just returned from another area to the south of the North American continent: The Bahamas, now politically independent. Home from a so-called "dream vacation" in Freeport, Kingston News columnist Sophia Bobocel lists among her complaints indifferent accommodation, costly food, restaurant waiters who urged customers to "hurry up and order the cook wants to go home," and demanded higher tips, rental cars available only at exorbitant cost, and difficulty in cashing Canadian travellers cheques, but to mention local hangabouts who frequented the bars area aggressively trying to pick up young girls.

Columnist Bobocel says she got the impression the attitude of the locals was "you are in our country and you are here to please us."

Even allowing for the possibility this visitor was unlucky, it takes only one or two bad experiences such as this for a travel spot to get a bad name generally. Unfortunately this story is rather typical of others we have heard from that area.

Welfare Being Repackaged

Cabinet Men Making Like an Election is in the Air

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau brushes off the suggestion — a belief firmly held by the Opposition — that he is paving the big bridge for a Spring campaign and march to the polls.

He says he personally does not want an election, and that close as dates finished into the 1972 campaign, he survived it, determined to carry on for the full term.

So that is what he says.

But some members of his cabinet are making noises that sound like preliminary thumps on the old vote tub.

And Senator Keith Davey, long since designated as the master-mind for the campaign whenever it should be called, either Diefenbaker, or in the cool deliberation, let it slip that he is "just as busy," as he puts it, with the election assignment, he has time for nothing else.

But as the resident Liberal campaign ringmaster, it might only be good strategy for Senator Davey to talk like that and keep the Opposition on the nerves side, not knowing when it is going to happen and worrying if they will be ready for it.

But with Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde and Manpower Minister Robert Andras it is different.

They are not running the pre-campaign, if that is what Senator Davey is doing.

They are talking.

And the key word is welfare.

Reinventory welfare and its plans, the billion dollar roof from the Unemployment Insurance Commission, the far-out Opportunities for Youth handouts and the Prime Minister's own word for it that work was optional and free-loading perfectly permissible.

The incidence of the taxpayer was credited by the Opposition and blamed by the Liberals for the Government's shift-of-thesmith creeps from election exercution.

But this time it is going to be Strong.

Robert Andras concedes that there is an element of truth in the charge that unemployment insurance and higher welfare payments have some people in voluntary idleness while benefiting of the taxpayer.

And he is doing something about it.

Streamlining his Manpower job offices and getting tough with the professional loafers.

Then Marc Lalonde, while whapping up a whole new mish-mash of welfare, has publicly released any idea of bleeding to the guaranteed annual income.

In hurtling his back on the guaranteed income, he had released some pretty fierce protests from special interest groups including the Canadian Welfare Council, which, when "welfare" became a term held in less than high respect, dropped its name in the Canadian Council on Social Development.

"If the guaranteed income were available," Mr. Lalonde said, he realized as declaring, "would it not be interpreted as a statement by the Government that it was appropriate or right for people to make the choice — to work or not to work" — and be supported by their neighbours?

"If so, then I think such a plan would be consistent with the values of the majority of Canadians."

Or to put it politically, the guaranteed annual income would be a vote-loser.

For framing the public Canadian mind as basic is the conviction that those who work should always be better off than those who could, but will not work.

And Mr. Andras has reminded that there is a minority, "small," as he calls it, who do not work if they can avoid it. They work only as long as necessary to qualify for UIC benefits, then quit. Live off the payments as long as they last, drift from one short-term job to the next and transport and keep them in poverty.

While Robert Andras is wrestling them out, Marc Lalonde is reverting "not to legitimize idleness," as he puts it, by any guaranteed five — or - year neighbor deal.

Liberal government philosophy don't change so far so fast in the Trudeau - Andras - Lalonde and Company are in the market for a spring mandate.

Governments Also in Multinational Business

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The global attack on the international power of the multinational companies has been centered against large private concerns like Exxon or General Motors in the United States, Imperial Chemical Industries (ICI) in the United Kingdom, Mitsubishi in Japan, Siemens and Volkswagen in West Germany.

Admittedly they are or can be powerful enough to sway governments, especially in developing countries where their becoming technology and management skills dominate economies. The efforts of IT and T to prevent and then topple the career of the late Salvador Allende as Marxist president of Chile are well-known and well-documented.

Forgotten in the largely left-wing and leftist-liberal attacks on multinational companies is the fact many of them, throughout the world are not privately-owned or managed, but they are creatures of national governments.

This is obvious in the so-called socialist or Communist countries. But forgotten is the fact that such capitalistic nations as our own, France, Spain and Britain have powerful political and owned corporational companies. The same is true of many emerging nations. For example Mexico, Indonesia and Brazil.

Take Spain where there is Instituto Nacional de Industria. National Industrial Institute (INI), was founded in 1941 by General Franco as the government vehicle to develop and start up needed industry.

By the late 1950s, INI not only owned or controlled most of Spain's growth industries but operated with growing success private ventures throughout the economy which formerly would have flatly impeded incoming foreign capital or preferred not to associate with it.

When it was reformed and reduced in size by a new breed of Spanish technocrats in the early 1960s, INI still remained a dominant factor in that country's economic life and will continue to do so. It has become a brake to effect on the otherwise unbridled arrival of foreign-owned multinationals in that country.

The Renault Auto Company of France is a government car plant, has manufacturing and semi-fabricating facilities in many parts of Europe and the developing world. Renault competes openly and with increasing global success against such private auto-making multinationals as Japan's Toyota and West Germany's Volkswagen.

It operates to all appearances like any other world-wide car plant, and is the key company in the French automobile industry which employs a surprisingly large 10 per cent of total French working force.

In Britain, the British Steel Corporation (now in private hands)was nationalized under the previous Heath and Wilson Labor governments and as such is one of the world's largest steel producers with marketing, sales and offices in Europe and abroad.

Our own Canadian National Railways wholly owns two substantial American railroads, one in the New England states, the other the Grand Trunk Western in Chicago.

Italy's Enti, an integrated oil and natural gas producer and world gas retailer with service stations as far away as Ethiopia, Kenya and Middle Eastern Arab states, is a giant industry responsible to government and the foreign policy of a nation state, not of a large private oil company. Enil too competes against such oil multinationals as Shell and Exxon in many parts of the world.

In some instances therefore, a state-owned multinational can play a larger foreign policy role than a privately-owned industrial giant.

Cabinets Changes Probable

By DON O'REARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — There is more crystal-ball gazing around here these days than at a gypsy congress.

Cabinet changes are expected any day now.

And the pundits are punditing, the forecasters are forecasting and gossipers are gossiping.

Among the many questions involved are these:

Will the shuffle be a mammoth one, as that of two years ago when ex-Prime Minister except (Agriculture Minister Bill Stewart) dropped out?

Will there also be a big switch-around of deputies?

Will anyone be retired and who?

Abolt the first, the size of the change, the one indicator is that Premier Davis is in control as favoring shifting men and jobs around. And this applies not only to cabinet but to deputies.

He believes, for one thing, that this keeps more pep in the government.

It also can lead to some weird situations. Such as in the shuffle when he moved John Clement, a brand new minister, into consumer and commercial relations and at the same time moved the then deputy, Fred Burnett.

That was like throwing a new fish a black worm, and would seem not only inefficient but boggle.

However, Davis apparently is sold on the theory.

Or at least was. The shape of this next change will tell us whether he still is.

As for retirements and possible appointees, thinking about this has probably tended to spoil the premier's holiday the last two weeks in Florida.

Several names have been mentioned as probably moving out: Judge Walter Little Yeremko, Revenue's Allan Grossman, Social Services' Rene Brunelle, Agriculture's Bill Stewart and Environment's Jim Auld.

Bill Stewart may want to go. But, it's doubtful if the others do. And there probably are only one or two men in the cabinet the premier really would want to get rid of.

Will anyone be retired and who?

Tax Savings Deadline Near

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Editor
Thomson News Service

One more reminder: Time is beginning to run out if you plan to cut your 1973 income taxes by investing in a registered retirement savings plan.

Until the end of February, a large proportion of Canadian taxpayers have the opportunity to invest part of last year's earnings in an RRSP, and to defer the income tax until some future time at a lower rate (choose that part age 70).

Since full income tax on your 1973 earnings may already have been deducted at source, an investment in an RRSP between now and Feb. 28 could result in a tax refund bonus line later in the year. The government even pays you a modest interest on your excess tax pre-payment.

To recap, here is what you may invest tax-free in an RRSP:

—20 per cent of earned income up to $2,500 if you are a member of a non-contributory pension plan.

—If you are a member of a contributory pension plan, the combined contribution to that plan and to your RRSP may not exceed the lesser of 20 per cent of earned income or $5,000.

—20 per cent of earned income up to $2,500 if you are self-employed or not a member of a pension plan.

It is estimated that two of every five Canadians earning more than $10,000 a year invest in such plans. Of those earning between $15,000 and $20,000, 50 per cent are income investors.

In total, Canadians invest about $60 million a year in such plans. (A substantial part of it always comes to be invested toward the Feb. 28 deadline, and only a modest part is brought that Canadian financial markets show in that month).

The advantages to the taxpayer are striking. Each pre-tax dollar invested in an RRSP is equivalent to about $0.75 in unsheltered earnings for those with taxable earned income of $25,000, or $1.82 at the $15,000 taxable level, according to calculations of Brogard, Leslie and Co. Ltd.

The brokerage firm also notes that the benefit of tax deferral on compounding taxable income. At an assumed annual rate of five per cent capital growth and a seven per cent income, the value of $1 in an RRSP doubles in less than 10 years, increases to $4.86 in 30 years, and to more than $10 in 50 years.

These figures are illustrations, not predictions. How an individual RRSP investment depends upon how it is invested—and your choice is wide open.

All kinds of fiscal agents—life insurers, trust companies, insurance brokers, stock—are authorized to establish an RRSP for you.

You may direct that your investment be placed in a common deposit fund, or you may choose a stock fund with specialized objectives (such as a venture fund); in funds made up of bonds and debentures; even in funds that hold residential mortgages—one of today's most flexible investment vehicles.

Such funds are professionally managed, and the investment fee may be levied by the trustee. But you can get a much cut-rate-priced RRSP and retain absolute control over your investment decisions by shifting between stocks and bonds according to your reading of market trends.

Should you have income from such sources as net taxable capital gains, employee stock-option plan benefits, or certain types of lump-sum payments, your RRSP might take the form of a income-averaging annuity.

Life insurers issue such contracts with the annuity guaranteed for life as well as for a minimum period. Trust companies may issue them for a guaranteed period of up to 15 years.

The Holy Spirit takes the guess work out of our Salvation experience. Everyone knows why, but many do not know why. Jesus said, "As my Father hath sent me even so send I you."

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life." John 5:24

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

75 YEARS AGO

January 18, 1954.

Notice has been received by the board of Governors at the Belleville General Hospital that the institution has been approved by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals. Approval by the commission indicated the hospital is giving a satisfactory standard of medical and nursing care to its patients and also is maintaining a satisfactory physical plant with all the necessary facilities.

About 30 members of the local Rifle Club were on hand when Atkinson, president of the Norwood Lions Club, paid an official visit to the local club in the capacity of chairman.

50 YEARS AGO

January 16, 1924.

Despite the fact that the winter is almost half over, a summer-time business carries on with increased activity as several Diamond Jubilee floats are being prepared for shipping to many parts of Canada. Ottonial as it seems during zero and sub zero weather, Mrs. Geo. Hoagland, secretary of the Ivan Glad Gardens is busy preparing these bulbs to roost the demand from gladiolus fanciers.

A few years ago, says Mrs. Boomer, the gladiolus was a rather obscure flower, but it has become one of the leading blossoms in commercial floriculture especially for summer growing.

40 YEARS AGO

January 18, 1934.

At the first session of the city council for this year on Monday, Ald. John H. Harker gave notice that he would introduce a motion to the effect that arrangements be made to have all 1934 taxes paid in three installments. Taxes are now paid in two installments.

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society the following officers were elected: Hon. Presidents, William Harvey, D. Farrell, Charles J. Symons, J.B. Fluday, Alfred Symons; president, Mrs. George Bonnell; first vice president, Mrs. Hoagland; second vice president, Quentin Boyd.

The annual report of Mr. J.O. Hetty, secretary of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, shows that progress is being made by the Chamber.

At the annual business meeting of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, all the officers were re-elected, and the following new deacons were appointed: Messrs. W.B.Riggs, W.H. Merry, A.L. Sidwell, and A.E. Hogle.

Accused Takes Refuge In Mental Hospital

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Dunham Regional police said Tuesday they are unable to serve a warrant for the arrest of a Brooklin, Ont., man on charges of forcible seizure and indecent assault because he signed himself into the Mental Health Centre at Penetanguishene, Ont. Supt. Kenneth Young said a warrant for the arrest of William Dennis O'Donaghue, 32, was issued after he did not appear in Oshawa provincial court Nov. 20 on the charges which involved an 18-year-old Oshawa girl.

He said O'Donaghue was admitted to the hospital for treatment Jan. 3 and that hospital officials told police they could not "execute the warrant as long as he stays in the hospital."

Supt. Young said he does not know when O'Donaghue will be released but that "the fact that the hospital has custody of him we'll issue our warrant."

Hospital officials were unavailable for comment.

Pinups Pilfered

SHAKESPEARE, Ont. (CP) — A selective thief broke into two office buildings on the same night in this western Ontario town, provincial police reported. Missing from both premises was a calendar adorned with pictures of scantily clad girls.

Fireman Lures Youth From Perilous Perch

TORONTO (CP) — A 16-year-old youth threatening to jump from an icy ledge atop a 27-storey tower of Toronto city hall was talked to safety Tuesday by firemen and a minister as thousands watched below.

Ernie Garrison, a city hall security guard, said the 90-minute ordeal began when the unidentified youth, dressed in blue jeans and a long black coat, climb onto a two-foot ledge atop the building's observation deck.

Rush-hour crowds gathered in Nathan Phillips Square and watched as the boy alternately stood, moved about and sometimes dangled his legs over the edge from 4 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. when he gave up.

Fireman Ed Robinson said he spoke to the youth who "shivered so badly" that fireman thought he would fall off.

"I went right up with him. He was as the coupest which wouldn't be more than two feet and, boy, was it slippery. It would've been taken much for him to slip off and he kept dangling his legs over the edge.

"I talked to the kid and got him to have a cup of coffee. He came off the ledge but you couldn't grab him because he was so close to the edge you couldn't hold him."

"He didn't say what his problem was but he was afraid of the uniformed policemen."

Conversation Overheard

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — "I killed your mother." A witness said he heard Merle Smith, 42, say these words into a telephone July 13 after the bodies of Smith's wife, Agnes, 40, and Giuseppe Chiavalli, 44, had been discovered at Chiavalli's cottage near Orillia.

The testimony was heard during the second day of a trial here in which Smith faces nonc capital murder charges in connection with the two deaths.

E. J. "Billie" Vincquez, an employee of Chiavalli, an Orillia contractor, told the court that when he overheard the conversation, he thought Smith was talking to his daughter Diane, 22.

Vincquez told the court Smith had gone on to say that "Joe" needed killing.

Hospitable Brews

"C'mon in for a cuppa!" Cheery words any time, but especially during the winter when a warming cup of tea or coffee helps take the chill away.

All that hospitality requires is the steaming cup or mug and good conversation.

However, more people all the time are discovering the pleasures of "real" coffee and "real" tea.

Not that a cup of instant can't be tasty if it's carefully made and stirred. And instant coffee becomes a special treat if you take Home Economics teacher Bunty Hitchon's advice and add a drop of vanilla extract to each cup. (Keep an eyedropper by your vanilla bottle, and keep your vanilla bottle beside your instant coffee jar.) You'll discover your coffee has a richer taste that you and your guests will love.

There are many other ways you can make coffee or tea a unique entertaining drink. Here are a few suggestions for types of teas and coffees to buy and some dress-up recipes.

TEAS

To make a good cup of tea, be sure your teapot (an earthenware one is best) is clean and warm before putting the tea in.

Use a level teaspoon of tea for most tastes.

Add freshly drawn water that has been brought to a furious boil.

Brew at least four minutes, and drink the tea as soon as it is brewed. (Separate the leaves from the brew if it has to sit for any length of time.)

Most teas we buy are blended teas, combining leaves from plants grown in more than one country or area. For a change, try one of the "pure" teas which have a very individual character.

Darjeeling is a tea that comes from foothills of the Himalayan mountains of Northern India. The special climatic and soil conditions of this area give Darjeeling tea its own unique, delicate flavor, reminiscent of the muscatel grape. The golden amber liquor of a Darjeeling brew should be sipped like a rare wine.

Infuse Darjeeling tea a little longer - - - about seven minutes - - - and give it a stir to bring out all the goodness.

Lapsang Souchong from China has an intriguing smoky flavor and aroma but is such a strong taste that many people prefer it mixed with Indian or Ceylonese tea for a tasty brew.

Keemun tea is a smooth black China tea that is popular with those who find other teas disagree with them.

Formosa Oolong, semi-fermented tea, is neither black nor green but an in-between tea with a natural, fruity flavor.

Japanese and Chinese green teas are perfect served with Oriental meals, and of course must not be "spoiled" with milk or sugar. All teas, in fact, are best taken clear so that their own individual taste can be appreciated.

A touch of lemon enhances the flavor of many teas. You might also like to try a squeeze of orange juice and a clove in your next pot for a sweet and spicy brew.

A few dried mint leaves added to a teapot will give your tea a lovely fresh aroma and taste.

If you're taking a thermos along on a winter outing, add sugar and a lot of rum to an extra strong brew of black tea.

For an afternoon "occasion" serve cups of jasmine tea, using honey as sweetener.

Pungent Hot Tea

1 quart boiling water
2 tablespoons tea or 8 teabags
¼ cup honey
¼ cup lemon juice
one-eighth teaspoon Tabasco
6 cloves lemon
6 cinammon sticks

Pour boiling water over the tea in a heat-resistant pitcher. Add honey, lemon juice and Tabasco. Stir. Serve hot in six mugs with a slice of lemon and a cinammon stick in each.

If you have several types of tea and coffee on hand, a good way to keep them fresh is to store them in glass jars. With neatly-printed labels the jars make a pretty addition to the corner where you keep your cups and pots.

Hot Fruit Tea

three-quarters cup honey
6 cloves
1 short stick cinammon
¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ cup water
1½ cups pineapple juice
juice of two lemons
2 cups strong hot tea
12 maraschino cherries with syrup
1 orange sliced thin

Simmer honey, cloves, cinammon and salt in water for five minutes. Strain. Add juices and tea. Bring to a boil. Add cherries and sliced orange. Yields about ten cups.

COFFEES

There are several methods available for making good coffee. Whichever one you use - - percolator, drip, vacuum or filter - there are a few rules to follow to ensure success.

Begin with a thoroughly clean coffee maker, and use fresh water.

The coffee you use should be fresh. (If you're a true devotee you'll have equipment to grind your own). Store coffee beans or grounds in airtight containers.

Measure coffee accurately. Use one tablespoon of coffee for each cup of coffee you make. Remember that the coffee will taste only as strong as you make it.

Most coffees available at the supermarket are blends of coffee beans from various countries. (Most of the world's finest coffees come from South America, but some excellent ones are exported from Arabia and Africa.)

The price of coffee has increased over the past few months so that serving a cup of coffee may soon become a special event, as it used to be when the habit first caught on in the western world, more than 300 years ago.

Here are some methods for making your coffee distinctive now, and also for stretching coffee farther by adding other ingredients.

Cinammon sticks used to stir coffee impart a nice spicy flavor.

Cracked cardamom seeds (half three or four) in the bottom of a cup of coffee will give a Far-Eastern air to the drink.

Coffee combines well with several liquors, among them Crem de Cacao, Tia Maria, Drambuie and Cointreau.

Irish coffee combines hot strong sweetened coffee, Irish whiskey and whipped cream floating on top. This beverage makes a good close to a dinner-party, or a good opening to an evening of bridge or conversation.

A nice way to start the day is cafe au lait, made with equal parts strong hot coffee and hot milk. Holding the pot of coffee in one hand and the pot of hot milk in the other, pour them out simultaneously into a cup.

Viennese Coffee

1 cup strong, hot coffee
sugar to taste
1 rounded teaspoon whipped cream

Serve the cup of coffee with the whipped cream floating on top.

Chocolate Coffee

1 cup hot coffee
1 teaspoon chocolate syrup whipped cream shaved sweet chocolate

Combine coffee and chocolate syrup in a cup. Top with cream and shaved chocolate.

Caroline Campbell has been a model for 23 years. She started modelling in Montreal and Toronto fashion shows when she was 50 but stopped when her husband died. She began again last year, this time as a self-supporting model in New York. (CP Photo)

More Active Than Ever

OTTAWA (CP) — Take it from a 73-year-old model: "The more active you are, the less tired you get."

Caroline Campbell began modelling in Montreal and Toronto fashion shows when she was 50. She stopped when her second husband died but began again last year, this time as a self-supporting model in New York.

She uses her maiden name, Caroline Hogkins, when she works and usually she portrays grandmothers. She says the demand for older models is greater than some may think.

Describing her modelling career in an interview, she said: "It usually takes from six months to a year for you to become known. Often you can go for weeks without an assignment.

"You really have to have some other means of support while you are starting out."

Mrs. Campbell was here to see Glengarry Days, a musical production conducted by her son Ken, one of Canada's better-known musical arrangers.

She says she hopes to make television commercials next year. An assignment such as modelling for a cosmetic company pays $60 an hour.

Her more active pursuits include a lot of walking, golf and bowling. She knits while she watches television and is taking up painting.

As well as eating sensibly and getting adequate exercise, Mrs. Campbell says older people should have less concern for minor sicknesses and aches.

"I rarely get sick, and when I do, I throw it off quickly," says the native of Thunder Bay, Ont. Mrs. Campbell wants to return to Canada to live, perhaps to Vancouver.

She makes almost all her own clothes and many dancing costumes for her daughter.

Mrs. Campbell adds: "I could never stand to have everything stay the same. When there is no excitement, I try to stir some up. Otherwise you get in a terrible rut."

Family Planning Group Plans Sexuality Talks

Belleville's Family Planning Association will sponsor a series of five lectures in sexuality beginning January 22.

The course, Sessions in Sexuality, is open to the public and will be held Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. at Loyalist College.

Secretary for the Association Bev. Yeates says the series was planned as a public service. There is no charge for the lecture series.

On January 22, Dr. Marion Powell, director of the Population Unit, University of Toronto, will speak on Sexuality and Communication.

On January 29, Scott Orfald, supervisor of Family and Children's Services for Hastings County, and Ann Orfald, Belleville General Hospital psychologist, will discuss Sex and Sexuality.

Responsible Sexuality and Contraceptive Techniques will be discussed February 5 by Dr. Paul MacKenzie, gynaecologist, Hotel Dieu, Kingston.

On February 12, Morals and Sexuality will be discussed by Ray Cunnington.

Role Playing in Sexuality, February 19 will be discussed by Steven Forrester, Theatre Arts, Moira Secondary School and Lesley Forrester, social worker, Trenton Family and Children's Center.

Mrs. Yeates said that persons may register for the series by telephoning the Family Planning Association office at 968-7533 from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. or from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Any or all of the lectures may be attended.

They will be held in Building E, Room 253 A, Loyalist College.

Persons who have not registered may attend and will be admitted if there is sufficient space.

HIGHER RATE

Between 1961 and 1971, Canada's female population rose 28.1 per cent, compared with a male increase of 27.2 per cent.

People and Events

Ann Landers

She Took High Road

Dear Ann Landers: I have followed your column ever since it began to run in the Boston Globe and you've given me real insight into what millions of people are thinking. Either they are casting about for a new affair, are bored stiff with the old one, feeling guilty about a recent indiscretion or sick and tired of the sex life they are experiencing within marriage. In short, it seems like the whole world revolves around sex.

Twenty-two years ago my husband suffered a stroke. It paralyzed his right arm, his right leg and his vocal cords. He walks with a cane but he has never regained his speech. All he can say is "yes" and "no" and call my name. He reads a great deal, his comprehension is good and we communicate well.

Although he has been sexually impotent all these years, it never occurred to me to have an affair. I've raised two fine children and have had a full and busy life without sex. According to today's standards I am mad. Several concerned friends have told me that one day I'll regret it. What do you think?—Content.

Dear Content: Many women in your position would have done things differently and orders. If it means you, she probably does.

Dear Ann Landers: I am single and have been dating a divorced man for 10 months. He hasn't said one word about marriage. In fact he seems perfectly content to go on this way forever. I don't want to appear pushy, but I would like to know if this man has any intention of marrying me. I've grown very fond of him and we've gotten very chummy. If you know what I mean. Any advice?—Brown Eyes

Dear B.E.: Yeah, I know what you mean, and my advice is to stop being coy and ask him. Don't be surprised if he tells you he likes things the way they are. And why shouldn't he? He probably has been enjoying all the pleasures of marriage and none of the responsibilities. It's beautiful—for him they are always welcome to pile in on their parents but they to get that parents are people and maybe mom would like to be invited to dinner once in a while. They tell us all about their barbecues and dinners they give for 20 and 30 friends, but when it comes to mom and dad—oh, well.—Our Phone Is Still Working

Dear Phone: Here's your letter. And if any [illegible] daughter-in-law) out there with Dummy.

Successful Living

Pregnant Girl Needs Support

By DORIS CLARK

"I was shocked when a young girl, a graduate of [illegible] months, explained why he was late for a dinner meeting.

He said a sixteen-year-old patient had come for the last appointment scheduled for his day. He saw she was greatly upset, and when he found out the reason he sent his assistant home, closed the door and let her talk. They talked for an hour.

Between sobs she told him her story. She was pregnant and scared to death. Her father and mother had told her she must go immediately to some big city in the United States and have an abortion.

No one must know anything about it.

He said the best thing he could think of was to send her to her minister or priest. I don't doubt but that said minister or priest would help her to get to the agency where a trained social worker would give her the guidance she so sorely needed.

But this help ought to have come from her own parents! If a girl ever needed moral and practical support from those who were closest to her, it was then. What parent dares to stand in awe of a youngster's fear and failure? What parent can assume self - righteous virtue - to the point of sending a sixteen-year-old off into an unknown world to have a desperately frightening experience.

He was a fine young dentist.

Dear Doris: We have a 22-year-old son whom we have always thought the world of, but recently I learned that he is a homosexual.

It has been a terrible blow to me and further, I am so afraid that if his father finds out it will mean a terrible flare-up and a possible rift in the family, as he would not understand that in any way.

Should I say anything to the boy, tell his dad, or just sit back and hope he will straighten himself out?

A Truly Worried Mother.

Dear Truly: My consulting psychiatrist takes exception to the term "homosexual", pointing out that this should not be a label summing up a human personality. Every individual is a complete human being with many other attributes besides the sexual ones, such as being a citizen, a friend, a worker, and so on.

He will agree that there are behaviors offensive to some people that are not offensive to others, but when it comes to what people do in their bedrooms he suggests that it is not our affair. He says, "If the boy and his father have any rapport with each other, as with any rapport, it will depend on neither of them offending the other: the son with his sexual preferences or the father with his prejudices.

"If they've thought the world of him in the past, there is no reason not to continue to do so."

To this I would add that there is obviously no point in revealing the present situation to the boy's father. He will get no sympathy nor understanding from him, obviously. As for you, your boy - an adult now - needs your love just as he always has and you need his.—Have enough patience and the time may come when you can help him get counselling which could help.

Truck Rolls On Freeway

A Wakefield, Vermont man was treated for head lacerations and an injured right wrist at Belleville General Hospital last night after the pickup truck in which he was a passenger, went out of control and flipped over on High-way 401, near the Albens Road.

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police were called out to investigate the accident around 6.55 p.m. yesterday after a passing motorist phoned and told them he had seen a car roll over on the highway.

Jonathan Jenkins, 30, was injured when the driver of the wife, Francis M. Jenkins, 29, was driving west out of control on the snow-covered highway and rolled in the westbound lane.

Police estimated damage from the accident to be approximately $400.

Car Spins Off Road

A Belleville man received minor injuries but did not require hospital treatment after the car he was driving went out of control on Highway 14 and struck several guide posts last night.

Ross Sheldon Burtt, of 117 Dufferin Street, Belleville, was reported to have been driving south on Highway 14, near Foxboro, when he met an unidentified northbound car in the southbound lane. Swerving to avoid an accident, he crossed the west side shoulder of the roadway and struck several guide posts with his left front fender.

The accident occurred at 8.10 p.m.

Concert Tonight

Belleville Community Concert Association tonight holds the second concert of its current season at the first of the new year.

The recital presents Maxi-Hon, violinist, and Tung Kwong-Sze, pianist, in concert at Belleville Collegiate auditorium at 8.30 p.m.

Y to Mark Birthday Sunday

In conjunction with a week-long cross-Canada celebration of the YMCA's 122rd anniversary, the Belleville branch is commemorating its own anniversary.

Only the 40th year in Belleville isn't going to be celebrated with any fanfare, says Y general secretary Di Diamantides. Other than an open house for the community Sunday, they won't be tooting its 40-years-old horn.

And the purpose of the open house starting at 2 p.m.? Mr. Diamantides says, "It's to make the Y known to the community and to show people it's an integral part of the community."

However, this philosophy doesn't just apply to the public at large. The Y is inviting various organizations in Belleville to informal chats and luncheons with the board of directors.

Yesterday, the Quinte District Labor Council met with the board. Friday, the east end Y has invited members of the Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Commission.

During the open house Sunday, a day which will include free swims and trampoline demonstrations, the Y will draw six names from a barrel and award monthly membership.

Board Will Buy a Bus

Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board will soon call for tenders for a new school bus to serve Sacred Heart School in Marmora.

It will replace a 1966, 65-passenger school bus inherited by the board from the former Marmora and Deloro separate school board.

The new bus will cost about $10,500, with the ministry of education giving a grant of about $9,900 toward its purchase.

A board-owned bus can be operated more economically than a contracted one in most cases, administrators said. It can be used for field trips and to bus students to home economics and industrial arts classes.

Ice Dredging Eases Rising River Level

Ice is being dredged from the mouth of the Moira River after the waterway suddenly began rising in downtown Belleville during the past week.

The problem is as old as the community: Slush ice is formed as temperatures stay consistently low. Carried downstream, it plugs the main river channel at Victoria Park, causing the water to back up in the city centre.

In recent years, the situation has been resolved by dredging -- undertaken by the city's public works department.

Angus Duffy, Quinte Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator, says a recent sustained cold spell helped speed blockage in the past week. The Moira has been rising anywhere up to 12 inches.

The situation also is compounded by a rising Lake Ontario, said Mr. Duffy, which in turn means higher water in the Bay of Quinte.

Reason for the rise is that the runoff from the upper Great Lakes -- notably Lake Superior -- that sometimes may take up to three years to affect Lake Ontario, now is affecting the lower lake.

Operations to clear the Moira channel started Sunday when the surface was covered. Ice is hauled from the river by crane bucket and piled elsewhere in the park by bulldozer.

Beevor Named Superintendent

Wally Beevor, principal of Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc, has been appointed superintendent of schools with the Hastings county board of education.

Mr. Beevor, 53, replaces J. C. Garrett of Tweed, who retired at Christmas. The new superintendent will assume his position March 18. He will be responsible for Centennial and HCI secondary school groups and will have curriculum responsibilities in the pure and applied science field.

Mr. Beevor, a physical education specialist, began teaching in Hagersville and later moved to Albens as head of the physical education department. He came to Belleville as head of the physical education department at BCI, where he taught four years.

Mr. Beevor was vice-principal at Centre Hastings for two years before becoming principal a year ago.

He has served on the advisory council of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation and last year conducted the summer school principals courses at Queen's University.

A principal will be appointed sometime in March to replace Mr. Beevor at Centre Hastings.

Separate Board Expects Shortage

A shortage of separate school teachers is forecast for next year, and the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board is taking steps now to ensure it of its share.

The board met Tuesday night to begin advertising immediately for 21 teachers for next September.

Although there has been a glut of teachers in recent years, the smaller separate school boards anticipate a shortage of Catholic elementary school teachers in the coming year.

All elementary school teachers are required to have a pass bachelor's degree before entering a year-long course in a teachers' college.

In addition, a separate school teacher must be an active, practising Roman Catholic.

The local separate school board will increase its program next year — necessitating an increase in teachers. The proportion of Catholic teachers graduating from teachers' colleges is less than that of Protestant teachers.

All these factors have led to apprehension about employment possibilities for next year.

Larger boards, especially those in Toronto, are now advertising for teachers, and the local board will not be far behind.

Hiring will be on a provisional basis, dependent upon enrolments next September.

Found Impaired, Snowmobiler Fined

A Frankford man convicted of driving a snowmobile while impaired, was yesterday fined $175 when he appeared in provincial court.

Charles O'Sullivan, 34, was arrested by police last Dec. 23 after he was found driving a snowmobile along Frankford's Main Street without a head lamp.

Court was told that just prior to his arrest, O'Sullivan had driven through a main intersection in the town on the wrong side of the road. He was charged at 55 miles an hour when he crossed the roadway and just missed hitting a car, Crown Attorney Glenn Stelling said.

After crossing the intersection, O'Sullivan then drove his snowmobile up onto the railroad right of way. He was stopped by police after he lost control of his vehicle and stalled the engine.

When taken to the police station for a breathalizer test O'Sullivan had a reading of 146 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood.

The criminal code calls for a conviction against a driver who has a reading in excess of 80 milligrams.

In addition to the impaired driving conviction, O'Sullivan was fined $25.00 for failing to register his snowmobile with the office of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

O'Sullivan pleaded guilty to both charges when he appeared before Judge J. L. Clendenning.

Fund Week Declared

TRENTON— Town council has officially proclaimed Jan. 21-26 as Ability Fund Week.

Council was responding to a letter from fund worker Mildred Jackson who stated campaign organizers were arranging a residential donation blitz for Jan. 21.

The local operation is connected with the March of Dimes and proceeds go to the rehabilitation of the disabled.

City, County Ties Strong

New Warden Realizes A Lifetime Ambition

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A lifetime ambition for a 67-year-old North Hastings municipal official was realized Tuesday at Hastings county council.

At the 1974 inaugural session of the county, Faraday Reeve John McKenzie was named county warden — a post he said he had entertained for many years.

"Since first coming to county council (back in the late 1940s) it has been my ambition . . . to become warden, he told council in his inaugural speech.

His only regret was that his father, who had many years' service in municipal life, could not have seen him take the office.

Warden McKenzie, veteran of seven years on county council with his municipal life dating back over a long period was the wardenship over two other aspirants — Reeve William McCrea of Hungerford and Reeve George Lyons of Dereham.

He was sworn in by Prince Edward county clerk Thomas Walker, punch hitting for Hastings clerk-administrator Carl Bateman, who is in hospital recuperating from surgery.

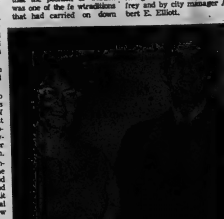
The new warden, who succeeds Thurlow Reeve Howard Carey, last year's council head, admitted that his new position carried with it a great deal of responsibility. But he said the responsibility of his fellow councillors was equally large.

"It is you who will be making the decisions that will set the destiny of this county for years to come."

Warden McKenzie expressed the county's responsibility to the city of Belleville and to Trenton and Prince Edward county for their co-operation over the years.

"Without that co-operation we could not have provided the services we have today."

The new warden referred to the extended area of Hastings and said that while some of the northern townships might feel oriented toward Peterborough, 'at the same time, however, they always remember Belleville in their county town.



"And offering a spirit of continued co-operation with the city, Warden McKenzie said the county was "ready and willing" at any time to sit down and discuss mutual problems so they "could grow together."

He said the county needed Belleville but at the same time the city also needed the county.

In addition to swearing in the 1974 warden, acting clerk Walker also presided over business of the inaugural session. Rev. William Bowker, of the Bancroft Protocostal Church gave the benediction.

Noting that the 1974 warden was the 115th man to hold this position since the county was organized block in 1856, Mr. Walker told the assembly that the position of warden was one of the few situations that had carried on down through the years.

Congratulations to the new warden were extended by Hastings MPP Charles T. Bailline, Hastings MP Jack Ellis, and by Belleville representatives, Alderman Ben Corbett filling in for Mayor Robin Jeffery and by city manager Albert E. Elliott.

New Park Plans Draw Protest

Development of a new provincial park in northern Hastings County has drawn some strong reservations from the head of the municipality for which it's planned.

The park at Papineau Lake, about 36 miles northeast of Bancroft in Hastings-Haliburton-McClure township is part of a $21-million provincial park development program announced Tuesday by Natural Resources Minister Bert Benier.

Other projects include:

— Expansion of the present picnic site at picturesque Lake in the Mountain near Picton around the entire shoreline of lake.

— Study of two additional park locations to meet growing recreational needs along the Trent waterway. Locations of these new parklands will be announced later.

It will be developed on 1,900 acres on the southwest shore of the lake, a trladling the Wicklow - Bangor boundary north of Highway 62. The Papineau project is designed to ease pressure on other provincial parks in the immediate region — Lake St. Peter in McClure, the extreme northwest of Hastings, and Bon Echo near Perry's Bay.

But Reeve Felix Brown indicated concern that the park -- while easing pressures on other waterfront areas in the district -- could also bring overdevelopment problems to Papineau. The shoreline already is well settled by cottagers, he said.

The reeve also said the provincial government had not informed the municipality of its intentions and -- while he had heard of the proposal for last year -- no official notification had come from the province. As a result, the township was not certain of its financial status on development of such services as roads.

He said he intended to lodge an objection with provincial officials in the immediate future.

Mr. Bernier in his announcement said study groups and public opinion would be involved in the development.

Land acquisition is estimated at $110,000, development $750,000.

The 1,000 acres involved at Papineau is mainly bushland some of which could be Crown land.

The Lake on the Mountain plan will expand a 166 acre picnic site to a 505 acres. The lake is a topographical novelty, retained atop the land with a spectacular view of the Bay of Quinte.

Early legend attributed its source to an underground river fed by Lake Erie.

Prince Edward, a prime recreation area, has three other big provincial parks — Outlet, Sandbanks on the North Beach at Consecon.

"We had to relieve some of the pressures in some parks already established," Mr. Bernier said in making the announcement. His staff had picked areas of high recreational usage.

The six park developments announced are within 150 miles of the Niagara-Oshawa Golden Horseshoe urban sprawl with a population of nearly four million.

Within long weekends and during the peak vacation months, many provincial parks within easy driving distance of the Golden Horseshoe operate at full capacity and many facilities are turned away," said Mr. Bernier.

He said there would be study groups, advisory committees and the public would be consulted in the development of the parks.

Costs are estimated at $8 million for land acquisition and $17 million for development over-the next five to seven years.

The province hopes to negotiate fair prices for acreages owned by private residents and hopes "we will not have to expropriate" - said Mr. Bernier.

Other areas involved are Komoka area near London; Blackstone Harbor 25,000 feet of shoreline and islands, the first major park along the lakeside section of Georgian Bay near Parry Sound; Quetico Park, near Burleigh Falls in the Peterborough area; a 205-acre extension to Darlington provincial park, including the most significant waterfowl habitat between Hamilton and Presqu'ile, in the Quinte district.

Bad Weather But . . .

Yesterday the weather was bad for driving, but it was a nice day to receive a new car. For the second time in a little more than a year the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund came to the assistance of the Quinte branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses. They presented the nurses with a brand new Mercury Comet to help them make their rounds in the Belleville area. Here, Mercury Comet to help them make their rounds in the Belleville area. Here, Ernie Belanger, secretary-treasurer of the fund, shows the VON's nurse-in-charge, Valerie Truax, some of the features of the new auto. The nurses need the car. At present the nurses have only six cars that must be shared between eight travelling nurses.

Questions Raised By Film on Drugs

Gale Parsons was 19 when she died.

She was living in a squalid basement flat in the east end of London along with several other drug addicts when she died of an overdose of heroin.

The dose that killed her was self-administered.

Last night, however, a small group of 25 people met in the upstairs art gallery of the County Public Library to review the events that led to Gale's addiction to heroin and to her death.

For 50 minutes they watched a British broadcasting Corporation film entitled Gale Is Dead. Then in a 10-minute question period, they tried to answer the questions raised by the film.

What factors lead to drug use? What caused Gale's death? What is the drug scene like in Belleville? Is society to be blamed for her death?

There were more questions than answers, but then that was the object of the exercise.

Last night's film showing and discussion period was the third in a four-part series of public information programs being sponsored by the library.

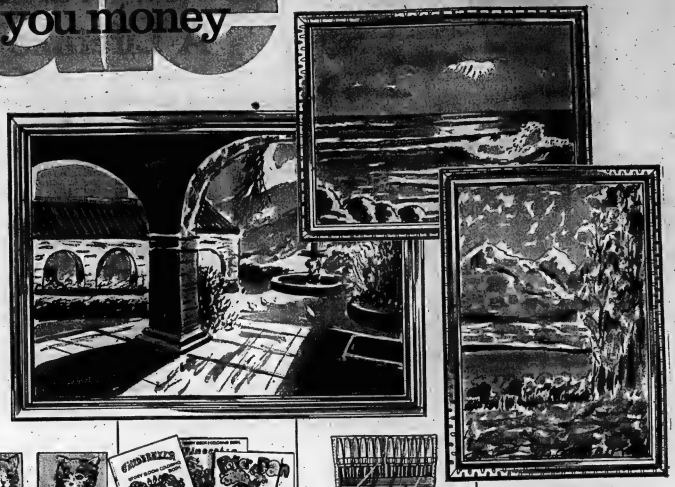
The series, content No Easy Answer, has been run at the library at 8 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday for the past two weeks.

Having set their goal to communicate and clarify some of the issues involved in the drug question, the library staff has made a special film - fiction available to the public. Films on topics as wide ranging as the rehabilitation of drug addicts and the benifits of a creative and stimulating working environment, are available for those people who want to preview them between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The last of this discussion groups will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. when Inspector Ralph Blanchard, of the Belleville police department, will act as a resource person in a discussion of the legal implications of drug use and addiction.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Wednesday.



Tuesday, Jan. 15, malfunction in the alarm system at the Quinte Mall, 2:34 p.m.

Newfoundlanders Return to Coal

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The growing anxiety about the shortage of heating oil and the climbing cost of the product has led many householders in Newfoundland to turn back to the old reliable—coal.

During the last decade or so, thousands of Newfoundlanders have patterned themselves on the North American image, driving gas-guzzling cars and switching from coal and wood for cooking and heating to more convenient fi, gas and electricity.

Once there were many major centres of Nova Scotia and United States coal scattered across the province but now only a few remain.

The only coal dealer on the populous Avalon Peninsula says the company has noted an increased demand for coal.

A spokesman for Avalon Coal and Sand Co. said there now is more interest and demand for coal and the firm has been bringing it in by train and boat, some from as far away as Virginia. The cost of coal to the consumer is roughly $48 a ton plus a provincial sales tax of seven per cent and, in most cases, a municipal tax of 50 cents to $1 a ton is tacked on.

Smaller amounts may be purchased but costs considerably more. In St. John's, a 64-pound bag retails for $1.75 with a limited delivery distance.

Meanwhile, some people, especially in outport communities, who have gone back to the land to produce their wn vegetables to beat the rising cost of food, may soon be heading back to the forests for heating supplies.

James Pike, manager of Great Eastern Oil and Import Co., the province' slargest retailer of coal and wood stoves, says he has received numerous inquiries about the availability and cost of such stoves.

The stoves no longer available as separate units but are sold as a combination of wood-coal and oil burners.

St. John's merchants have noticed a heavy demand fr electric blankets and electric heating units. One sales office reported sales of electric heaters to be 20 times the volume of the same period last year.

One salesman said his company brought in a carload of electric baseboard heating units. It took a full day to unload the shipment, he said, and all were sold to electrical contractors the following day in just a few hours.

Depression Choir Good

EDMONTON (CP) — One of Western Canada's leading church organists and choir leaders looks back on the Depression years with nostalgia, but emphasizes he does not want to return to that era.

Hugh Bancroft, who came to All Saints' Anglican Cathedral 15 years ago after a career that took him from his native England to Winnipeg, Vancouver, Sydney, Australia and Nassau, said his best boys' choir was in Winnipeg.

"It was during the Depression and there wasn't any television," he said in an interview.

When he came to Edmonton 15 years ago, he had 13 choir boys and "now I only have eight and would like about 16."

He is concerned that fewer boys seem interested in singing in the boys' section of the choir, an experience for eight-to-14-year-olds that provides an opportunity to gain life-long friends and sing both modern and traditional church music.

Some former boys choir members have gone on to musical careers.

One of the boys in his choirs at St. Matthew's and All Saints in Winnipeg became music department head at University of Western Ontario.

Another is Rev. Doug Stewart, now at St. Timothy's Anglican Church in Edmonton. Still another became a Rhenan Catholic priest and a fourth boy won a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Art.

"One of the advantages is that it develops a sense of responsibility insofar as regularity of attendance is concerned and they often make life-long friends," Mr. Bancroft said.

He attributed today's dwindling interest to television, hockey and many other conflicting interests and opportunities.

"When I had a very good choir at All Saints' in Winnipeg, it was during the Depression and there wasn't any television," he said.

"I don't hope for another Depression, just more choir boys."

Rome Rents Up Sharply

ROME (Reuter) — Sunshine, cheap wine and low rents used to make Rome one of the world's most coveted emigration goals for poets and painters, pensioners and pedants and anyone else on a shoestring.

No more. A real estate boom sent prices soaring for both rental and purchase housing.

Statistics gathered by Sunia, a rent-payers' union, show that newly-constructed apartments now cost 35 per cent more than five months ago in Italy, while rises of 27 per cent are reported for other rental housing.

In colorful Old Rome, an 11-square-mile area embracing such landmarks as the Spanish Steps, Piazza Navona, the market square of Campo di Fiori and the Trastevere quarter, prices for both rental and purchase housing have doubled in one year.

The values of seaside and mountain resort properties within easy reach of Rome have doubled in two years.

A typical apartment with a balcony in Old Rome—living-room, two small bedrooms, kitchen and bath—sells for about 75 million lire ($131,500) if in good condition.

The same flat, without kitchen equipment or furnishings, is let for about 300,000 lire ($526) monthly after a minimum 600,000 lire deposit.

A flock of lawyers specialize in suiting low-income fam- who have been paying nominal rents for decades. There have been 26,000 evictions in Rome alone in three years.

There is also a trend in modern Roman residential areas for huge real estate corporations to buy up apartment buildings and then advise tenants that they may either purchase their apartments or get out.

Because real estate prices are so high, the families often have to leave.

When it was announced in November that 380 new low-rent flats would be leased by the government to low-income families, 10,000 applications were received.

Real estate values are so high in Rome that few developers feel they can afford to leave open spaces in a city that already has only 8.4 square yards of park area per inhabitant, compared with 12 square yards per person in London and 24 square yards in Paris.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Question: On the few short trips I have made in the past, I have never felt it necessary to make advance reservations for accomodations. Now I expect to be doing longer range driving. What would be your advice about making advance reservations.

Answer: It is always wise to make reservations. This is particularly true in resort areas, at places where special events are being held, or during peak travel seasons in any region.

If you prefer to make your own reservations, remember that hotels and motels ordinarily do not demand a deposit with reservations, but a reservation is more likely to be held if a deposit does accompany the request. Resorts invariably require a payment. As a general rule, a reservation without a deposit will be released to other guests if it is not claimed by 6 p.m. unless the establishment agrees to a later time of arrival.

In requesting reservations, always include the number of persons in your party, the ages of any children, type of accomodations desired, length of stay, date and estimated hour of arrival and the rate desired.

Remember that your reservation does not guarantee that you will receive the type of room desired, at the price specified, unless the reservation has been confirmed.

If you find that you are unable to keep your reservations, telephone or wire the hotel or motel so the space can be released to another party.

Usually, there is no difficulty in obtaining refunds for deposits on reservations made at conventional hotels or overnight motels if cancellation is given 48 hours before your scheduled arrival.

Where a deposit is involved, you should have a definite understanding as to the length of time required for cancellation notice and refund of your deposit. Most resorts have specific refund policies varying from as little as 24 hours to 30 or more days. The guest who fails to cancel by the prescribed time has little recourse if a refund is refused.

Question: We understand that there is a period in the spring when a number of the gardens in Virginia are thrown open to the public. Have you any information on when this is?

Answer: Historic Garden Week in Virginia, traditionally scheduled the last full week in April, is the largest private home and garden visitation event in the United States. More than 300 lovely estates, not otherwise open to the public, extend the hospitality of their homes and gardens to visitors. The event, started in 1928, is sponsored by the Garden Club of Virginia, which uses the proceeds for the authentic restoration of grounds and gardens of historic shrines in Virginia not privately owned.

Two other popular spring events include the International Azalea Festival, at Norfolk and vicinity, a week in April and the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival, at Winchester, a three day event in late April.

Other important events include the Wild Pony Roundup on Chincoteague Island, the last Wednesday in July; Virginia Highlands Arts and Crafts Festival at Abingdon, late week in July, first two weeks in August; Shenandoah Music Festival, Orkney Springs and Woodstock, two weeks in August; National Tobacco Festival, Richmond, in mid-October; Virginia's annual autumn festival of events, and Christmas in Williamsburg, mid-December through first of the year.

Library Corner

OUBFACING — Margaret Atwood.

Margaret Atwood has again created a sensitive work of fiction. In this latest novel the central character's past unfolds as she searches for her missing father, and re-examines a childhood in the bush of Northern Quebec. During the course of a few days the truth about her life becomes clear and the narrative builds to a startling climax.

THE WORD — Irving Wallace.

An Italian archaeologist discovers an ancient Aramaic text revealing a new gospel written by James, a young brother of Jesus. To the world at large, the discovery, if it is genuine, will come as a revelation, a reversal of faith, in an age of doubt and fear. To the world of Bible publishers and theologians who have guarded the secret since its discovery and gambled their lives and fortunes on its authenticity, the "Word" is a business enterprise of awesome magnitude. The central character in the story, public relations man Randall, is given the job of introducing the "New Testament" to the world; he decides to do some investigating on his own, and finds himself caught up in a web of intrigue which takes him across Europe to Italy where he finds his answers in the breathtaking climax.

GREEN DARKNESS — Anya Seton.

Anya Seton's latest novel revolves around the theme of reincarnation. The chronicles of the Marsdon family have been kept for the past several hundred years. An entry dated 1585 relates the death of a younger son, a Benedictine monk, and speculates on the possible connection between his death and the simultaneous disappearance of a young woman. The question remains unanswered until 1958, when Richard Marsdon brings his young bride Celia to the family home, Medfield Place. Celia finds herself in the possession of forces beyond her control. With the help of Dr. Alexanda she is able to relive the past and so escape it.

ONE LIFE—Christiaan Barnard.

This is the story of Christiaan Barnard the man, as well as Christiaan Barnard the medical pioneer of the first human heart transplant. With rare insight and candor he tells of his childhood and the indelible influence of his devout parents, his rigorous student days of hardship, disappointments and driving ambition, which eventually brought him to the top of his profession. Then came the opportunity to study in America with the foremost heart surgeons which led to the momentous operation on Louis Washkansky in 1967.

THE FIRE-DWELLERS — Margaret Laurence.

Canadian writer Margaret Laurence has written what may be her most human and compelling novel in the "Fire-dwellers". Stacey McAindra with her husband and four children, her secret fears and desires, in every woman, but most essentially herself, and one to which every woman can relate.

A THREAD IN THE TAPESTRY — Sarah Churchill.

Sarah Churchill writes this book not as a biography of her father, but rather the essence of what it was to be his daughter. The childhood days at Chartwell; famous visitors and her father's sometimes formidable ways with his children. Her decision to become an actress imposes a test on the family unity, but she tells of her father's wisdom and kindness at this time. After his defeat in the general election of 1945, Sarah accompanied her father, Sir Winston, to Lake Como, and this is perhaps the most moving and illuminating part of her story. Sarah claims to be only a thread in the great tapestry of her father's life, but many readers will value her book above more formal records.

Plane or Ship?

The hovercraft -- is it an aircraft or a ship? Britain's legislation dealing with hovercraft has come down on the side of aircraft and other countries are falling into agreement. This is the Hoverlloyd which runs between southern England and mainland Europe. The craft cruises at 50 knots, eight feet off the surface, carrying up to 37 vehicles and 288 passengers. (CP Photo)

Old Hand at Senior A, Rutledge Is Optimistic

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

When the Belleville Eagles announced a week ago that the club franchise had changed hands and the team had taken on's new coach, a lot of people shrugged their shoulders and agreed that it was going to take a lot more than changes at the executive level to make a winning team out of the seniors.

At the beginning of the season, the Eagles looked like they were in better shape than they had been in several years.

Many new faces were out trying to make the team and quite a few of those were young faces. Belleville found itself with an average player, age of 23.

The new talent appeared to bring a new light to the team and the young players seemed to bring out the best, forcing them to use their experience to make up for what the years had taken away.

And in all it looked as though the seniors were going to be the top, says equipment manager George Rutledge.

George has been around the club for years helping out and handling equipment, but has only recently moved into that title. He's seen a lot of senior hockey pass through Belleville and been in direct contact with the players through all of that time.

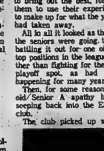
"I don't know what it was," says George, "but there was something that was under-mining the spirit of the team."

There had to be a change or nobody was going to get anywhere," added George. "I don't know the new coach, but I've heard he is a real disciplinarian and that's what this team needs to bring it together."

"All the team lacks is the desire to win and if the new coach is as good as he's cheaded up to be he'll be able to get the fellows inspired enough to go out and play the way they can and start winning hockey games."

There are a great bunch of guys and there's enough talent here that they can beat any team in the league if they play the way they're capable of playing. Once they get themselves on the right track all it will take is a win or two from the fans to get them on top."

The Eagles have had a new face out to practices in the last couple of weeks in the form of Pat O'Dowd.



O'Dowd, 22, years of age from Ajax played hockey with Whitby Junior 'B' and Oshawa Junior 'A's.

There you have it.

A new executive and a new coach have brought a new atmosphere to the Belleville Eagles. It all adds up to a new look for the team.

GEORGE RUTLEDGE

it had left off last season, losing hockey games, losing money and losing fan support.

Now the club has changed hands and a new coach has appointed, the general consensus throughout the players is that they're ready to start winning hockey games.

Ralph Plane and Al Ferguson have been out to the practices and it appears as though they've been to stay.

Plane said, "I just couldn't play the way things were, but now with the changes, I really want to help the team. With the talent that's already here these guys should have been in the playoff picture."

Ferguson, one of the club's top performers in previous seasons, appears to be just as enthused about making the Eagles click as a team.

John McConnell, on of the younger players on the team, has been with the club through thick and thin this season. He feels that, "the changes will certainly make things interesting. I think we will quite easily make the playoffs. All we have to do is put things together and I think that's what's happening right now."

"This should have been the year the seniors went right to the top," says equipment manager George Rutledge.

George has been around the club for years helping out and handling equipment, but has only recently moved into that title. He's seen a lot of senior hockey pass through Belleville and been in direct contact with the players through all of that time.

"I don't know what it was," says George, "but there was something that was undermining the spirit of the team."

Nicholson Juniors Rolling

The Nicholson Catholic College Junior basketball team chalked up its eighth straight regular season victory last night, edging Moira 42-40. Nicholson's senior and midget teams were not so fortunate though, as they were beaten 51-42 and 39-35, respectively.

The Juniors, who are in fourth NCCA Juniors were going to walk away with the game as they jumped into a commanding 15-7 first quarter lead. By half time their efforts was cut to just six points as the scoreboard read 27-21.

The junior Trojans came on strong in the second half and by the end of the third quarter, they were just one point behind the Nicholson squad at 32-34.

That one point margin proved to be enough of a lead to beat the Trojans as the final score found the Nic Irish on top 42-42.

Dave Holland and Danny Krasowski were top scorers for the winners each firing 12 points. Jeff Boyce was next with seven.

For the losing Trojans, Mike Kirby had 12 and Scott Sisson 10 with Dan Gutokie getting eight.

In the senior game, it was the first half of the contest that captivated the fans, as after the first quarter the two squads were tied 14-14 and at half time the score was deadlocked at 22-22.

Second half action saw the Trojans pull way out in front, and stay there to win 51-42.

Midget action saw the lead bounce back and forth between Moira and NCC. At the end of regular time, it was still anybody's game with the score tied 33-33.

In overtime, Moira scored two points on foul shots by Chase and got two more from the floor by Manning to take the victory, 39-35.

Manning was top scorer for the Trojans with 11 points, while Wyrie had 18.

For Nicholson, it was Paul McAlpine with 13 points and Steve Dolan with eight.

Members Approve Plans For New Clubhouse

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

Plans for the much discussed new clubhouse for the Bay of Quinte Country Club got the go-ahead at a general meeting held Monday night.

Members voted in favor of a proposal submitted by a special committee headed by Philip Rickard.

Mr. Rickard and his committee put forward more than one proposal. The one that found favor with the members is a plan that calls for a new building to be situated on the South side of Highway 2.

One of the first duties of the new board of directors elected at the meeting will be to form a building committee. Serving as directors for 1974 are Paul Henderson, Doug Bannon, Peter Jones, Ross Burtt, Dan Mc Kee, Ross Rickard and John Huthes.

Plans call for the construction of the clubhouse to begin this year. Once the building committee swings into action, tenders will be called and the construction will get under way.

Part of the funds for construction of the new building will come from the sale of "a minimum of property" owned by the country club. A club spokesman declined to say, for the record, what part of the property would be offered for sale.

It is the general consensus among club members that since it appears much of the area in the vicinity of the country club property will be used for urban development, it is important to make sure some of the land is reserved for recreation.

The decision to proceed with the new clubhouse is only part of the country club's ambitious plans for the future.

Explained outgoing president Abe Tobe, "Tentative plans call for the construction of swimming pools and tennis courts.

"There is also the possibility of exploring the feasibility of developing some of the lakeshore property for use by boaters.

"The whole idea is geared to providing recreation facilities for the people of the area, at a nominal fee."

The golf course would be operated as a separate facility.

Kings Upset Habs

By GLEN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When Los Angeles Kings made their first National Hockey League appearance in the Montreal Forum back on Dec. 2, 1967, it was somewhat of a success.

That night, the Kings scored a 3-2 win over Montreal Canadiens but since then, the west coast club had not been overly impressive on visits to the Canadiens' home rink.

Going into Tuesday night's meeting with Montreal, the Kings had one win, 14 losses and a pair of ties on Montreal ice and most people were expecting Los Angeles to go down to their 15th loss against the Habs, who had just knocked off East Division leading Boston Bruins 7-3 on Saturday.

But the Kings came up with a gritty display of checking and for the most part, the Montreal machine proved its poor game and Los Angeles eked out a 2-1 triumph in front of 16,607 fans.

In other action, New York Islanders edged Atlanta Flames 4-3, Minnesota North Stars defeated Buffalo Sabres 5-3 and was Vancouver Canucks 4, Toronto Maple Leafs 1.

Kings 2 Canadiens 1

"They played a pretty good game," said Montreal coach Scotty Bowman after understating the Kings' performance. "They worked hard and they checked well and got some good breaks."

"I would rather give them a lot of credit than say we played badly. They came out with a plan to forecheck and they were sustaining us pretty good.

"They would have beaten a lot of clubs tonight."

When asked how the loss to the Kings would affect his club in their bid for the East Division championship, Bowman replied:

"We can't hang our heads over a loss. We have a game Thursday, Saturday and Sunday we have to think about now."

The Kings took a 1-0 lead late in the second period when Bob Berry, who once played in the Montreal organization, combined on a two-on-one rush away with John Wilding and snapped a wrist shot past Montreal goalie Wayne Thomas.

Mike Murphy made it 2-0 with 4½ minutes gone in the final period and Montreal's Murray Wilson got Canadiens back in the game at 5:34 with his eighth goal of the year.

The Kings then had to kill off a two-man disadvantage when Frank St. Marseille was assessed a tripping penalty and goalie Rogatien Vachon was nailed for playing with an illegal stick.

But a sliding shot by Peter Mahovlich was the only dangerous chance Canadiens had during the two-man advantage and his shot was easily smothered by Vachon.

Vachon, who will be fined $200 for using the illegal stick—it was more than 3½ inches wide on the blade—said he didn't mind the fine because of the win. It was the first time he has Canadiens' goalie had beaten his former team-mates.

Islanders 4 Flames 3

Islanders' goalie Gerry Desjardins was sitting on the bench minding his own business when coach Al Arbour tapped him on the shoulder with 13½ minutes gone in the second period and told him to replace Billy Smith in the New York goal.

The move came at 13:20 of the middle period after Keith McCreary had popped a 30-footer shot past Smith, who was beaten on a 70-footer in the first period by Randy Manery.

"When the coach came over and asked me if I was ready, I couldn't believe it," Desjardins said. "I didn't think Billy was playing that badly. I was really surprised. I was in there when we were leading."

McCreary's goal put the Islanders' lead to 4-3 but Desjardins kicked out 10 Atlanta shots—seven in the final period—to preserve the win.

Jean Potvin with two, Lorne Henning and Craig Cameron scored for New York and Bob Leiter got the other Atlanta goal.

North Stars 5 Sabres 3

Bill Goldsworthy and Fred Stanfield scored two goals apiece to key a five-goal rally in the second period that carried the North Stars to their 7th over St. Louis.

Dennis Hextall got the other Minnesota goal with Pierre Plante scoring twice and Gary Sabourin once for the Blues, who held a 3-2 lead in the first period.

Canucks 4 Maple Leafs 1

Goalie Gary Smith kicked out 41 shots—17 in the final period—as the Canucks made Phil Maloney's coaching debut a success. Maloney replaced Bill McCreary, who was fired Monday, after the Canucks managed only nine wins and seven ties in their first 41 games.

Bobby Schmautz's final goal at 18:14 of the second period was the game winner.

Goaltender Bernd Parent, defenceman Ed Van Impe and centre Bobby Clarke were picked from the Flyers, while retriever Tony Esposito and left winger Dennis Hull join White as Chicago representatives.

Goldsworthy and centre Dennis Hextall will represent Minnesota, while left winger Lowell MacDonald and defenceman Dave Burrows were picked from Pittsburgh Penguins.

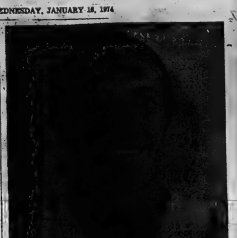
Los Angeles Kings and California Golden Seals failed to place a player on the team, but coach Billy Reay of Chicago will include at least one member of these two losing clubs to add another eight players next week.

Reay will be opposed by Scotty Bowman of the Canadiens. The two coaches guided their clubs to divisional championships last season and thus earned the right to coach the all-stars.

Since the advent of the East-West all-star competition in 1969-69, no more than five teams had been represented on any West Division starting lineup.

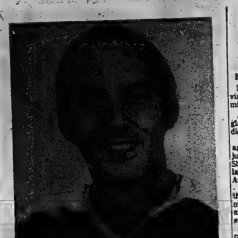
While is the veteran of the 12 starters named. He has appeared in five previous contests.

Making their first appearance will be Awrey, Burrows, Hextall and McDonough.



Voting was closest for the three defence positions behind White. Awrey and Van Impe each polled 35 points in the balloting based on five points for a first-place choice, three for a second and one for a third.

Three members of the PHWA from each West Division city took part in the vote, with six choices on each ballot for defenceman, and three for all other positions.



Following are the voting results for the 12 players named:

Goal—Parent, Philadelphia, 108; Esposito, Chicago, 78.

Defence—White, Chicago, 114; Awrey, St. Louis, 35; Van Impe, Philadelphia, 35; Burrows, Pittsburgh, 34. Centre—Clarke, Philadelphia, 71; Hextall, Minnesota, 53. Left Wing—Hull, Chicago, 85; MacDonald, Pittsburgh, 60. Right Wing—Goldworthy, Minnesota, 114; McDonough, Atlanta, 34.

White — Veteran Starter

Goldsworthy — Minnesota Ace

Pair of Bills Lead the Poll

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Bill White of Chicago Black Hawks and right winger Bill Goldsworthy of Minnesota North Stars are the players closest to being the unanimous choice of voters for the National Hockey League's West Division all-stars.

Results of the poll released Tuesday showed that White and Goldsworthy each received 114 of a possible 120 points in balloting conducted by members of the Professional Hockey Writers Association (PHWA) in eight West Division cities.

The two veterans were among 12 players from six of the eight West Division clubs named to the squad that will face the East in the league's all-star game at Chicago, Jan. 29.

Philadelphia Flyers, leaders in the West this season, had three players named to the squad while the second-place Hawks had two others in addition to White.

186 Minutes in Penalties As Sharks Belt Nordiques

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles is a nice place to visit but Quebec Nordiques might argue the point.

And Toronto Toros would be glad to stick up for the Nordiques.

They likely have nothing against the city in general. It's just that it's the home of the Sharks, situated in sixth and last place in the World Hockey Association.

The Sharks seem to bring out the worst in the Nordiques, mainly temper, and Wednesday night's game was an excellent example.

Los Angeles won 8-4 in a wild contest which had 186 minutes in penalties—breaking the record set late last year by the Sharks and Toros, in a game Oct. 16, the Toros and Sharks picked up a total of 151 minutes, resulting in about $3,000 in fines.

There were 42 penalties Tuesday—three game misconducts, six 10-minute misconducts, 10 majors and 23 minors—which shattered the Toros-Sharks record of 32 in the October brawl.

The records, of course, are unofficial until the referee's report reaches league headquarters.

In the other game Tuesday, Minnesota Oilers defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-1 to move into a tie with Winnipeg Jets for second place in the West Division. Both have 46 points, two behind Houston Aeros, and three ahead of Minnesota.

Sharks 8 Nordiques 4

The score was tied 1-1 before the first of many fights began. Jim Niekamp of the Sharks and Pierre Guite of the Nordiques touched off battles that delayed the game 30 minutes at 7:22.

At the conclusion of the first episode 134 minutes in penalties were handed out with Guite and Niekamp both getting a five-minute major, 10-minute misconduct and game misconduct. Ron Garwasiuk of Los Angeles also received a game misconduct.

Incidentally, it's not the first time Quebec and Los Angeles have tangled, while ignoring hockey. They set the WHA's original penalty-minute total in a game with 146 last February—also in Los Angeles.

Switching to hockey, the Nordiques led 4-2 after the second period before the Sharks rallied with goals by Reg Thomas, Marc Tardif—his second of the game and 32nd of the season—Ron Walters, his second, and J. P. Leblanc.

Robert Guindon, Andre Gaudette, Francois Lacombe and Serge Bernier scored for Quebec before 4,128 fans. The Sharks outshot the visitors 41-36.

Oilers 4 Saints 1

The Oilers, with 13 wins and a defeat at the start of the season, scored all the goals in each of the first and third periods for their only victory before a hometown fans.

It was Edmonton's 10th win against 19 defeats in their last 29 games.

Defenceman Bob Wall led the Oilers with a goal and two assists. Dave Dryden stopped 26 driving rushes while helping to provide solid defensive support for goalie Jack Norris, who stopped 39 shots.

Norris was supposed to be given a few days rest because coach Brian Shaw said he has been fighting the puck for awhile."

Lou Lamde, Al Hamilton and Tom Gilmore got the other Edmonton goals, while John Arbour connected for Minnesota.

Costello's Move Pays Dividends For the West

SEATTLE (AP) — Massive Bob Lanier of Detroit Pistons calls off the bench Tuesday night to lead the West to a 123 win over the East in the National Basketball Association's all-star game.

Lanier, 6-foot-11, 225-pounder who was presented the most valuable player award, led all scorers with 26 points.

He was able to work both under the basket and from beyond the foul line because of a piece of unexpected strategy by West coach Larry Costello of Milwaukee Bucks.

Costello, directing the West in his second all-star victory in two efforts, surprisingly inserted Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Milwaukee into the game to team with Lanier when the East made a late bid.

"It sure surprised me," said Lanier. "I never thought he would do it. The Bucks ought to give him a raise. He's sure a smart coach."

Lanier, going over and around the smaller, undermanned and underdog East team, hit 11 of 15 field goal attempts in pacing the West's 54 per cent shooting effort. He also grabbed 13 rebounds.

Jabbar, the West's starting centre, re-entered the game with 6:47 remaining and his team ahead 113-105. The East managed to whittle the gap to 120-117 with 3:30 left. But Jabbar, with the help of some key rebounds by Lanier, pulled the West safely ahead.

The huge Bucks' pivotman hooked in an eight-footer from the right side, added two more baskets and blocked one shot down the stretch, preserving the West's ninth triumph in the series.

The West, determined to revenge last year's 104-86 setback at Chicago, stunned the East with a 36-5 outburst in the first six minutes. Personal fouls, particularly three against Detroit Dave Cowens' centre, were instrumental in the East falling behind quickly.

Spencer Haywood of Seattle scored with 23 points before 15,- 980 fans.

Clippers Rebound to Win

The Clippers trailed 3-1 after 31 minutes, then came up with five unanswered goals to defeat the Robins 6-3.

Second-period Baltimore goals by Randy Sokoll and Dave Gilgour tied the score and Barry Salovaara scored the winner in the second minute of the final period.

Dave Pulkkinen, Bob Rivard and Jerry Kemp scored the other Baltimore goals. Rene Drolet, Larry Bignell and Serge Lajeunesse scored for Richmond.

In Tuesday's other games, Springfield Kings defeated Boston Braves 5-4, Cincinnati Swords downed Virginia Wings 4-1 and Nova Scotia Voyageurs topped Rochester Americans 6-4.

Kings 5 Braves 4

Centre Ross Webley scored one goal and assisted on two others for the Kings. Mark Heaslip scored the winner, batting in his rebound.

Heaslip's goal was his second. Gerald Gamble, Wayne Lachance and John Healey had the other Springfield goals while Craig Salvoer scored twice and Rich Leduc and Neil Murphy once each for Boston.

Swords 4 Wings 1

A third-period goal by Ed Hays spoiled the shutout bid by Cincinnati's Gary Bromley, who stopped 23 shots.

Steve and Frank Richardson, Randy Wyrozuk and Bob Richer were the Cincinnati scorers.

Voyageurs 6 Americans 4

Ed Gilbert and Jim Cahoon scored twice each for the Voyageurs, who fired 37 shots at Rochester's Bob Sneddon in a wide-open game.

Mickey Oja and Guy Delparte were the other Nova Scotia scorers. Murray Kuntz scored twice and Ross Butler and Barry Merrell once each for Rochester.

Tonight, the Swords visit Hershey Bears, the Voyageurs visit New Haven Nighthawks, the Americans are at Providence Reds and the Braves play the Robins at Richmond.

Peace Plan on Course

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A peace plan involving the World Hockey Association and National Hockey League continues on course, although official approval has been delayed to iron out details.

Derrick Murphy, WHA president, doesn't want to say anything that "could jeopardize the agreement."

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday he will be happy to be relieved of the responsibility, referring to problems brought on by WHA legal action.

During a secret meeting in Washington last weekend, WHA and NHL lawyers worked out the proposed truce which will end all litigation between the professional leagues.

One of the main points of the plan has the NHL paying between $1.4 and $1.9 million to the WHA, which will then drop $50-million anti-trust actions against the older league.

Lawyers for both leagues met Judge Leon Higginbotham of the United States district court in Philadelphia Tuesday to inform him of the progress towards out-of-court settlement. A pre-trial conference with WHA suits were set for Friday, but Judge Higginbotham granted an extension to Jan. 31 with an additional three-day delay possible.

It was agreed by all concerned that an extension was decided to work out the details." Campbell said in a telephone interview from Montreal.

All the pending lawsuits between the leagues—which number seven, three of them in Philadelphia. If an out-of-court settlement is not possible, Judge Higginbotham is prepared to call a trial March 18.

The plan also provides for:

—At least 16 inter-league exhibition games before the 1974-75 season, with more to be negotiated;

—Consideration of an all-star game, a player draft between the league champions or a method of involving the WHA in the Stanley Cup competition;

—Inter-league trading, but only of every team in the player's league has a chance to hire him first.

Dolphins Missing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Four members of Miami Dolphins, who won the National Football League championship Sunday, will miss next Sunday's Pro Bowl game because of injuries.

It was announced Tuesday. They are running back Larry Csonka, wide receiver Paul Warfield, defensive end Bill Stanfill and offensive tackle Wayne Moore.

—And the NHL agreeing not to enforce against the WHA or its players any reserve or option clause more restrictive than that currently in existence. This means the NHL agrees not to tack on another year on the option clause to prevent league-jumping.

Emphasis on Offence In World Football

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Offence provides the key to the new World Football League, scheduled to start operations in July with a half dozen rules drastically differing from those of the established National Football League.

President Gary Davidson of the embryonic professional grid organization told reporters Tuesday that 12 franchises are established and would hold all-act of college football players in New York Tuesday, Jan. 22. That session will be to select initially six players for each team to attempt to sign.

In order, the draft will have Memphis, New England, Florida, Toronto, Birmingham, New York, Southern California, Philadelphia, Hawaii, Chicago, Washington, D.C., and Detroit.

Davidson reported the rules changes from NFL procedure would be:

1. Require the kickoff from the 30-yard line instead of the 40 and thus enhance the possibility of a runback.

2. Move the goal posts to the rear of the end zone as in college football and thus make field goals more difficult.

3. Return missed field goals to the line of scrimmage except when the kick is made from inside the 20 on which occasion the ball would be returned to the 20.

4. A two-point conversion option as in college ball.

5. A pass receiver needs to have only one foot inbounds instead of two.

6. A fifth period to break ties.

New Stadium Under Study

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Metropolitan Toronto has been offered a 55,000-seat open sports stadium as part of a $180-million private development package on the city's waterfront.

The newspaper says the stadium is attached as a gift to a development proposal made by Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens in partnership with a Bramalea, Ont., construction company.

The proposed development, which would include a hockey hotel, luxury apartments and offices, low-cost housing, and a hotel, would require extensive zoning changes, the newspaper says.

The newspaper quotes Ballard as saying the plan was presented to the stadium sub-committee of Metropolitan Toronto Council Monday.

It now is being studied by officials of the Metropolitan Toronto planning board, the newspaper says.

In a telephone interview from Vancouver, the Globe and Mail quotes Ballard as saying he was in that city looking for a baseball team to occupy the stadium.

"I'm out here to see about one now," Ballard told the newspaper. He did not elaborate.

The newspaper says the stadium sub-committee has been leaning toward a $16-million expansion program for the Canadian National Exhibition stadium which would increase its seating capacity to 60,000 from 32,000 and make it suitable for baseball.

Nine other private proposals for a stadium have been rejected by the sub-committee.

Ballard announced last week he is considering building an arena on the lakefront as a replacement for Maple Leaf Gardens. He said then he is also considering expanding the Gardens seating capacity by 5,000.

Feeding A Sick Child

IDA BURNS

By IDA BURNS
A&P CONSULTANT

The world can seem very boring to a child recovering in bed from a winter-time cold or flu.

Brighten his day and delight him with a cheery tray full of light foods to tempt a lagging appetite. Since he can't have his friends in, invite his favourite stuffed animal to lunch. Include a little treat like a colouring book or puzzle.

Colourful, unbreakable dishes hold soup, sandwich and drink. A clear soup, like Consomme or Chicken Noodle, appeals in most convalescents.

Cut the crusts off Jane Parker French bread to make round sandwiches, and decorate the top with a "happy face" made with pickles, etc. Add a crunch to the lunch with carrot and celery sticks. For dessert, try serving a bowl of lightly sweetened fruit with a box of animal crackers.

If you find yourself running back and forth with cold drinks to soothe a sore throat, why not try keeping a vacuum bottle filled with lemonade or orange juice by your child's bed. Then he can help himself to a drink as he wants one.

It takes so little time to prepare a nutritious, imaginative lunch for sick kiddies, and you get your reward when you see the smiling faces that say "thank you" better than words.

Let us help you with your food planning problems. Just drop us a line at:

Canadians Say 'No' To Bid by Knights

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Knights missed a chance Tuesday to take over first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series by dropping a 4-2 decision to Kingston Canadians.

In the circuit's only other game, Toronto Marlboros and Ottawa 67s played to a 5-5 tie.

London, tied in first place with St. Catharines Black Hawks who were away playing an exhibition game in Thunder Bay, led 3-1 midway into the first period in Kingston, but ended the period in a tie.

Greg Holst, who returned to action after recovering from an eye injury that sidelined him for four games, scored one of Kingston's goals. Mark Suzor, Larry Murphy and Gord Baynak scored the others.

Paul Nicholson and Tom Rowe scored for the Knights, who were outshot 46-35 before 1,256 fans.

In Ottawa, the 67s scored two goals midway through the third period to take a 5-3 lead, but were unable to hold on as Toronto bounced back with goals by Bill Wells and Chris Crawford.

Mark Napier scored two of Toronto's other goals and Brad Winton added another.

Tim Young paced the 67s with two goals with Jamie Masters, David Lee and David Staffen adding single markers.

Toronto goalie Mike Palmateer was injured with only 11 seconds remaining in the game, but his injury was not believed to be serious.

Ottawa outshot Toronto 43-34 before 2,462 fans.

Play in the series resumes Thursday when the Black Hawks meet the Petes in Peterborough.

Stasiuk Named Coach

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Vic Stasiuk, who became an assistant coach for the National Hockey League's St. Louis Blues earlier this season, was named Tuesday as coach and general manager of the Western Hockey League's Denver Spurs. Stasiuk, 44, succeeds former Bluesdefenceman Bob McCord, 39.

BEAVER handyman tip NO 14 Clip & Save IN A SERIES

Planning to panel:

Today we start an in-depth series of tips on panelling. Read them all, 1. How to measure your walls. Panelling comes in standard 4'x8' sheets. So, to find out how many sheets you need, simply do this: measure each wall and then divide by 4. Then select the BEAVER Panelling you need from this ad. Your BEAVER store also stocks a great selection of mouldings and coloured panel nails.

2. In older homes you'll find some walls may be more than 8' high. This means you'll need extra panelling. To calculate the difference is not difficult. Simply measure the difference in height and divide this into 8' to find out how many pieces can be cut from an 8' panel. Remember, at your BEAVER store you'll find all your panelling needs. See us, today!

Meat Packing Chief Brakes Downhill Skid

CALGARY (CP) — Burns Foods Ltd. was losing $50,000 amonth in 1968 and getting desperate.

Arthur J. E. Child, then president of Intercontinental Packers Ltd. of Saskatoon, was hired to put the brakes on the downhill skid. The next year Burns Foods started making money.

Today, Burns is the country's second largest meat-packing company with annual sales of $330 million and employs 5,500 people in 60 plants across Canada. Net earnings for the first nine months of 1973 amounted to almost $3 million.

Mr. Child made his start in the meat-packing industry in 1939 with Canada Packers Ltd. of Toronto while getting his master's degree in economics at University of Toronto.

"I spent 100 hours each week working and studying," he recalled in an interview.

Mr. Child remained with Canada Packers, Canada's largest meat-packing company, until 1960, when he left as vice-president to become president of Intercontinental Packers.

He was born in Guildford, England, and came to Canada when he was young. He is married with no children.

He is soft-spoken and gentle-mannered and does not look like a tough administrator. He is conservatively dressed, a taste reflected in the decor of his office—nice without being over-luxurious.

One would expect that the head office of an organization as big as Burns Foods would be large—but no, "our corporate policy office has only a dozen people," President Child puts his managers in the field.

The biggest issue—or non-issue—for the meat packing industry is a government policy to ensure adequate livestock raised by Canadian farmers to meet Canadian needs.

He said if prices for wheat and feed grains were too high, farmers would not grow livestock.

Mr. Child said the supply of livestock could be a non-issue if government just left the meat-packing industry alone and let market forces play their role.

"If there is a meat shortage, farmers will automatically grow more livestock; if there is a wheat shortage, they will grow more wheat. The government policy we would like to see is that of non-intervention."

There is no physical shortage of meat in Canada but one could be created by government policy—just as with energy resources, Mr. Child said.

Meat prices will continue to rise, simply because Canadians have been getting cheap meat in relation to other people in the world, he said.

With perhaps the exception of South America and Australia, Canadians have been enjoying cheaper meat in relation to their standard of living, he said.

Mr. Child, a former president of the Meat Packers Council of Canada, said the meat packing industry is vital to the economy of Canada.

With annual sales of $2 billion, it is the third largest industry after the automobile and forestry industries. It is the largest single employer in the Prairie provinces.

Contrary to popular misconception, the industry does not wish to see higher meat and meat-product prices.

"We are the middlemen. To stay in business, we must increase our prices when the costs of raw materials and labor go up. Yet we would like to see lower prices, because then Canadians would eat more meat."

Canadians, like most other people in the world, have been eating more meat—and this is another reason why meat prices must go up.

In 1972, per-capita meat consumption in Canada was 165.8 pounds, compared with 161.6 pounds in 1962 and 122.2 pounds in 1952.

Mr. Child is also chairman of Canada West Foundation, a non-political organization "dedicated to the strengthening of a Western Canadian identity within Confederation."

The foundation was an outgrowth of the One Prairie Province conference held in Lethbridge in 1970.

Mr. Child said he is addicted to work, "the No. 1 ingredient for success." In his spare time, he studies languages—German, French, Spanish, Latin, Greek and Russian; likes to travel and sail, and is an ardent observer of national and international politics. He is one of the few Canadian members of the International Institute for Strategic Studies.

Mr. Child is the author of Economics and Politics in U.S.: Banking, and co-author of Internal Control, a book on business administration. He taught business administration at University of Toronto and University of Saskatchewan.

He says the "secret" in turning Burns Foods into one of the most successful business operations in Canada, was to pay his people well but demand highly of them.

Railway Wages To Be Set Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The final act of a 14-month railway contract-negotiation saga will be played today with the release of an arbitration award that probably will give rail workers a wage raise greater than a ninth-month granted by Parliament last summer.

The arbitration report, prepared by retired Supreme Court of Canada Judge Emmett Hall, will be distilled from a flood of argument and counter-proposals presented by unions and companies during straight bargaining, conciliation, mediation and arbitration proceedings.

The prolonged search for agreement was highlighted by a strike last summer and subsequent parliamentary intervention to end a national railhead for the third time in 23 years.

Parliament's bill, which provided for arbitration, passed early in September but some bitter dissident workers, particularly in the West, disobeyed union leaders and the government and refused temporarily to return to work.

Biggest quarrels between the workers' negotiators and the companies, including Canadian National Railways and CP Rail, centred on wages, job security and cost of agreed-upon pension improvements.

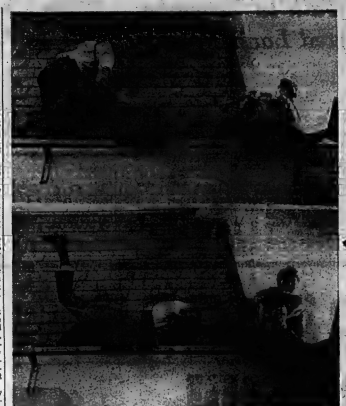
Spiralling living costs, a desire to share in increased national productivity and a call for a catch-up increase to workers in similar jobs were behind the decision of the bargainers for the largest union group, 56,000 non-operating workers, to stand firm for a 10.5-per-cent increase.

The strike-ending bill gave the non-ops a minimum increase for 1973 of 34 cents an hour, or 9.8 per cent on the average hourly basic wage of $3.54 at expiry of the last contract Dec. 31, 1972.

Latest consumer price index figures show the cost-of-living in 1972 rose by 8.1 per cent.

But the legislation gave the arbitrator power to increase the pay raise to all groups of rail employees covered under the act.

Although the non-operating workers were given a minimum 9.8-per-cent raise by Parliament, two higher-paid groups of workers, 22,000 shopcraft tradesmen and 14,500 trainmen, were granted raises of 8% per cent for 1972.



Average hourly rates for the shopcraft tradesmen, workers and trainmen at end of the last contract were $4.65 and $4.25 respectively.

Two smaller union groups not under the legislation also can expect raises from the Hall award. About 7,000 engineers, firemen and diesel helpers employed by ythe two major railways agreed with the companies to accept the 8½-per-cent raise plus any more set out in the award.

Second-year raises set out by Parliament would give the increases of five per cent on Jan. 1, 1976 and a further three per cent on July 1, 1976. That would increase the average hourly wage to $4.19 on July 1.

LIVES INSURED

Drama on a Ledge

Firemen John Lacher (white shirt) and Rich Allen combine efforts on the roof of a four-storey San Francisco building to rescue 29-year-old Wanda Riles, a patient at the psychiatric unit of Presbyterian Hospital. Authorities said the two firemen grabbed the woman as she clutched a stuffed animal while perched on a narrow ledge of the roof of a mental health halfway house. She was taken to San Francisco General Hospital for observation. (AP Photo)

Davis Faced with Queries On Teachers and Denturists

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis moved through hostile political territory Tuesday in a series of stops in the Kitchener-Waterloo area.

During his stay through the area held by two Liberal members of the Ontario legislature the premier was faced with questions concerning teachers, denturists, lack of farmland and the alleged possible conflict of interest by cabinet ministers.

The hectic day ended in a town-hall meeting. Those attending included teachers opposed to compulsory government arbitration and persons sympathetic to denturists who oppose government restrictions on that profession.

The visit was another in the series the premier has been conducting to hear problems and to sample public opinion.

During his 13 hours here he made two speeches, taped two television shows, visited a newspaper and radio station, met with local government officials, had fielded numerous queries.

On several occasions, Mr. Davis was questioned about allegations that Solicitor-General John Yaremko may have benefitted from land sales while a cabinet minister.

Mr. Davis said Mr. Yaremko's land holdings were public knowledge and said he doubted whether recent government legislation increased their value. However, the premier said he would check into published reports about the matter and would be speaking to Mr. Yaremko about it.

The premier said Ontario's economy is strong. Investment in private business increased 15 per cent last year and is expected to rise more than 20 per cent this year.

Unemployment has dropped to four per cent from about 4.8 per cent, despite a growing number of workers.

Earlier in the day, speaking to some 200 persons at a service club luncheon, Mr. Davis said next week's energy conference in Ottawa may be the most important meeting of this decade.

He said it is imperative that Canada form a national energy policy and said he hopes the conference will lay the groundwork for a national industrial policy.

"This country needs an overall industrial strategy to remain competitive in the world marketplace," he told a joint meeting of area service clubs.

"It's my hope that the federal government recognizes the urgency to begin framing a national industrial strategy immediately."

Quebec Has Tough Queries About Oil

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government has some tough questions on the energy situation for the oil industry and the federal government.

The National Energy Board still is predicting shortages of between 10 and 20 per cent this winter in crude oil imported into Eastern Canada while prices for such supplies spiral upward on the world market.

"The problem is that the only information the federal government is getting is from the major oil companies and there are two different versions," a spokesman for the Quebec natural resources department said in an interview.

"The oil companies are telling the federal government that the situation is serious, that there are problems with securing supplies but they're telling us there will be enough oil for Quebec for the rest of the winter."

Quebec imports about one-quarter of its oil needs or 125,000 barrels a day from Arab countries. The rest is brought in from South American nations like Venezuela and Colombia and African states

Spokesmen for the six Montreal refineries—Gulf Oil, Shell, Petrofina, Petrofina, Imperial and BP—say their plants are operating at full capacity and there are no immediate problems of securing crude supplies. All say they operate on a 30-day schedule and have no idea what the situation will be after the end of January.

But a spokesman for the Oilfield Oil Workers of Canada said Montreal refineries have enough refined oil in reserve to supply the city of Montreal for 100 days.

Quebec government officials are concluding that oil-producing nations are exporting more oil than they admit and oil companies are perhaps taking advantage of the situation to take crisis and raise prices and profits.

Davis to Talk to Yaremko On Reported Land Profits

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis planned to confer today with Solicitor-General John Yaremko in the wake of published reports that Mr. Yaremko profited greatly from sales and subdivision of farmlands.

Leaders of opposition parties in the Ontario legislature called for Mr. Yaremko's resignation Tuesday as the solicitor-general contended that he was "unjustifiably sullied" by news reports of his transactions.

The reports said Mr. Yaremko, 53, member of the legislature for Tweedsmuir-Bellwoods since 1951, speculated on about 300 acres of Niagara escarpment land since becoming an Ontario cabinet minister in 1966.

The solicitor-general said he still owns 420 acres, mainly in a rugged escarpment area in Halton County near Milton in the general area that the government has designated as parkway greenbelt.

Mr. Yaremko stressed that he took no part in the planning of the boundaries of the greenbelt area and said he will not take part in any cabinet discussions on its future "to avoid a conflict of interest."

He dismissed as "unworthy" reports published Tuesday that he and his wife had made a $53,000 profit on land sales in the 13 years after 1958.

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, called for Mr. Yaremko's resignation, although both said there was no suggestion that he had done anything illegal.

Nevertheless, Mr. Nixon said that as a member of the cabinet, "Mr. Yaremko not only was aware of changing planning regulations and land use restrictions, but had a role in shaping the policy."

Mr. Lewis said:

"I think his conflict of interest . . . is absolutely clear. The minister holds 420 acres of land right in the area that will be under development control."

Premier Davis said he was aware of Mr. Yaremko's holdings when it became cabinet policy in September, 1972, for members to divulge their investments and interests.

"I'm not sure that the parkway belt increased the value of his land and it could be debated as to whether that is the case," the premier said in a Kitchener, Ont., interview following the report.

The premier said he did not want to comment before fully studying the report and before discussing the matter with Mr. Yaremko.

Mr. Nixon's statement emphasized that there had been no wrong-doing on the part of the solicitor-general:

"While it is apparent that there has been no illegality involved, it is clearly a case of extremely bad judgment for a minister to be involved in land dealing with such an obvious conflict of interest that could substantially benefit him."

Mr. Lewis said he considers Mr. Yaremko's subdividing of land in April, 1968, just as the legislature was passing legislation to prevent such subdivision, is "equally compromising."

Solzhenitsyn Faces Increasing Attacks

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Dissident author Alexander Solzhenitsyn appears to be under increasing liability of official retaliation, judging by the number of Soviet attacks linking him with "treasonable" actions.

As the official campaign against him in the Soviet media grew fiercer, the Nobel Prize-winning author and his family were said to be receiving harassing phone calls, including one from a man who said he worked for an undertaker.

Soviet readers were today confronted with the second full-length attack against Solzhenitsyn since the publication of his labor camp history, The Gulag Archipelago, with a bitter denunciation in Literaturnaya Gazeta, the Writers' Union weekly.

Solzhenitsyn has not replied to the wave of official criticism, but Tuesday he issued his first public statement since the upsurge began here—in support of another disgraced writer, the nearly blind Lidiya Chukovskaya.

He said Miss Chukovskaya was expelled from the Writers Union for letting him use her country house.

Monday the Communist party daily Pravda concluded that Solzhenitsyn merited the fate of a traitor and today's attack, carried by Tass news agency, added: "It is no overstatement to speak of his spiritual affinity with traitors who raised their arms against their own people."

Power Line May Cut Off Milk Flow

SOUTH HILTON, Ont. (CP) — Farmer Harry Kell told a Ontario Hydro expropriation hearing Tuesday he suspects high-voltage power lines will discourage his cows from giving milk.

He said it is difficult to prove, but there are theories that the lines involuntarily induce electric charges into containers that cows drink from, giving them shocks.

And he told, inquiry officer Charles Mackenzie of London, Ont., that dairy cows that do not drink, do not produce.

His 1,000-acre farm will be in the area near this community near Chatham most affected by the transmission lines.

He was one of 25 persons who opposed the line Mr. Mackenzie reserved decision.

KGB Stole Hockey Team's Steaks

Seductress Got Canadian Diplomatic Code

NEW YORK (CP) — The Soviet spy organization KGB broke the Canadian diplomatic code in Moscow in the early 1970s by use of a secret police seductress, United States writer John Barron says in a book detailing Soviet espionage operations.

Barron, a senior editor of Reader's Digest and a former U.S. naval intelligence officer, says the KGB obtained the Canadian ciphers "from an embassy code clerk recruited by a seductress named Larissa Feodorova Dubitsova."

No further details of the embassy operation are given in the book, to be published later this month by E. P. Dutton and Co. Inc.

Reporting on KGB surveillance of foreign visitors to Moscow, Barron wrote that during the 1972 hockey matches between Canada and the Soviet Union, the KGB "harassed the Canadian team members by disrupting their pre-game naps with anonymous phone calls and absconding with most of the three hundred pounds of steaks they brought along."

Discussing North American espionage operations, Barron detailed the story of an agent who was recruited by the KGB in Czechoslovakia and sent to Edmonton in 1961 to serve as a spy. Barron identified the man only as "Aston Sabodka" and said he was withholding his true name "to assist him in the new life upon which he has embarked."

Drug Plan

WINNIPEG (CP) — A drug substitution plan which attracted considerable debate in the Manitoba legislature two years ago is scheduled to become effective in the province Jan. 31.

The Manitoba plan will require pharmacists to dispense the lowest-priced drug unless a doctor specifically states that no substitution is to be made.

Under plans in use in five other provinces, substitution is made at the discretion of the pharmacist.

Plan Revolt

HAMILTON (CP) — Duncan Beattie, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament, said Tuesday that Canada's screening program in Chile for possible immigrants must be tightened "to keep out those who plan to use Canada as a springboard to revolution in Chile."

The member for Hamilton Mountain said the minority of those applying for entry "have on their own admission said they are going to continue to struggle to defeat the military regime in Chile."

"I don't see any use these people would serve Canada," he said.

Acquitted

TORONTO (CP) — Mary Tyler Sutherland, Anna Armstay and Ian Alexander were acquitted Tuesday on charges of selling and distributing obscene material after Judge Stanton Stagg said the sex aids "serve the public good."

One Convicted

TORONTO (CP) — Two people were acquitted of mischief and common assault and one was convicted of mischief Tuesday in connection with incidents on a picket line at Artistic Woodwork Co. Ltd.

Konstantine Maltesas and William Hugh Lawson were acquitted and Robert Griffith, a York University student, was convicted of mischief and fined $200 or five days in jail.

'Lost World'

CARACAS (Reuter) — A team of 14 explorers left Caracas Tuesday to search for a "lost world" at the bottom of two gigantic holes in the Venezuelan jungle.

One of the explorers is an English clamber, David Nott, 45, of Liverpool. He is a veteran of expeditions to the South American Andes.

Nott and a Venezuelan colleague, Charles Brewer Carias, are to spend five days exploring the bottom of the craters. The rest of the team—including another Briton, orchid specialist Dr. G. Dunsterville, and American botanist Dr. Julian Steyermark—will investigate the surrounding plateau.

Fear Wildcats

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Illegal strikes by inside postal workers may spread across Canada this year, Arnold Gould, Ontario director of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Tuesday.

"Some officers in certain areas are hearing their members talk more and more of conducting wildcat strikes and those could move all across Canada," he said.

Body in Bag

TORONTO (CP) — Bibi Zarina Ali, 27, of Toronto, was charged Tuesday with offering an indignity to a dead body after the body of her 3-year-old daughter was found in a plastic garbage bag outside the family's home. Cause of death has not been determined.

Firms Bought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Koppers International Canada Ltd. of Burnaby, B.C., has purchased the assets of three corrugated steel pipe companies, two in Ontario and one in Alberta, the firm announced Tuesday night.

Purchase prices were not disclosed.

The firm purchased were Alberta Culvert Co. Ltd. of Edmonton, Ontario Culvert and Metal Products Ltd. of Waterloo, Ont., and Carleton Culvert Co. Ltd. of Ottawa.

Airport to Open Next Year

Runway A and related taxiways at the new Montreal international airport at Ste. Scholastique, Que., are under construction. The airport is scheduled to open for the first phase operations in April, 1975, at a cost of $250 million. The airport eventually will have six runways and six terminals. CP Photo)

New St. Scholastique Airport One of Four for Jumbo Jets

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que. (CP) — Viewed from a low-flying light plane, Montreal's vast new international airport site presents an almost awesome aspect in a pastoral setting.

You surmise at a glance that—for good or ill—life will never be the same again for the inhabitants of Mirabel, a newly-formed municipality of village and farm, sugar stream, churches and barnmaple and bush, peat bog and all-a, stone fence and nests-race ovals.

The construction of Canada's first airport designed for the jumbo-jet era is transforming an expropriated area colloquially known as "the territory," 66,000 acres, 138 square miles—three-quarters the size of Montreal Island, one-tenth of Prince Edward Island.

Planners say, indeed, that highway - building industrial development and improvements in municipal "infrastructure" will change a whole region of old Quebec between the Laurentian mountains and Montreal, 34 miles southeast of the airport.

"The world is getting a new generation of airports for the 21st century but only four now are under way and the biggest in area will be Mirabel," said one official, noting that the new Dallas-Fort Worth airport is due to open for operations this month. The other two will serve Paris and Tokyo.

In Ste. Scholastique, a newspaper renamed La Concorde tells a continuing story of change symbolized by a restaurant named Le 747 standing opposite a parish hall festooned with protest slogans.

The slogans liken the plight of uprooted farmers to the expulsion of the Acadians in bygone days. Quebec is pictured as the "milk cow" of Ontario, where the federal government paid for land at a much higher rate in expropriations for Toronto's projected international airport at Pickering.

Abbe Georges Duquet, Ste. Scholastique pastor, told a reporter his congregation has been reduced by about half to 300 families, only one-third of them being long-time parishioners.

Federal officials reported many former owners have signed long-term leases on the bulk of land not required for actual airport operations but population in the affected area has slipped to approximately 8,000 from 10,000 since expropriation in 1969.

Highway projects herald airport traffic to Montreal and to Ottawa, 96 miles away. The cheese-famed Oka district looms in the distance. Six golf courses remain as part of a scheme to blend noise corridors, buffer zones, recreational areas, agriculture and industry, limiting speculation.

Construction is well advanced on the first two 12,000-foot runways and also the first terminal, which provides for rapid-transit commuter facilities though the airport will be served in the opening stage by a super-bus system.

"I feel our boldest initiative is the integration of the airport into its environment," said Benoit Barbeau, the federal transport department's general manager for planning, design and construction of the project.

"Because of the vast expropriation, we can avoid the conflict with population development that has afflicted most major airports in the world. We will be able to develop an environment fully compatible with a major airport. Some authorities—and they have come visiting from all over the world—think this is the greatest thing we have achieved."

The project has involved in one way or another the federal government, the Quebec government, 26 airlines, the Montreal Urban Community, organizers of the 1976 Montreal Olympic Games, the National Research Council, both railways, three MPs, three members of Quebec's national assembly and 17 parish priests. Biologists studied 180 bird species. The University of Montreal's Prof. Pierre Dansereau heads a five-university team study of the ecology of the region.

Scheduled to open for Phase 1 operations in April, 1975, at a cost of $250 million, the airport will eventually have six runways and six terminals. Based on a study, the provincial government hopes to see it become the main air-cargo gateway to the whole eastern seaboard. Passenger potential is put at 60 to 70 million annually. Airport operations, initially covering 5,000 acres, will spread to 17,000 acres later.

How will the present petroleum shortages hit these plans?

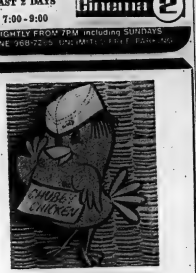
Mr. Barbeau said there now are no plans to change the opening date and he doubts any change in the first phase will become necessary. He stressed it is too early yet to assess the impact of the petroleum shortages.

"I do not myself think that as of now there has been any reduction in air travel," said the 56-year-old engineer who built Hydro Quebec's giant Manicouagan project in the 1960s and earlier supervised work contracts at Canadian air bases in France and Germany.

"You can have a reduction of aircraft movements without a reduction of travellers because many planes have operated with only 30 to 50 per cent of their seats filled."

Dorval airport on the northwest fringe of Montreal will handle an estimated 7,250,000 travellers in 1973. Some 8.7 million—international traffic—are scheduled to shift to Mirabel in the 1975-78 phase. Canada-United States traffic, termed "trans-border" rather than international, and domestic services would remain at Dorval.

While Mirabel is officially described as the biggest airport area in the world, Mr. Barbeau stressed the concept's flexibility and potential.



"It depends on what you mean by big," he said. "It has the largest potential. This airport has been planned, designed and built on the basis that it will grow in accordance with the requirements of air traffic. We have not predetermined that on such and such a year we will have such a thing. We will provide for development according to what happens, not according to what we think will happen. All its systems can be extended independently. It can become the biggest."

The new Montreal international airport at Ste. Scholastique, Que., 34 miles northwest of Montreal, covers 138 square miles — one-tenth the size of Prince Edward Island. Graph shows the airport proper, with terminal and runways." Screened area covers 70,000 control encroachment of urban sprawl. (CP Newsmap)

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, Jan. 17

Aries (March 21-April 19) A solution will be worked out now that was problematical today. Results look promising if you stay on this course.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You will be able to reach an understanding where an impasse existed previously. Let's a third party serve as mediator.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Your greatest chance for gain today comes from that which you do unselfishly for someone. Don't worry—the payoff will be there.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Disturbing outside influences that had a negative effect on an important relationship have passed. Let bygones be bygones.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be in a domestic mood today. It's a good time to catch up on little things you've been wanting to do around the house.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Within reasonable bounds you might be tempted to speculate a bit. Your estimates will be bolder. You'll be more self-assured and positive.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) There is material opportunity for you at this time. Don't take things at face value—dig deep for the real pay dirt.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't wait for things to come to you today. Go after what you want. Look yourself in on positive thought. Expect favorable results—you'll get 'em.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a certain situation of a confidential nature, looks promising for you financially. Keep it to yourself till things are more certain.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't be hesitant to call upon friends or contacts if you need assistance today. They'll take knowing you don't forget a favor.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The leaves an ally you didn't count on. His influence will in directly benefit you in helping to achieve something personally rewarding.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you'll enjoy a broader picture of an important situation than your contemporaries. Stick to your views, they're more objective.

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and Jamie Jacoby

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
Pass	1♠	Pass	1♠
Pass	1NT	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠K J 8 5 ♥ 8 4 ♦ Q 10 8 5 3 ♣ K 4 3
What do you do now?

A — Bid three hearts. Your partner has shown a balanced minimum, so take the nine trick plan.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding one notrump your partner has bid two clubs over your one spade. What do you do now?

Asbrie Tenderove

The Stayman convention was already in use 2 years ago. The Jacoby transfer bid is a Jacoby product of the last 25 years and has found very general expert acceptance.

Basically, when you play Jacoby transfer you also play Stayman. The responses to the opening no-trump are:

Two clubs. Stayman asks opener to bid a four-card major if he has one; otherwise, to bid two diamonds.

Two diamonds. Artificial. Guarantees at least five hearts and asks partner to bid five hearts, whereupon responder will tell more about his hand.

Two hearts. Same as two diamonds, except that it shows a spade suit.

Two spades. Not used in basic Jacoby. In advanced Jacoby is artificial; forcing; and complicated.

No-trump raises. Normal.

Jump bids. Natural, strong and forcing.

Today's hand shows the JTB (Jacoby transfer) at work, simply and successfully.

Anyone gets to four spades after the no-trump opening. If North plays the hand, East opens the queen of hearts and the defence collects four tricks. With Jacoby transfer, South plays the hand. East can't ever get in. South gets to discard one of North's on his king of diamonds and makes the game.

Stroke Leaves Patient Limping

By G. C. THORTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: I had a stroke some time ago and am wondering if you have any suggestions on how to treat a stroke. I walk with a limp. Any suggestion will be appreciated. You might know a doctor who treats people who have had a stroke.—R.M.

Lots of doctors treat stroke patients, but treatment divides into three phases. First there's caring for the patient at the time of the stroke. You've past that now.

Second, treatment may, or may not, be advisable to prevent another stroke. In some cases blood thinners are required in others, lowering blood pressure is the answer. The considerations are technical, and I take it for granted that your doctor has worked that out already. (In a good many cases, no treatment is necessary in this phase.)

Third, there's the question of what to do about a limp, or paralysis, and I gather that's what your real question is now.

Keep in mind that a "stroke" is damage to some part of the brain. Let's say in your case the damaged area was one that controlled the cells having to do with sending nerve impulses to your leg.

As you know, nothing we do is done independently of the brain. When we breathe, the "orders" to breathe come to breathe come from the brain. even though in that case the brain operates automatically. We don't consciously have to think about each breath we draw.

So, as a result of your stroke you lost at least some of the nerve center that tells the various muscles of your leg to contract or relax at the proper time. That is why you limp.

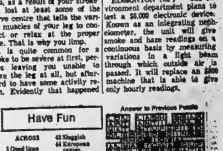
It is quite common for a stroke to be severe at first, perhaps leaving you unable to move the leg at all, but afterward to have some activity return. Evidently that happened with you. Not everything came back, but some did.

When a leg (or other part of the body) is idle, the muscles weaken from lack of use. As movement returns, you have a twin problem: First, to give the muscles enough exercise so they regain strength; and second, to regain more exact control of movement.

To a certain extent it is sometimes possible to learn to make other parts of the brain take over the tasks of the damaged parts. Not always possible—but sometimes.

However, this takes some experimentation on your part. In a way, it's like trying to learn to wiggle your ears. You try luck, you hit on a way to send a brain signal that moves the right muscles move to wiggle your ears.

In brief, you walk with a limp—so walk, walk. But at the same time try to find other things you can do with your leg, ankle and foot. At any odd time, many times a day, try pointing your toe somewhere, or curl your toes, or turn the foot from side to side. Any movement is going to help. Find how at it. There's no substitute for trying.



As to doctors specializing in stroke: there are numerous rehabilitation centres or institutes which all get great results in this: in some cities, often a rehabilitation department is part of a hospital. So enquire about such places in your locality.

Device Checks Air

EDMONTON (CP) — The environment department plans to set a $5,000 electronic device. Known as an integrating nephelometer, the unit will give smoke and haze readings on a continuous basis by measuring variations in a light beam through which outside air is passed. It will replace an $800 machine that is able to give only hourly readings.

Living Costs Higher

The Consumer Price Index increased .9 to the December level of 156.4 up from 155.5 in November, based on a 1961 level of 100, Statistics Canada reported Thursday. The increase in the cost of living was due to slight increases in December. (CP Newsmap)

Space Probes' Facts Fail To Bring Accord on Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mars experts around the world are trying to reach agreement on the basic properties of the red planet and whether it ever supported life.

But instead of agreement, there is new dissension and speculation.

After two years of interpreting data from the Mariner 9 space probe, a consensus on what Mars really is like still is far away.

One of the central questions that nearly 400 scientists disputed vigorously at a meeting here is whether water in any quantity ever flowed on the red planet.

Water volume would bear heavily on the chances of life having flourished at any time.

Dr. Carl Sagan of Cornell University and Dr. Joshua Lederberg of Stanford University maintained there has been no concrete evidence that would rule out the possibility of life on Mars.

Further, they contended the Viking space probes scheduled to land on Mars in 1976 will only be able to look for the category of living things, leaving open the possibility of life even if the probes have negative findings.

Other Mars specialists, however, felt the data sent back by Mariner 9 showed a planet with such a hostile environment for life that its possibility seemed unlikely.

In the International Colloquium on Mars there was some agreement: Mars has little atmosphere; temperatures rise to the 80's in some areas during the day and drop to well-below zero at night; caps of frozen water or carbon dioxide cover the polar areas, and the surface has rugged volcanic features.

Scientists seeking to determine when the planet's atmosphere appeared want to know how long ago the volcanic activity occurred. One group, including Sagan and his colleagues at Cornell, contended there must at one time have been a more substantial atmosphere. If so, water may have been more abundant and life could have been sustained.

The opposing view is that Mars never had any more of an atmosphere than it does today. The present atmosphere has a pressure only one per cent that of earth's.

Related to that issue is the dispute over the canal-like features first observed in the late 1800's. The idea that they were the work of an advanced society has long since been discarded, but arguments continue over how they came about.

To some of the Mars experts, only running water could have formed some of the river bed-like channels; therefore water must have been abundant at some time.

No, say opponents, there are other explanations. Flowing lava streams could be the cause.

Dr. Bruce Murray of Caltech says, "If we were on Mars studying the earth with the level of knowledge we have now, we couldn't understand some of the processes that made earth's topography." "We have to accept the fact that there are some processes occurring on Mars that we can't even guess at."

In a joint paper on the possibility of Martian life, Sagan and Lederberg said a wide range of living things could exist there as far as is known at present.

Since much of the planet is cold and icy, the scientists said, there could exist large animals, just as conditions at earth's polar regions favor big creatures such as bears and walruses. This is because organisms with large volumes are better able to retain heat.

Even the lethal ultraviolet radiation from the sun that glares down on Mars does not completely rule out living things, said Sagan and Lederberg. Martian organisms may have adapted to the radiation.

Doomsday Folk Like Brasilia

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Brazil's inland capital is becoming a haven for a "doomsday crowd" of cultists who believe this high and arid city will be saved from a global apocalypse.

Its adherents are a motley crew of bureaucrats, housewives, students, senior government officials, military men and country folk.

"You know something. I really believe this city has got something spiritually special," a university-trained professional woman says.

On a given Friday or Sunday, members of the crowd may gather on the outskirts of this 13-year-old city to watch for flying saucers, listen to prophecy or seek relief from physical or spiritual ills through mystical or divine intervention.

The basic spiritual beliefs within these groups vary.

There's Zen Buddhism at Luisinia's Valley of the Blue Moon. Or take the Valley of the Dawn in nearby Planaltina. A home-grown brand of spiritualism is mixed with Roman Catholic Christianity there by Tia Neiva, a brown-skinned, middle-aged widow with four children, who was a truck driver before becoming a spiritual leader.

She is said to be strikingly attractive but only her followers know for sure. She does not receive everybody.

Perhaps the most curious of all the groups is the Great White Fraternity of the Himalayas, a society headed by a retired general.

It's mostly well-educated members take to the cold midnight darkness of a farm in Alexania, about an hour by car from here, to wait for flying saucers every Friday.

While manifestations vary, one belief is common to all these groups: Brasilia is a promised land and one of the few places in the world which will be spared from the cataclysm to come upon the earth.

At the Valley of the Dawn the date for this happening is already set: 1984.

Junk Becomes Wall Plaques

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Bits and pieces of almost anything become mock trains, motorcycles, dune buggies, steam shovels and cable cars in the hands of Pete Geist of Akron.

Geist began his hobby while recuperating from an automobileaccidentthat shattered an elbow.

"I tired of reading and began examining a bag of junk from a flea market to see what I could do with it," Geist says.

He calls his designs "junque art." Some of the plaques are backed by felt-covered plywood; others by natural barn siding. Most of his designs involves modes of travel.

"It's like a jigsaw puzzle," he says. "I use what I have and fit it together. Jar-lid rims make excellent wheels—hollow side up for trains or over for a car. The spokes are coat-hanger wire."

Keys, dog tags, jewelry chains, BB-gun triggers, an ignition switch, an old cigarette lighter, bits of clockwork—these and more find their way into the designs.

Geist, a warehouse and shipping employee, was an airplane mechanics instructor in the Second World War and once helped a friend build a full-size plane. He also designed and built his home.

Hall Makes Award

Railroad Pay Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — Railway workers were granted wage increases Wednesday substantially higher than minimums set by Parliament last summer.

A binding arbitration award produced 24 months after the start of contract negotiations for 53,000 workers provides them with a retroactive pay increase of 15 cents-an-hour for 1973.

This is above a 34 cents-an-hour 1972 wage raise set by Parliament for 58,000 non-operating workers and 6% per cent raises given to other employees when the government ended a national rail strike in September. It gives 40-hour-a-week employees an additional $31 in retroactive pay.

The award, prepared by Emmett Hall, retired Supreme Court of Canada justice, also gives the workers a nine-per-cent increase for 1974, Parliament had awarded 6.5 per cent effective Jan. 1, 1974, and 1.5 per cent July 1.

Union leaders were happy at the award Wednesday but company spokesmen had no comment.

The award, which exceeds even the union's final demand in bargaining last summer, is sure to increase pressure from the companies for a relaxation of a freight rate freeze.

Mr. Justice Hall, son of a railway employee, cited cost-of-living increases, the need of railworkers to share in increased national productivity and a catch-up with workers in similar jobs in other industries as factors he considered in his decision.

Based on average hourly pay to the various classes of workers at expiry of their last contracts on Dec. 31, 1972, the total wage increases, including the minimum given by Parliament, will range between 22 and 24 per cent.

Average hourly pay to the non-ops, who include laborers, porters, clerks, truckers and telegraph operators will go to $4.28 retroactive to Jan. 1. On Dec. 31, 1971, the average was $3.54.

For 22,000 tradesmen, average hourly pay, including a newly-incorporated 36-cent shift differential, is to go to $5.27. At expiry of the last agreement the average, including the differential, was $4.35.

And 14,500 trainmen will have an average wage of $5.18 hourly retroactive to Jan. 1. Their average at expiry of the 1972 contract was $4.25.

Another 6,000 railway engineers also gain from the report. They had agreed to the 9½ per cent raise granted by Parliament to the tradesmen and trainmen in 1973 plus anything additional awarded by Mr. Justice Hall.

The award also provides the first shift differential to be paid to rail workers—a 10-cents-an-hour payment to evening shift workers and 15-cents-an-hour to overnight and early morning employees.

Skill differentials of 30 cents-an-hour also were extended to tradesmen previously not receiving them and smaller skill payments will go to apprentice tradesmen.

About 8,500 yard foremen, helpers and switch tenders also gain an additional increases of 25 cents-an-hour back to Jan. 1 because of the dangerous nature of their work.

Mr. Justice Hall left it up to the parties to settle two other major questions, job security and the size of freight train crews.

The unions and companies are to conduct safety trials on the crew-size question and report back to him June 30. The companies want to reduce crews to two from three.

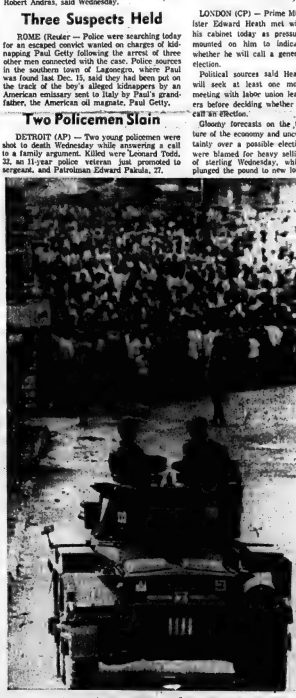
Role Promised Militia

OTTAWA — Defence Minister Richardson today forecast a bright future for militia reserve units. In a speech prepared for delivery to the annual Conference of Defence Associations the minister said it is his intention to make the reserves an "increasingly important part of the national defence of Canada." He promised to continue to improve equipment and to provide units with the armed forces green uniforms and other clothing.

Woman Deputy Minister

TORONTO (CP) — Dorothea Crittenden, 58, who began her career with the provincial government as a typist in 1937, was appointed Wednesday deputy minister of community and social services. She is the first woman ever to be named deputy minister.

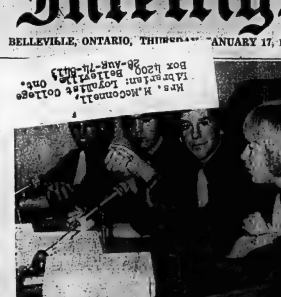
Britons Emigrating



WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The number of applications for immigration to Canada from Britain has jumped more than 500 per cent during the first two weeks of January, Mark MacGuigan, parliamentary assistant to Manpower Minister Robert Andras, said Wednesday.

Three Suspects Held

ROME (Reuter — Police were searching today for an escaped convict wanted on charges of kidnapping Paul Getty following the arrest of three other men connected with the case. Police sources in the southern town of Lagonegro, where Paul was found last Dec. 15, said they had been put on the track of the boy's alleged kidnapers by an American emissary sent to Italy by Paul's grandfather, the American oil magnate, Paul Getty.



Two Policemen Slain

'Gun' Problems Settled

Israel Accepts Kissinger Plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli cabinet met today and apparently approved a plan worked out by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger to disengage Israeli and Egyptian troops along the Suez canal.

Israeli sources said they expected a statement of agreement to be issued later today—probably in Washington, Moscow, Cairo and Jerusalem—confirming that the two sides had finally come together after a week of mediation by Kissinger.

The announcement was not expected to specify the terms of the agreement, however. Sources said Israel might get only mutual understandings with Egypt on thinning out Arab forces east of the canal instead of a written pledge.

The disengagement agreement would have to be submitted to Israel's parliament for conference, officials said.

The Israeli cabinet issued a communique indicating that the main points of a disengagement agreement—"Gul, Issues" as American officials put it—were resolved.

The cabinet communique said the cabinet empowered Prime Minister Golda Meir "to transmit to the secretary of state the Israeli government's views on the proposals regarding the separation of forces on the Egyptian front . . ." But it added that "technical clarifications" were still outstanding.

There was no immediate report from Egypt's President Anwar Sadat on an agreement.

The Israeli cabinet statement also said Defence Minister Moshe Dayan would report tonight to the Israeli parliament's defence and foreign affairs committee.

The statement said Mrs. Meir would report next Tuesday to the plenary session of parliament on the "political and security situation and on the subject of the separation of forces on the Egyptian front."

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said before the cabinet meeting there were "some substantial points to be clarified."

He said over Israeli state radio that negotiations were proceeding at an intensive pace.

"It is an agreement which should be based on a new balance of advantage and concessions" by both sides, he said.

Reporters asked Eban if settlement would be reached today. He said he would not commit himself to a timetable.

Eban conceded after talking with United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger Wednesday night that the American mediator had made "certain progress" on his latest meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

The U.S. "official who said agreement was 90 per cent complete said none of the obstacles remaining was a "gut issue."

Egyptian newspapers wrote of a disengagement agreement today in terms that also indicated one is near.

"The wording and clauses of such provision will be clear and precise in such a way as to avoid ambiguity or misinterpretation by any of the parties," said Al Gomhouriya.

TIMETABLE REPORTED

"Each of the Israeli pullback stages will be implemented according to a timetable and will stipulate minute details on the transport of equipment and thinning out of Israeli troops, the number of these forces and the kinds of weapons."

However, no one gave any indication of how the various points of disagreement previously reported are being resolved.

Safety First

This four man team of students from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in Picton won the section championship last night of the School Safety Awareness Competition sponsored by the Prince Edward - Hastings section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association. Heath Under Pressure For Election Decision

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath met with his cabinet today as pressure mounted on him to indicate whether he will call a general election.

Political sources said Heath will seek at least one more meeting with labor union leaders before deciding whether to call an election.

Gloomy forecasts on the future of the economy and uncertainly over a possible election were blamed for heavy selling of sterling Wednesday, which plunged the pound to new lows against the United States dollar.

Wednesday night, Lord Carrington, Britain's new energy minister, said the country is in "a very grave situation."

He said in a television interview: "I think there could be a situation in which the government is forced into an election, but I think it would be very much better if it were not so."

But there is still a glimmer of hope that the government and the Trades Union Council (TUC) can pull off a last-minute settlement in the miners' wage dispute which has driven industry to a crippling three-day work week to save electricity.

The member unions of the TUC, which represents about 10 million workers, met Wednesday to endorse a peace formula under which any increase for miners would not be used by other unions as a springboard for their demands.

Although the government insists that the TUC offer was not firm enough, some observers believe there is a slim chance Heath will invite the TUC leaders to see him again today and agree to pay the miners more in order to put an end to the three-day week.

'Panic Buying' of Toilet Paper Brings Allocation by Suppliers

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The Scott Paper Co. announced Wednesday that it is implementing an allocation system on a national basis for the distribution of toilet tissues, due to "panic buying" on the retail level.

A spokesman for the company said unfounded rumors of a shortage of paper products caused excessive demand at retail outlets.

Scott said it expects to ship substantially more cases of all its household paper products this month than during January, 1973.

A spokesman said the allocation system is necessary to bring its supply-demand ratio into balance and in order to replenish inventories depleted by the abnormal consumer demand.

Another toilet-tissue market leader, Procter and Gamble, said it is re-enforcing a little-used compliay rule of limiting toilet paper orders to a 36-day supply.

A spokesman for Kimberly-Clark said his company is not implementing a strict allocation system, but is limiting orders depending on various circumstances.

The spokesman said the demand for all tissue products is very strong but the the scarcity—due to abnormal buying—is most severe in toilet tissue.

Environmental Board Approves CP Dump

TORONTO (CP) — The environmental hearing board of the provincial government recommended acceptance Wednesday of a CP Rail proposal to haul 400,000 tons of Metropolitan Toronto garbage each year to a landfill site near Port Hope, Ont.

However, it added conditions relating to the maintenance of the site and financing. It also waived some land from the proposed site and established a maximum capacity below that wanted by CP Rail.

The ministry of the environment still must give sanction to the proposal before final approval.

Approval would would permit CP Rail to proceed to Hope Township with a rezoning application for the 460-acre site the company also would have to get to approval from the Ontario Municipal Board.

Local residents have argued that the site would damage the local environment.

The environmental hearing board insisted that three environmental conditions be met; These include:

—Protection of local streams under requirements of the Water Quality Improvement Act.

—Additional screening and vegetation.

—Protective measures to prevent blowing papers from leaving the site.

The board also required CP Rail to provide on-site supervision and establish a fund from which any damages arising from the operation may be paid.

The board instructed CP Rail to make the site available to the local municipality after the landfill project if the municipality so requests "for the nominal sum of $1."

Refugees Eschew Politics

TORONTO (CP) — Chilean refugees said Wednesday they willingly agreed, for the sake of their lives, to Canadian government conditions that they refrain from political activity in Canada.

Openly admitting they are Marxists whose major concern now is the fate of their comrades left behind in Chile, four spokesmen for 116 refugees who arrived in Canada, last week met reporters and television cameras at a news conference.

The spokesman said screening by the Canadian government is rejecting many refugees while countries such as France, Sweden and West Germany, are accepting refugees without exacting conditions.

He said prospective refugees who do not agree to refrain from political activity are being rejected, and rejection may mean death at the hands of the military junta which toppled late president Salvador Allende in a coup Sept. 11.

Maritime Homeowners' Oil Bills May Be Double Those for 1973

FREDERICTON (CP) — A year ago, a homeowner here paid about $60 to fill a 250-gallon tank with furnace oil.

Today, it costs $88.75 and if new price increases take effect without some kind of federal subsidy, it might cost $118.75 within a matter of weeks.

A similar situation applies in most parts of the Maritimes. Higher gasoline prices are in effect and some industrial oil users are said to have been hit by oil price increases of 100 to 250 per cent.

Underlying the increasing prices is the escalating cost of Venezuelan and Middle East crude oil on which the Maritimes have been dependent.

Concern among Maritime premiers last fall that 1974 oil supplies might be insufficient seems to have given way to fear that prices will climb even higher, perhaps taking a toll among oil-dependent industries.

Emerging from a one-day meeting to prepare for next week's federal-provincial energy conference in Ottawa, the three premiers called for a one-price policy for crude oil used in Canada for Canadian needs.

The premiers, however, shyed away from naming a price they found acceptable.

Nor were the premiers willing to suggest how Ottawa should bring crude oil prices in line.

But the region was generally sidy program.

Interviewed by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald's indication earlier that the federal government might channel revenues from its oil export tax into an Eastern Canadian oil-price sub-

PECI Quiz Team Repeats

Safety was the key word at last night's school safety awareness competition and dinner meeting held at the Legion Hall.

And it paid off for a four-man team of students from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute as they went on to defeat a team from Trenton High School to win the section championship of the safety competitions.

The competition and the dinner was put on by the Prince Edward Hastings section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

The four members of the PECI team all in Grade 11 were: Lee Foster Eric Graham Herb Piwiechkies and Don Leslie. They were coached by PECI staff member Roy Goostrey.

Last night's victory means the team goes on to face against the winner of the Nepanee - Kingston - Gananoque series on January 30 in Belleville. Then on Feb. 14 the winner of that series goes on to the divisional championships in Peterborough.

And sometime in April the provincial championship will be held in Toronto.

But it's all a familiar route for the team from PECI as member of previous teams have won the provincial championships in 1970 and 1972. They were runners-up in 1971. And now they're trying for top spot in 1973.

During last night's competition the team from Trenton High School was made up of: Gary Proux, Rodney Holmwood Brady Aubin and Mike Ritchie. Their coach was Carol Beecroft.

The moderator of last night's competition was Jim Dunlop and the judges were John Batchelor and Harold Keefer. Scorekeepers were Ray Burley and Ted Lavigne while John Harris was the timekeeper.

The format of the contest involved the eight participants being given a total of 48 questions, half of them direct questions and the other half toss-ups.

A limit of ten seconds was given to answer each question and ten marks were given for every correct answer. At the half-time mark, PECI led THS 105 to 90. When the game was over, PECI was ahead 215 to THS's 180.

Questions centred on all areas of safety awareness and on industrial safety rules though the event was sponsored by the IAPA which concentrates on industrial safety, but is also interested in off-the-job safety as well.

In fact, 40 percent of the questions dealt with safety off the job. Indeed, the students were expected to know proper safety practices in such areas as boating, motorcycling and poisons.

Prior to the competition, guests at the safety dinner meeting heard Donald Stemp of the technology division of Humber College in Toronto (Rexdale) speak on the unique industrial safety technology course at his school.

This is the first program of its kind to be offered in Ontario and this spring the school will bring out its first two graduates of the three-year program.

Two Apartments Broken Into

Belleville police are investigating two break-ins that occurred in an apartment building at 9 King George Square sometime during the day yesterday.

Police Chief Douglas Cronkite reported this morning that thieves gained entry to an apartment occupied by Roland Rochon sometime between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. yesterday and took $125 worth of change from two piggy banks in the kitchen.

Another apartment in the same building occupied by William Beenton, also entered after thieves forced open the front door. Nothing was reported missing from the second break-in.

Drug Series Ends Tonight

The four-part series on the drug situation being held at the Corby Library continues tonight.

Inspector Ralph Hatchford of the city police department will be available for a question-and-answer period. It will be beginning of the program at 8 p.m. two films will be shown, Us and Alcohol Everyone Does.

The series is being co-ordinated by the National Film Board of Canada in conjunction with the Corby Library and the response so far had been quite good.

Everyone is invited to attend tonight and the admission is free. If the main Library entrance is closed, it is suggested you try the Campbell Street entrance.

Gone to the Dogs

You might say Belleville's newest downtown business has gone to the dogs. But after all, that's what it's mainly about. Tropical Gardens, specializing in pets, has recently moved in to the site of the old Red Shark which has moved elsewhere downtown. Owner of the shop is Mel Sherwood who poses with two Cocker Spaniel puppies, that are for sale. Besides the puppies there are tropical fish, his best seller, he says, birds, and pet supplies for sale. Eventually, he would like to bring into his place kittens, a parrot and maybe some piranha fish.

Proposal Would Put Bay Under Province's Wing

A proposal that development of Bay of Quinte for water recreation facilities become the responsibility of a special government authority is being sent to Belleville city council.

The scheme envisioned the entire waterway from King-ston to Presqu'ile under the jurisdiction of an agency akin to the St. Lawrence Parks Commission.

The commission operates parks and resort attractions — including Upper Canada Village — along the St. Lawrence from the Quebec border to Adolphustown.

Now the Belleville Harbor Improvement Committee wants city hall permission to study the feasibility of a similar provincial presence encompassing the Bay, as a new source of waterside parkland development. The committee would also sound out the support of the many municipalities involved along the hundreds of miles of shoreline.

The suggestion was introduced by Aldermen Stu Meeks, committee chairman, Wednesday night and won ready support from other members who voted it to city hall for further consideration. This means Ald. Meeks will likely introduce it into council next Monday.

Backed in total by senior government resources, the new scheme would benefit both the Quinte public and their communities, said Ald. Meeks.

Islands and shoreline park areas could attract boating tourists who now use the Bay merely as a route to the attractions of the St. Lawrence parks belt he said.

It also would create more parkland closer to the communities for enjoyment of Quinte dwellers. In a time of scarce or more expensive fuel they would drive shorter distances to such facilities he proves our resolution we could at least study it."

Doug Burley , committee member, said the suggestion was "quite well taken" although the committee might find it had "bitten off a big job" having to canvass all municipalities involved.

Ald. Meeks' proposal envisioned either the extension of St. Lawrence commission's jurisdiction or creation of a new commission to undertake such a project.

He said he intended raising his plan at a public regional seminar Saturday in Kingston with a representative government team headed by Premier Davis.

Clarke Rollins MPP Hastings is chairman of the St. Lawrence commission.

Ministers Meet Here

Centennial Free Methodist Church was the host Wednesday for the Aldersgate Ministers' Conference, attended by 100 ministers and brethren of the Anglican, Wesleyan Methodist and Free Methodist churches.

Rev. Donald Bowerman, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association, welcomed delegates to the two-day conference. City Police Chief Douglas Cronkite took part in a panel discussion of "The Church Which We Spoad. Featured speaker for the conference was Dr. Donald Gee, professor of preaching at Asbury Theological Seminary, Wilmore, Kentucky. Separate meetings were held for 40 women who accompanied their husbands.

Survey to Decide How School Used

Queen Victoria School's community program will be extending its hours with the receipt of a Local Initiative Program grant.

The three workers hired to supervise the program this winter have begun a survey of the school community from Herchimer Ave. to Front St. and from the CN tracks to the Bay of Quinte.

With the closing of Queen Alexander School, Queen Victoria becomes the community school for the area the centre for afternoon and evening recreational activities in the district.

The survey to be mailed to all residents of the area will determine the activities wanted by people in the neighborhood and the talent available to instruct and supervise programs.

As well as running the after-school programs for children and adults the three LIP workers supervise school hour activities. Johanna Hughes and Judy Hills are instructing in swimming and skating and Merne H. Branscombe is assisting with arts and crafts and creative dancing.

Residents of the east hill area are asked to fill in the survey form and return it to Queen Vic.

"The community school is a used school, used by kids as well as children and used evenings, weekends and holidays, winter and summer," says the community development officer. "It is the school of all the people, designed and used by them according to their needs."

Among the activities now in operation are square dancing, family swimming, keep fit classes, arts and crafts, a summer club, chess club, gymnastics, and instruction in furniture refinishing and oil painting.

Harbor Plan Endorsed

A picturesque project that would create a new waterside residential community on the west side of the Moira River mouth was scrutinized by Belleville Harbor Improvement Committee Wednesday night.

The development proposed by city businessman Ian Morch for an area on which he has long operated a boatyard, is moving through various city and planning reviews.

The committee has no objection to the concept which includes 180-200 residential units with marine facilities for its residents. However, the committee expressed concern at loss of boating space available for years to the public on the proposed site.

Taylor: Lake-on-the-Mountain Should Not Be "Playground"

MPP Concerned Over Proposed Park Development

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

... PICTON — The announcement of a new provincial park in Prince Edward County by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier has prompted concern from Ameer Taylor MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

The provincial government has stated that it will acquire, Wednesday, Mr. Taylor said that already there is a great deal of provincial parkland in the county and observed that it should not become "a playground" for all, except local residents.

Mr. Taylor noted that the Provincial Park has a target date for completion in 1975. Proposed development cost for the 500-acre site, once it has been acquired, is estimated at $100,000. No land acquisitions have been made as yet.

The MPP said that he is concerned for businessmen with vested interests, homeowners and landowners who may be affected by the park development.

We cannot forget these people. We have to preserve and protect these unique geological phenomenon (Lake-On-The-Mountain) but the interests of the land owners and the resident must be protected," commented Mr. Taylor.

"The public gain should not be at the expense of the private resident."

Mr. Taylor said that Lake-On-The-Mountain is "one of the most breathtaking vistas" in Ontario or in Canada and added that it should be protected.

"We have to be sure we are protecting it and not just creating another stretch of parkland that is not needed," he emphasized.

The MPP remarked that park expansion at the lake site would not provide camping facilities since the concept is for "a intensive park."

He said that it is important to safeguard the quality of the lake's water from surface drainage and observed there is a great deal of land at the south side of Lake-On-The-Mountain.

The MPP stressed that any development of the park should include consideration for property owners and local residents, not just vacationers.

Site for Expansion

Deserted under winter snow, Lake-The-Mountain provincial picnic site is a lonely place right now. But Ontario government plans to expand the provincial parkland pocket into 500-acre park area has drawn concern from local MPP and nearby resort operator.

Resort Operator: "Behind 8-ball"

PICTON—A Prince Edward County resort operator claims he has been placed "behind the eight ball" with provincial government plans to acquire shore front property at Lake-On-The-Mountain for park expansion.

Hugh Frizell, owner of Lake-On-The-Mountain resort and motel says that he has received many telephone calls from concerned vacationers who have booked their holidays with him this summer.

Most of the tourists have asked if their reservations are still good in view of the ministry's announcement.

Mr. Frizell says that the Ministry of Natural Resources at no time approached him regarding the 2,000 feet of shoreline property that he owns on both sides of the day park now operated at Lake-On-The-Mountain.

It is a disgraceful thing the government has done," he remarks.

A 30-year veteran of the tourist industry, Mr. Frizell says he cannot offer assurance to any his customers because he does not know if his land will be expropriated or not.

"The government made its statement. Where do I standnow?"

The resort operator comments that he cannot afford to lose a year's business and notes that, even if the announcement were revised, it would be too late for him to retain his regular summer clientele.

His resort which, he says, is the largest in Prince Edward, includes a motel with 12 units, eight cottages and a brick house divided into three apartments.

Mr. Frizell says he is not "looking for something for nothing" but feels he should be reimbursed for losing a season's trade.

"I'm one that is going to fight right to the end," he states, declaring his opposition to the announcement of the park's shoreline expansion.

North Marysburgh township reeve Jack Wells yesterday commented briefly on the ministry's announcement but said that he did not yet have full information on the new park.

He said that he had been told, unofficially, that only shoreline property will be acquired for the park. Existing homes and cottage therefore would not be purchased.

Mr. Wells added that he feels the park is being expanded be purchased.

Mountain and observed "It's a fine theory if they do it."

Citizens Bureau Search Goes on for Trenton Office

TRENTON—Office space in this community is posing itself as a major block to location of the new Citizens Bureau.

The bureau's sponsor - Quinte District Labor Council — received notification from the federal government weeks ago it would be supplied more than $9,000 in Local Initiative Program funds to operate the project. Since that time neither bureau staff or project sponsors have been able to rent an office.

Bill Hockley, manager of the Belleville bureau, says prices are "sky high in Trenton - too high for the $100 a month the bureau can afford to pay.

"Either office space is at a real premium or the prices are being deliberately jacked up," he said.

Charles Hart, currently working in the Belleville bureau office, recently published a letter in a local paper warning of alleged Trenton merchant antagonism and their reluctance to have the bureau operate in Trenton.

He too declined to go into specifics about who was antagonistic. Both men preferred that any statements regarding this should come from QDLC president Doug Sword. Mr. Sword told this paper he had no knowledge of this and in turn didn't want to alienate Trenton merchants before the bureau was even operative.

Both bureau staff and labor council representatives have been checking into available office space in town and have found in all cases the offices were too expensive. Rents seem to start from $150 and up on a monthly basis.

Mr. Hart, a strong possibility as office manager of the Trenton operation said "we're going to get some place in the next few days."

Already the Belleville office has received numerous inquiries from Trenton people requiring assistance, said Mr. Hart.

Referring to the general business of the bureau Hockley it re-opened in November he said "we've got some dandies...some we aren't going to make friends with," said Mr. Hart.

Merchants and Shoppers Optimistic on Trenton Mall

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The mall slated for construction in the town's eastend is being greeted optimistically by shoppers and merchants alike.

According to Lloyd Wells president of Trenton Retail Merchants' Association "it's progress ... a great idea."

Mr. Wells said the mall would help to keep business in Trenton and in addition bring in new business.

He says a great portion of the local consumer dollar is going to Belleville's Quinte Mall. This is substantiated by Trenton mall developer's findings that more than 50 per cent of the Trenton shopping dollar is spent out-of-town.

Businessmen interviewed agree that initially downtown business will suffer somewhat but in the end property generally more shoppers will be com ng to Trenton and will be using the downtown commercial area if it is competitive.

"I think this mall will wake up the downtown merchants" said Mr. Wells. "We can't sit back now."

Mr. Wells says a great part of the attraction of the Quinte Mall is the great market in Simpsons-Sears credit card business.

"Depending on the quality of the anchor store for the Trenton mall we can keep shoppers here" he said.

The anchor store — a major department store — has not yet been named and merchants and shoppers alike are guarded against too much enthusiasm until the name is disclosed. No release is expected until paperwork is completed by the mall developers.

"I think once traffic increases with shoppers heading for the complex, they will take a chance on dropping into a downtown store. If they do I think they'll come back" Mr Wells said.

Sports Club Seeks Help

The Coe Hill Sports Club wants financial assistance to help in the maintenance of its snowmobile trails.

The request, submitted to county council this week, noted that under the proposed county official plan the Coe Hill area was designated as a greenbelt area and, accordingly, recreation and tourism would be the only industry.

The club feels that with roads out of bounds for snowmobile operators, owners of these machines are being overcharged with their $10 license fee and that some of the money should go to trail maintenance.

Wollaston township deputy Reeve Buddy French said the Coe Hill club members in previous years had volunteered their time in blazing out 200 miles of snowmobile trails.

But he said they no longer were prepared to volunteer for trail maintenance.

"Then how do they find time to go snowmobile riding?" asked Madoc township Reeve Cecil Woods.

The club request was referred to the county council, ARDA and Tourism Committee.

Cross-Country Snowmobiling Carnival First

TWEED — Tweed's carnival will this year feature the first annual cross-country snowmobile race over a 25-miles course from Tweed to Kaladar and return.

The event will be held on the first day of the carnival, Feb. 9 and will be open to all machines up to 440 cc. The race, sponsored by Formosa Spring Brewery, will start at 10 a.m. Feb. 9 and finish at 11 a.m.

The carnival will go metric this year, with the cross country ski races measured in kilometres. They will begin at 10 a.m. Feb. 9.

The evening program Feb. 9 will include a hockey game between the B.P. Oil Kings and Campbellford and a dance in the Legion Hall. The second day, Feb. 10, will begin with a pancake breakfast in Hungerford township hall and continue with snowmobile races. The location has been changed this year from Stoco Lake to Ken Jeffery's farm on Highway 37, three miles south of Tweed.

Trenton Sides With Election Amendments

TRENTON —Trenton town council has sided with the municipality of Oakville calling for amendents to the Municipal Elections Act.

Council approved an amendment which allows for the issue of voting proxy up to and including the day of election. At present the issuance of voting proxy must take place on or before the Tuesday prior to election.

The petition to be sent to all Ontario municipalities with populations in excess of 10,000 will also give wider latitude for those who can use proxy voting techniques.

No LIP Council Is Told

TRENTON — Town council has received formal indication it would not be receiving funds through the federally sponsored Local Initiatives Project.

Council had applied for about $9,000 under the plan involved in renovations of the old town offices, soon to be occupied by the staff of the Quinte Planning Board.

According to town treasurer Brian Fagan the monies can be arranged for in the 1974 budget.

Steel Shortage, Big Layoff

NAPANEE — Napanee Industries Ltd., one of this area's largest plants, has laid off one-third of its work force because of steel shortage.

Of the 30-member work force, 25 hourly-paid employees and seven staff members have been laid off.

President Owen Pegg said that the plants suppliers, Steel Company of Canada and Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd., during the last six months have provided only 79 percent of the steel supplied to the local firm in 1972.

"The output of the Canadian steel producers in 1973 was 13.6 percent higher than the 1972 output," he told employees.

The two steel firms are filling export orders in preference to supplying Canadian firms, he said.

"I have constantly stressed that in continuing to export steel we are exporting jobs," said Mr. Pegg.

RMC Gun Collection Ransacked

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Officials at Royal Military College said Wednesday that 25 weapons valued at $60,000 have been stolen from a $100,000 gun collection there.

The theft was discovered last Friday after 15 weapons stolen in 1972 were recovered by the United States border patrol near Drayton, N.D.

College officials said they believed the more recent theft occurred early this month when the Fort Frontenac museum on the school's grounds was broken into.

Glenn Bernard Bird, 46, a fugitive from nearby Joyceville penitentiary, was arrested Jan. 9 for illegal entry into the United States. The 15 weapons and $37,000 in Canada Savings Bonds were found in his car.

Bird, in Joyceville for violating parole on a previous fraudulent conviction, had failed on return to the institution when he was given a temporary leave over the Christmas holiday.

He appeared in Grand Forks, N.D., and was remanded in jail to await action from a higher court.

The 200 guns in the collection originally belonged to Gen. Porfirio Diaz, president of Mexico from 1877 to 1911.

The Y in the 70s

Gordon Cressy, the personable young president of the National Council of YMCA's, told a story or two against himself in a National YMCA Week address to Belleville Rotarians the other day.

Of the generation growing up at the time of the Kennedy assassination in 1963, Mr. Cressy spoke of the "euphoria" of the sixties, days that were to see a new social order, and of how he was one of those who thought it went sour and what had been a new thrust in affairs changed to "polarization and confrontation".

Cressy went to Chicago in 1964 to work for the Y in an all-black neighborhood. Being young and believing he could solve the problems there (he had already been in the Caribbean) he asked for the toughest job available. "All right, we have a problem with VD — we want you to solve it," he was told. Not to be deterred, young Cressy acquired a National Film Board presentation from his Grade 12 days ("I hope they begin earlier today," he said). It was a simple little piece, but with a message the black kids missed. Entitled "Dance Little Children," they all agreed, "white kids can't dance!"

Mr. Cressy learned there are no quick solutions to old problems and in his address he expressed the belief that slow growth makes a lot more sense.

A rare enough sort of individual with his immaculate appearance in an era of way-out styles and sloppy mannerisms, Mr. Cressy, at 30, clearly is too mature to feel the need for any such affectations. Rather he reflects his own and the Y's increasing breadth of vision as embracing all levels of society and this country's constantly evolving ethnic patterns.

He believes also that from those earlier days of youth in revolt things are getting better and there is a significant shift in attitudes among the young. There is a better understanding of the drug phenomenon, and now, as it shifts back to alcohol, of the gap in communication between the young and their parents. The catchword of "equality of opportunity", however, had been a myth, because there was no equality of access" (to it). There was the "jargon of rhetoric," but what is needed are deeds rather than talk.

"We created the spectator society," said Mr. Cressy, a society that watches things happen." He saw it as a very destructive thing for the young, because it made them feel they could not make things happen.

"But we believe participation is better, that people really do want to determine what they do with their lives."

An organization like the Y, with community support, can help this kind of philosophy work.

Return Trip

Remember Defence Minister Richardson's nice little jaunt to the South Pacific for talks with his counterparts in Australia and New Zealand and the questions that subsequently were asked in Parliament about the cost of it all, whether the journey was really necessary and so on.

In any event, it is all water under the bridge now, but not to be outdone the Australians are sent their own defence minister, Lance Bernard, to Ottawa. He has just spent three days there and reportedly was particularly interested in reviewing Canada's Emergency Measures Organization. Ironically, there may not be all that much of the EMO to inspect these days because of recent cutbacks in monies for its maintenance. However it is certainly to be hoped that the Australians who periodically are hit by severe floods of the kind being experienced in the country right now. Indeed, in view of such disasters, it is strange if no such organization exists there.

Of interest too is the talk of discussions on joint military exercises and possible joint military procurement programs, although the exact nature of the latter has not been spelled out. Canadian military personnel however, go to Australia for training in jungle warfare, in which the Australians are experienced.

As for the junketing involved in such ministerial trips, this time the bills are being paid by Canberra and while Australia has a round-the-world commercial airline it does not, so far as we know, have a military arm of the extent of the Canadian Forces, as at Trenton, readily available for a variety of duties, from shuttling troops and political refugees to moving politicians and athletes around the world.

So-called Under-Developed Lands Wage Economic War

By JOHN D. HARBRON,
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Since the end of the Second World War the industrialized and rich countries have referred patronizingly to most of the rest of the world as underdeveloped.

Lately this phrase we have meant of course it does not have our advanced technology nor the local human and financial skills needed to develop it.

The only way to do so is through skills transferred from the rich to the poor countries and to pay for it from their exports of plentiful raw materials.

Since 1968 the increasingly affluent industrial nations have bought these often as cheaply as they could, offering in return high-cost manufactured imports to these so-called developing countries.

Lately this phrase we have meant of course it does not have our advanced technology nor the local human and financial skills needed to develop it.

The only way to do so is through skills transferred from the rich to the poor countries and to pay for it from their exports of plentiful raw materials.

Since 1968 the increasingly affluent industrial nations have bought these often as cheaply as they could, offering in return high-cost manufactured imports to these so-called developing countries.

Most of these efforts at self-sufficiency have been disastrous. And in time developing countries have had to return to the industrial world for help. This didn't always mean the capitalistic countries but the socialist or Communist ones, the U.S.S.R. and Communist China and the lesser states within their power blocs.

Algeria, Egypt, Cuba and Peru, fearful of new economic ties with alleged predator capitalistic nations, sought technology from the U.S.S.R., East Germany or Poland. The Tanzanians have gone to The People's Republic of China for a $400-million railway. Peru has sought Russian rather than fishing industry which had once been mainly U.S.-owned and was nationalized.

All this is a familiar pattern in development economics. The new era is emerging from the ineffected unity of the oil-producing countries of the Arab world in seeking major political concessions from the West in return for normal oil supplies.

The disruption their self-imposed cuts in oil production have produced already are doing more to change the high-life style of the rich countries than all the tough social revolutions of the recent past were able to do.

Oil is the mainspring of our rich societies along with its numerous byproducts from natural gas to petrochemical feedstocks. The United States without Arab oil is a crippled giant, with the mighty U.S. navy, guarantor of the free world around the world, suffering from lack of fuel for monster ships and the missile-firing cruisers.

From all this activity in that developing or emerging world in which we find some of man's oldest and greatest civilizations (in Egypt and China to name two) truly great resources are being placed at risk.

By using their essential natural resources as a weapon the emerging world, which is most of our disturbed earth, has declared economic war on countries like our own, the United States and Japan, who will for example, see more hydroelectric power to light their streets than the entire emerging world of more than 100 countries can afford at present for basic heating and cooking needs.

Integrity of U. S. Business Takes A Plunge

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — The integrity of American business is being questioned more and more.

The head of a major United States public company points to the "fallen image" of business in the eyes of the public. The energy situation has served to make things worse.

Legislators are being besieged by pressures to distrustful of the oil companies and their part in the so-called crisis.

"They think this thing is contrived, and they're really frustrated and upset," says Congressman Silvio Conte, a Republican from Massachusetts.

The Nixon administration added to a bitter mood by announcing it will not file a civil antitrust action against the oil companies after a two-year investigation.

Attorney General William Saxbe said that although there was evidence of "conscious parallelism" in the pricing practices of the oil companies, there was insufficient evidence to prove conspiracy.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader called the decision "a whitewash of the oil industry to find out what is going on. William Simon, the U.S. energy chief, has ordered an audit of the price, profit and supply records of every U.S. oil refinery.

The oil crisis has been bad for everybody except the oil business.

Every man and woman in Canada can invent something, do something new, or do something

Canada Needs the Pioneer Spirit

ROYAL BANK

The First European Pioneers staked out their homesteads in Canada 374 years ago. On July first this year we celebrate the 107th anniversary of the day when their successors brought together their scattered hamlets and settlements into a confederated nation.

All history is the story of continuous exploration and discovery and colonization. If we are to suffer national stagnation we need to bring to life again the pioneer spirit, encourage freedom to change and grow, be willing to entertain suggestions, and provide growing space so that every person may develop skills to the fullest extent of his ability.

Every man and woman in Canada can invent something, do something new, or do something old in a better way. There are opportunities for pioneers in industry, agriculture, education, finance, literature, music, art, technology and home making.

Everyone is to some extent a pioneer. He notices a situation wherein improvement can be made, forsees the course of events a little, pictures in his mind's eye a desirable outcome, and devises means by which he will bring about the betterment.

Every generation procures people who seek after new lamps, and some are as fortunate as Aladdin.

The men and women who came into Canada in the 1500's were startling life, as it were, once more at the beginning, subduing rough'in a land where there were none of the comforts of Europe. They fell back upon long-inactive instincts and they relearned forgotten crafts. Civilized people of anciently cultivated lands, they did the labour of primitive races so that they might survive and forge ahead.

There were pioneers from two great nations, forced by their environment and isolation to discover what they had learnt so as to fit the ruggedness of the land in which they had chosen to build their homes.

To their credit, they coped with the austere existence of the frontier, modified their thoughts and habits, and made experiment and adjustment amid the novel life of forest an prairie. They were sustained by determination, enterprise, energy and courage, and they created a nation.

Some people think that because there is so great evidence of progress since those days the picture is complete, but there are many unfinished jobs. Incomplete inventions, unborn ideas and new problems. We need the pioneering spirit as urgently as ever.

The Y was formed as a society "for the improvement of the spiritual condition of young men engaged in the drapery trade." Soon it broadened its program to include educational and athletic activities. Seven years after its founding a Canadian visiting London, England, saw what George Williams was doing, returned and returned to Canada to open a Y.M.C.A. in Montreal. New Steel and Concrete Product Selling in UK

Ontario Bulletin

A new patented steel and concrete composite flooring system, claimed to be both cheaper and quicker to install than traditional concrete or timber floors, developed in Ottawa, is finding ready acceptance in Britain in projects either completed or underway at Wembley Stadium and Kingswinford and Cannock, Staffs.

In fact, with almost no prepublicity, the UK licensee reports orders during the coming year for 300,00 square feet of the flooring system for buildings that range from multi-storey flats and houses, to supermarkets and warehouses.

Called the Hambro system, it was developed about five years ago by New Struc Systems Ltd., and is used extensively in Canada and the US. To date, some 20-million square feet have been sold and sales are reported to be rising at a yearly rate of 60 per cent. Smith Composite Systems Ltd., 18 Roman Way, Sandbach, Cheshire is licensee for the UK and has spent two years in getting the Hambro flooring tested and approved to comply with British building codes.

The Hambro System makes use of a composite method whereby interlocking single-span steel joist top chords are encased in 2½-inch thick reinforced concrete. This permits the use of fewer, lighter floor framing members without a corresponding loss in structural strength. Ceiling panels are applied at the lower chord, leaving space for services.

For Canadians in the U.S.

Editor,
The Intelligencer

I am a Canadian, retired from the RCAF and living in Southern California. It is my intention to publish a Canadian newspaper for distribution to thousands of Canadian persons now living in the United States.

The U.S. Census Bureau tells me there are 173,000 of us living in this (Los Angeles) county alone. There are about 3,000,000 of us in the United States.

Prior to publication, I seek to acquire an inventory of Canadian feature material: history; current matter; and beyond.

I grew up at Goderich, Ontario, where, as a child, I heard scattered and incomplete accounts of a terrible storm that struck the Great Lakes in the late shipping season of 1913 (before I was born). I have never read anything on the storm, but it is my impression that Lake Huron was hardest hit and suffered the greatest loss of ships and human lives.

Do you have any past articles pertaining to the 1913 Great Lakes storm that you could possibly forward for inclusion in our yet-to-be-published Canadian newspaper? Full credit will be given to the source of the article (s).

Any copies or information you can supply will be sincerely appreciated.

A Close Look at Jupiter

The Christian Science Monitor

Every time man has looked closely at another planet for the first time, his preconceptions have been shattered. His universe is so large and varied that it cannot be understood by a perspective limited to earth.

The spacecraft Pioneer 10 is giving man his first close look at Jupiter; this represents a significant expansion in his perception. Not only is Jupiter the most distant object yet reached by a spacecraft, but it also differs greatly from the Earth. Mars, and Venus. Jupiter is the distant realm of high gravities, ammonia-water oceans, and methane clouds, ordering us to look for new ideas and subtle hidden beneath Jupiter's pastel-banded surface. Seeking out these principles cannot help but teach man more about his own world, as well as the universe. For instance, knowledge about the climates of Earth, Mars, Venus, and Jupiter might some day unravel the extremely complex factors behind the thin planet's climate changes.

Even more fundamentally, Pioneer 10 represents a growing technological society's search for understanding, for quest, leavened with wisdom, is an essential element of life.

Taxi Fares Outside City

Editor
The Intelligencer

I would appreciate some answers to these questions. Is there why have the taxi fares been increased for outside the City only? And are the fares identical in and out of Belleville. Why is the passenger in Belleville College exempt from this increase?

The discrimination here, in hitting the old people very hard, who depend on cabs for transportation in Belleville, they cannot stand in cold windy days waiting for the Trenton, Bus, due to the elements of the winter, or anyone in Belleville who depends on visits from their relatives each day, find the extra fares a burden on their pension.

I am not complaining about the increase within reason if this is applied to everyone using a cab, but to pick out a minority group, mostly the elderly, to pay for the hike in the price of gas, is unfair, everyone should be treated alike.

E. SMITH

Chamber of Commerce Role

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Certainly no one can accuse the Belleville Chamber of Commerce of false modesty. Mr. Quinn, manager of the local Chamber said "The Chamber is the conscience and will of the community."

If I thought the Chamber of Commerce represented the "conscience and will" of the community I think that I would enter a monastery.

Why is this organization constantly representing itself as the voice of the people? The Chamber is, and always has been the platform of the business community. There is nothing wrong with that. It has a right to have its own organization just the same as labor, citizens or professionals etc.

This constant harping on being the voice of the average person is annoying. The Y.M.C.A., Chamber here become concerned about the people is around the time the Y.M.C.A. and other community happenings prepare to dig into the community chest at budget time.

What nonsense for Mr. Sutton to suggest that the Chamber works as one of the "great educational, stabilizing and co-ordinating forces in the country."

Some of their past statements regarding the country, its economy and labor bordered on the ridiculous. As for leading — I suggest the only place they are qualified to lead most of the community, is up the garden path.

CLARENCE YOUNG

All His Own Work

Angus Duffy, Quinte Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator, does own labelling of emergency chests he did over himself. Such improvisation is necessary to cut operating expenses of group responsible for disaster planning and organization in Hastings, Prince Edward counties.

The Budget Is the Problem for EMO

Money may cause the next emergency confronting the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization.

Next week QEMO begins drafting its annual budget with a crucial financial dilemma still unsolved.

Has one-third its total funding been wiped out by big governent, or are financial alternatives available?

The loss would "cripple" an operation already working on margin, warns Angus Duffy, QEMO co-ordinator.

The predicament dates back to late last year when the federal government, paring $1 million from defence spending; announced it was halving its funding of emergency measures.

Since Ottawa subscribes an overwhelming 75 per cent of EMO budgets — the provinces 15 per cent, municipalities 10 per cent — the cutback suddenly posed disaster from unexpected sources for local organizations in less populous areas.

Among them is QEMO.

It counts all 39 municipal units in Hastings and Prince Edward counties which make up its executive committee. Its administration last year cost $29,500. The federal government paid $15.00 of the total.

The proposed Ottawa cutback would mean a loss of $7,500 to an operation responsible for organizing two counties against natural or man-made disasters. It's a role in which it serves as the focus for complex of professional and volunteer agencies operating together.

"If we were to lose that much money in proportion to our total budget, it would cripple us," says Mr. Duffy, now preparing to help his municipal executive to tackle the problem when it meets Jan. 23.

Only official direction QEMO has received on the quandary has come from provincial authorities responsible for emergency measures.

QEMO has been instructed to prepare its 1974 budget "on the assumption it will be the same as last year," says Mr. Duffy.

But there has been "no indication from either the provincial or federal government that they are going to make up the difference.

"It would be kind of handy to know where we stand," adds the co-ordinator.

Penny Pinching Big Part of Job

As an emergency measures professional, Angus Duffy's survival expertise includes penny-pinching.

There is little option — if Quinte Emergency Measures Organization is to survive. Economy and improvising are built-in basics of its operation.

QEMO is volunteer and professional agencies exercised for emergencies in Hastings and Prince Edward counties; it is 39 municipalities, a number already with disaster plans painstakingly prepared for any eventuality. But, day to day QEMO is mostly Mr. Duffy and secretary Mrs. Gwen Gorman, working from offices in Belleville's Ben Bleecker auditorium.

It's from here the training manoeuvres are directed, disaster plans drafted, potential emergency situations watched and weighed, information distributed.

But through the activities runs a preoccupation with economy, the need to get the most from every nickel in the annual budget — now facing further squeezes if a federal funds cutback becomes reality.

The secret to survival so far has meant the co-ordinator must perpetually pare expenses where possible.

For instance: QEMO maintains radios throughout the area. But with breakdowns, the co-ordinator drives around and picks up the faulty sets and takes them to a repair centre. Since tradesmen are paid from the time they're dispatched, money is saved. Emergency chests containing everything from flashlights to signs are distributed to the municipalities. Getting the right boxes is expensive. So, the co-ordinator buys old military chests from a junkyard, cleans and repaints them — then handprints the array of signs that go with the kits.

Such improvisation creates an awareness that pays off in other situations. When Lake Ontario rose to record levels last year it was obvious there'd be a big need for sandbags. Plastic has replaced the gunny sack. By encouraging farmers and feed mills to rummage around Mr. Duffy started a flow of bags into distributing centres and procured another 1,200 for QEMO headquarters to hand out.

QEMO also means much paper work — from plans to pamphlets. Last year, Mr. Duffy drafted six emergency plans for municipalities — a record for the province. Some 1,400 pamphlets were distributed on everything from flooding to winter car hazards.

Twins Die In Fire

SARNIA (CP) — Four-year-old twins died in a fire in their home Wednesday while a 12-year-old brother was babysitting.

The victims were Elizabeth Ann and Ronald Anthony Bentley, children of Robert Bentley. The father and mother were at work.

Randy Bentley, 12, left them in a back room of the home and returned to find it in flames.

Only One Death Attributed To Wrong Gas in Hospital

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's inquest into a series of 1973 deaths in Sudbury General Hospital entered its fourth day today with a sudden broadening of the country's official scope and the simultaneous suggestion that only one death may be ascribed to the mistaken substitution of anesthetic gas for oxygen.

The inquest started Monday as an enquiry into 32 deaths but presiding Coroner Ross Bennett told reporters Wednesday he was adding a 33rd—a woman who died last September four weeks after receiving oxygen in a new wing of the hospital.

But William Shea, lawyer for the institution, told the inquest that medical charts show no fatalities were caused by anesthetic nitrous oxide before Sept. 7.

That was the day six-year-old Catherine Dominic died, according to evidence given Wednesday, as a result of receiving a massive administration of nitrous oxide from an outlet of the hospital's medical-gas supply that was supposed to provide oxygen.

So far in the early stages of the evidence, the Dominic girl's death is the only one that has been attributed to a suspected mix-up in the gas delivery system of the 86-million wing that opened last May. The inquest is expected to last at least three weeks.

Dr. Bennett, deputy supervising coroner for Ontario, Wednesday added the name of Sylvia Taylor of Sudbury to the list of deaths being formally investigated after unexpected evidence came out that she had been given oxygen Aug. 28.

Information on this death was brought out by Mr. Shea in questioning of hospital nurse Christine von Zuban. Crown Attorney John Takach complained that this information should have been provided last year in the investigation, launched right after the death of the Dominic girl.

The evidence was that Mrs. Taylor had been brought in the hospital under oxygen treatment in an ambulance suffering from a respiratory ailment. The nurse said oxygen treatment was continued for 2½ hours from the gas outlet in the emergency treatment room without her condition visibly deteriorating.

Mrs. Taylor died Sept. 26. No evidence as to the cause of her death was submitted.

Nurse von Zuban testified that in the May-September period after the opening of the new wing, she knew of no gas problem in the emergency treatment room.

At Mr. Takach's request, Mr. Shea provided a list of 18 people—along with their medical charts—who had been treated with oxygen in the emergency or x-ray rooms of the new wing in the same period and were "walking the streets of Sudbury today."

Outside the enquiry chamber, Mr. Shea said all the persons whose deaths are being investigated—except Miss Dominic—were patients who had received oxygen treatment at some time in the same areas where the 12 who lived had been given oxygen.

Miss Dominic had been given an inhalation from the oxygen outlet in the special procedures room as she was coming out of an anesthetic following an attempt to reset a broken bone in her elbow.

The inquest has not yet received evidence on whether any one else was treated with supposed oxygen in that room before the mix-up was discovered immediately after the girl's death.

Nor has the cause of death of any of the other 22 been brought into evidence.

However, Mr. Shea said outside the hearing that in none of the other deaths under investigation is anoxia (lack of oxygen) listed as a cause of death as it was in the death certificate of Miss Dominic.

NDP Would Permit Teachers to Strike

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, said Wednesday an NDP government would give teachers the right to go on strike, but said he doubted they would exercise that right.

He said about 350 area teachers at a joint meeting of various teachers' groups that to withdraw services is a fundamental civil right.

Davis Says Energy Parley Goes to Confederation Root

TORONTO (CP) — Next week's national energy conference in Ottawa goes to the "roots or rationale" of Confederation, Ontario Premier William Davis said Wednesday.

"It's important that this conference be approached in as positive a light as possible," the premier told a news conference.

He said Ontario will not be going to the conference with the sole purpose of trying to maintain Ontario's position, although that might be the politically popular stance to take.

"There is just too much at stake," Mr. Davis said.

"I just don't think, in a country like Canada, that we can see fellow Canadians in the Maritimes pay substantially more for oil than Canadians in Ontario," he said.

"If Canada has some meaning—if I was a citizen of Halifax I'd like to think I would pay substantially the same for gas as the citizen of Toronto."

Mr. Davis also said he enters the conference with optimism.

But, Mr. Davis said, he hopes that not all of the time at the conference will be taken up discussing oil and gas.

Ontario would endeavor to discuss prospects for uranium and nuclear power.

Northern Electric Investigation Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario and Quebec called Wednesday for the Canadian transport commission to delve into the operations of Northern Electric before considering a requested rate increase by Bell Canada, its parent company.

Lawyers for the two provinces said the commission clearly has jurisdiction over Northern and an investigation is needed to make sure Bell subscribers are not subsidizing the subsidiary company. They said it is important to find out if Bell subscribers are being called on to make up some deficiencies in Northern Electric's operation.

There was no public evidence of such a deficiency but Northern should be included in any check of Bell's financial situation because the situation at the subsidiary company "could be reflected in the rates charged Bell subscribers."

The hearing Wednesday before the commission's telecommunications committee followed interventions by the two provinces and other groups against proposed Bell rate increases which would raise the average monthly home telephone bill by 10 cents.

The increases would affect about 4.3 million customers in Quebec, Ontario, parts of Newfoundland and Labrador and the Northwest Territories.

Mr. Takach said the commission has the duty to examine all factors influencing the telephone rates. This included going beyond the corporate shell of Bell itself.

Northern manufactures communication equipment components at its plants in Ontario and Quebec. Most of the components are used by Bell.

Ottawa Plans to Stop Export of Art Treasures

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is moving to stop the export of national treasures, a bill encourage the return to Canada of art and historic artifacts which already have gone abroad.

Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner announced Wednesday that legislation will be introduced at the next session of Parliament to impose export licence control on the sale of art treasures, scattered on controls existing in Britain and France.

Consultations will be held with provincial governments on details of the plan, but in effect it will mean that an export permit will be required to ship abroad any work of art or historical artifact over a certain age or value. The age and value limits are to be decided.

If, for instance, you want to sell a Rembrandt or Krieghoff painting abroad, you will not be able to ship it without an export licence. The licence won't be granted until efforts are made to find a buyer in Canada, either privately or publicly, say an art gallery.

Safety Glass

Consumers' Association of Canada reminds consumers that effective January 1 1974, new regulations under the Hazardous Products Act will require safety glass in patio doors and shower and tub enclosures in homes. An estimated 10,000 injuries annually involve architectural glass. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

U.S. Study Proposes New Canal at Niagara

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Corps of Engineers, in a study that took 18 years and cost $1.9 million, calls for an immediate joint effort with Canada to consider existing and future needs on the entire Great Lakes St. Lawrence River navigation system.

The study was undertaken "to determine the need, justification and timing" of an additional water connection between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario, to supplement the 56-year-old Welland canal.

The USCE considered three possible new canals, selecting for further study, an all-American overland route parallelling the all-Canadian Welland canal stretching south through New York State, across the Niagara escarpment, to a link-up with the Niagara River near the eastern side of Grand Island.

FBI Is Investigating Tape

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has entered the investigation into who might have pushed the buttons that erased a portion of a taped presidential conversation.

Meanwhile, a court inquiry into the erasure continued. Prosecutors, armed with a technical report on how the 18½-minute gap occurred, looked to additional testimony for answers.

Two more Secret Service officials involved in keeping track of the White House tapes and recording equipment were scheduled to testify today in federal court.

The Washington bureau of Westinghouse Broadcasting Corp. said that the FBI investigation has the approval of FBI chief Clarence Kelley. Westinghouse said the investigation will involve President Nixon and his closest personal aides.

In the court inquiry, Stephen Bull, special assistant to President Nixon, testified Wednesday that he knows of only five persons who ever had possession of the tape of a June 20, 1972, conversation between Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, then Nixon's chief of staff.

He said they were himself, the president, presidential secretary Rose Mary Woods, White House lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt and Gen. John Bennett, a presidential aide.

At the close of Wednesday's hearing U.S. District Judge John Sirica said he hopes all testimony will be completed Friday when the technical experts return to be cross examined by White House lawyers.

Then, it will be up to the judge to decide what happens next and he said he expects his decision to include whether or not the mystery of the obliterated tape should be referred to a grand jury.

Later, he declined to speculate on just how long it might take him to decide what to do.

On Tuesday, technical experts reported that the 18.5-minute segment of the tape had been erased during a series of between five and nine actions on a 1960 tape recorder. Each time that the machine was restarted and stopped again someone had to push a button, the report said.

Testimony by the experts, and a Secret Service official Wednesday, and previous testimony by Miss Woods pointed to Oct. 1 as the date on which a portion of the erasure occurred.

Miss Woods last entified that on Oct. 1 she accidentally pushed the wrong button while transcribing the June 20 tape. She also said that in going back to listen to the tape after the accident she heard a couple of minutes of buzzing and no conversation.

Co-Operative Nursery Succeeds in Marmora

There are 18 happy little children in Marmora this winter.

And twice as many happy parents.

They've all become involved with the Marmora Co-operative Nursery School.

The key to their happiness is the word "involved". According to Karen Bock, chief organizer of the school, the willingness of parents helped is the reason for the venture's success.

Mrs. Bock helped parents set up co-operative nurseries in Campbellford and Stirling before moving to Marmora. In fact, many of the Marmora parents had been driving their children to Stirling until this fall when, they set up their own school.

Through advertisements and word of mouth, parents learned of the plans for a nursery school, and met with Mrs. Bock to get organized.

They agreed upon fees ($15 a month per child), and the degree to which each mother would become involved (approximately one morning a month). The materials necessary for a school were all donated.

"This is not a day care centre," Mrs. Bock says. "It is intended to be an educational experience for pre-school children, between three and five years old.

The nursery school is open three days a week for three hours each morning. There are no academic subjects taught. Instead, we make learning materials and social activities available for the children."

Mrs. Bock has divided the morning program between free play and an organized "quiet time" during which the children sit in a circle and take part in singing, story-telling and counting and spelling games.

Efficient organization is also apparent in the nursery school itself. A Sunday School room in the St. Andrew's United Church basement, rented for nine dollars a week by the co-operative, the school room is divided into various play areas.

In one section there's a sandbox, in another books and records and a child-sized record player, in another wooden blocks and play-dough and paints. There's a dress-up box full of discarded ladies' hats and clothes, and in another area a "pretend house" is set up, complete with play kitchen and telephone for chatting.

The children move from area to area as their interests dictate, with only two rules to obey — no running and no shouting.

"We seldom have discipline problems," says Mrs. Bock. "If a child is unruly, we simply separate him from the others until he is ready to be quiet and co-operative again."

The children learn to play with others their age in a pleasant way. In this way they are prepared for the social environment of kindergarten.

"The public school teachers here say that they can see a improvement in the behavior and learning ability of the children who've been to nursery school," says Marilyn McTaggart, one of the mothers who helps Mrs. Bock.

"The children seem to develop their powers of concentration here, and are able to do better work when they reach school."

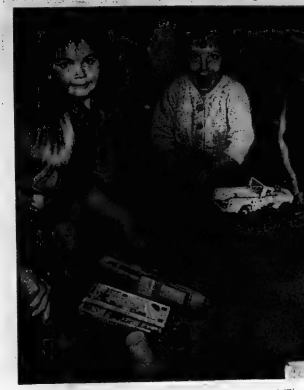
The mothers also notice that their children are happier and better behaved at home. This is due to the teaching of Mrs. Bock, who has shared her knowledge with the parents at workshops and general meetings.

A graduate of Long Island University, New York, Mrs. Bock has her B.Sc. in education, and is a trained public school teacher. She also has a natural ability to communicate with young children that is apparent as she moves around the room, suggesting and instructing.

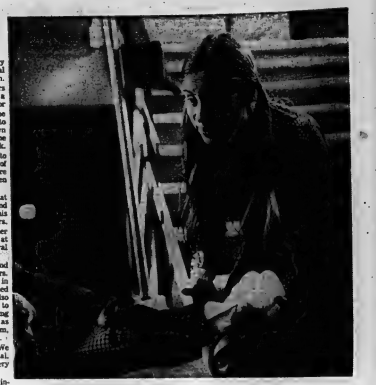
Mrs. McTaggart says, "We all think she deserves a medal. Without her, this could very likely be chaos!"

Without a trained instructor, the chances of a co-operative nursery school succeeding are minimal. It takes professional know-how to smooth the way and ensure participation by all the members of the co-operative.

"I think one of the reasons all our mothers come out to help is that there is a fee for the school," Mrs. Bock says. "When you're paying for something, it takes on a greater value."



The parents have donated more than their time to the school, and paid more than the monthly fees. They have collected all the equipment required by the children and assisted with the setting up of the play room.



The fees pay Mrs. Bock for her services at the current supply teachers' rate, and buy the toys and play equipment for the school.

"Parents who think of a nursery as a place to dump their children for a few hours don't last in a co-operative, Mrs. Bock says.

"The ones who make it work are truly interested in taking part in the teaching process.

"And they find out what a happy place a nursery school can be."

Part of Her Job

Putting on boots for the baby takes a lot of time, when snowsuits and finding lost mittens is all in a morning's work for Karen Bock, teacher at the Marmora Co-operative Nursery School. When the weather is suitable the children have an outdoor play period.

Sand Castles and Dump Trucks

One of the favorite play areas for both boys and girls is the sandbox, where a good deal of building and road-making goes on each Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning when the Playing in the sandbox nursery school is open.

takes place during the children's free-time period, when they can move from area to area within the school room.

'Nurses Need Communications Improvement'

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Nurses need to improve communication with patients, a conference of nursing teachers was told Tuesday.

Dr. Anselm Strauss, professor of sociology at the University of California at San Francisco, told about 70 directors of nursing services and nursing educationists that the art of interviewing patients should be taught at nursing schools.

Speaking at a two-day conference sponsored by the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario at the Ontario Provincial Park, Dr. Strauss said nurses and doctors are sometimes afraid of interviewing patients.

Nurses should not avoid speaking about death to dying patients, he said. The conference included a demonstration of how effective medical interviews are conducted.

Ann Landers

Lost Love Still Haunts Him

Dear Ann Landers: I was impressed with the letter signed "Seeking Peace of Mind" because it so closely parallels my own experience.

I am also 45 and was in love with a girl in England 15 years ago. She was much younger than I, beautiful and willing, but I just couldn't bring myself to have sexual relations with her. I have kicked myself many times since.

I left England and put the girl out of my mind. Five years later, I married a fine Canadian woman who has been a devoted wife and mother. But like that other man who wrote, I have never been able to get the English girl out of my mind. I considered handing my wife that column of yours, and confessing that I, too, was harboring a secret love that was never fulfilled. Is it possible that I might free myself of the recurring day (and night) dreams by telling my wife of my yearning? She's a marvelously understanding woman, and I do love her. Ann, but there's always that nagging feeling. — Bittersweet.

Dear B.: The one that got away always seems like more of a prize than the one you caught—but it ain't necessarily so. My advice is to say nothing. Sounds to me as if you lucked out.

Dear Ann Landers: You frequently print letters about people who are struggling with problems of overweight, excessive smoking and alcoholism. This letter will be a little different.

I married a lovely gal whose family has a heavy history of diabetes—both generations, to be exact. My wife tends toward obesity and I insisted that she watch her weight and be checked regularly.

Meanwhile, I am a health nut—slim, exercise regularly, and take pride in my physical condition. By now you've probably guessed it. I took a routine check-up last week and the tests show that I have diabetes.

I am 20 pounds underweight and no one in our family has had the disease. I am more furious than concerned. Isn't this the rottenest, most unfair thing you've ever heard of?—Mourse, La.

Dear M.L.: Similar things have happened in families where the non-smoker gets lung cancer and the nicotine addict goes scot-free. Such are the ironies of life, but odds are stacked heavily against it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old girl who isn't writing to ask what to do about acne or how to get a certain guy to notice me. What I want to know is why people don't pay more attention to their elderly relatives in nursing home.

I work at this place weekends, and it's heart-breaking the way so many of these darling old people hope day after day that someone will come to see them and nobody shows up. Of course, some are forgetful and a little confused, but they are so lonesome. I have visited for hours with these dear people and they are so grateful for my time and attention.

I hope every person who has a relative or even knows of someone who is in a nursing home will clip this column as a reminder.—Young and Caring

Dear Caring: Hundreds, maybe thousands of old folks are going to have unexpected visitors soon because of you. (Some people just need to be reminded. Thank you, dear.

Shirtwaists: Popular Again After 20 Years

NEW YORK (CP) — Twenty years ago, shirtwaist dresses were a major trend for sports, afternoon, and evening. This year they are still popular, providing a tailored aspect to the lady-like look that pervades the spring fashions.

For daytime, the shirtwaist dress appeared in navy cotton by Oscar de la Renta, black Trevira with white pin dots by Kleinberg, white wool flannel by Ilie Waca, patterned crepe by Aldrich that can move from daytime to evening and turquoise Trevira matte jersey with a pleated skirt by Leo Narducci.

For evening, Goldworm showed a long shirtwaist in shimmering gold or silver metallic fabric and Adele Simpson filled black tucked chiffon with sheer sleeves and jewelled cuff buttons.

Miss Sun Valley of Toronto had a pink dacron-and-cotton style with floral design, ideal for resort life and for the city next summer.

Tailored shirtwaists first appeared at the turn of the century when women began to demand equal rights, especially the right to work in offices. Charles Dana Gibson immortalized them in his famous drawings and the Gibson Girl, in her severe shirtwaist, long pleated skirt and wide belt is a prototype of the present classic shirtwaist dress.

Over the years, the shirtwaist had some setbacks. Its demure look did not suit the roaring '20s and something more exciting was called for after the Second World War with its uniform style of dress.

In 1947 came Dior's New Look; mid-calf length and close-fitting elegance and the shirtwaist virtually disappeared until 1954, when it stole the limelight briefly before being supplanted by the Empire Look.

It came back intermittently, especially in spring, 1964, when it was part of every collection, and eventually invaded the evening field, often in billowy satin or French cuffs. There was even a with demure high neckline and revival of the Gibson Girl, tightly waisted but with full skirts.

So popular did the shirtwaist dress become that Susan Small, the firm that made Princess Anne's wedding gown, kept the same shirtwaist dress in her line for five years.

By 1967 the trousered suit had entered the fashion picture. Pants, previously worn only for casual wear, appeared on the streets, at dances and at intimate dinners at home. In the last couple of seasons dresses have returned to their rightful place in the wardrobe and the shirtwaist dress is part of this return.

Shirtwaist dresses — a major fashion trend 20 years ago — are back in favor following the demise of the pant suit craze. Among shirtwaists available are these two from Miss Sun Valley of Toronto. Model at left wears an off-white dress in acrylic and wool and at right is a pink dacron and cotton with a floral design. (CP Photo)

Successful Living

'New' Values Include Chastity and Fidelity

By DORIS CLARK

"Drugs do not precipitate interest in the spiritual; the opposite is true. Students turn to drugs because of interest in the spiritual and the hope that drugs will meet spiritual needs."

Dr. Armand M. Nicholi, instructor in psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, says so.

He also rejects the idea that in fact most of the young people have had no such faith, and that American parents spend less time with their children than parents in any other country except England.

There are some young people who seek and find new spiritual resources and a new awareness of each other's needs. They have discovered the deep significance of religion, and of a greater love and concern for people.

They also have adopted striking new attitudes to sexual freedom, placing a greater priority on chastity and marriage with fidelity.

Reported in The Journal of The Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario.

Dear Doris: Your statements about sex from those we love are oh so true. We know this and generally try to live by it -- that is, to live with the understanding that flames of temper which come our way at least help the beloved one to blow off steam.

There are times when it is kind of tough going; yet we keep on trying to establish a reasonable balance. My wife and I often talk about this and, while we are just as guilty as others of loose hard-to-get-along-with times, we constantly offer thanks for the myriad blessings which much understanding has brought to us.

When we see couples half our age seeming to have lost the delight of being together and seldom, if ever, expressing "I love you" — either in words or actions, we surely bless the fates that cast our paths together at 70 plus experience, thrill and satisfaction from a kiss or caress! Does life hold many such joys?

Thoughts.

Dear Thoughts: How well you express yourself!

Indeed, many more of us need to delight in what we have of human love and companionship; seem far too prone to accentuate the negative.

Poor Relations

TORONTO (CP) — During 1967, women in managerial positions in Canada earned, on average, 135 per cent less than men, reports Labor Canada. The average earnings of women were $3,722 while men earned an average wage of $8,794.

CP News Roundup

Increased UIC Levy Protested

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Jerry Havlik, president of Havlik Enterprises Ltd., said Wednesday he is "prepared to go to jail" rather than pay increased contributions to the federal Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC).

Mr. Havlik, also a member of the Canadian Machine Builders Association, has started a petition in which he calls on the government to abolish the Canada Manpower agency which he calls "useless" in the petition.

He also wants government-sponsored apprenticeship programs where industry does on the job training of skilled and semi-skilled workers.

The Czechoslovakian-born industrialist said he is eager to see the government get people working rather than "to encourage idleness through unemployment payments costing Canadians vast sums of money."

Price Increases Said Justified

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Michael McDermott, secretary of the federal food prices review board, said Wednesday that analysis last month showed that neither processors nor retailers have been unnecessarily raising food prices.

He told the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario that the profit performance has improved for those companies studied but the degree of improvement is not out of line with what has been happening elsewhere in the private sector or in relation to the performance of food companies in the past.

He said retailers have been faced with substantial cost increases and the resulting retail price increases were "a flow-through of these cost factors."

At the processor level, he said, the costs incurred for basic foodstuffs in the last two years increased farther than the selling price.

Got in Way

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — A former Toronto policeman told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Wednesday he did not mean to kill his wife, who "just got in the way," when he was trying to shoot Giuseppe Chiavetta, an Orillia contractor.

Merle Smith, 43, was testifying during the third day of a trial in which he faces non-capital murder charges in connection with the shooting death of his wife Agnes, 40, and Mr. Chiavetta, at the Chiavetta cottage near Orillia on July 12.

No Shortage

RIDGETOWN, Ont. (CP) — A shortage of fertilizers is not likely in Ontario this year, Dr. K. M. Preaty, an official of the Potash Institute of Canada said Wednesday.

Speaking to about 500 farmers at a meeting in this community 30 miles east of Chatham, Dr. Preaty said fertilizer producers are doing everything possible to see the required 900,000 tons of supplies are distributed in Ontario.

Bridge Pursuit

New York City police cautiously edge closer toward a man subsequently identified as Jim Webber on suspension cables of the Brooklyn Bridge. Police said the man evaded them for more than an hour, clambering about the bridge shouting "You can't help me." Police finally persuaded the man to allow himself to be helped to the ground. (Photo by Allen Green on assignment for The Associated Press)

McKeough Opposes Oil Nationalization

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Tuesday that nationalization of Canada's petroleum resources would put strains on Confederation.

Speaking during a debate at the University of Toronto, Mr. McKeough said that instead of a takeover, the federal government should work closely with the provinces to develop strong controls on energy exports, prices and development.

"My view is nationalization if necessary, but not necessarily nationalization," he said.

Mr. McKeough also noted that any nationalization would involve payments of millions of dollars to oil companies for compensation.

Visa Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has rejected a Soviet reporter's application to return to Canada because he carried out activities unrelated to his work as a journalist, an external affairs department official said Wednesday.

Konstantin Guelvandov had worked at the parliamentary press gallery for the Soviet newspaper Pravda for about two years before returning home on leave last September.

The department has refused to issue him a visa to re-enter Canada.

Subsidies Asked

REGINA (CP) — A five-year program of planned production and subsidies has been urged by the Dairy Farmers of Canada at their annual meeting here.

The five-year proposal, outlined in a convention working paper and subject to alteration by delegates, would create a pricing formula to revise milk prices related to changes in production costs.

The federation says such a plan is needed because of inadequate returns, lack of confidence in the industry's future, and the industry's inability to attract new producers.

Isles Guarded

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnese government said today that two Chinese gunboats are guarding the fishing settlement the Chinese have established in the disputed Paracel Islands.

Labor Head

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Madeleine Anderson, 47, a municipal employee, was elected president of the Kingston and District Labor Council this week to become the first woman ever to hold the office. Mrs. Anderson, also president of Local 141, Canadian Union of Public Employees, defeated Vincent Maloney, who had been president of the labor council for four years.

New York City police cautiously edge closer toward a man subsequently identified as Jim Webber on suspension cables of the Brooklyn Bridge. Police said the man evaded them for more than an hour, clambering about the bridge shouting "You can't help me." Police finally persuaded the man to allow himself to be helped to the ground. Committee Members Appointed Committees of Hastings county board of education were approved at the inaugural meeting of the board Monday night.

The only statutory committee, the advisory committee on schools for trainable retarded children, as established January 1973 and its members will serve a two-year term ending Dec. 31, 1974.

The remaining committees are ad hoc committees. They are, with the name of the chairman listed first:

Building committee, Raymond Rowe, James Clarke, Earl Hawley, Ken Little, Mac Smith, James Sory, Milford Waller and Ralph Weaver.

Business Administration, John Forbes, Robertson Collins, Miriam Graham, Early Hawley, Jean Hutchison, Mac Smith and Don Thrush.

Bylaw and policy committee, Miriam Graham, Carl Brant, Robertson Collins, Michael Roberts, Emerson Robinson, Mac Smith, Don Thrush and Milford Waller.

Chairman's committee, Mac Smith Ralph Weaver and Don Williams.

Liaison committee, Ralph Weaver, Carl Brant, John Forbes, Mac Smith and Donald Thrush.

Union board negotiating committee, Ralph Weaver, John Forbes, Miriam Graham, Raymond Rowe and Mac Smith.

Joan Guthrie Vice-Chairman For Recreation

The 1974 inaugural meeting of the city recreation-arena committee was held Tuesday afternoon at the city hall council chambers.

The meeting presided over by chairman Alderman Jean Smith, saw the election of Mrs. Joan Guthrie as the committee vice-chairman.

Other business included setting of meeting dates for the year which for 1974 will be the same as for the city parks board. Membership on the two bodies is the same this year and the decision was to hold joint meetings.

Shetland Pony In Aklavik

AKLAVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — During a guided tour by truck of this Eskimo community the Mounte driver suddenly shouted "Whoa!" and jerked the vehicle to a halt.

Cpl. Bill Bull stopped in front of his RCMP office.

"I have to show you our horse," he said.

"Horse" came the disbelieving chorus from within the truck.

It was 20 below zero and Aklavik 150 miles above the Arctic Circle. The group frankly didn't believe there was a horse in town.

"There he is," the corporal beamed, pointing to somethin on four legs pawing at the snow behind his office.

It was a Shetland pony named Pinto.

The corporal said it wasn't actually his horse, but he didn't have the heart to say it couldn't graze on what was left of his grass under the snow.

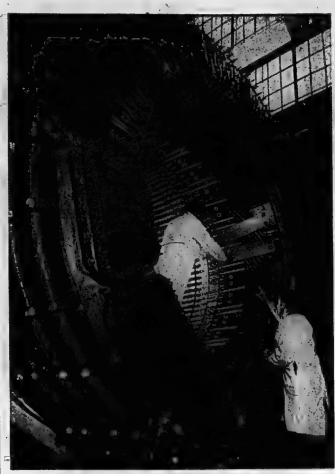
The animal is actually the property of Rudy Tornow, an oil agent who bought it two years ago in Edmonton. He had it flown north so his two sons could ride around this settlement of 729.

Now Pinto wanders around Aklavik looking for scraps of food. All the children have a chance to ride him.

"He's very tame," says Mr. Tornow. "He's just like a dog."

In fact, Pinto's best friend is a dog, a large Labrador named Brandy who tries to keep back other dogs in the community who don't want to allow the plodding gourmet to make his scavenging rounds in peace.

"Once in a while, Pinto comes to my office and knocks on the door and tries to open it up," says Mr. Tornow. "Once in a while I let him in.



"But I've got a new office now and he can't get in because he has to climb stairs and he doesn't like that."

Staying outside in the bowling Arctic winter doesn't seem to bother Pinto much.

"I've tried to put him in the garage once in a while when it gets really cold. But he prefers it outside."

Generators for Canada

The first of four generators being built for Ontario Hydro nears completion at plant of C. A. Parsons and Company Ltd. in northeast England. Technicians work on the stator core and windings for the machine, the heaviest part of the whole turbine-generator set. Sidney Council Makes '74 Plans

In making the first address of 1974 to Sidney township council Monday, Reeve Gordon Wilman said the municipality will be making some important decisions in the coming year.

"I would like to see a road committee set up this year," said Reeve Wilman. This way, he explained, should township road superintendent Charles Fair require a policy decision, the entire council would not need to be called out.

The reeve suggested a two-member committee. Both members would be township councillors.

Further, he hoped planning consultants would be hired by the Quinte Planning Board to begin work on the municipality's official plan.

A three-man special committee was formed by the board at the end of 1973 to set up the terms of reference for engaging consultants. As yet, the committee has not reported to Quinte planners.

"I hope the consultants will be hired by March first for the official plan," he said.

Committee Okays Second Driveway

An East Dundas Street resident whose front lawn will be reduced with next summer's street reconstruction program, should be permitted a second driveway entrance.

This is the feeling of the city traffic and light committee which Monday listened to the request from Mrs. W. W. Gray, who said that the shortened driveway, together with blockage of vision by an adjacent building, would make would make it dangerous for them to back out onto Dundas Street.

The request was that when the street is rebuilt to four lanes, an additional driveway curb entrance be provided. This would allow them to construct their own U-driveway so cars could exit forward onto the street.

City council will be asked to consider the committee recommendation at its next meeting.

Alderman Stu Meeks moved for concurrence with Mrs. Gray's request, claiming that the city "was putting something over on the taxpayers."

Alderman George Gasparatos and Alderman Art Keegan agreed that the Grays should be allowed the second driveway entrance.

Alderman Paul Russell didn't agree that the city was putting anything over on East Dundas Street residents.

He noted that street widening plans were available at city hall and could be viewed at any time by interested residents.

Thousands of Londoners Sleep Out in Streets

LONDON (Reuter) — Commuters stream through the gardens along the Thames Embankment in central London every day, rushing to and from work, and few ever sit on the park benches.

But at night every bench is occupied by a slumbering human form wrapped in a shapeless bundle of clothes. Once the benches are filled, others lie on the pavement.

The gardens, overlooked by luxury hotels along the Strand, are a favorite place for London's "dossers" to bed down for the night.

The dossers are the men and women who sleep out in London streets every night of the year.

A report in The Sunday Times said there are more people sleeping in the streets than at any time since the beginning of the century—an assertion that must have surprised many in Britain's much-publicized welfare state.

Nobody knows exactly how many people live "rough" in London. A voluntary organization concerned with the problem, the St. Mungo Trust, estimates the number runs into many thousands.

The Trust reports the problem is getting worse. As has gets too cold, she warms herself by walking about.

But for everyone who talks this way, there are more who feel rejected by a society that does little to help them.

A bewildering assortment of people end up on the streets.

Although there is no single reason, many dossers have histories of mental illness and alcoholism. A recent survey estimated that about 90 per cent of people sleeping rough in London had backgrounds of mental disturbance.

Only a small minority of dossers are thought to be alcoholics in the sense of being physically dependent on alcohol, but many have serious drinking problems.

Many dossers say they are treated with hostility by the social services, especially when they seek unemployment pay. "We're trapped," says one dosser. "With no fixed address, they won't give us money—and with no money, we can't get an address."

'Messages from Past' Locate Indian Villages

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — A man who claims to have the ability to receive messages from the past and the future says that 6,000 years ago only a few mountain peaks stuck out of the ocean where Vancouver Island is today.

"And that's the reason you'll find clam shells if you go up to the tops of those mountains," said George McMullen, 53.

Mr. McMullen, who recently moved here from the Toronto area, says he can sense, even see in his mind, what this particular area looked like thousands of years ago.

Mr. McMullen says he has the ability to receive messages from the past and the future, when stimulated by certain objects, people and surroundings.

Dr. Norman Emerson, supervisor of anthropological studies at University of Toronto, has carried out hundreds of experiments with Mr. McMullen, testing his abilities against established archeological knowledge. The tests, showed he did have valid and helpful powers.

Mr. McMullen has done most of his psychic work in the archeological and anthropological fields; mainly helping to locate Indian villages and artifacts. Dr. Emerson says he has been correct at least 80 per cent of the time.

One of the simplest explanations of Mr. McMullen's powers is that he has a keener psychic sense than other people, just as some individuals have better vision, hearing or a more sensitive sense of smell.

"I first became aware of this sense I had when I was 4 or 5," said Mr. McMullen.

Ellis Roasts UIC Management

Jack Ellis, Hastings Conservative MP, fired yet another blast at the Unemployment Insurance Commission Wednesday, reiterating previously made charges against senior management for "unbelievably inept" handling of public funds.

Speaking at the Quinte Home Builders Association's inaugural meeting last night, Mr. Ellis brought new charges to bear against Guy Cousineau, currently the UIC chairman, but formerly the director-general of planning.

The MP accused Mr. Cousineau of burying a report that indicated the senior management "goofed in their estimates" as to cost increases resulting from a change in the Unemployment Insurance Act in 1971.

"I now have proof that the UIC senior management figures were $200-300 million out," Mr. Ellis told home builders. Therefore, he claimed, the increases in premiums announced after the mid-1971 change in the legislation were not enough to cover the commission's operation.

Mr. Ellis based his claims on a report written four years ago after a study of California, an American state Mr. Ellis claims has a comparable population and insurance system to Canada's.

A federal study team explored the California system and then fed its results, using Canadian figures, into a computer, Mr. Ellis says. The results indicated the cost estimates the UIC senior management had previously given the cabinet were incorrect, being $200-300 million short.

"There was lots of time to change the estimates," said Mr. Ellis, "but nobody ever saw the report back in 1970."

Asked if the document he possesses will be released, Mr. Ellis said it is "much too damaging, obviously dynamite." Before it is released, he said, he will have to do a great deal of thinking.

During the dinner meeting, Mr. Ellis outlined the charges he has brought against the commission to date. In light of the study team report, he claimed the premiums will have to be raised again if the commission expects to carry itself.

Mr. Ellis denied charges he is keeping secret the documents he possesses, saying "I'm only secret is on the part of UIC who want to keep it quiet until the controversy dies down.

"But I don't plan to let it happen," he warned. "Whether I'm on the opposition, or the government side of the house."

Amendments Designed to Clarify Livestock Compensation Act

Ministry of Natural Resources officials in Eastern Ontario would like to see an amendment to the provincial livestock compensation act that would allow prompt payment for livestock losses whether killed by wolves or dogs.

Also they would like to see township evaluators consult with current livestock prices do the evaluations to assure farmers being paid fair value for their losses.

Under the present act in effect since Dec. 31, 1972, the province pays for livestock losses when it is proved the animals are killed by wolves, while the local municipality picks up the tab if dogs are to blame.

But the problem is that farmers often have to wait for payment until it has been determined whether livestock was killed by wolves or dogs. And when wolves are to blame they sometimes are not offered fair value as the result of less than expert evaluation by department officials.

Tuesday, two Natural Resources officials, Jack Stewart of Napanee and Bruce Turner of Kemptville, outlined the proposals to Hastings county council.

They admitted the present act was not working out as expected but asked for approval of proposals from local municipalities before going to the province for legislation change.

Under the proposed amendment, municipal evaluators would value all killed livestock. The municipality would then pay all losses and be reimbursed 50 per cent by the province.

But there was said to be no point in asking for the amendments unless they had the approval of the local municipalities.

The two department officials said the present problem was further compounded because in many instances it was difficult to tell whether wolves or dogs were the culprits.

The result was the farmer was the loser.

In southern Hastings, hybrid animals (a cross between dogs and wolves) were said to be the big culprits in livestock kills.

And the hybrids breed several times a year. This type of predator was increasing rapidly in population. True wolves breed only once a year and produce only three to four pups, while as many as 17 hybrid pups have been counted in one litter.

Mr. Turner said the department was also looking into a new predator control program to improve effectiveness.

Under the present act the province has discontinued payment of wolf bounty but Mr. Turner said this did not mean the ministry was not concerned about the deer population.

He said the wolf bounty was discontinued mainly because it was found most of the bounty money was being paid for wolves killed in remote areas where they did no damage.

Following considerable discussion and questions to the two department officials, council was generally in favor of the proposed livestock act amendments and approved a recommendation brought in by Marmora township reeve Graham Bell and Tyendinaga deputy reeve George Bleiberwick.

The resolution asks that the local municipalities write the Kemptville ministry office asking compensation for all livestock killed, together with comments on over-all amendment proposals.

Pittsburgh, St. Louis In Five-player Trade

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Defencemen Steve Durbano and Ab DeMarco and left wing Bob Kelly were traded Wednesday night by St. Louis Blues to Pittsburgh Penguins for left wing Greg Polis and defenceman Bryan Watson.

Also included in the deal, the Penguins' second in two weeks, was Pittsburgh's second choice in this year's National Hockey League draft.

The Blues had acquired both Durbano, 22, and DeMarco, 23, from New York Rangers in trades last season.

In acquiring Don Awrey, an NHL West Division all-star defenceman, at outset of the current campaign, St. Louis had given up its second-round choice in the draft to Boston Bruins.

Polis, 22, was chosen by Pittsburgh in the first round of the 1970 draft and totalled 36 goals the last two seasons for the Penguins.

The six-foot, 195-pound Polis had 8 goals and 13 assists entering a Wednesday night game against Los Angeles, while Watson, a 31-year-old veteran of 11 NHL seasons, had a goal and 2 assists.

Kelly, 27, was acquired by St. Louis from the Rangers' farm system.

Howes Wreck Toros

By NEIL CAMPBELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Father Gordie set the tone for the Howe family Wednesday night.

The patriarch of hockey's first family scored his 700th career goal to help Houston Aeros down Toronto Toros 4-1 in a World Hockey Association game.

Howe contributed to three of the four Houston goals. Son Mark, an 18-year-old left winger, scored the first Aeros goal with help from his father.

And Gordie and son Marty, the 19-year-old defenceman, set up the third-period goal by Jim Sherritt that gave the Aeros a 4-0 lead.

Wednesday's goal was Gordie's 12th of the WHA season. He scored 786 for Detroit Red Wings before retiring at the end of the 1970-71 National Hockey League season.

In the other game Wednesday New England Whalers topped New Jersey Knights 4-2.

O.J. Athlete of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — O. J. Simpson, record-busting running back of the National Football League's Buffalo Bills, was named the Male Athlete of the Year for 1973 by The Associated Press Wednesday.

In a poll of member broadcasters and newspapers, Simpson received 332 votes, more than twice as many as baseball slugger Hank Aaron of Atlanta Braves, who finished second with 153.

Third place belongs to Bill Walton of UCLA's collegiate basketball champions. Golf ace Jack Nicklaus was fourth and baseball's Pete Rose of Cincinnati Reds finished fifth.

Secretariat, the Triple Crown winning race horse, finished sixth, attracting 20 votes. His jockey, Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., got four.

It was the highest finish ever by a horse in the poll which measures athletic achievement in the course of a calendar year.

Behind Secretariat were baseball pitcher Nolan Ryan of California Angels; heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman, pro golfer Tom Weiskopf—who included the Canadian Open among his five titles in 1973—auto racers David Pearson and Jackie Stewart, college football runner John Cappelleti of Penn State and Turcotte.

Early Red Wing Lead Doesn't Stop Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Emile Francis says he's already noticed an improvement in New York Rangers since he went back to coaching them last week.

"This team's been having trouble scoring on the road," Francis said Wednesday night after the Rangers tied Detroit Red Wings 4-4 in a National Hockey League game.

"But we were four goals behind and came back. That should prove something."

Francis, who is also general manager of the Rangers, took over the coaching chores from Larry Popein after the team took a 7-2 pasting from Buffalo Sabres a week ago tonight.

Under Francis, the Rangers, who have had a disappointing season had whipped Vancouver Canucks and California Seals before Wednesday's game.

Francis lifted goalie Ed Giacomin for an extra attacker and 51 seconds to play and the Red Wing Bruce MacGregor found a corner of the Detroit net with 23 seconds to play to give the Rangers the tie.

The Wings got their goals from Bill Hogaboam and one each from Marcel Dionne and Pierre Jarry during the nine-minute stretch of the first period to take their early lead.

But the Rangers came back with defencemen Brad Park and Al Sicomin scoring for the Rangers and 51 seconds to play Red Wing Bruce MacGregor found a corner of the Detroit net with 23 seconds to play to give the Rangers the tie.

Los Angeles Kings blanked Pittsburgh Penguins 2-0, Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks tied 5-5, and Toronto Maple Leafs tied the Seals 5-5.

Kings 2 Penguins 0

The game's only scoring took place in a 10-second stretch of the first period. Phil Hoene scored the first goal at 13:17 and Bill Lesuk took the other faceoff and put in the final goal of the night.

Bruins 5 Hawks 5

Derek Sanderson's second goal of the game gave Boston the tie with less than four minutes to play. Darcy Rota scored twice for the Hawks, who had a two-goal lead midway in the final period.

A shot by Chicago's Jim Pappin entered the Boston net as the final buzzer sounded, but it was ruled that time had expired.

It was the 14th tie of the year for the Hawks, who moved to within three points of the West Division-leading Philadelphia Flyers.

Leafs 5 Seals 5

The Leafs fired 41 shots at California goalie Gilles Meloche but needed third-period goals by Darryl Sittler and Lanny McDonald to salvage a tie.

Tonight, Minnesota North Stars visit Montreal Canadiens, the Rangers are at St. Louis and the Sabres at Philadelphia.

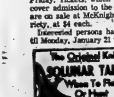
Three-game Stint In Four Nights



Belleville Bobcats of the Metro Junior B Hockey League begin a stiff three games in four nights test tonight in Etobicoke. Friday night, Cats are at Pickering and Sunday, the team returns to Memorial Arena for a match with Toronto Red Wings.

A win for Cats tonight would shoot the club into a tie for first place with Pickering and set the stage for a Friday showdown with sole possession of the top spot on the line. Bobcat Boosters have laid on a bus for the Pickering game. Departure time, from Memorial Arena, is 5.30 p.m., Friday. Tickets, which do not cover admission to the game, are on sale at McKnight's Variety, at $4 each.

Interested persons have until Monday, January 21 to pick up tickets for the Metro Junior B All-star Game scheduled at St. Michael's Arena, Toronto, Wednesday, January 23.

Tickets are $1.50 each. A bus will be leaving from the Arena at 5.30, Wednesday. Tickets covering bus fare and admission to the game are selling for $5.

These tickets are available at two outlets. McKnight's has a supply and Thursday, Friday, Saturday of this week, they will be on sale at the Bobcat Boosters booth at Quinte Mall. "Ga Cats Ga" buttons will also be on sale at the booth.

Phil Esposito

Esposito, Orr and Martin Unanimous Choices

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenseman Bobby Orr and centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins along with left winger Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres, are unanimous choices for the National Hockey League's East Division all-star team.

All three obtained the maximum 120 points.

Results of the voting among the Professional Hockey Writers' Association (PHWA) were announced today. They showed that first-place Boston Bruins had placed five players on the team that will meet its counterpart from the West Division in the 27th annual NHL all-star game at Chicago, Jan. 29.

In addition to Orr and Esposito, the other Bruins named were goaltender Gilles Gilbert, left winger Wayne Cashman and right winger Ken Hodge, with all but Cashman leading the voting for the 11-man squad at their respective positions.

Second-place Montreal Canadiens had three players named—defencemen Guy Lapointe and Serge Savard and right winger Yvan Cournoyer. Goalie Dave Dryden joins Martin from the Buffalo club.

Completing the starting lineup were defenceman Brad Park of New York Rangers and centre Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Scotty Bowman of the Canadiens will coach the East squad against Billy Reay of Chicago Black Hawks. Bowman will select an additional eight players next week to complete his team. The West Division team was announced Wednesday.

Bowman and Reay earned the right to coach the respective teams because their clubs finished first in their divisions last season. Bowman's Canadiens also defeated Reay's Black Hawks in the 1973 Stanley Cup final.

It marked the first time since 1967 that in any voting for all-stars—either mid-season, official NHL all-star teams, the end of a season, or for all-star game competition—three players picked unanimous totals in the voting.

The voting is based on five points for a first-place choice, three for a second, and one for a third.

In 1967-68, the last time there was a mid-season vote for the official NHL all-star teams, the three players selected unanimously were Orr, along with centre Stan Mikita and left winger Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

But none of the three were unanimous choices in the second half poll.

Only three of the 12 players selected are rookies in all-star competition—goalies Gilbert and Dryden and Cashman.

Veteran among the 12 selectees is Ullman, who will be making his 11th start. Orr has been in six previous games; Esposito, five; Park and Cournoyer, four each; Savard, Martin and Hodge, two each; and Lapointe, one.

Closest totals for the various positions were in 120-100 advantage Orr had over runner-up Park on defence, and the 10 points between Hodge and Cournoyer at right wing.

Three members of the PHWA for each East Division city took part in the voting and the results are for participation only in the all-star game. There will be a poll among PHWA members at the end of the season for the NHL official all-star teams which are selected from all 18 teams rather than by division, as is done in the all-star game voting.

Following are the voting totals for the 12 players named:

Baseball's Hall of Fame For Two Yankee Greats

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford, always a study in contrasts, today have something very basic in common. The longtime New York Yankee team-mates are the newest members of baseball's Hall of Fame.

Mantle, eligible for the first time, and Ford, on the ballot for the second time, both received more than the required 75 per cent of the 365 ballots cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Mantle was named on 322 ballots and Ford on 294 with 272 the number necessary for election. They will be inducted into the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., this summer.

Pitcher Robin Roberts was third in the balloting with 224 votes and slugger Ralph Kiner finished fourth with 215.

"I'm just glad we got in together," said Ford, nodding at Mantle. "It means more that way."

Mantle was a country boy from Commerce, Okla., a shy slugger who never felt at home in the big city but achieved stardom with a talent for hitting a baseball farther than most other players.

Ford was a product of the city, born and bred in New York and tossing a combination of guile and ability that made him one of the game's best pitchers.

They arrived in New York a year apart in the early 1950s and discovered an affinity for each other.

It was a partnership that flourished during the Yankee glory years when Mantle and Ford as team-mates and room-mates led the club to repeated American League pennants and world championships.

Mantle's awesome power produced 536 career home runs—most ever by a switch-hitter—and Ford's crafty style was good for a 236-106 record and a .690 percentage, best ever among pitchers with more than 200 victories.

Both broke World Series records owned by Babe Ruth—Mantle for home runs and Ford for consecutive scoreless innings.

They were an all but unbeatable combination on the field and relished each other's company off it.

"We always enjoyed being around each other," said Mantle who was also an outstanding outfielder.

As Stars, the two studied each other and shared great admiration for each other's talents.

"I don't think I'd have had much luck getting him out," Ford said of Mantle. "I wasn't fast enough to get my stuff past him."

Mantle smiled at the compliment and returned one.

"I loved to play when Whitey was pitching," he said. "He would break off three or four curves on a hitter and then he'd come in with that fast ball. The batter would jump back and he'd be out of there. Whitey was sneaky fast. He'd sneak the ball by you."

"I miss New York," Mantle said. "I miss people yelling out at me when I get into a cab, saying, 'Hey, Mick, wadda ya know, Mick?' In Dallas, nobody knows I'm there."

Rehabilitation Centre Helps Mental Patients

MONTREAL (CP) — Helen doesn't worry as much any more. The fears that used to creep into her subconscious at night still persist. But she has hope.

Forward House, a rehabilitation centre for former psychiatric patients, has helped to give it to her.

Like others who have sought out or been referred to the house, Helen had a history of psychiatric treatment. Released from hospital, she was trying to make that great leap into the world of job and community—trying to achieve social acceptance. And she was scared.

The house gave her a place to live and provided her with vocational training and social programs designed to make her feel once again like a human being.

"Modern medicine can put you back on the road to recovery after a breakdown but it can't provide the warmth, comfort or understanding needed to allay the fears that most people feel after being in hospital," said Ted Sparks, the program's executive director.

Launched in 1967 by six mental patients at Montreal's Douglas Hospital, the program was conceived with the idea of helping people to rediscover themselves and lift the psychological label of patient off their minds.

"Let's face it," said Mr. Sparks. "There's a former patient has family or can support himself independently, release from a mental hospital can be an incredibly frightening experience.

"Just after you think you have licked some of your personal torment and are trying to rediscover something you have lost contact with, you are confronted with the idea of fitting into a society that, for all intents, you are unwelcome.

"It means living on a welfare cheque, trying to find accommodation that will fit into a meagre budget and fighting off the fear of rejection when looking for a job.

"You want to yell at the world to slow down, to let you catch up."

Forward House offers transitional housing, vocational rehabilitation, community drop-in centres and social programs to re-acquaint the individual with today's world.

Since adequate housing is foremost on the list of priorities for a patient out of hospital with no family, the house accommodates 40 persons a month in two residences.

In addition, it reaches an additional 300 people monthly through its active job training and socialization programs.

"What we are involved in really is relationship therapy—concentrating on a person's condition and needs here and now," said Mr. Sparks. "Sure, psychiatric history is important but what the person has to cope with is today."

The emphasis away from long-term custodial hospital care for the mentally ill has given rise to an expanded need for the half-way house concept to augment more comprehensive outpatient treatment programs.

"The need is there," said Mr. Sparks. "Last year, for example, we had more than 650 people involved in our programs, ranging in age from 16 to 80."

For those who live at the centre's residences, rules and decisions are made by the group.

"Maybe you could call it communal living of a sort but I tend to look at it as a means for each individual to work at his or her own level."

Arguing against critics of the program, who see it as a re-affirmation of the patient's dependence, Mr. Sparks said: "What we try to do is establish a rapport with the person, make him understand that he is not alone and maybe then he can take the big step on his own."

Staffed with a largely non-professional group of counsellors and volunteers, the house originally offered five basic training programs which operated twice weekly.

In addition, the house sponsored remediation sessions which offered evaluation, mutual support and clarification of some of the difficulties that the patients experienced.

"We tried initially to enlist support from the business community to get firms to hire some of our people on a transitional basis, Mr. Sparks said. "But the results here have been the most disappointing of the entire program.

"People just don't want to take a chance."

The social program has been remarkably successful. Through a core of "Hub Clubs", the house has involved people in parties, dances, visits to places of interest, camping trips and discussions. Some members have involved themselves in volunteer work.

"We've even had a marriage in the group," said Mr. Sparks.

So far the program has been able to remain solvent through Local Initiative Program grants, some provincial government assistance and donations from individuals.

But expansion is another question.

"Because of lack of funds, we have had to cut down on the number of counsellors and close down a French-speaking centre in the east end of the city. The need was there. There just wasn't enough money to keep it going."

Fires Hazardous

TORONTO (CP) — Thousands of rooming houses in the city, many of them possible fire hazards, are not being inspected because owners have not applied for permits to convert their homes into lodgings, Development Commissioner Graham Emslie says. He described Toronto as having "an underground network of rooming houses."

Davis Has Not Talked About Yaremko's Land

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Wednesday that when he appointed Solicitor-General John Yaremko to his cabinet in 1971, he was not aware of the minister's 1968 land dealing activities.

But the premier said he has not discussed the matter with his solicitor-general and has not asked for his resignation.

It was revealed Tuesday that Mr. Yaremko participated some of his land in the Niagara escarpment area a few days before the law was changed to require government approval for such partitioning.

Mr. Yaremko also became eligible for a $35,000 tax deduction for donating 65 acres of land to the Ontario Heritage Foundation and as part of an agreement with John Ridley, an old friend, got $45,000 from him for an adjoining 85 acres which was also donated to the foundation.

The premier said at a news conference that Mr. Yaremko faces a conflict of interest when the Niagara escarpment commission brings recommendations for planning controls to cabinet several months from now because the solicitor-general still owns more than 400 acres of land in the area.

Mr. Yaremko has said he will not participate in discussions on the subject in cabinet.

The premier defended Mr. Yaremko, who has served 16 years as an Ontario cabinet minister.

"I've always regarded Mr. Yaremko as a man of complete dedication to the public service," Mr. Davis said. "I personally have always regarded Mr. Yaremko as a completely honest man."

The premier said that prior to 1973 when he set down strict guidelines prohibiting ministers from land speculating, there was nothing to prevent them from dealing in land. Mr. Yaremko, he said, bought most of his land in 1958.

"Until very recently there wasn't anything to prevent a minister from investigating in land or investing in many things," Mr. Davis said.

The premier also said he did disclosure of land holdings.

"I called for a full disclosure and Mr. Yaremko made a full disclosing," the premier said.

He said that much of the information about Mr. Yaremko's land holdings published Tuesday was public knowledge as far back as 1968.

After a cabinet meeting Wednesday, Mr. Yaremko said opposition calls for his resignation were not justified.

That land is in my possession—my intentions have always been to hold onto that land until I retired from active life."

He said he sold portions of the land in 1969 and 1971 because he needed the cash.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon has said that Mr. Yaremko's land dealing "appalls me."

With a cabinet minister's salary for 16 years, Mr. Yaremko shouldn't have been dealing in land on the side, Mr. Nixon said.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said Mr. Yaremko's behavior was "politically disgraceful."

Both men called for his resignation.

NEW YORK (AP) — The tour this summer of the Soviet Union's Kirov Ballet has been cancelled because the energy crisis made it impossible for the U.S. sponsor to arrange assured transportation.

Samuel Niefeld, vice-president of Columbia Artists Management, said Wednesday cancellation of the United States tour was agreed upon after a two-hour conference with the Soviet ministry of culture.

"No single airline would guarantee a charter or anything like movement whatsoever," he said.

The Leningrad company of 200 dancers, musicians and technicians was scheduled to tour from May to July in New York, Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles, Houston, New Orleans, Atlanta and several smaller cities.

An attempt will be made to schedule the tour in 1977, Niefeld said.

The tour plans of another Soviet dance troupe, the Bolshoi Ballet, will be revised because of the energy pinch, Niefeld said. The Bolshoi's schedule, which begins Aug. 5, has been pared to U.S. East Coast cities.

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuter) — The hospital where Bing Crosby is recovering from lung surgery said Wednesday it has been receiving about 1,000 letters a day for the entertainer from well-wishers all over the world.

There are also uncounted phone calls, from people of all ages, it said.

"They all say I remember him when . . . and they are all concerned for him. Some are crying," said telephone operator Winnie Ferguson at the Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame, Calif.

The 69-year-old singer was reported resting comfortably in satisfactory condition in the hospital's intensive care unit following Sunday's major operation, which removed a huge abscess and about a third of his left lung.

ROME (Reuter) — Discussions have started here for the latest book by Nobel Prize-winning author Alexander Solzhenitsyn about life in Soviet prison camps to be made into a film, film industry sources said.

So far no actors have been decided on. A preliminary negotiations are successful the two directors Marcello Andrei and Alvaro Fabrizio—hope to start shooting in March.

The book, Gulag Archipelago, has not yet appeared in Italian bookshops but is being serialised by a newspaper here. The film is to be called Devil's Archipelago, the sources said

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five-year-old Rodney Allen Rippy, who became a star with a series of hamburger television commercials, went into court Wednesday to have two show business contracts approved.

"Amen!" Judge Jack Wood said after Superior Court Judge Jack Rayburn signed the papers.

One is for a pilot for a half-hour TV series that might bring him up to $5,000 a week. The other is a recording contract.

VSC Enterprises Inc. will produce the pilot, tentatively called Rodney. The contract calls for Rodney to get $3,500 for the pilot with options for a possible seven seasons at a maximum of $5,000 per episode, says his lawyer, Daniel Sklar.

Rodney said he hopes the pilot will succeed because "I like being a movie star."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Marlon Brando and his former wife, actress Anna Kashfi, have ended a 13-year court fight over custody of their son with an informal agreement granting Miss Kashfi visitation rights.

Miss Kashfi, 36, through her lawyer, dismissed a Superior Court petition Wednesday in which she said Brando had decided her visitation rights with their son, Christian Devi, 15.

She said that with Brando's co-operation she has been seeing Christian during the last few months.

Brando and Miss Kashfi were married in 1957 and divorced two years later. She relinquished custody of the boy to Brando in a 1972 court proceeding.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A missing-persons report has been filed on comedian Sandy Baron, Hollywood police said.

The report was filed Monday by Baron's manager, Walter Scoli.

Scoli said Baron did not appear in San Diego Monday for rehearsals for his lead role in a stage production. They report said Baron was due back in Los Angeles Jan. 6 and was last seen at a New York hotel Jan. 3.

Baron was scheduled to play the title role in Jenny, a play based on the life of comedian Lenny Bruce, opening Jan. 23.

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton was recovering today from minor injuries suffered when his Rolls-Royce struck an embankment along a highway here.

The California highway patrol said Skelton, lives at Spring Crest in the nearby San Jacinto Mountains, told police that his car was forced off the highway by other traffic Tuesday.

Skelton, 60, was treated in hospital in Palm Desert and released, a patrol spokesman said.

Humorist at Top

MONTREAL (CP) — A 38-year-old Yvon Deschamps is at the peak of what most people would call success.

In the world of Quebec entertainment, his popularity is equalled only perhaps by singer-composer Robert Charlebois and even then, the two deal in different media.

The vehicle for his success as French-Canada's foremost comedian has been his ability to create the ultimate tragi-comic character—he suffers who allows life's assaults to take their toll without having the desire or capacity to fight back.

Within the docile and pliful character, however, the real Yvon Deschamps emerges.

He explores life through sickness, death, happiness, marriage, work and any number of human situations and allows his audience to experience, through the pathos of his character, what living is all about.

For the comedian and for the thousands of people who have been moved by his half-comic, half-pathetic characterizations the formula obviously works.

Two of his record albums have sold more than 75,000 copies. In 1972, during a four-week engagement at Montreal's Theatre Maisonneuve, he attracted more than 40,000 people with self-deprecating wit and his ability to transform even tragic situations into comic relief.

Deschamps' work, as many see it, is the essence of the numerous paradoxes which are at the heart of French-Canadian culture today.

His language is broad joual or slang and he talks as one resident of Montreal. He is a genuine mechanic down the street and his vision is as simple and unpretentious.

Deschamps is able to capture the French-Canadian imagination with his ability to dissect and amplify human frailty in the face of life's pain.

His message becomes universal.

Irony is his favorite and best weapon. He seeks to amuse but he knows that he will touch nerves.

In L'Intolerance, one of his sketches, the character displays his prejudices and a cruelty that is horrifying because it is the innocent, irresponsible cruelty of children.

At the conclusion, the character gives a Hitler salute and there's one thing I can't tolerate. It's intolerance. We should raise an arm to wipe out all the intolerants. Death to intolerants."

Born in a working-class section of Montreal, Deschamps quit school at 17 and held a variety of jobs. His career as a monologist started in 1962 when he was working on a review with Charlebois.

"One of the sketches we wanted to do was Les Unions Quoua Donne—what are unions good for? I had written it for four characters but we never had a chance to rehearse it properly. Finally Charlebois suggested I do it alone, as a monologue. That was it."

Deschamps says that most of his material, because it deals with universal themes, could be performed in English but "because I could not gauge my audience and it would affect my timing," he will not do it himself.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
Friday, Jan. 18

Aries (March 21-April 19) You're entering a cycle where friends and contacts will prove unusually helpful in furthering your plans. Get involved in some group activity.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You will do better the next few days if you concentrate on situations where you're working with someone else rather than alone.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) This is a good period to explore partnerships and deal in matters that have legal over- tones. Work with the best advisers.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) If you've not satisfied with the way things are going concerning work or career, put on some feelers. See if other opportunities exist.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) The week will end on a pleasurable note. You'll be looking to relax. Plan something social for the evening.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions and situations that in some indirect manner have an effect on your basic security look quite promising at this time.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) People you'll be meeting will be left with a very favorable impression. An interesting new relationship will develop.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Material benefits will be coming to you through commercial dealings. Shop wisely. Look for bargain items for the family or home.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Some restraints that recently have held you back have been lifted. You'll now be able to direct matters to better serve your interests.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Being overly aggressive at this time is not your best game plan. Be patient. Wait things out. They'll eventually turn to your advantage.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's something big you're banging your hopes on. Now's the time to push this interest vigorously. Don't be timid.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't frither your time away over the next few days on trifles. Concentrate on your most important goal. You will be helped in an unforeseen manner.

Aspirin Allergy Possible in Some

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible to have an allergic reaction to aspirin? If so, what type of reaction would occur?—Mrs. R.H.

Very definitely yes, some individuals can be hypersensitive to aspirin. Not that it's common, but it does happen.

Likeliest manifestations are breaking out in a rash or hives; or touching off an asthma attack; or bleeding tracts or tonsa.

Aspirin is a common, ingredient in many headache or pain relieving preparations, so anyone with such an allergy should watch for the word aspirin in the contents of various mixtures. Look also for its chemical name, "acetylsalicylic acid."

An alternative medication for such folks is acetaminophen either alone or in combination with other medication.

And, of course, always remember to remind your doctor when he is prescribing for you, that you have that allergy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You printed a letter pertaining to a Milwaukee nurse for curvature of the spine. We have a 12-year-old daughter and have been taking her to a chiropractor twice a week for treatments plus exercises she has to do daily. She has been going for six months with no noticeable improvement.

We asked the chiropractor about the brace and he has no knowledge of it. Any advice or information you could give us would be appreciated.—Mrs. B.B.

My advice would be to take your daughter to an orthopedic surgeon — by which I do not imply that surgery is going to be necessary or advisable, but an orthopedic specialist is the one who can evaluate the case and recommend proper treatment.

And I am sure that any orthopedic specialist will be thoroughly familiar with the Milwaukee brace, and be able to advise you whether it is going to help your daughter.

Incidentally, I am glad you are getting started while your daughter is as young as she is. A few years later the bone will come fixed and not much can be done to correct curvature of the spine.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For the past year my husband, who is 80, has increasingly complained of cold feet. A recent physical revealed nothing, all tests proving normal. Have you any suggestions?—Mrs. F.M.S.

At his age, there may be a gradual decline in briskness of circulation, and my suggestion would be wool socks. And—possibly—Surgeon's exercises, which his doctor can readily explain to him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 45, have a checkup every six months, a regular menstrual cycle and no sign of menopause. I have moved and now have a new doctor who suggested taking hormone pills to avoid back bump, shortening of the body, fatigue, wrinkles, shrinkage of the vagina and to enjoy sex life in years ahead. I don't appreciate your advice as I don't know what to do.—Mrs. C.R.

I'd consider it a bit premature now, as your ovaries evidently are still producing ample hormones for your body's needs. Why not wait until symptoms (if any) indicate a need for hormone supplements?

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Win at Bridge

The play at two spades is simple and successful. South wins the diamond lead in dummy and plays a trump. West winds and can hold South to his contract if he shifts to his doubleton heart and East ducks. Otherwise, South will score an overtrick by losing just one club, one heart and two trumps.

Tomorrow we'll show how to respond with a good hand and 3-4 in the majors.

+CHIRP Scrips

The bidding has been: 17

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♠	Pass	1♥
Pass	1♠	Pass	1♠
Pass	3♠	Pass	?

You, South hold
♠K J 6 5 ♥7 4 ♦A Q 10 8 5 3 ♣K 4 3
What do you do now?

A — Bid four clubs. The time has come to show your strength. There may well be a club slam.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid four clubs and your partner bids four spades. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

by Oswald and James Jacoby

When you play the Jacoby transfer you like Stayman with it. The form of Stayman we use is what we call very non-forcing, in that the two-club response requires the opener to rebid two diamonds unless he has a four-card major. If he holds two four-card majors he bids the better one.

South has a bad hand with four hearts and five spades. He doesn't like to leave his partner in one no-trump and plays the Jacoby form of Stayman he can afford to bid two clubs. He intends to pass if North bids either major but North bids two diamonds whereupon South goes to two spades and plays the hand there.

Why does he use Stayman and not a transfer to two spades? Because if his partner does hold four hearts he wants to have the best play in that suit instead of spades.

Synthetic Sporrans

STIRLING, Scotland (CP) — The proud Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders regiment may soon have to wear plastic sporrans because of government legislation to protect the badger, Britain's oldest wild mammal. The defence ministry has asked the regiment to consider using plastic badger's heads and fur instead of the real thing normally worn on their kilts.

STATUS SYMBOL

Like to raise yours by living in a brand new home where you would be more comfortable? Is yours too large — too small — too old — too something. Then catch the increase in price of older properties, the difference you would have to pay for a new one might not be that great. We have models under construction on the East, West and West sides. Think about it — then call us — maybe we can help.

NEW LISTINGS

Our inventory of older homes is just about depleted. We need your home to sell. Cash clients waiting. Free appraisals . . . if you're looking for action — call us now.

Montreal Airport Expropriation Results in Shrieks of Anguish

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que. (CP) — The burly farmer brought the flat of his hand down on the table with a resounding slap and declared:

"We want simple justice. Surely justice must be a unitary principle everywhere in the country, whether in Quebec, Ontario or British Columbia."

Jean-Paul Raymond, leader of a citizen's group, was commenting on expropriation by the federal government for Montreal's new international airport in the recently-formed municipality of Mirabel.

Mr. Raymond said farmers and other residents suffered glaring injustice from the federal government, which in 1969 expropriated 98,000 acres in this area northwest of Montreal. Approximately 17,000 acres will eventually be used in actual airport operations, 5,000 in the first phase operating in 1975.

"The main problem is that the evaluation was not done fairly," said Mr. Raymond.

Simmering for four years, the controversy flared into demonstrations when Toronto's projected new international airport at Pickering was announced with much smaller expropriation and much higher land rates.

"I have never seen so many happy faces turn sour," said one government official.

While the Mirabel expropriation was carried out under an outmoded law, the Pickering project came under a 1970 federal act. Attempts to apply the principles of the new legislation here have not appeased discontent.

Mr. Raymond and his group—the CIAC, the Centre d'information et d'Animation Communautaire (Community Information and Action Centre)—say Mirabel property owners got a comparative pittance, insufficient to enable them to settle elsewhere.

"The evaluation was done by long-haired guys with whiskers who didn't know a horse from a cow," said W. A. Blackburn, an agronomist and CIAC consultant.

The government had offered $216 an acre in cases where anything less than $585 was "robbery," said Mr. Blackburn, stressing the productive value of much of the land. He cited the example of one farmer who received an initial offer of $47,000. Demanding more, he was offered $95,000 and eventually settled for $118,000 on the basis of a committee recommendation.

The three-man conciliation board is currently hearing appeals. Only a handful of cases have gone to court.

Brenda Barbeau, general manager of planning, design and construction at Mirabel, said confirming property payments reflect higher land value and demographic pressures in the Toronto area.

He cited cases where farmers received more than $100,000 for their holdings, then leased them back, tax free, home maintenance paid.

Mirabel payments—including recent adjustments—would total reach $145 million in the 88,000-acre territory. A reported $50 million is now paid for 18,000 acres at Pickering.

There is a false impression that 10,000 people have been dispossed," another official commented.

He said the actual total of 187 families were uprooted to make way for the airport, making way for the airport, making way for the airport, supplying the construction site.

Michel Brunet, director of property management for the project, reported agreement had been reached with 2,640 of 3,124 owners, leaving 484 cases to be settled, including 125 farmers. The pending list included public entities such as school commissions, Bell Canada and Hydro Quebec as well as properties of uncertain ownership.

While the CIAC speaks of 800 farms on the territory, Mr. Brunet put the number of "real farmers" at approximately 550 at the outset of the expropriation, of whom between 250 and 300 have signed leases. He predicted the total would reach between 400 and 450, though the figure would likely decline with land consolidation. He said rental averages $125 a month for a farm of 90 to 100 acres.

He described $210 an acre as a basic office for land but calculated the actual payments averaged $1,300 an acre. The government had paid $125 million for the bulk of land whose municipal valuation—representing 50 per cent of market value—was $80 million.

Mr. Brunt conceded some inequities are inevitable in an area of vast gain, encompassing everything from marshland to strawberry fields.

"I am positive that, generally, people got more than they would have received on a free market. True, it can be argued that they did not want to sell. That is why we paid more. At least 90 per cent of those moved from the airport proper could have settled somewhere in the territory for a few of them did."

Abbe Georges Duque, Ste. Scholastique parish priest, told a reporter uprooted farmers cannot afford to restock. His flock had dwindled by two-thirds in terms of local time parishioners.

"It was a godsend for farmers about to retire," said one resident. "But what about the man in the prime of life, with children?"

"To replace yourself is impossible at the prices they are offering," said farmer Allan Hammond, who has a 160-acre spread near Lachute and still is negotiating with government authorities.

"Land prices have doubled outside the expropriated area. Not everybody wants to spend the rest of his days on rented land. It's killing incentive."

Mr. Raymond denounced a six-month-notice clause in the leases and reported his group has asked Premier Robert Bourassa to take over the 70,000 acres not required for the actual airport.

"If we do not obain justice we will try to block the project, though that is not our major purpose," Mr. Raymond declared. "We will not allow a hotel and other buildings to be put on land that has not been paid for. This is some of the best farm land in Quebec.

Mr. Raymond said an expropriation official told him the federal authorities took an unusual amount of land because they feared conflict with the former Union Nationale government, which wanted the airport located elsewhere.

Why did the protest not de-

"Misely because of fear," said Mr. Raymond. "It was a kind of terrorism. But now the fear has changed sides."

Some potential leaders in protest had been satisfied by good offers for their property.

"Besides, we are rural people. We believed when we were told the project would be good. We thought at first only 40 or so farms would be taken.

"There is not only the matter of compensation. There is the human problem. Many commercial people depend on agriculture. They are in a very bad position."

Mr. Raymond has leased land in an adjoining parish but he also said farmers lack incentive under such a system and children cannot be assured their inheritance.

"This is not a normal situation," said Mr. Raymond. "People are told they can stay on the land indefinitely. If that is so, why were they expropriated?"

First Terminal

Under construction at Ste. Scholastique, Que., 34 miles northwest of Montreal, is the main terminal for the new Montreal international airport, Canada's first designed for the jumbo-jet era. The first terminal provides for rapid-transit commuter facilities, although it will be served in the opening stage by a superbus system. (CP Photo)

1973: Farmers Best Season

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in the United States are approaching 1974 with caution signals blinking following the best net income in general, for fattening their bankrolls.

The signals include these possibilities:

—Fuel shortages could worsen and impair greatly crop expansion plans for 1974, resulting in further deficits and soaring prices for fertilizer and other capital goods needed to boost output.

—In the case of grain, particularly wheat, rising world production this year could mean lower market prices later on.

—Soaring exports of U.S. farm products, coupled with possible cuts in 1974 production, could bring some kind of curb on overseas sales of grain and other commodities.

Even usually optimistic economists in the agriculture department confess at least some bewilderment about farm prospects for the coming year. At best, they say, 1974 will not be as good as 1973.

The department's outlook and situation board foresees demand continuing to press supplies for most farm products in the first half of 1974. After that, with sharply increased crop output in prospect, it says the outlook is less clear.

On the whole, however, it concludes that farm income for the year probably will be higher than for any other year except the past one.

Farm economists, acknowledging that their crystal balls were as cloudy in late 1973 as at any time in recent history, nevertheless pointed to these other basic prospects:

—Larger crop production is needed in 1974, not only to satisfy what appears to be a near-record export demand but to make more essential raw materials available for boosting U.S. food production.

—Government farm programs, led by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, are being pushed by the Nixon administration toward "market-oriented" systems for gradually reducing federal subsidies to farmers.

Inflation, despite administration assurances that it is being brought under control, continues to grow away at farm profits in many individual sectors of agriculture—such as dairying—and threatens to dampen expansionist plans generally in 1974.

1,500 Tranquilizers In 7 Months Fatal

EDMONTON (CP) — Bill Smith swallowed 1,500 tranquilizers in seven months, prescribed for him by eight different doctors and purchased at nine different pharmacies.

His picture shows a short-haired man with a boyish look that belied his 31 years, a pleasant fellow who, his sister recalls, could "charm the birds out of the trees."

Smith (not his real name) was what medical authorities call a drug abuser. He died last May, having already lost his family and his friends.

After his death, Bill's drug habits were investigated by the Alberta Pharmaceutical Association which confirmed the story his relatives told.

His troubles started about six years ago with alcohol, his Mother and sister related.

When he was about 25 married and working as a hospital orderly in Calgary, his sister says, Bill's drinking problem cost him his job. His wife left him, taking their baby son.

Two years later, a stomach ulcer forced him to give up drinking. When he came out of hospital after a stomach operation, his doctor started him on tranquillizers.

Bill's behavior soon convinced his mother and sister that something was seriously wrong. But they were positive he wasn't drinking any more.

"He was often incoherent, with slurred speech, glazed eyes, staggering almost like he was intoxicated."

His sister found his supply of pills and tried taking them away from him. But Bill always had more.

On four occasions in the six months before his death, including an instance five days before his death, Bill was treated in Edmonton hospitals for drug overdoses.

Last May, he got another job as a hospital orderly. He soon began slacking off at work.

One day, he was told he'd lose his job if he was not at work the next day.

"He had tea with his landlady that night and asked her to wake him up because he was going to work, he felt better," says his sister.

"But he left a note on his door saying 'Don't wake me.'

"The next morning the landlady's son went in anyway and couldn't rouse him. When he started convulsing, they called an ambulance."

Bill was dead on arrival at hospital. The coroner's certificate said he died because of cardio-respiratory arrest due to an incautious overdose of drugs.

The pharmaceutical association reported that Bill's pilfering might have been stopped if there was a province-wide system of computerized recording of prescriptions.

They concluded that Bill was well aware of the weaknesses in the present system, the lack of communication between pharmacis on drugs dispensed.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons investigated and found that Bill apparently obtained some of his prescription renewals illegally.

Some of his new supplies he obtained by simply switching doctors and pharmacies. However, in other cases, he telephoned pharmacies, imitating the voice of his doctor.

Cotton Carpet

Cotton carpeting may be low in price and available in attractive colours but it is inadequate for heavily travelled areas, advises Consumers' Association of Canada. It has low total resistance, tends to mat down and is difficult to clean by professional methods. Cotton carpeting should never be installed wall-to-wall as it sometimes stretches. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Building in Sidney Continues to Boom

Sidney township council expressed considerable pleasure Monday after the building inspector's year-end report indicated the municipality's total estimated construction value in 1973 outstripped Belleville's by more than $800,000.

The report, submitted by building inspector John Wiggers, revealed the value of all building permits issued reached $7,912,303. The figure was split — indicating commercial construction at $503,000 and farm and residential at $7,298,676.

In Belleville, construction was valued at $7,110,800 by city officials.

Close to 440 permits were issued in the township, with $8,040 in fees collected. More than 200 plumbing permits were issued with $4,325 in fees collected.

Although construction value in Sidney was higher than Belleville's last year, the municipality fell below marks set in the township the two previous years. In 1972, 355 permits, valued at $5,119,153, were issued. In 1971, the 250 permits were valued at $5,245,960.

No Problem Getting Gas

Despite the current energy shortages plaguing residents in many parts of the United States at least two Belleville residents spending winter holidays in he south found no difficulty in obtaining gasoline supplies enroute.

Alderman Jack Ireland and City Clerk Adam Stalker returned to the city last week from Florida and reported no trouble obtaining gasoline.

"No trouble at all," reported City Clerk Stalker.

Alderman Ireland said gas stations on throughway routes operating as part of big commercial enterprises appeared to have no gasoline supply problems.

But Alderman Ireland said the gasoline scare has had its effect on the numbers of holidayers going to Florida.

"There is not nearly as many people there this winter," he said.

Purchases

MARMORA Village council has decided to set up a purchasing system for ordering supplies.This will make it easier for Clerk-Treasurer William Shannon to keep track of all billing.

Works Superintendent Les McKeown has been instructed that he would be responsible for items purchased locally and under $50. Larger items would be processed through the clerk's office.

Mr. Shannon says it is a step in the right direction.Purchase order forms will be procured to assist in the new system.

Delegates

Belleville Alderman Ben Corke wants city council to sit down and decide what delegations will be sent this year to how many conventions or conferences.

But regardless of what council's decision might be, the alderman's request hasn't stopped the city traffic and light committee making plans.

At Monday's meeting the committee voted to send committee chairman Alderman Jack Ireland to the Ontario Good Roads Association councillor's seminar, and also to send the chairman and all committee members to the Ontario Traffic Conference seminar.

Also the committee voted to send two elected representatives and two appointed delegates to the Ontario Traffic Conference to be held in Mississauga on May 13th.

Suez Withdrawal Settled

Kissinger Now Off to Syria

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt and Israel signed military disengagement documents today, and United State State Secretary Henry Kissinger will fly to Damascus Sunday for talks on a separtsion of Syrian and Israeli forces, a U.S. official said.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will also fly to Damascus for talks with the Syrians Saturday on disengagement of the Syrian and Israeli armies in the Golan Heights, the officials said.

"We will start the talks with the Syrians with the same dedication and goodwill" that was shown in Egypt, Kissinger said in Aswan, Egypt.

Egypt announced that Syrian President Hafez Assad already has authorized Sadat to begin talks with Kissinger on Syria's behalf.

Egypt and Syria were the main combatants against Israel in last October's Arab-Israeli war. Syria retook and then lost part of the Syrian Golan Heights captured by Israel in the 1967 war, and in addition lost new territory to the Israeli army.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban told reporters his government is ready for a disengagement agreement with Syria.

"The ball is in their court," he said.

Israel has insisted it will not negotiate with Syria until the Syrians furnish a list of the Israeli prisoners of war they are holding and allow the International Red Cross to visit them.

Israeli Premier Golda Meir signed a copy of an Egyptian-Israeli agreement in Jerusalem, while Sadat signed another at Aswan. Egyptian and Israeli chiefs of staff signed disengagement documents at a desert tent between their forces on the west side of the Suez canal.

Cairo agreed to cut its forces east of the Suez canal to 7,000 troops and 30 tanks and to withdraw all anti-aircraft missiles to a point seven miles west of the waterway.

The disengagement is known to call for Israel to withdraw from the west bank of the canal and to pull its army back 18 to 20 miles from the east bank to the Gidi and Mitla passes in the Sinai peninsula captured by Israel in the 1967 war.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said Israel will withdraw "within 40 days."

The Egyptian - Israeli disengagement agreement may open the way for negotiations on finding solutions to the causes of three Arab - Israeli wars in a quarter of a century. The two countries will get their chance Jan. 24 when the Mideast peace talks resume in Geneva. The talks started last December but faltered because of old territorial disputes and claims of war atrocities.

Any hopes that the disengagement agreement might impel the Arab oil countries to call off their cuts on production also appeared doomed by a comment from Saudi Arabia's oil minister. He said his Nation—the Arab world's No. 1 oil duction until Israel vacated all Arab territories taken in 1967.

Pipeline Route Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, Gordon Hill, said Thursday the federal government chose the wrong route to bring western crude oil to the eastern Canadian markets. Mr. Hill said the government unnecessarily squandered prime farm land by opting to build the pipeline from Sarnia, Ont., to Montreal.

No Crisis, No Hoax

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday there is no oil crisis or oil crisis hoax in Canada. Mr. McKeough was speaking on the Global television network in a debate with consumer advocate Ralph Nader, who said the oil situation has been exaggerated by oil companies as a means of inflating prices and driving their competition out of business. Mr. McKeough, while deferring to Mr. Nader on the situation in the United States, said there are problems of supply in Canada, but no crisis.

Crisis Is Opportunity

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney says the energy crisis has given Canada a unique opportunity to forge "a new kind of Confederation." He told a Trent University audience Thursday that next week's federal-provincial energy conference offers a chance to tackle regional disparity "not only in oil and energy but in the whole of the economy."

GM Plans Layoff

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — General Motors plans to lay off 14,000 workers at plants here next week, company officials said Thursday. All the layoffs, blamed on lagging big-car sales, will last one week.

Expect More Immigrants

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration officials agree that Britain's current economic woes could return the United Kingdom to its traditional spot as the main source of immigrants to Canada. The government already has added one extra immigration officer to the 12 posted at the high commission in London. There now are 28 officers at the six Canadian immigration offices in Britain.

Dairymen Want More

REGINA (CP) — The Dairy Farmers of Canada wound up their annual meeting Thursday by calling for an increase of at least $2 a hundredweight in payments and subsidies to milk producers. Milk producers now get $5 to $5.50 a hundredweight, plus $2 in subsidies if they are eligible.

Police Rescue Hostage

OTTAWA (CP) — Police today subdued a man who earlier was reported to have shot one person and then held a woman hostage in a restaurant about 10 miles south of here on Highway 31.

Although reports were sketchy, the unidentified man was said to have entered Bruno's Italian Restaurant and then shot Earl Armstrong of Ottawa, an Ontario Hydro employee, in the wrist.

Mr. Armstrong was reported to be in good condition in hospital here.

The man was said to have held an unidentified woman hostage as police from Ottawa and adjoining Gloucester Township sealed the area.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A disturbance is expected to move eastward through Ontario today, with snowfall accumulations ranging from two to three inches in northern and eastern Ontario to negligible in the southwestern regions where freezing rain is more likely. Saturday a large area of high pressure will move to the lower lakes from Manitoba, producing mainly sunny skies except for flurries near the Great Lakes.

Britain's Outlook Brightens

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath announced today he has invited trade union leaders to talks Monday about Britain's industrial and economic crisis.

This is widely regarded as a "last-chance" meeting.

In a surprise announcement Thursday, the government said that full power supplies will be restored to the vital steel industry and that the three-day work week may be ended soon.

This first good news for Britain in weeks emerged following a meeting of the cabinet Thursday at which the economic, industrial and political situation was discussed for nearly three hours.

The new energy secretary, Lord Carrington, said Britain has sufficient coal stocks for restrictions to be lifted on steelmaking. He said a four-day work week is "in the cards" and a decision on it may be announced next week.

Mrs. Pauline McGibbon Ontario's Lt.-Governor

TORONTO (CP) — Pauline McGibbon, 63, chancellor of the University of Toronto, was appointed lieutenant-governor of Ontario Thursday, the first woman to hold a viceregal post in Canada.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced the appointment of Mrs. McGibbon, a noted figure in education and the arts, who will succeed W. Ross Macdonald, lieutenant-governor since 1968, in a ceremony in March.

"People have told me that many women will be happy about the appointment," Mrs. McGibbon said. "And I hope some men will be, too."

Premier William Davis said Thursday he was "extremely pleased" with the appointment of the University of Toronto history graduate who holds honorary degrees from the University of Alberta and the University of Ottawa.

"I know she will serve the people of Ontario with grace and distinction for many years to come," Mr. Davis said.

Mrs. McGibbon has been chancellor at the University of Toronto, the first woman to hold the position, since 1971 as a before that she was a member of the university senate for nine years.

"An excellent appointment," said Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal Party leader in a telephone interview from Wiekwire, Ont.

"Her experience in community service and background in artistic achievement will add a very important dimension to the post."

A member of the board of governors of the National Theatre School, the Irish Arts Theatre in Toronto, president of the Dominion Drama Festival from 1957 to 1958 and an adviser to the Ontario Youth Theatre, Mrs. McGibbon said in an interview Thursday her interest in the theatre will aid her in her new career.

"If you're a lover of theatre, the pageantry has an appeal."

The Sarnia, Ont., native is married to Donald McGibbon, treasurer of Imperial Oil Ltd. They have no children.

Michele Lewis, wife of Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said: "It's a millennium. I never thought those people would do it—appoint a woman!

Incomplete Sentences On Tapes Are Queried

WASHINGTON (AP) — An assistant special prosecutor asked a White House lawyer today about alleged new gaps in the Watergate-related tapes turned over to a federal district court by the White House.

Assistant prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste asked White House lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt whether he is aware that a cassette recording of the president's recollection of a March 21 meeting with White House counsel John Dean ended in mid-sentence.

After objections from another White House lawyer, James St. Clair, Ben-Veniste agreed to refer to it as "an incomplete sentence."

Buzhardt replied that he is aware and that it is not unusual for such dictation to result in incomplete sentences.

Then Ben-Veniste asked him about the dictation bell of presidential recollections of a June 4 telephone conversation with then Attorney-General John Mitchell. The call has not been recorded on the White House taping system.

The recollection on that bell was only 13 seconds long, court documents show.

Ben-Veniste asked Buzhardt: "Can you explain why the dictation bell picks up in the middle of a sentence" after a 38-second pause following Nixon's description of the Mitchell call?

"I was not aware that it did," Buzhardt replied.

Buzhardt said it is not unusual for pauses to exist in the dictabelt recordings because Nixon has the habit of pushing the microphone button and releasing it.

Eight Perish In Fire

WINNIPEG (CP) — At least eight persons died early today when an overnight fire raced through a four-storey walkup apartment in central Winnipeg.

An eighth body was recovered by mid-morning as firemen continued to dig through the ruins.

Four other persons were unaccounted for, but police said it was possible some had escaped.

No identities were released.

About 20 others were taken to hospital. Some were released after treatment and a hospital spokesman said none of those detained was considered in critical condition.

About 40 people lived in the 28-suite Hazelmere Apartments at 559 Pacific Avenue, a block north of Portage Ave. and Furby St.

Fire Chief Cam Shewan, who described the blaze as "the worst one I've been on," said the search for victims was being hampered by a partially-collapsed roof.

Cause of the fire is not known but police spokesman said the blaze, which broke out shortly after 1 a.m., apparently started in the rear section of the second floor. It spread rapidly upwards in the four-storey walkup building which contained 23 suites.

About 40 people were believed to be in the building and five remain unaccounted for. Spokesmen said however that they believed at least two of those escaped and were in the area but had not made contact with police or the fire department.

Listed among the injured were three firemen who were hit when the parapet on the northwest corner of the building collapsed without warning. The heavy concrete overhang crashed down on one fireman who was halfway up a ladder and two comrades working below.

About 20 tenants were injured as they attempted to flee the fire by jumping from windows, climbing down sheets or by fire rescue ladders, in the near-zero degrees temperature.

Floods Hit California and Idaho Homes

Butterfly Avenue in Dunsmuir, California, became a raging torrent Wednesday when the Sacramento River surged over its banks inundating a low lying residential area. (left). Hundreds of families were evacuated from the area Tuesday night. Right, tons of ice and snow lie against the side of the Sandpoint, Idaho, home of Gary Gore. Dino Martin Held After Guns Seized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dino Martin, 23-year-old son of actor-singer Dean Martin, has been arrested and charged with illegal possession of firearms, federal officials said today.

A spokesman for the alcohol, tobacco and firearms bureau of the treasury department said Martin was arrested Thursday at his home in Beverly Hills, Calif. .

The spokesman said five machine guns, a .30-millimetre cannon and a supply of ammunition were confiscated at Martin's house

The bureau spokesman said the machine-guns included an M-3 carbine, a British Sten gun, a Thompson .45-calibre sub-machine-gun and two Belgian FM machine-guns.

He would not say how the agents learned of the firearms.

Provincial Committees To Study Hospital Jobs

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Health Minister Richard Potter's study committee on hospital wages is "long overdue," says a spokesman for Belleville General Hospital's nurses.

At that time, Frances Lathem, president of BGH's nurses' association, called "a pipe-dream" the minister's statement that most hospital wages are competitive with industry.

"Chauvinistic" attitudes pervade the setting of hospital salary schedules, said the spokesman for a core hospital working force.

Announcement of the Potter committee and a second study group on hospital job evaluation reporting to Labor Minister Fern Guindon were announced jointly by both ministers Thursday.

The time had an ironic twist for BGH nurses. Today their request for higher wages goes to a conciliation hearing in Belleville.

Comment from other BGH labor representatives was not available. Members of the bargaining locals of the Service Employees' Union — agents for about 600 office technical and general workers — were at a Hamilton labor seminar.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, could not be contacted until full details were known.

Dr. Potter' committee will examine the impact and implications of government-dictated ceilings on hospital budgets on wage levels — a key complaint with labor.

The health minister said he and Mr. Guindon had been meeting for the "past six or eight months because we both are concerned about salaries paid to some groups in our hospitals."

Dr. Potter said that wages for most hospital workers are competitive with industry.

"My concern is about employees in maintenance and cleaning staffs," the minister said, adding that there appeared to be a tendency in some hospitals to keep them at a "fairly low rate."

"In view of representations which have been made, we want to learn whether or not the application of constraints is creating undue hardships on certain groups, or levels, of hospital employees," he said.

Mrs. Lebinen said the minister's comparison of industry and hospital wage schedules was "wrong."

"They're not the same. This is pipe-dreaming."

She said a school board janitor received better pay than one at BGH.

She also said it was "a pity" no representative from a status-of-women group was chosen for the committee.

"There are a lot of chauvinistic wage settlements in a hospital. A lot of hospital employees are women — and as such are paid lower."

Dr. Potter's committee will include a chairman, a nominee of the Ontario Hospital Association and a member of the ministry. It will report by June this year.

Government spending ceilings also fix hospital budgets which gives the hospital a very narrow bargaining platform," says Mrs. Lebinen.

Unavailable for comment were Douglas Martin, president of Local 183, SEIU, which has about 400 members in BGH dietary, maintenance, supply and housekeeping services; John E. Jones, president, Local 663, SEIU which represents technicians and office workers.

Study areas for Mr. Guindon's committee include feasibility and desirability of collective bargaining on a level other than an individual hospital; standards of compensation under the Public Hospitals Act and compensation criteria. In effect, it will be a job evaluation group.

The committee will consist of a chairman and two or four others, but no reporting date has been set.

Said Mr. Guindon: "The problem is most complex because of the variety of elements involved — including the mix of skilled, semi-skilled and regional wage differentials..."

Both ministers emphasized that the new committees would have no effect on present bargaining in the province.

Thomas Edwards, hospital co-ordinator in Ontario for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, the largest of 12 unions representing 38,000 hospital employees, predicted the committees only will confirm what 'unions have been telling the province — that arbitration is detrimental to workers and that hospital boards should be allowed to exceed spending ceilings when negotiating new contracts.

Spirit Will Move Bairstow

Play to Be Polished For Drama Festival

Former Belleville Theatre Guild professional director, Ted Bairstow, will be doing a good bit of polishing in the next two months. However, he wouldn't be his books, or silver plate, but a play.

The Napanee Theatre Guild has hired the Loyalist College drama instructor for post-production polishing of Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit. The three-act drawing room comedy was produced by the group, 25 miles east of Belleville in a downtown loft theatre late last year.

Now the guild plans to enter the play in the Eastern Ontario Drama League festival this spring. To that end, the theatre group has retained the critical services of Mr. Bairstow for advice as to possible improvements.

"I look forward to be entertained," says Mr. Bairstow of his assignment jokingly, but more seriously: "As I see it, the whole point of this business is going down there and spending a lot more time explaining, than saying. You do this, you do that.

"I'm much more interested in their learning something from the whole experience. I'll be making suggestions about blocking, timing, pacing the play -- suggestions that will improve the things as a piece of theatre."

During his term as paid professional artistic director of the Belleville Theatre Guild in 1971-72, he directed four plays, among them, Oliver Goldsmith's She Stoops to Conquer. Last season, he put together John Patrick's adaptation of his novel, Teahouse of the August Moon.

Last year, Mr. Bairstow adjudicated Summer Arthur Long's Angela, a three-act set farce, for the Napanee guild, but then, he says, it was a production, rather, than for a festival. This is the first year the guild is entering a play in the EODL festival.

Before seeing the play for the first time, Mr. Bairstow was not sure how he would be working with former actor, William, director (Robert Lawton, Lavona Hawkins) deeply involved in the Belleville Theatre Guild's production of Blithe Spirit several years ago.

Mr. Bairstow will either be working closely with director, and through him, with the actors, or directly with the actors.

His salary will be paid through an Ontario Council for the Arts training grant, administered by Theatre Ontario.

With reference to Belleville, president Verna Paterson said recently the guild will not be joining Kingston, Peterborough, Lindsay, Brockville and Ottawa with an entry. Due to costs and lack of rehearsal time at the Pinnacle Playhouse, the guild executive has decided against entering the three-act festival.

Little Book Is Full Of Lancashire Lore

But that's the style of distribution that was intended.

Nobbut a Thought from

CLIFFORD HEYWORTH

Lancashire is a collection of poems, stories and anecdotes written by Clifford Heyworth as he sprightly as his prose and poetry.

Only about 50 volumes have been placed on sale in stores in Trenton, Frankford and Brighton. The reason is that Clifford's a Briton, from Lancashire, and his book is written in the distinct dialect of his native county. Lancashirian — like Irish or Scottish brogues — is instantly recognizable and a source of nostalgia for those born to the tongue.

Hence the reason Clifford, on vacation here with Brighton friend Bert Carter, has put some copies of Nobbut, published in Lancashire, on sale here.

"You'd be surprised at the number of Lancastrians you find across Canada — and I hope this will provide them some pleasure."

He's been running into others from Lancashire in trips that have taken him 7,000 miles — from Mcconnel to the Mediterranean.

His main impression: "I'm astounded at the coomness of Canadian society."

As a writer, frequently in demand as speaker to clubs and community groups, his observation may have more validity than most.

He's had a smashing postlive as proof. In October he started to concentrate a big limousine. Its chauffeur not only agreed to be his bodyguard of Roland Michener, but also to become his valet.

Mr. Michener gave him a reeve — and CNE seat, for a greeting at Christmas. The governor-general replied with a Christmas card.

Mrs. Walker died in Belleville General Hospital Jan. 13, following a long illness. She was in her 81st year.

The daughter of William and Christine Storring, she had lived in Crookston for the past 58 years.

Mrs. Walker is survived by her husband, Albert (Elaine) Rodgers of Ottawa, Mrs. Norman (Gail) Burley of Deep River and Mrs. James (Irene) Wallace of Cloyne. She is the sister of Amanda Bray of Niagara Falls Cora Hicks of Hamilton Lena Ash of Madoc Stella Hall of Wellington, Melody Blair of Crookston Mary McMullen of Iron Bridge, Evelyn Rollo of Ivanhoe, Ross Storring of Tamworth Bruce Storring of Kamloops and Henry Storring of Ottawa.

Garden Club Slate Approved

Indoor gardening under lights was the topic of the meeting of Belleville Garden Club Jan. 15. Bill Palmer, who has been gardening under lights for 20 years, detailed the care of lighting, soil and watering to promote the indoor growth of vegetables and flowers.

The foiling slate of officers was approved for 1974: president Al Gardiner; first vice-president, Harry Lansbourne; second vice-presidents, Larry Johnson; directors, Gordon Ellis, Harry Hall, Bernard Honeyman, Harold Thompson and Jean McCulloch. Reg. David, Marjorie Teagle, Audrey Adams, Larry Kells, Ruth Thompson.

House Robbed

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reported today that thieves forced their way into the home of Albert Wallbridge at 11 Southwood Cres. sometime between 7.30 and 11.30 p.m. last night and stole a calculator, a camera, a watch and a clock.

The thieves gained entry to the building by breaking a small window in a basement door.

THE LINGERING COLD IS BAD NEWS
How does your cold usually start out — cough, sore throat, sniffle? For each of us it is most often the same symptom but each cold, no matter how usual it is in its course in about the same way every time, if it's not really a severe one you might even get by without calling on your physician.
The cold you want to be extra careful with is the one that does not follow your usual pattern. Either it starts off different or it does not respond to your efforts to treat it. Don't let this kind hang on — see your physician before something serious develops.

Remains Police Chairman

TRENTON — Hugh Campbell, businessman and five-year member of the Trenton Police Commission was returned as its chairman for 1974 at Thursday night's meeting.

In choosing the commission chairman, Picton Judge Wilfred Lane praised Mr. Campbell for his proficiency in the position and termed him best man for the job, since he is able to devote most time to it.

Last night's meeting was the first commission session attended by newly-appointed Mayor Robert Patrick.

Spring Work Start On Housing For Elderly

MADOC — Madoc village council has awarded the contract for construction of 21 Senior Citizen Units to Maurice H. Rollins Construction of Belleville.

The meeting, attended by Reeve T. D. Barton, Deputy Reeve Kel Kincaid and Councillors Clayton Smith, Robert Kirkwood and Robert Graham heed about the project from Sidney Kaye, development Officer Ontario Housing Corporation.

Mr. Kaye reported in the status of the proposed senior citizen housing project on closed Dec. 6 with three bids being received by the village. The work on the building is scheduled to begin as soon as weather permits in the spring, with completion expected early next fall.

Chamber To Hold Annual

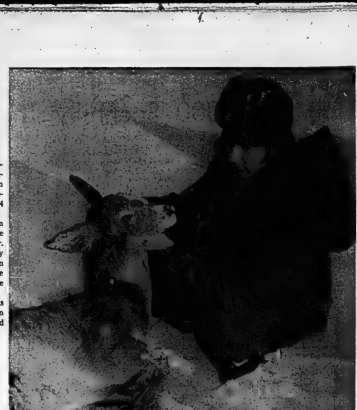
PICTON — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual dinner meeting at Prince Edward Yacht Club, Thursday, January 31.

The program includes election of officers for 1974, presentations to citizens and a report on industrial development.

The meeting will be followed by a social evening. Tickets are available from any chamber director or the Picton Gazette Office.

Bureau Outlined

TRENTON — Bill Hockley, manager of Belleville's Citizen Bureau was guest speaker at last night's meeting of the Quinte District Labor Council.



The QDLC have taken a personal interest in the bureau, opening a similar operation in Trenton.

Mr. Hockley covered the history of the Belleville bureau and its terms of reference. It has been speculated he may become manager of the Trenton operation which recently won a 9,000 Local Initiatives Program grant. Work in the Belleville office is currently done by volunteers.

Profit Down

TORONTO (CP) — Shares of Baton Broadcasting Inc. of Toronto touched a record low on the Toronto stock market Thursday after the company released a lower-than-expected profit report for the year ended last Aug. 31.

Wednesday, the company reported a profit for the 12 months ended Aug. 31 of $2,383,000 or 62 cents a share, down from $2,162,000 or 51 cents a share during the corresponding period a year earlier.

Council Will Meet Soon On McFarland Succession

PICTON — Town clerk Andrew Jarvis has stated that council is likely to hold a special meeting within the next few days to discuss appointment of a new mayor.

The mayor's office was left vacant last week with the death of Harvey J. McFarland who has just completed the first year of a two-year term.

Mr. Jarvis said earlier this month that council can appoint a new mayor from its own ranks. Should Picton reeve James Bird receive the appointment it would be then necessary to choose a new reeve.

If a councillor were elected to the mayor's office then his vacant seat would be filled by the defeated candidate closest to winning a council seat in the last election.

Should council fail to appoint a mayor then a by-law to call an election would be passed.

Councillor Russell Alexander, a newcomer to municipal politics in 1972, was appointed acting mayor last year during any absences of the late mayor McFarland.

Sergeant Criticizes Captain in Council

TRENTON — For Canadian airmen living in Middleton Park, this will be a year of change in the local council that addresses social planning for their subdivision's 700 homes.

Capt. Mike Barbeau took office as mayor Thursday and said the council's constitution will be the first item on the list of changes.

Constitution revisions will allow for two major alterations. Council, representing the subdivision's 3,000 dwellers, will be expanded from 15 to 30 members and a seven-man executive committee will be set up.

Mayor Barbeau also plans budget cuts to allow for a capital reserve fund that one day will permit construction of a swimming pool and purchase of playground equipment for the community's 1,500 children.

CAPT. MIKE BARBEAU

Mayor Barbeau was criticised for his move to expand council by Sgt. Wally Dance who called the idea "absolutely ridiculous," having such a large council for 3,000. It would be twice the size of either Belleville's or Trenton's municipal representations.

The mayor replied later, that by expanding the council, work could be spread over more shoulders making it easier on individuals.

"It's hard to get volunteers. You'll lose them forever if you pile too much work on them," he said.

Other areas of general attention will include staying up the park's trailer parking depot and general landscaping of the home lots.

Base commander Col. Robert Husch urged council to get behind a landscaping idea that would "improve the appearance of Middleton Park".

Col. Husch was highly appreciative of the council's past efforts and thanked new councillors for their community thinking and readiness to participate in council work.

New Council For CFB's Subdivision

TRENTON — Capt. Mike Barbeau, named mayor of Canada's largest Trenton's private married quarters Middleton Park heads a council whose members are:

Puck Fatal

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — An 18-year-old youth died Thursday night after a hockey puck struck him in the chest during a game between two industrial league teams in this community about 30 miles north of London.

Killed was Philip Charles Evans of Goderich, Ont.

Dogs Killing Deer Say Game Wardens

Those Quiet Domestic Pets Can Be Fatal to Wildlife

Domestic dogs are running at large are once again hounding deer to death around the Bay of Quinte.

In recent weeks, say district wildlife conservation officers, dogs have been persistently pursuing the big game animals in various townships around the Bayshore.

Some of the dogs are running wild. But the big majority of predators — confirmed by eye-witness-reports — have been domestic pets.

Since winter settled on the area, Natural Resources Ministry officials estimate at least 20 deer have fallen victim to the canine predators in the Quinte-Kingston region.

By winter's end the toll could be the highest in years. The mix of weather that makes ground conditions difficult for deer to outrun the dogs arrived earlier than usual this year, says Jack Stewart, the ministry's district conservation co-ordinator.

In the Tweed area, wildlife officer Dave Atkinson says free-running dogs had created a "rather grim" situation until recently.

Wildlife officers have recovered the brutalised carcasses of deer from the Brighton, Frankford, Plainfield, Shannonville and Northport area.

Not all the animals have been savaged to death. Some have been pursued to exhaustion. Others have been chased onto the ice of the Bay, the Trent River in Sidney Township and Salmon River in Tyendinaga township, where they literally stricken by exposure and nervous exhaustion. One deer was so incapacitated it had to be shot.

The problem isn't new. Neither is the frustration of wildlife guardians in trying to cope with its annual recurrence.

"It's the same old trouble," says Mr. Stewart. "There is no awareness of the owners involved. They are those dogs left on the porch at night and see them there again in the morning. They think they've never moved. Meantime, many of those dogs have travelled miles during the night."

In two reported instances — near the Trent River — Labrador dogs, among the gentler domestic species were seen running deer, he says.

Heightened awareness by local governments could also be a key offsetting factor, he says. Many municipalities need strict by-laws, rigidly enforced. This not only may reduce the numbers of pets running free but the wild dogs whose ownership no one claims.

Already, there may be working proof of the proposal.

In the Napanee area five townships have combined in a strict dog control program. The district once was a "high-carcrace" area for deer killing. Now it's dropped sharply.

The situation is under close scrutiny to see if it may "bear out anything on livestock losses which so often have been blamed on coyote," says the conservation officer.

We've had no compensation claims for livestock losses in that area since November," he adds.

More "positive" control steps by municipalities may be a key to prevention.

Ministry officers can only turn over wild or free-running dogs to the municipality in which they are taken. They may only shoot a dog if they personally spot it in pursuit of a deer in a known deer habitat.

The Game and Fish Act carries a maximum penalty of up to $1,000.

"But very, very rarely are we able to locate owners before dogs running at large are not usually tagged," says the conservation co-ordinator. Stewart. "Even those dogs

They'll Work for Their Town On New 1974 Committees

TRENTON — The people who work behind the scenes on the various municipal committees here have named for 1974 teams.

On the town's economic and industrial development committee are Ted Parker, Paul Tripp, Vagn Lange, Eben James and chairman Councillor John Bonn.

Ian Darling was re-appointed to the library committee but in a letter to council he declined to accept the positions as its chairman for the coming year.

On the committee of adjustment are William Norman, a representative of the Quinte Planning Board, Mayor Robert Patrick and Councillors George Greer and Bob Wannamaker.

Wayne Simmons was named to the parking authority and Trenton lawyer George Bonn was named as the town's representative to the Quinte Exhibition.

Councillor Greer will represent Trenton on the Highlands Hastings Tourist Legion and Councillor Peter De Groot was named as council's spokesman in the Chamber of Commerce.

Councillor Greer will also be Mayor Patrick's representative on Trenton's Memorial Hospital's Board of Governors.

'Twas Chilly In Quinte

Coldest spot in Hastings and Prince Edward counties during the night may have been Tweed around 11 p.m.

At that time, the low was reported at 15 degrees below. Official low this morning in the area was below — at 7.30 a.m. At Bancroft it was seven below.

In Belleville, the city's filtration plant recorded a low seven below.

The weather is predicted to warm today with tonight's low a contrasting 20 above. Colder air is expected in the area Saturday.

Hydro To Hold New Meetings

PICTON—The Ontario Hydro has scheduled a series of meetings for public participation in planning hydro lines in Prince Edward County.

Ontario Hydro officials already have met with elected officials here and a booklet called "Power to Live By Evaluating a public opinion survey has been circulated.

A second meeting between elected and appointed officials and Hydro representatives will be held here Jan. 24 at Inn-On-The-Bay.

A series of public meetings will then follow, the first scheduled for Krete Public School, Ameliasburgh, on Feb. 12.

Another meeting will be held in Wellington Consolidated School Feb. 13 and a third at Queen Elizabeth School, Picton, on Feb. 14.

Meetings also will be held in Febraary in Marysville, Sandhurst and Trenton.

Trenton Police to Get New Cruiser Fleet

TRENTON — Police Chief David Saunders was instructed last night to enter purchase and lease arrangements for the supply of new police cruisers.

This is the second time in less than a year Trenton police will be driving totally new cars.

According to the chief, the three cars have reached official life expectancy. He outlined in a report that both parked cars had each travelled in excess of 40,000 miles since their purchase last April.

On the chief's recommendation, the commission agreed to lease an unmarked vehicle for detective duty and purchase the marked cars. Approximately lease arrangements are expensive on marked cars, which depreciate rapidly in service as a police cruiser.

The two marked cruisers will be purchased from Lange and Fetter Motors for the lowest tender price of $4,601. The unmarked car will be leased from Davidson Pontiac Buick for $2,161 a year for a maximum of 50,000 miles.

Guarding the car's resale value, the supplier has imposed a 20-cent-a-mile penalty when mileage exceeds the 50,000 mile limit.

The chief was instructed to order the cars immediately.

Mindful of the town's upcoming budget Mayor Patrick queried purchase of new cars and requested the chief's report be forwarded to councillors to aid in the mayor's explanation to his council.

Question of Fate

It is said accidents don't happen. Rather, they are caused. But in many instances there seems to be a strong element of fate involved.

We were talking for example about the cruel stroke of fate that sidelined Belleville weightlifter Gary Walt on the eve of the Canadian team's departure for the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, N.Z.

But Walt still has his life and with medical care and luck he may well be able to resume training. Too late of course for the Games, but consider that for some the fates are even less kind.

There was that accident at Orono which took the lives of a restaurant owner and his wife and three children aged between 9 and 16. The Gerri Heykoop vehicle had emerged only about 12 feet from his property to Highway 115, for a 4:30 a.m. drive to Toronto airport and a vacation flight to Nassau when it was in collision with another car.

So many factors, including the early hour and what might be considered a time of day when traffic ordinarily is light, come to mind. Whatever the cause of the accident, the element of fate in this tragedy is singularly apparent. Compounding these grievous circumstances is the fact that a brother of Mr. Heykoop was killed in an accident north of Cobourg five year ago and that their mother, who lives in Cobourg, is a widow.

With snowmobiles also contributing their quota of accidents and fatalities, the unhappy conclusion is that the annual total of some 5,000 highway deaths in Canada likely will hit a new high this year.

Glimpse of the Past

The pictures from the old days are always of absorbing interest. Typical is the view of Hastings, on the Trent up Rice Lake way, in a special centennial section of The Cobourg-Sentinel Star.

The vintage of the picture, which is undated, is difficult to discern, but some event of note is depicted for there is a crowd of people on the railroad bridge and along the waterfront. There is a hint at the water's edge, so at least we know it was the era of the horseless chariot, and there is one of those classic groups from earlier and more leisurely times in the persons of half-a-dozen ladies and gentlemen taking their ease on the well-manicured lawn back a bit from the water. Two men and five women to be exact, the women in their long dresses and wide-brimmed hats and one of the men looks like a soldier so that it could be around the time of the first world war, or shortly thereafter.

There are other pictures too of this interesting Northumberland County community of 900, including one of the town hall, which soon may undergo renovations, and of local personalities such as Harold W. (Big Al) Scriver, a legendary figure in those parts, who died in 1967 at the age of 83, and Hockey Hall of Fame's Dit Clapper. The former has been Bruins all his life and those days in a recent interview for this Hastings centennial publication from a hospital bed in Peterborough where he is recovering from a stroke. Clapper, from hockey since 1949, Clapper is now 66.

With our own centennial as a community only four years' distant the recollection of the history of other times is of more than passing interest. More and more the past, with the add of such living entities as the Hastings County Museum at Glanmore House, is giving new meaning to community and national life in Canada.

Time to Think

Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia is a young man with a sense of mission and the determination to get things done.

His latest initiative is unusual for the political scene, especially remembering Prime Minister Trudeau's dictum that the state has no place in the bedrooms of the nation. However, Mr. Barrett is suggesting a six-week blinking over period for couples contemplating. marriage — that is, six-weeks between deciding to get married and obtaining the licence.

Behind the proposal is the province's increasing divorce rate and the idea has merit. The tendency these days is to marry young, but later, when they do not work out, so often they don't at such an early age, there is the trauma and expense of divorce, with potentially ill consequences for any children that may have been born.

Residential Repairs and Renovations

MP Estimates More Than $300,000 Spent By The P.M.

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — An ashtray in the newly-redecorated Centre Block office suite of Prime Minister Trudeau carries a price tag of $30.

There are six of them, and in a set of answers tabled in the Commons by Public Works Minister Goyer to questions from Nova Scotia Conservative Robert Coates, the total cost officially is given at $176.

But that is almost a nothing item in the over-all $51,000-plus it took to refurbish the prime ministerial digs.

Among some elegant touches are eight dove-grey suede-upholstered chesterfields at $1,331, and three Eskimo sculptures at $5,100.

But never mind the itsy-bitsy odd-thousand dollar details, says Robert Coates, one of the Opposition's more active inquisitors of the Government, with an insatiable curiosity, than the cost to the taxpayer of keeping the Prime Minister in the style to which he has become accustomed.

Apart from the salary which even the most critical Opposition MP would admit any Prime Minister ignore that earns, and atop such perks of office as getting hither and yon on combined public and private business, cost-accounting Coates figures the total tag at something over $310,000.

His, largely, have been the questions that have pried answers out of the reluctant Government.

This reluctance could be due to the Prime Minister's publicly expressed opinion that such questions concerning his spending in these sort of personal areas are "petty."

Robert Coates counters that they are important because they underline what he considers to be the Prime Minister's "self-indulgence" at a time when he should be setting the fashion in restraint.

Anyhow, that $312,000-plus takes in only four main items:

For renovations to the official residence at 24 Sussex Drive: $60,000.

For repairs, alterations and improvements to the Summer hideaway at the Harrington Lake Lodge in the Gatineau Hills: $95,000.

For the bulletproof, tires, glass and body limousine: $75,000.

But back to the cost of doing up these suites of personal areas over the Central Block suite, detailed for first time down to the last ashtray.

A hefty hunk of that $51,000 went in consultants' fees, with the interior decorators planning and "even supervising the manufacture" of some of the custom-made elegance, getting $31,454.17.

No tenders were called, with the items procured on direct purchase as approved by the Privy Council office (part and parcel of the—Prime Minister's own establishment) as recommended by the consultants."

And what care went into the making of some of these "items."

Like, for example, the rug, 443 square inches of broadloom, a chesterfields,18 case chairs,six open arm chairs, eight swivel tilted chairs and one "revolving and tilting executive chair," which sounds as if it could be for the personal use of the PM himself, and 13 wastebaskets. But no price tag.

And that $9,131 worth of suede-covered chesterfields, especially custom-crafted by upholsterers at Scarborough, Ontario, "under the supervision of the consultants."

Then there is a tapestry on the Prime Minister's office hallway walls priced at $750 and three more at about $530 per copy.

The end tables beside the suede chesterfields, six of them, came at $1,295.

Additionally, in the suite, are one coffee table, four other tables, two leather chesterfields,16 case chairs,six open arm chairs, eight swivel tilted chairs and one "revolving and tilting executive chair," which sounds as if it could be for the personal use of the PM himself, and 13 wastebaskets. But no price tag.

Portugal's African Colonies

Prosperity and Inter-Marriage Ace Cards for Lisbon

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Thomson News Service

The global propaganda campaign to remove the Portuguese from their still vast African empire has been in full swing for about a decade. In Canada it is hotted up in the last few months with publication of photos claiming to show severe brutalities by the Portuguese military in Mozambique and an inevitable boycott of Portuguese African exports.

The chief of these facing boycott is Angolan coffee, a major mix in the brands of coffee ground by most American roasters.

The guerrilla forces plaguing the three main colonies of Guinea-Bissau, Angola and Mozambique are given wide support in the West—their claims of territory conquered or under semi-permanent rebel control usually taken at face value.

One wonders why anyone, the Portuguese troops or the guerrillas, want to fight over a steamy backwater like Guinea-Bissau in West Africa.

In spite of the wide external campaign to unseat Portugal as the last major European imperialist power in Africa or of the guerrillas to do the same internally, the Portuguese remain strong. What seems to be unrepresenting to the rebels, is that the economics of the two major dependencies, Angola and Mozambique, are healthier than ever.

Angola's gross national product increases not only from coffee but oil and other natural resources in short world supply, and new approaches that of the Mother Country.

Mozambique's special claim to fame within the historic Portuguese acceptance and practice of miscegenation is that principle troops are not returning home after African service but staying in the possession as permanent colonists. They receive generous free grants of farm land to which they bring their Mozambique black families or white ones from Portugal.

The Portuguese say single troops are inter-marrying with Mozambique blacks thereby nullifying Lisbon's long-term support of the assimilation (assimilation of blacks and whites).

Mozambique's major infrastructure project is the giant Cabora Bassa hydroelectric power dam in the guerrilla-infested northwest part of the region. It is more than a Mozambique development, but an interlocking power development fitted northeast

'Eath Told Ter Go Down 'Ere and Take Yer Coal Out

PONTEFRACT, England (AP) — Before boarding the cage for his half-mile descent into the pits, coal miner Bernie Edwards had a word for Prime Minister Edward Heath concerning the overtime ban that has put Britain on a three-day work week.

"What Ted 'Eath wants ter do," he said in his Yorkshire accent, "is tie go down 'ere and take yer coal out. Then e'd know why we should be treated different to the rest."

"Aye," nodded Josh Holland, his sidekick in their cornbluff, deafening world of endless night.

"The goo-ver-mint didn't blink at paying yer Arabs double for yer oil, but they won't give us a sausage."

Like most of their mates at Prince of Wales Coal mine, one of Yorkshire's hottest and deepest, Edwards and Holland are feeling the pinch of a reduced pay packet, and the country's energy crisis.

"For most blokes, not working the overtime and Saturday and weekends means you can't run a car or buy a 'vase or pay for yer holidays," said Bernie. "Them that bought a color telly different to me."

Pontefract, a mining community with five liquorice factories—"where yer wives work"—never did get to light the Christmas decorations arching over its grey, begrimed main street.

Miners get a free ton of coal every six weeks, but some homes are without heat because deliveries have been hit by the gasoline shortage and the short work week.

The National Union of Mineworkers is making an increase to the pound steering equivalent of $101.25 from $81 a week, under Phase 3 of the government's anti-inflationary controls, the National Coal Board is offering an across-the-board increase of $3.71 a week.

In Pontefract, Wakefield, Castleford and the other mining towns scrabbling against the rolling Gibraltars out of the rolling Yorkshire countryside, it was difficult to find a miner who did not support his union's ban against working more than a five-day week.

The overtime and weekend ban has reduced the supply of coal on which industrialized Britain primarily depends for its energy supply. This situation has been compounded by the Arab oil squeeze and a railway dispute which has slowed delivery of coal.

As a result the Conservative government has ordered the country on a three-day work week in order to conserve energy.

"They're making it appear if we don't work Saturday or Sunday the whole country will collapse," said Harry Nash, who has been going down the Prince of Wales pit for 36 years, since he was 14 years old. "If we're that important, they should pay us twice as much."

The miners regard theirs as a dangerous, dying occupation that attracts no new men to the pits and is swamped with men fallen from the top of the pay ladder among manual laborers in Britain in this phase.

"There's only three men under 30 working the face of our pit," said Deon Austin, who walks 2½ miles in a semi-crouch every working day carrying his lamp, his survival kit and five pounds of sandwiches into the bowels of the Newmarket pit.

"The men leave to go to work in the plastics and textile places where the beginning wage is 34 quid—$78.55—a week and goes up to £27—$62.50.

"There's ade in the paper every day."

Austin, who has five children, volunteered for the rescue work at the Lofthouse mine where seven miners drowned two months back.

Sixteen more were killed after that when the cage dropped at the Markham colliery. But miners regard safety precautions as better since the mines were nationalized, but they charge that automation is taking more lives in the long run through lung diseases.

McKeough Asks Private Firms To Build Heavy Water Plants

BRUCE, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough called on private industry Thursday to submit by April 30 proposals to construct four new heavy-water plants here to supply Ontario Hydro reactors.

He said the contract would be worth between $500 million and $800 million.

Tenders will not be called, he said, "because this is a completely new field and the normal rules do not apply."

If the proposals are not acceptable, Hydro will build the plants itself, he said.

The four units should produce 1,600 tons of heavy water by 1979 and this would increase the heavy-water capacity at Bruce to 3,200 tons, double the capacity of plants in the rest of Canada.

The minister, in a speech in this community 40 miles southwest of Owen Sound and home of one of Ontario Hydro's generating plants, said to date 12 companies and consortiums have indicated their interest in heavy-water technology.

"Participation by Canadian consulting, engineering and construction firms is solicited, as is the involvement of Canadian financial capabilities and funds."

However, he said in an interview, a wholly United States owned firm, Lummus Co. of Canada Ltd. will be project manager because it is the only firm currently available with expert qualifications for the job.

Heavy water is used as a moderator in the Canadian Candu nuclear system fuelled by uranium. Nuclear power currently provides about one per cent of Ontario's energy needs, but by 1990 the province expects that figure will increase to 25 per cent.

Four heavy water plants are either producing or under construction in Ontario. The two producing plants provide about 800 tons of heavy water each year.

"Ontario Hydro must have as one of its stated objectives the transfer of design and construction capability to the private sector, so as to strengthen the high-technology complex of industry in Canada.

"This kind of involvement can result in big return to industry. They might not make a big dollar out of Hydro . . . but the technology can be sold time and again.

CP News Roundup

Dentist Attacks Colleagues

TORONTO (CP) — A Bowmanville, Ont., dentist said Wednesday that Ontario dentists have urged the crackdown on denturists because many unscrupulous dentists want to keep control of the false teeth business in which makes them more money than saving original teeth.

Dr. Angus Blair, who says he has spent most of his 38 years as a dentist fighting the dental establishment, said in an interview that dentistry needs a money matter.

He accused the dental establishment, acting through the Ontario Dental Association, of pressuring the province to harass the denturists, who make and fit false teeth without the supervision of dentists.

Of all the corporate performed by dentists, he said, "Fitting a denture requires the least skill, requires the least time and produces the biggest profit."

He said he believes the quality of work done by denturists is better than that done by dentists.

Given Life

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal increased to life Thursday a 15-year jail term given a man who pleaded guilty to raping and causing bodily harm to a 14-year-old girl.

The Crown had appealed the sentence given Edgar Hill, 36, in Milton, Ont., last July.

Hill had gone to the house where the girl was babysitting and raped her. When she tried to call for help he stabbed her in the face and chest with a paring knife until the knife broke. The girl may lose a sight of one eye as a result.

Mr. Justice Arthur Dossap said evidence indicated that Hill suffers from a personality disorder and is a danger to the community.

Release Sprays

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Three aerosol spray adhesives, withheld from the market since last August by 3M Canada Ltd., when a United States study linked exposure to the spray to birth defects, have been reintroduced after a Canadian study failed to show the link.

Stagger Hours

TORONTO (CP) — A $155,000 program to encourage downtown Toronto businesses to adopt staggered working hours was announced Thursday by Metropolitan Toronto Chairman Paul Godfrey.

The voluntary program is likely to affect more than 240,000 jobs or about one-quarter of the estimated 900,000 jobs in Metro.

Little Oil

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Pierre Goyer, federal minister of supply and services, said Thursday that at the present rate of consumption Canada will have exhausted all its conventional oil reserves by 1982.

The issue facing Canadians, he said, is not whether the oil sands of Alberta should be developed, but at what pace the should be exploited.

Northern Electric Probe Limit Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission can investigate only limited activities of Northern Electric during study of proposed Bell Canada rate increases, a Bell lawyer said Thursday.

Ernest Saunders told the commons transport communications committee that only direct business and financial relations between Northern, a Bell Canada subsidiary, and Bell are relevant to the parent company's request to the commission for rate increases.

The commission was empowered only to judge the reasonableness of the rate requests and thus could deal only with Northern activities directly affected to of Bell's telephone operations.

Mr. Saunders was speaking in response to arguments by Ontario and Quebec government lawyers who called for the commission to examine Northern's operations before considering Bell's requested increase.

Attempts by the two provinces to show the commission has jurisdiction over Northern its are similar to attempts rejected several times in the past, he said.

Any contention that Northern itself is a telephone company and thus subject to the commission's scrutiny is erroneous, Mr. Saunders said. Manufacturing and selling telephone equipment was not enough to make the company a telephone company.

The two-day hearing followed interventions by Ontario, Quebec and Alberta against proposed Bell rate increases which would raise by seven percent monthly home telephone bill by 10 cents to about 1,700,000 customers in Quebec, Ontario, parts of Newfoundland and the Northwest Territories.

Following the statements Thursday, commission chairman Guy Roberge said the committee will consider both sides of the arguments and present its decision in early February.

Hearing of the intervenors against the proposed rate increase is to begin Feb. 5 in addition to Ontario and Quebec, several consumers' groups have expressed opposition.

The increase would be the fifth for Bell since 1960 and would add about $51.8 million to its 1974 revenues. The company originally asked for increases totalling $85.2 million, but reduced the request last August because a buoyant economy allayed revenue expectations.

Plan Job Security For Militia Members

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson is considering legislation that would provide some form of job security for militiamen who want to serve overseas with Canada's contingent in the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF) in the Middle East.

The minister made the comment Thursday after issuing a call for about 120 volunteers for UNEF, to succeed out, to of militia units across the country.

Mr. Richardson said in an interview he is not far advanced in his consideration but that it is one of the things he is thinking of in his efforts to provide incentives for young people to join the armed forces reserve.

He said the legislation may not be necessary and that another system may be found to assure that a man does not lose his civilian job because he wants to do a stint with the reserve, either in Canada or out, for training or for operational duty.

He said he is not anticipating difficulty in finding volunteers. There are over of the Canadian UNEF force. Force officials said the volunteers will receive about two months of training and probably will reach the Middle East about May.

Mr. Richardson was interviewed at the annual conference of defence association—group concerned with the militia and the reserve—held here.

He was reflecting the increasing concern of Gen. J. A. Dextraze, chief of defence staff, who, with a small regular force of only 83,000 men, wants to revitalise the reserves.

In recent years, as the forces have been cut and the defence budget frozen, the reserve has been neglected.

Now the general wants to make reservists as part of plans he calls the first team, using them with regular forces to Canada and for NATO peacekeeping.

Mr. Richardson said in the interview he wants to increase the size of the reserve. He said give no new targets figure.

At present there are about 16,000 militiamen, about 2,000 short of authorized strength. There are also naval and air force reserve units.

Foreign Investment

Splurge Here Foreseen

WASHINGTON (CP) — The possibility of "another bulge in foreign investment" in Canada by the late 1970s is raised in a report by the National Planning Association, a policy research organization supported by major U.S. corporations.

Ernest Preeg of the State department, loaned to the NPA for the study, says in his report Thursday that while latest figures appear to "mark the twilight of the era of Canada as a fledgling industrialised country and large net importer of capital" projections for the next 10 years "are not at all clear and there could well be another bulge in foreign investment by mid-decade."

Ancient Sailor's Art, Modern Family Hobby

Ruth Soutter points out a family treasure, a multi-colored macrame wall-hanging. Rug wool was the material for the hanging which was designed by Mr. Soutter. All kinds of string, yarn and twine can be used to produce a variety of home and fashion accessories.

An art, an absorbing family hobby, a source of wardrobe and home accessories and even a way to earn money.

Macrame -- the ancient craft of knotting -- has been all of these things to Rev. Maurice Soutter and Ruth Soutter.

After a brief exposure to macrame as a boy -- "I was a sea scout and we had to know knots" -- Mr. Soutter forgot about the craft until a special assignment to the Anglican church Diocese of the Windward Island brought the minister and his family to the West Indies for three years.

There, as in other parts of the world, the old sailor's art of knotting was experiencing a revival.

"When I took a goodlook at it, I realized I knew what it was."

That was the beginning of a fascination for producing a variety of items for both Mr. and Mrs. Soutter.

"Before I knew it, we were right into it."

Their first experiment was a Tiffany-styled yellow lampshade for the rectory.

"There was a bare bulb hanging there and I was determined to cover it," Mr. Soutter says.

Starting with wire coat hangers and carpenter's chalk line, he fashioned the attractive fixture.

Since that experiment, the Soutters have applied the technique to many slightly decorative and useful items.

"The craft itself, Mr. Soutter says, can be traced to the Middle East.

"There is some speculation that the word itself is 'Turkish,'" he says.

"Traveling seafarers picked it up there and spent their spare time on ships working at it."

Mr. Soutter says that macrame might have been used on board ship around railings or on gangways where it afforded a gripping surface in case of icing.

"Sometime the art itself was used in netmaking," he adds.
